In South Korea some 40,000 U.S. troops and a South Korean puppet army of nearly 1 million are in a constant posture for war, and powder-reeking war exercise rackets are conducted continuously.

South Korea is the world's worst place for human rights abuses, where even basic democratic freedoms and rights are ruthlessly trampled underfoot, where anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggles are daily staged by the youths, students, and people, and where political unrest and chaos continue.

It is quite natural that the world's progressive people, governments of various countries, and men of sports circles are opposing and rejecting the Seoul Olympics, while expressing deep concern over them.

In connection with the decision to hold the 24th Olympic Games in Seoul, South Korea, the Olympic movement is faced with the danger of division. In order to save the Olympic movement from crisis, to facilitate the holding of the Olympic Games, and also to create favorable conditions for the peaceful reunification of Korea, we assert that the 24th Olympic Games should be held under cohosting by the North and South of Korea.

Our proposal for cohosting the Olympic Games is a just and reasonable measure corresponding to the ideals of the Olympic movement and the aspirations of the progressive people and sportsmen of the world.

If our proposal for cohosting is accepted, all countries, including those which are still considering whether to participate in the 24th Olympic Games or not, will be able to participate in them, and the Olympic movement will be saved from the danger of division. If the Olympic Games are held under cohosting by the North and South of Korea, this will have a good influence on eliminating misunderstanding and distrust between the two parts of our country, on attaining national reconciliation and unity, and on advancing the North-South dialogue.

With its justness and reasonableness, our proposal for cohosting the Olympic Games enjoys active support and welcome from the governments, peoples, and sportsmen of many countries, including the socialist countries.

In the event the 24th Olympic Games are cohosted by North and South Korea, we will offer excellent athletic facilities for all events held in Pyongyang and will warmly receive all guests who come to Pyongyang, including participants, officials, reporters and tourists, and will provide them with all conveniences. We expect that all peace-loving nations, governments, and peoples of the world will direct deep attention to our just and fair proposal for cohosting the Olympic Games and will actively strive to achieve it.

[Question] The relations between the DPRK and the SFRY, whose foundations were laid by you and President Tito, have been characterized by sincerity, friendship, and agreement on evaluating most international issues. How do you evaluate the future development of friendship and cooperative relations between our two countries?

[Answer] The friendship and cooperative relations between Korea and Yugoslavia that were realized on the basis of the special friendship and deep fraternal relations between I and Comrade Josip Broz Tito are comprehensively progressing and developing in all domains through the joint efforts of the people of the two countries.

Our two countries politically support each other and are closely cooperating with each other economically and culturally. We keep step with each other in the international arena, with common views on important international questions. The relations between our two countries are sincere and firm comradely relations. The visit to our country by the comrade president of the SFRY Presidency last March served as an occasion for further consolidating and developing the excellent friendship and cooperative relations existing between Korea and Yugoslavia. I am greatly satisfied with the fact that friendship and cooperative relations existing between our two countries are developing in a good manner with each passing day.

I believe that the friendship and cooperative relations between Korea and Yugoslavia will more excellently develop in the future. Our two countries are both socialist countries and nonaligned countries. The peoples of our two countries are class brothers and comrades-in-arms who are jointly struggling to achieve the victory of the socialist and communist cause and the lofty ideals of the nonaligned movement.

Further developing the friendship and cooperative relations between Korea and Yugoslavia is the common aspiration of the peoples of our two countries and is a practical demand in accelerating socialist construction and expanding and developing the nonaligned movement in our two countries.

Korea and Yugoslavia equally retain independence in the international domain and thoroughly observe the principle of total equality and mutual respect. This serves as an important condition for constantly developing the friendship and cooperative relations between our two countries. The prospects for friendship and cooperative relations between Korea and Yugoslavia are very optimistic. I believe that the friendly and cooperative relations between Korea and Yugoslavia will constantly expand and develop with the joint efforts of the peoples of our two countries.

Taking this opportunity, I wish the fraternal Yugoslav people greater success in their socialist construction and sincerely wish that they greet the 13th Congress and the League of Communists of Yugoslavia with brilliant labor exploits.

NEW JAPANESE TEXTBOOK REVISIONS DENOUNCED

[NODONG SINMUN 11 June commentary: "Unchanging Aggressive Nature"]

[Text] The issue involving Japanese textbooks is again occasioning criticism among people at home and abroad. In new middle school and high school history textbooks that the Japanese Ministry of Education has officially approved, the description of crimes of aggression which Japan committed in Korea and Asia in the past are, contrary to facts, severely distorted.

According to data, the Japanese authorities did not approve the use of such expressions as aggression and invasion in the chapters in the new textbooks dealing with the Japanese imperialists' past conquests in Asia. They also decreased the number of Korean people whom the Japanese imperialists killed or injured during the 1 March Movement in 1919 and the number of Korean people whom the Japanese imperialists forcibly drafted. They also vaguely described the great Nanjing massacre, saying that it is questionable whether this incident is true, thus distorting numerous historical facts.

This act by the Japanese authorities is a mean and shameless act designed to conceal the Japanese imperialists' crimes committed against the Asian peoples in the past as best they can and to beautify and adorn Japan's history of aggression.

People still remember that when stsormy protests occurred in our country, China, and other Asian countries in connection with Japan's revision of history textbooks in a way that beautified and embellished the Japanese imperialists' acts of aggression, the high-ranking persons in authority in Japan said that the government would responsibly revise the distorted textbooks. That was in 1982. Four years have passed since then. The Asian peoples have carefully watched the acts of the Japanese authorities. Their actions are in touchstone with which one can judge whether their promises are genuine or not.

The revealed results clearly show that the Japanese Government authorities' promise was empty lipservice designed to pacify the anger of the peoples at home and abroad and to escape from an urgent crisis. The Japanese authorities; attitude in which their deeds do not agree with their words represents mockery of public opinion and the defilement of the Asian peoples. The shameless distortion of history shows that the persons in authority in Japan do not acknowledge the Japanese imperialists' crimes of aggression in the past and have no intention of sincerely repenting their crimes of aggression.

The Asian peoples have realized again through the textbok issue that the Japanese reactionaries' aggressive nature has not changed at all. Even though the Japanese reactionaries are smiling in appearance, they have not forgotten for a moment their ambition to revive their old imperialist colonial state. As shown by the fact that the Japanese cabinet members visit the Yasukuni Shrine with a good conscience, the Japanese reactionary ruling class, following its predecessors who fell during the war to conquer Asia, are unhesitatingly treading the militarist path of aggression. Such an attempt for aggression is also seen in the fact that patriot An Chung-kun [a Korean who assassinated Hirobumi Ito in 1909] is described as a loafer in the newly published high school history textbooks.

An Chung-kun was a patriotic hero who punished Hirobumi Ito, a vicious criminal involved in the Japanese imperialists' aggression. As an expression of his patriotic sentiment for obstructing the imperialists' aggression and for defending the independence of and peace in the country, the righteous act of this patriot has won high admiration and respect from posterity. Our people cannot restrain our national indignation against the Japanese reactionaries' defilement of patriot An Chung-kun. The Japanese reactionaries' defilement of patriot An Chung-kun was designed to approve Hirobumi Ito's path of aggression. In this way, they are attempting to drive the emerging new Japanese generations onto the path toward aggression against Korea and, in the long run, toward the conquest of Asia, following the path of Hirobumi Ito.

In order to realize their old dream of a Greater East Asia Co-prosperity Sphere, the Japanese reactionaries are strengthening their forces of aggression on a large scale and are accelerating the militarization and fascistization of social and political life. As a means to infuse the idea of militarist aggression into young boys and girls, the revision of textbooks for the worse is forcibly underway at the government's instructions. This is a dangerous development of the situation that will again lead Japan to the road toward fascism and war. The Japanese reactionaries must keep in mind that the road toward militarization and war is the road toward destruction.

BROAD SUPPORT CLAIMED FOR COHOSTING PROPOSAL

[NODONG SINMUN 17 special article: "The Proposal for Cohosting the Olympics is Enjoying a Broad Range of Support"]

[Text] Because of its justness and reasonableness, our proposal for cohosting the XXIV Olympiad by the North and South of Korea is positively supported and sympathized with by governments, people, and sportsmen of various countries in the world, including the socialist countries.

The world's progressive people and sportsmen who love international peace and justice and value national reunification and harmony are lending positive support to our proposal for cohosting the Olympics, believing that it is in conformity with the noble ideals of the Olympic movement and that it is the most just and reasonable proposal reflecting the aspirations and desire of the Korean people and the world's peace-loving people for the reunification of Korea and international peace, while at the same time strongly calling on the persons in authority in South Korea to accept this proposal without conditions.

This is an expression of understanding about and support for our sincere efforts exerted for the purpose of saving the Olympic movement from a crisis, of holding the XXIV Olympiad smoothly, and of providing a favorable environment for realizing peace in and the reunification of Korea.

Voices supporting our proposal for cohosting the Olympics are growing louder with each passing day. On 11 June, some Indian lawmakers said in a joint statement issued in support of our proposal for cohosting the Olympics: Expressing deep concern over the Seoul Olympics, which run counter to the cause of Korea's reunification and which will lead the Olympics themselves to a crisis of division, we are convinced that if in the end the XXIV Olympiad is held in Seoul, it will leave an ignominious blemish in the history of the Olympics and will result in dividing the Olympic movement.

This being the case, we insist that the XXIV Olympiad be cohosted by the North and South of Korea in order to save the Olympic movement from a crisis, to guarantee a smooth holding of the upcoming Olympic Games, and, at the same time, to create a favorable environment for the realization of the peaceful reunification of Korea, as stated by the respected and beloved President Kim Il-song.

In a talk published on 2 June, Dieudonne Kimbembe, minister of Justice of the People's Republic of the Congo, noted: We call for the realization of the DPRK proposal for cohosting the Olympics to save the Olympic movement from a crisis and to create favorable conditions for the peaceful reunification of Korea.

We ardently appeal to all the people in the world who love peace and justice to raise their just voices demanding that the XXIV Olympiad be cohosted by the North and south of Korea.

In a recent statement, (Vladimir Bujovic), member of the standing committee of the Sports Federation of Yugoslavia, said that Yugoslavia supports the DPRK proposal for cohosting the 24th Olympiad by the North and South of Korea.

If the XXIV Olympiad is held in the North and South of Korea, this great sports event will contribute to peace in and the reunification of Korea. However, the South Korean puppets are turning a deaf ear to the just voices of the world's people and sportsmen.

In an interview with a Japanese paper on 9 June, Pak Se-chik, puppet South Korean sports minister and also chairman of the Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee, said that cohosting the Olympics is out of question in view of the Olympic charter.

The South Korean puppets' refusal of our proposal for cohosting the Olympics is an expression of an antinational, antipeace, and antireunification stand to use the Olympics for their policy of two Koreas and long-term office and to use them as a sacrifice to guarantee their stay in power, taking no notice of whatever happens to the Olympics themselves.

Such a stand by the South Korean puppets runs against the trend of the times and the unanimous aspirations of the nation that call for the cohosting of the Olympics.

The most practical and reasonable way to save the Olympics from a crisis of division and hold the XXIV Olympiad smoothly at present lies in realizing the proposal for cohosting the Olympics that was put forth by us. The South Korean side should listen to the fair public opinion at home and abroad, with a sound way of thinking.

The fair public opinion at home and abroad, which values the Olympic movement, is not tolerant of the XXIV Olympiad being used as a means to cover up the fascist colonial rule and to justify division and confrontation as well as a camouflage for a scheme to provoke a new war.

The indiscreet criminal acts by the South Korean puppets who are running counter to the national aspirations and to the trend of the times will never bring about good results for them.

SOCIALIST COUNTRIES SUPPORT OLYMPICS PROPOSAL

SK172314 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1505 GMT 17 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 17 (KCNA) -- Sports officials of socialist countries express full support to the proposal of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for the cohosting of the 24th Olympic Games by the north and south of Korea.

Marat Gramov, chairman of the USSR Sports Committee, said at a press conference: In our opinion, it would be a step forward in realising the Korean people's aspiration for the peaceful reunfication of the country to hold the Olympic Games in the north and the south. That is why we support the proposal of the DPRK delegates to hold the 1988 Olympic Games in Pyongyang, too.

The spokesman of the Chinese Olympic Committee stated that the committee has from the beginning supported the DPRK's Olympic cohosting proposal.

Boleslaw Kapitan, chairman of the Polish General Committee of Physical Culture and Sport, stressed in his press statement that the proposal to hold the 24th Summer Olympic Games in both parts of Korea is entirely just and conforms with the democratic spirit of national commonness.

At a press conference M.T. Georgiev, president of the Central Council of the Bulgarian Union of Physical Culture and Sports, said whether the Olympic Movement further develops or not and whether this movement discharges its peaceful mission or not largely depend on how the 1988 Olympic Games are organized, and he expressed full support to the Olympic cohosting proposal.

Aleksandar Stanic, spokesman of the Federal Secretariat for Foreign Affairs of Yugoslavia, at a press conference declared that Yugoslavia has supported from the beginning the DPRK's proposal for cohosting the 1988 Olympic Games in Pyongyang and Seoul.

In his press statement D. Dashdovdon, chairman of the Mongolian National Olympic Committee, said that the DPRK has the right to cohost the 1988 Olympic Games. He expressed full support to the DPRK's cohosting proposal.

LAO OLYMPIC COMMITTEE HEAD CITED ON COHOSTING

[Text] Pyongyang June 14 (KCNA) -- For a smooth opening of the 24th Olympic Games, the International Olympic Committee, international sports organisations, all national Olympic committees and South Korea in particular must accept the Olympic cohosting proposal, said Singapo Sikhotohounnamali, chairman of the Lao National Olympic Committee, at a press conference on June 6.

Noting that it was a mistake for the IOC to have chosen Seoul as Olympic venue without regard to the Olympic idea, he said: This goes against a peaceful reunification of Korea, too. The Lao National Olympic Committee firmly stands on the side of the socialist countries supporting the proposal of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea for cohosting the Olympiad, he declared.

SOVIET ATTEMPTS AT INFILTRATION DETECTED

BK151040 Bangkok MATICHON in Thai 15 Jun 86 pp 1, 2, 16

[Text] The Japanese newspaper SANKEI SHIMBUN on 13 June carried a report on its foreign news page under the headline: "The Soviet Union Has Adopted a New Method of Infiltration in Thailand by Providing Low-Interest Loans to Thai Farmers." The newspaper's correspondent in Bangkok, (Susumu Shimomuro), made the report based on Western sources saying that the Soviet Union has renewed its political infiltration in Thailand, this time by dumping a huge amount of money as low-interest loans for Thai farmers in the north and northeast. It also started sending men for propaganda work in Thai rural area.

According to the source, the Soviet Union took advantage of the situation to step up infiltration as Thai farmers are suffering from a drop in prices of corn and rice due to the impact of the U.S. Farm Act. It proposed low-interest loans for Thai farmers. This is not an ordinary propaganda method. The Soviet Union is launching a rice trade war with the United States using Thailand as a battlefield for this propaganda warfare.

According to the extreme right-wing newspaper of Japan, the Soviet money-dumping campaign started 3 months ago when it bought up about $100 million, or about 2,700 million baht, from the Hong Kong black market to be transferred to Thailand through the Overseas Chinese Corporation Bank or OCDC of Singapoore. The money is meant to be given as loans to poor Thai farmers through the Chinese in Thailand.

SANKEI SHIMBUN reported that the Soviet Union meanwhile sent about 30 of its men under the guise of either researchers in ethnology or businessmen surveying markets into the rural areas in the north and northeast. This is the biggest team of this type ever dispatched by the Soviet Union for infiltration. The Soviet Union previously resorted to the tactic of recruiting poor students in the northeast of Thailand for scholarships in the Soviet Union.

Commenting on the report, Secretary General of the National Security Council Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri told MATICHON that it is possible for the Soviet union to do anything for its propaganda interests, but he did not want to elaborate on the matter because he would have to check the details first.

Squadron Leader Prasong said foreign officials posted in Thailand should respect diplomatic regulations, but this is not the case for some socialist countries. Officials of some communist countries take advantage of Thailand being an open and free democratic country, and travel to various places without notifying Thai authorities. "We have problems of officials of the Vietnamese Embassy visiting Vietnamese refugees in various areas in the northeast. We have the same problem with Soviet officials as well. On this, the Foreign Ministry has notified those respective embassies. They should also have notified us for the sake of safety for their officials," Prasong said.

A highly placed source in the government told MATICHON that Thailand's security and intelligence agencies are keeping a close watch on foreigners, either from the communist camp or from free countries, travelling in Thailand for fear that their activities might involve Thailand's security. For example, the government is watching closely the activities of certain religious radicals in the south with grave concern.

"In fact, we cannot let it go on without limit like this. The government is drafting measures to curb areas of operations for those people in question. Although we are aware of what activities they are carrying out, we still have to have our measures for control. The measures will be made public soon," the source said.

SOVIET OFFICIAL ON TRADE WITH THAILAND

[Text] Thailand should send trade missions and hold exhibitions in the Soviet Union to boost its foreign trade income, Soviet Deputy Minister of Foreign Trade Yevgeniy Bavrin said last night. Mr. Bavrin, who is here for five days for a series of ESCAP meetings, said the Soviet Union welcomed such exhibitions and trade missions despite its present trade imbalance with Thailand. During the period 1981-1985, he said, trade between the two countries favoured Thailand by about $1 billion, double that of 1976-1980, he said.

The Soviet Union had held trade exhibitions in Thailand, and will hold its biggest, involving 29 organizations, from October 16 to November 2. Trade missions and exhibitions were one avenue of boosting foreign income, he said, and Thailand had not sent missions or held exhibitions in Moscow.

Mr Bavrin said recently India held an exhibition in the Soviet Union which generated a considerable amount of trade. If Thailand is not careful, India could surpass it in terms of trade.

Mr Bavrin said Moscow is willing to invest in Thailand in the form of joint ventures and Soviet Union has expertise in certain industries such as light industry and mining. The Soviet Union is also a possible market for fruits and vegetables, he said. Presdently Moscow buys them from China. "Thailand could be a supplier," he said, "but the present problem is of transportation."

Sawang Laohathai, chairman of UMC International, said Thailand needs to promote more trade with Moscow. He said Thailand is losing many markets in the free world and that Thai companies should pay more interest in trade with the Soviet Union.

COMMERCE MINISTER MEETS SOVIET TRADE OFFICIAL

[Text] Deputy Minister for Foreign Trade of the Soviet Union Yevgeniy Bavrin who led a trade delegation here has stressed the Soviet Union's desire to set up a Thai-Soviet chamber of commerce in Bangkok as the bilateral trade volume has expanded markedly during the past few years.

Minister of Commerce Surat Osathanukhro yesterday told reporters that the Soviet trade mission was here to discuss various trade issues in general and the Soviet minister expressed satisfaction on the growth of the two-way trade volume.

Surate said that Thailand and the Soviet Union mutually agreed to promote trade shows and exhibitions both in Bangkok and Moscow as a means to boost trade relations. "We are ready to allow Soviet companies to organize exhibitions here while the Soviet minister is satisfied with the quality of Thai garments and tapioca products which we also intend to exhibit along with many other products in Russia.

Surat said that the Soviet minister informed him of two major trade goals -- one is to encourage two-way trade using the barter system and the other is the setting up of a Thai-Soviet chamber of commerce. "For the latter, I said they (Soviets) will have to discuss with the Thai private sector and companies which are trading with the Soviets while the Commerce Ministry has no objection to that and we are ready to support the establishment of a chamber of commerce."

Surat said that the Commerce Ministry will jointly discuss the Soviet proposal with the Foreign Ministry. He commented that Thailand should look forward to expanding prospective markets in other countries without regard to political ideologies so that farmers will be able to sell their crops more effectively. "We should not be overly dependent on only certain markets and support should be given to further expanding trade in every foreign country," he said.

They are expected to meet with academics of Chulalongkon University on Thursday and will give a lecture at the Faculty of Political Science. The three will leave here next Monday.

'FRAUD' OF SRV WITHDRAWAL FROM CAMBODIA DECRIED

BK171035 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in English 1500 GMT 17 Jun 86

["Article": "Facts Behind the Partial Withdrawal of Vietnamese Troops From Kampuchea"]

[Text] On 27 May 1986, a farewell ceremony was held in Phnom Penh to mark the fifth partial withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea. A press conference was also held to witness the withdrawal. According to Vietnamese officials, the number of withdrawing soldiers was up to 10,000. Since 1982, Vietnam has annually withdrawn its troops from Kampuchea. Each year the event is widely publicized, and press conference is held so that international reporters can witness the withdrawal.

On the contrary, this very same troop of reporters have never been invited to witness the sending of Vietnamese troops into Kampuchea.

In the interviews with 109 Vietnamese defectors recently, the research team of the Asia Foundation, Chulalongkon University, found that most of them were sent into Kampuchea after May 1983, during which the second withdrawal took place. A lot of them said they were sent into Kampuchea in late 1985, and some just arrived in Kampuchea during the first 3 months of 1986. It is apparent that Hanoi is still, in fact, sending its troops into Kampuchea despite its official withdrawal announcement.

Speaking before a press conference on 27 May, Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Hun Sen of the Heng Samrin regime praised the fifth partial withdrawal as another sign of the sincere cooperation and assistance of Vietnam, which always respects Kampuchea's independence. The real situation, however, indicates a completely different picture from one which the whole world is led to believe. Interviews made by French researcher Marie-Alexandrine Martin with Kampuchean refugees at Site 2 and Site 8 in Thailand recenty show that the Vietnamization of Kampuchea is intensifying. Following are some of the pertinent information from those interviews.

The presence of Vietnamese in Kampuchea has been increasing, particularly Vietnamese experts whose numer is twice as many as before. These experts are so numerous and influential that a lot of Khmer civil officials were forced to leave their own country. Every project proposed by the Kampucheans needs to be inspected and often converted by the Vietnamese experts before implementation. In school, Khmer students are today discountent with the short course being offered. Only 4 hours a day are spent in class. The rest of the time is devoted to the socialist work. The vietnamese language has become a compulsory course for students sine 1984. History course has put emphasis on the good and special relation between the Vietnamese and the Kampuchean peoples while the enmith between the two nations is never mentioned.

Big cities in Kampuchea are full of Vietnamese. The Kampucheans are forced to leave for the countryside, and their houses are instead occupied by the Vietnamese. In her report, Miss Martin indicates that there is one Vietnamese family out of every four families in the town of Kompong Speu. In the area of Takeo, there is a village with 400 families, all of which are Vietnamese. Another Vietnamese village with 500 families is found in Svay Rieng. It is estimated that in 1985 there are at least 450,000 Vietnamese settled in Kampuchea.

From Miss Martin's report, it ccan be clearly seen that Kampuchea's independence has never been respected by the Vietnamese. Signs of dissatisfaction arise from almost every party of Kampuchea. According to a reliable military report, the support of the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea -- or the CGDK -- is growing stronger and stronger. The CGDK'S forces' growing contacts with their fellow countrymen have prompted Vietnam to exert great efforts to control and supervise the Kampuchean populatiuon. More villagers in the areas suspected to be sympathetic to CGDK forces are put under tighter control.

As a matter of fact, Heng Samrin personnel are found to be a major sympathizer of the CGDK. In some areas, villagers were barricaded, curfew and various measures restricting movement were imposed. Coupled with these measures, Vietnam has launched psychological campaign operation in effort to terminate increasing popular support for Khmer patriotic fighters.

The situation inside Phnom Penh, the Kampuchean capital, is also unsafe and insecure due to growing activities of CGDK forces. The UNHCR [United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees] chief for Asian affairs who recently visited Kampuchea observed that the atmosphere of insecurity in Phnom Penh and numerous nearby cities is real and that curfew has been imposed on several areas.

A number of foreign Red Cross organizations working in Kampuchea also confirmed the urgent and growing need for medical assistance in several cities in the central art, including Phnom Penh. Security reasons have now forced Vietnam to hospitalize its soldiers in Kampuchea instead of transporting them back for the treatment in Vietnam. This fact is clearly the opposite image of what the Phnom Penh regime is boasting. The real situation is apparently contradictory to Hun Sen's assertion that the security has been ensured in the whole country.

Political observers see the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops as only the rotation of military units and not a genuine withdrawal towards a special political settlement of the Kampuchean guagmire. The official withdrawal is only a fraud aiming to distract the outside world from the genuine objective of Vietnam -- that is to colonize Kampuchea.

ATHIT SAYS LEAFLETS ATTACK ROYAL FAMILY

BK161054 Bangkok NAEO NA in Thai 16 Jun 86 pp 1, 16

[Text] At 1300 on 15 June, Supreme Commander General Athit Kamlang-ek and Army Commander Gen Chawalit Yongchaiyut together planted trees at a Buddhist park in Lat Lum Kaeo District, Pathum Thani Province. On that occasion, Gen Athit granted an interview about leaflets attacking him. He said this is not fair; the leaflets are the work of people with ill-intentions. He said he has been patient all along. He noted that now they have gone as far as attacking the royal family. This is not good for national security and unity. "As I am the director of the Internal Security Command, I have instructed concerned agencies to check into this and find the source of these publications to take action against them. I disapprove of such methods to create disunity within the nation while unity is most needed, Gen Athit sad. The supreme commander then turned to Gen Chawalit and told the latter that he had told the Police Special Branch and all concerned intelligence units to investigate the matter.

ATHIT KEEPS SECURITY COMMAND; CHAWALIT REMARKS

BK170145 Bangkok THE NATION in English 17 Jun 86 pp 1, 2

[Text] Army Commander-in-Chief Gen Chawalit Yongchaiyut said yesterday his staff is studying whether it is necessary to maintain the well-known Norasing task force of the Capital Security Command which is still headed by Supreme Comander Gen Athit Kamlang-ek.

Legal confusion at the same time has arisen as to whether Gen Athit has to hand over the past of the capital security commander to the new army chief. Gen Athit failed to hand over the office during a ceremony on May 4 when he officially transferred his posts of army commander-in-chief and general director of communist suppression to his successor. Gen Chawalit said on May 27 when he was made army chief that in his new capacity, he would be responsible for there post, including the post of capital security commander.

In a related development, the army force of the heavily-armed Norasing unit based at Sanam Suapa refused to allow a battalion from the Lopburi-based Special Warfare Command to replace it. The force commander said that the Lopburi-based force failed to produce and order for the rotation. At the same time, both Gen Chawalit and Gen Athit expressed disapproval at the distribution of underground leaflets which can be considered lese majeste.

It was against this backdrop that Gen Athit flew to Hua Hin [royal seaside palace where the king was staying] yesterday afternoon. Responding to reports about a dissolution of the Norasing force, Gen Chawalit told reporters yesterday that the authorities concerned were considering whether the task force established in 1982 when Gen Athit became capital security commander was still "necessary" under the present circumstances. He said that if the unit was considered useful, it should undergo a major reorganization for the sake of better effectiveness. "Officials involved are working on the issue. Where do you get the news?" Gen Chawalit quipped. But he denied that he had ordered the dissolution of the force.

Asked if there were any budgetary problems involving the maintenance of the unit, Gen Chawalit said: "We have already allocated the annual budget for it. What's more important than than now is whether the heavily-armed unit is still necessary. If so, it must have its effectiveness improved." Gen Chawalit said he had yet to issue guidelines on the Capital Security Command. "I am reviewing the past performance of the force," he added.

But authoritative sources told THE NATION that Gen Athit is still capital security commander. They said that by tradition, Gen Chawalit can take over the command if and when Gen Athit in his capacity as national peace-keeping force commander issued an order to that effect. Some said that perhaps the prime minister must issue such an order to effect the transfer of office. Other sources said that in fact, an army commander-in-chief is ex-officio "capital security director" and can name any subordinate as capital security commander.

They cited the appointment of Gen Athit to the post when he was only assistant army commander-in-chief and acting First Army Region commander at the order of the then army commander-in-chief, Gen Prayut Charumani.

EX-'YOUNG TURK' NAMED DEMOCRAT CAMPAIGN MANAGER

Well-informed sources said Ronnachai's abrupt appointment was primarily aimed to win more military votes as well as to counter pressure applied on the Democrats by "some elements in the military establishment." Ronnachai and Chanbun were dismissed from military service for their alleged role in the 1981 abortive coup. Other former Young Turk officers who are running for the Democrats are Col Bunsak Phocharoen (Singhburi) and Col Sakhon Kitwiriya (Trat).

The sources said Ronnachai decided to accept the post out of his satisfaction with the Democrats' willingness to admit several cashiered officers as its members. Meanwhile, Deputy Government Spokesman Pramot Sukhum, the Democrat public relations director, rebutted news reports that the party had granted over 90 million baht in campaign funds to its candidates.

Pramot said the Press misinterpreted Democrat leader Phichai Rattakun's statement during a campaign speech at Chatuchak Park Sunday. Actually, he said, the deputy premier told the audience the party could not afford to provide 300,000 baht to each of the candidates because that would amount to over 90 million baht. He said Phichai has sold two of his houses during his 17 years with the Democrats to find money to support civic work and members of the public. "The Democrat Party has long strictly adhered to honesty and never accumulated cash or assets to be given its members. Therefore, all Democrat members must be firm to party stand and refrain from dumping money," he said.

FURTHER REPORTAGE ON PATHET LAO ATTACK; REFUGEE PROBLEM

'Warning' to Other Laotians

BK170802 Bangkok BANGKOK WORLD in English 17 Jun 86 pp 1, 2

[Text] Phayao -- Authorities have begun procedures that may lead to the repatriation to Laos of some 107 survivors of the Pathet Lao attack on Saturday that left 35 Laotians dead, official soiurces told the WORLD this morning. The survivors are now being interviewed so that authorities can separate them into highland and lowland groups in order to facilitate eventual repatriation arrangements, an intelligence source said. The procedures are being undertaken according to the Interior Ministry policy on illegal immigrants, the source said.

The survivors -- comprising 31 men, 27 women, 24 boys and 25 girls -- are currently being interrogated by officials of the Communist Suppression and Prevention Centre based in Chiang Kham District. But most of them are taking shelter near a Border Patrol Police outpost in the vicinity of Ban Huai Pong, where they were attacked, the source added.

An official report obtained by the WORLD quoted Laotian settlers as saying that they had fled to Thailand because they had been threatened, their livestock and produce seized and their women raped by Pathet Lao soldiers. Classified as illegal immigrants, the Laotians said they were residents of the village of Ban Kuai, in Sayaboury.

The Pathet Lao staged the attack because the settlers had fled Laos after refusing to provide food supplies, the intelligence source said. The punitive action was meant to serve as a warning to other Laotians who might seek refuge in Thailand after refusing to support the Pathet Lao army, the source added.

The source said the 30-40 soldiers involved in attack were Pathet Lao of ethnic Hmong and Khamu hilltribe origins. An official report said the soldiers had walked seven kilometers into Thai territory to reach Ban Huai Pong.

In Bangkok, authorities were cautious about Thailand's course of action although Foreign Ministry spokesman Sawanit Khongsiri affirmed that press report indicated an intrusion had taken place. Interior Minister Sitthi Chirarot voiced a rare "I cannot comment" when asked if, in his capacity as chairman of the Thai-Laotian border committee, he was aware of any protest plan to the Laotian Government. Mr Sawanit said the ministry was contemplating "appropriate action" while awaiting an official report and details from concerned authorities.

Gen Sitthi, who is normally ready to comment on any subject, said he had received no official report on the incident and hence could not speak on the situation at Ban Huai Pong. The Foreign Ministry in the past has protested any proven intrusion as a violation of Thai sovereignty.

An intelligence source told the WORLD that the dead included six men, 11 women, 15 boys and three girls, with another 18 wounded. The source said a total of 142 Laotians from 28 families were settled at Ban Huai Pong, situated in a hilly area of Tambon Rom Yen in Chiang Kham District.

In the attack, the Pathet Lao soldiers opened up by firing seven RPG rockets before spraying the village of makeshift huts with rifle fire. They then stormed into the village, robbed the settlers and set the community on fire.

From a post at Ban Houai Ngeun in Sayaboury, the soldiers spent Friday night at Ban Nam Dan close to the border before walking into Thailand the following day. Third Region Army Commander Lt Gen Ruamsak Chaikomin, who inspected the site yesterday, described the attack as "very brutal", saying even children had been burned alive. Lt Gen Ruamsak, who was accompanied by Phayao Governor Sutchit Kowanit, also visited wounded victims.

Official Lao Role Questioned

[Editorial: "Vientiane Must Explain Border Incursion"]

[Text] It is something of a mystery why about 30 heavily armed Laotian soldiers should intrude 10 kms into Thailand and kill 35 illegal immigrants who were living in a camp not recognized as a refugee camp in Huai Pong village in Phayao. This unfortunate incident happened just after it was announced in Bangkok that all illegal immigrants, who had not acquired genuine refugee status, will be openly sent across the border to Laos.

It is not clear what role the Laotian Government played in this incursion but it is clearly Vientiane's responsibility that its soldiers should be prevented from crossing the border, if only to kill Laotians. Last year there were some clashes between Thai and Laotian soldiers over three small, unimportant villages along the border. But the dispute, although not clearly settled, was smoothed over.

At this moment we will not lay the blame squarely on the Laotian Government because somehow the attack, using automatic rifles and grenade launchers, further brutalized by the killing of 15 children using rifle butts, smacks of some kind of vendetta. If this is so, Vientiane must immediately institute a full-scale inquiry and punish the intruders thereby assuring Thailand that peace along the border will not be breached again.

Lao has frequently asked for the opening more border check-points to open up further cross-border trade. Recently Australia asked Thailand to open a border check-point through which Australian aid to Laos could go. Under these circumstances, it will not be right for the Laotian Government not to provide adequate explanation for this incursion.

Thailand has always tried to live peacefully with Laos and promote as much friendship and trade as possible. This is not a minor border incident but an incursion of 10 kms into Thai territory. If a proper expansion [as published] is not forthcoming from Vientiane, the Thai Government has no recourse but to think that it was a calculated and planned attack, showing scant respect for Thai territory.

UNHCR on Refugee Help

BK161101 Bangkok Domestic Service in English 0000 GMT 16 Jun 86

[Text] The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees -- or UNHCR -- supports Thailand's appeal for the international community to increase resettlement of Kampuchean refugees. According to a statement released by the UNHCR, the office supports the appeal of the Royal Thai Government to increase acceptance of Kampuchean refugees, especially those long stayers who have been encamped for up to 7 years. To this end, the statement continues, the UNHCR favors international burden sharing whereby as many countries as possible join in the effort to find durable solutions.

At the same time, the statement added, it is hoped that the voluntary repatriation to Kampuchea will eventually become a viable proposition for Kampuchean refugees. The statement followed the warning made last Friday by National Security Council Secretary General Prasong Sunsiri that Khao I-Dang will be closed at the end of the year -- hence any Kampucheans not accepted by third countries by then would be transferred to a border encampment.

Squadron Leader Prasong has expressed deep concern about the drop in acceptance of refugees by third countries and reiterated that Thailand has no policy of allowing permanent asylum for refugees.

Immigrants Await Repatriation

[Text] Nakhon Phanom -- More than 2,000 illegal immigrants from Laos are being held at police stations and the immigration office in this northeastern province, awaiting repatriation, the provincial authority here said this morning. The Laotians crossed the Mekong River into this province on different occasions. They are not regarded as refugees, but illegal immigrants which would be repatriated, said the authority.

The Government made an announcement several years ago that the new arrivals would not be granted refugee status. They have been pushed back and the repatriation was handled by the UNHCR, Thai and Lao governments. However, the Lao Government usually refused to take their people back and at the same time not many Laotians were willing to return to their homeland.

The illegal immigrants included men, women, children and the aged. They will be granted refugee status if proved that they left the country on political reason. It was reported that these immigrants are in urgent need of foods and other necessities.

Refugee Aid Hit

[Pleo Singoen column]

[Text] The day must come sooner or later when Thailand realizes that the last straw has been added to the untolerably "heavy" burden on its back. We have been excessively generous, even though we know that nobody will bother to think about us in the future. Humanitarianism is a noble cause. But to practice it beyond our limits is like feeding beggars with the rice that is supposed to feed our own families in the hope of going to heaven.

Lord Buddha said: "One must know his own ability in making merit. Anything that brings trouble upon oneself is not merit." We have been very generous in allowing hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese, Lao, and Cambodian refugees to live in our country. Now we found that we can no longer afford such genererousity.

Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri, secretary genreal of the National Security Council, complained for the first time about this problem a few days ago after he became convinced of the hypocrisy of the friendly countries that have been pursuading us to keep these refugees. They contribute only small amounts of money to share in the expenses and offer sweet words but fail to honor their promises to us.

There are 123,649 Vietnamese, Cambodian, and Lao refugees at the holding centers in Loei, Nakhon Phanom, Prachin Buri, and Chon Buri Provinces plus 238,820 more living at the border. At least 800 refugees flee to Thailand every month. These are official figures. Many have entered our country undetected by authorities. In other words, more than half a million refugees are now in our country. They do not have to work. They simply eat, sleep, and reproduce at night leaving their offspring on Thai soil.

While the Thai people are practicing birth control, the refugees are reproducing actively. In the future, Thailand will become the land of the cross-bred peoples. The UN High Commissioner for Refugees cannot do very much. He is only the "servant" of the countries that have given him his post. He merely says something to make us happy. When he leaves office he will forget everything.

Prasong Sunsiri did the right thing when he declared that the refugees who cannot find third countries to accept them will be herded to the border pending repatriation. He pledged to take drastic legal action against illegal immigrants and those who refuse to leave the country. What he said is understandable, but I worry about his ability to implement it. If 300,000-400,000 people refuse to leave the country and are willing to go to jail, will we have to feed and shelter them forever? What about the responsibilty of the third countries?

I have never seen any political party, the prime minister, or any cabinet member able to "understand" and come up with a clearcut policy to resolve this problem.

NHAN DAN ON CRITICISM, SELF-CRITICISM DRIVE

[NHAN DAN 12 June editorial: "Lead Self-Criticism and Criticism to Good Results"]

[Text] The first stage of self-criticism and criticism is being enlarged to all echelons and sectors. After satisfactorily gathering the criticism of cadres, party members, and people, the key cadres in many localities have examined themselves, focusing on the three main aspects: the quality of cadres, the bearing of leadership, and the cadre policy. The prevailing shortcomings are failure to correctly comply with the principle of democratic centralism in leadership and various activities, of party committee echelons, bureaucratic and unrealistic bearing, lack of a cadre assignment polan, and incorrect implementation of the cadre policy.

Some of the key cadres have partly lost their combative will, lacked a sense of organization and discipline, caused internal disunity, and committed mistakes concerning the quality, revolutionary ethics, and lifestyle of cadres. Some party committee echelons and sector authorities have put forth specific measures to immediately correct mistakes as they are noted, especially violations of cadre policy and organization and mistakes related to relations with the masses.

In many localities, following self-criticism and criticism, internal unity and singlemindedness has been strengthened and the assessment of cadres is more accurate, creating favorable conditions for the preparations of party congresses at all levels and definitely improving performance.

In those localities where leading cadres have conducted self-criticism and criticism scrupulously and frankly and have immediately corrcted the mistakes of collectives and individual leading cadres, the cadres, party members, and people there have become enthusiastically supportive and more confident in the party leadership and the policy of self-criticism and criticism. However, poor results of self-criticism and criticism have been noted in some localities and central sectors, making the people less confident. This is because leading cadres in those localities have not exemplarily and scrupulously conducted self-criticism on a voluntary basis and have not frankly pointed out mistakes and shortcomings. They still talk much about achievements and good points and have conducted self-criticism in a scattered manner, failing to point out problems concerning cadre bearing and policy, and failing to expand democracy.

The collection of criticism by subordinate cadres, party members, and others is still too simplistic, formal, and forcible. Cadres and party members in units who fear prejudice and reprisals, dare not criticize leading cadres frankly. Internal disunity is noted in some localities because criticism lacks impartiality and objectivity. Some party committee echelons, leading cadres, and units are unable to put forth specific and practical measures to correct shortcomings as expected by all the people.

The current self-criticism and criticism drive is a very important, broad, and profound operational drive aimed at strengthening party militancy, firmly maintaining the principle of democratic centralism in party activities, comprehensively enhancing the quality of cadres and party members, and ensuring the political, ideological, and organizational solidity of the party.

The duty of all party committee echelons and sectors is to continually and thoroughly understand the set goals and requirements, and concentrate on leading the first stage of self-criticism and criticism to good result. Each unit, each sector, and each echelon has its own specific characteristics, situation, and problems, and needs specific guidance in strict accordance with the prevailing realistic conditions. Guidance will not be provided in a scattered, general, nor pervasive manner. Wherever serious mistakes and shortcomings are noted or whenever leading cadres manifest serious negativism, leading cadres of next higher echelon should go to provide guidance and assistance.

In case a party committee echelon or next higher echelon realizes that an individual leading cadre has not conducted self-criticism as required, it must ask the cadre to do it again scrupulously. Those localities were the first stage of self-criticism and criticism has been completed with poor results, supplementary self-criticism should be conducted in the coming second stage. Self-criticism and criticism constituties a law of party development. The self-criticism drive being conducted by all party committee echelons, cadres, and party members to point out shortcomings and put forth positive corrective measures and stern and just disciplinary action against the misdeeds of units and individuals in no way lessens but, on the contrary, enhances the party's prestige. It does not weaken the party at all but strengthens the party even more.

The spirit and attitude of scrupulous self-criticism and criticism to squarely look at and speak out the truth by the highest party organs at the 10th Party Central Committee Plenum set an example for all the party members to satisfactorily conduct self-criticism and criticism.

Providing close guidance and scrupulously implementing the self-criticism and criticism drive in the party from the central down to grass-roots levels and from the Political Bureau down to each basic party organization and each party member will create new changes in all domains within the party and among our people. This will mobilize the people nationwide to emulate enthusiastically in productive labor, renovate management, practice thrift, strengthen national defense and security, and score outstanding achievements to greet the Sixth National Party Congress.

NGUYEN VAN LINH HAILS WORK OF YOUNG VOLUNTEERS

[Text] Hanoi VNA June 11 -- Hundreds of thousands of members of the Young Volunteer Force are now working in many provinces and cities of Vietnam, among whom about 200,000 are engaged in the most difficult tasks of socio-economic construction.

The participation of Young Volunteers -- whose organisation is led by the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union -- in economic construction became a mode of activity for the Vietnamese youth almost ten years ago. On March 28, 1976, more than ten thousand young people in newly liberated Saigon (Ho Chi Minh City) volunteered to work in new economic zones on the outskirts of the city. The creation of this force was just a continuation of the tradition of the Vietnamese Young Volunteers in the national struggle against the French and U.S. aggressors.

The Young Volunteer Force engaged in economic construction has the following three main characteristics:

-- The tasks assigned to it are the most difficult, and their accomplishment will help speed up the economic development of the localities.

-- Its units are recognized by the state as independent accounting units of the national economy, with an independent financial status and independent economic accounting

-- Alongside their production activities, the Young Volunteers set up their own vocational schools, in-service training courses and other classes and clubs for cultural and educational activities.

Most of the Young Volunteers, after retiring from their service (from 18 to 36 months) in the forces, have mastered certain professional skills and achieved the level of general education. Most of them become members of the Youth Union, many of whom were admitted to the Communist Party of Vietnam. Some have become qualified managerial cadres or technicians.

With the results it has obtained and the prospects for its development, the Young Volunteer Force is expected to achieve still greater successes.

This was confirmed by Nguyen Van Linh, Political Bureau member of the Communist Party of Vietnam Central Committee and secretary of the Ho Chi Minh City party committee, in a recent address to the city's Young Volunteers. "Your initial achievements", he said, "are like tree shoots which, though still young, brim with vitality. They prove that the decision of the city's leadership to draw part of the city's young into labour activities, study and training of the Young Volunteer Force is correct and timely and meets the aspiration not only of the city's youth but also of their parents...

"It also is an effective way to rally and educate young people, which should be continued and further developed. Your achievements should not be measured by their profits since they are still far below those of other economic branches. Their real value lies in the fact that they have helped create a new generation of young people who have chosen to live and work for the happiness of all".

SOLOMON ISLANDS

PRIME MINISTER CONCERNED ABOUT ANZUS 'SOLIDARITY'

HK090437 Wellington THE EVENING POST in English 31 May 86 p 7

[Text] Honiara, 31 May (NEW ZEALAND PRESS ASSOCIATION) -- The Solomon Islands was sympathetic to New England's stand on nuclear warship visits but worried about the policy's impact on ANZUS. the Prime Minister, Sir Peter Kenilorea, said yesterday. "Frankly speaking, this is a dilemma for me," he said.

New Zealand was a sovereign country and the Labour Government's policy was domestic. "The Solomon Islands also has the same strong views relating to nuclear activities in the region." However he was concerned about the extent the New Zealand policy could undermine the "solidarity" of ANZUS.

"My concern is that if the United States does not accept New Zealand's domestic stand on port calls, then they will read that New Zealand is not serious with the ANZUS arrangement."

The Solomon Islands had faced the same kind of problem with its tuna fisheries legislation, Sir Peter said. "Our domestic law gives us the right over a 200-mile fisheries zone." United States law however did not recognize migratory species as coming under fish in that zone and their law allowed them to catch tuna anywhere. The problem was being solved regionally through the U.S. now talking to affected countries. "Hopefully multi-lateral arrangements will over-ride the domestic laws of America and will provide benefits for both parties."

Sir Peter said South Pacific Island states had to develop a greater regional solidarity. The countries had similarities as parliamentary democracies as well as comparable ways of life and philosophies where man was more important than money. "We should get away from political platitudes. We should not be distracted by national pride and human greed."

Asked about the development of Soviet links with Vanuatu and Kiribati, Sir Peter said the Solomon Islands were "quite concerned." "We like to know the minds of our friends next door to us and their activities and intentions." While they also sovereign states, they were also subject to certain "vulnerabilities."

VANUATU

LINI ON PORT FACILITIES FOR USSR, OTHER ISSUES

BK111013 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0810 GMT 11 Jun 86

[From the "International Report" program moderated by (Bernadette Skues]

[Text] Vanuatu's prime minister, Father Walter Lini, has accused the Australian Government and media of deliberately waging a propaganda campaign designed to damage his country's economy. In an exclusive interview Father Lini told our Pacific correspondent, Trevor Watson, that the Australian Government and media had used Vanuatu's relations with Libya and Nicaragua to frighten Australian business and tourist.

[Begin recording] [Watson] Shortly after winning its independence in 1980, Vanuatu established itself as a tax-free finance center largely to cater for Australian offshore investors. As a result of that move, an estimated $7,000 million has now been deposited in secret trusts and bank accounts in Port Vila, but the investment and tourist industries have slackened dramatically since Father Walter Lini announced that his country would establish diplomatic relations with Libya. I understand that one Port Vila hotel is now offering a week of free accommodation to any Australian journalist prepared to promote the destination. However, the prime minister says that it is the Australian media and not his foreign policy that is to blame for Vanuatu's economic downturn.

[Lini] In our view, it is no more than natural for business Australians who want to invest in Vanuatu and tourists who want to come to Vanuatu to have these reservations at this point of time, mainly because the Australian press has created fear in Australians. So, as far as we are concerned, it does not worry us.

[Watson] Father Lini went on to insist that the Australian media has in fact been working on behalf of the government in Canberra which has never been prepared to accept his nation as a tax-free haven for Australian business. He says, however, that his country's independence is more important than the worst Australia can do to its economy.

[Lini] It is going to be a very short problem. We consider our finance center will begin to attract investors again. Some already are already coming in, so we think that it is only [word indistinct] Australian companies coming into Vanuatu, and it is really up to them. If they do not want invest in Vanuatu that is their problem. We know that there are enough people in other parts of the world who want to invest in Vanuatu.

[Watson] Might it have been wise not to go ahead with the relations with Libya, the fishing agreement with the Soviet Union, and relations with Nicaragua for that matter, for the sake of the Vanuatu economy?

[Lini] No, it would be completely contradictory to our people's belief of being independent and sovereign state, and so we could not really just sacrifice that right by giving in to what the Australian press has tried to portray us in the Pacific.

[Watson] Do you believe that proving Vanuatu's independence is more important than the economic health of Vanuatu?

[Lini] Yes, we do. We believe that our right is so important and that in time we will prove that it is important to uphold the rights of our independent state.

[Watson] Sir, how would you describe the state of the Vanuatu economy at the moment?

[Lini] We consider that the state of Vanuatu's economy at the moment is not really so bad.

[Watson] And yet I understand that Vanuatu intends taking newspaper advertisements to counter the effects on the economy of stories in the Australian and other Western media.

[Lini] We will do that if we consider it is going to help the situation. If we don't, we do not necessarily have to justify to the Australian public what we intend to do.

[Watson] So, when is the Soviet delegation arriving in Vila for negotiations on a fishing agreement?

[Lini] It is going to be soon, and I believe, I think it is tomorrow they arrive here.

[Watson] And, we understand in Australia that you are quite prepared to grant port facilities if the money is right?

[Lini] Yes, that is what we have said in the past, and we still maintain that if the proposal appears to be economic benefit to Vanuatu we see no problem in agreeing to that proposal. And so, this is what we will do.

[Watson] Has the United States responded to your invitation to form diplomatic relations with it?

[Lini] No, they have not as yet, and USSR has not responded either.

[Watson] This week Vanuatu has established diplomatic relations with Nicaragua. Is that move likely to damage any chance you had of similar relations with the United States?

[Lini] It is up to the United States to decide. [end recording]

COMMENTARY URGES U.S. TO GIVE PRIORITY TO PALAPA

BK170931 Jakarta Domestic Service in Indonesian 1200 GMT 16 Jun 86

[Text] Speaking at a news conference in Jakarta last Saturday, Minister of Tourism, Posts, and Telecommunications Ahmad Tahir expressed the hope that the United States will be able to launch the Palapa B-2P satellite early in 1987 at the latest. The minister's expectation is understandable because the Palapa B-2P satellite will backup the Palapa B-1 satellite, currently providing telecommunications service to all parts of Indonesia.

The failure to launch the Palapa B-2P satellite into its orbit has made us feel as if we were driving a car from Jakarta to Surabaya without a spare tire. Actually, if there is no untoward accident affecting the Palapa B-1 satellite, the telecommunications network in the country, including television broadcast relays, will not be disrupted. However, there is apparently no guarantee that the Palapa B-1 satellite will continue to function smoothly. As is known, this telecommunications satellite experienced a shift in its orbit some time ago, disrupting the telecommunications network and television relays in certain parts of the country. For this reason, we will certain feel more at east if the Palapa B-2P satellite can be launched on time. We also hope the United States will give priority to the launching of the Palapa B-2P when that country's space program resumes.

While we are waiting for the U.S. announcement on the launching of the satellite, we must also upgrade our ability to maintain the Palapa B-1 satellite. Telecommunications experts in Indonesia have indeed taken the necessary precautionary steps to ensure the continuity of the telecommunications system following the shift experienced by the Palapa B-1 satellite.

Strictly speaking, we can say that our domestic telecommunications system does not depend on the satellite alone, because we also use microwave links and submarine cables. Other precautionary steps described by the minister are no less effective and we should not worry about the continuity of our domestic telecommunications system.

AQUINO SAID PLEASED WITH U.S. INVESTMENT EFFORTS

HK170902 Manila MANILA BULLETIN in English 16 Jun 86 p 21

[Text] The encouragement by the administration of President Reagan to U.S. businessmen to invest in the Philippines has visibly pleased President Corazon Aquino whose government still has to see a dramatic rise in business activity.

About a month ago, Mrs Aquino's government felt the U.S. was not giving enough support to help it overcome financial problems. The U.S. Government responded by saying it would lead an international effort to raise $2 billion in economic assistance for the Philippines. A few days ago, it went further by calling on U.S. investors to look for business opporunities in the country.

Mrs Aquino said a U.S. company, W.R. Grace, has in fact put in money in a project in Canlubang, Laguna. The P40 million industrial chemical plant is believed to be the first major U.S. investment in the Philippines after Mrs Aquino took power. It is the largest and most modern Grave plant in Southeat Asia.

U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz has said he was "bullish" on the Philippines, a statement which was deeply appreciated by Mrs. Aquino. Officials in the Aquino government have been making appeals to the business community to make investments now to perk up the economy.

LAUREL STRESSES NEED FOR LEGAL AID FOR POOR

[By Olaf Giron]

[Text] The need for free legal aid has become more imperative today with the increase of the country's indigents from 45 percent of the population in 1967 to 85 percent at present, Vice President and Foreign Affairs Minister Salvador H. Laurel said yesterday.

Speaking before the Citizens Legal Aid Society of the Philippines (CLASP) at Club Filipino, Laurel said there is now an even greater need for strengthening the organization to render free legal assistance to the deserving poor. He said the poverty line last year in Metro Manila included people earning P2,500 a month and P2,000 outside of the region.

The vice president noted that the Supreme Court has decided that anyone earning below the poverty-line level is entitled to access to the courts as a "pauper litigant. There is thus a need to increase the membership of CLASP and attract more lawyers to render free legal aid to qualified indigents, he said.

Laurel recalled that the organization started in 1966 with nine lawyers handling 12 cases. Now there are 700 lawyers spread out in 52 provincial and city chapters handling about 18,000 cases a year, but the tremendous increase in indigents call for more volunteers, he added. "What I want is to prevent people from taking the law into their own hands when they are oppressed," he said.

Laurel was elected chairman of the CLASP, along with 11 directors and a board of advisers in a reorganizational meeting.

Elected with Laurel were Don Perry, president, Gonzalo Gonzales, vice chairman; BIR [Bureau of Internal Revenue] Commissioner Romulo Villa, treasurer; Avelino Cruz, vice president; Deputy Minister Edsel Lagman, secretary general; and Dean Gonzalo Santos, SEC [Securities and Exchange Commission] Commissioner Monico Jacob, commissioner Raul Victorino, Gregoria Purugganan and Juan Luces Luna, directors. [all punctuation and titles as published] Named to the advisory board were Justice Minister Neptali Gonzales, Justice Vicente Abad Santos and lawyer Dakila Castro.

CENTRAL BANK GOVERNOR ADVISES 'CAUTIOUS' POLICY

HK170843 Manila PHILIPPINE DAILY INQUIRER in English 15 Jun 86 p 9

[Text] Central Bank [CB] Governor Jose B. Fernandez is advising the Aquino government to "steer a cautious middle course" both in its economic policy for the country and in its dealing with the rest of the world, especially its creditor nations.

The CB governor urged the President to particularly "avoid actions which could inevitably lead to economic isolation" -- a veiled allusion to the "selective repudiation" of some of the country's foreign debts advocated by some members of the Aqunio Cabinet.

Fernandez also cited the need to put into effect a new economic program to maintain the momentum of recovery achieved in the economy as he reported on the major economic and financial developments in the country during the first three months of 1986.
The report, the first issued on the economy since the February revolution, had the following major highlights:

-- A record buildup of the international reserves, which at the end of March stood at $1.268 million -- up $207 million or 19.5 percent from the end-1985 level of $1.061 million. This level, Fernandez said, could finance over four months' import requirements.

-- The stabilization of the exchange rate which, reflected by the Bankers Association of the Philippines reference rate, stood at P20.6 to the dollar at the end of March. This level, although weaker by 11.6 percent than that in March 1985, represented a sharp rebound from the rate in February 1986. Fernandez said this reflected renewed confidence and enthusiasm in the economy after the change of government.

-- A positive balance of payments position to the tune of $313 million (with rescheduling), brought about by significant improvments in both the current and non-monetary capital accounts.

-- The lowering of the inflation rate from 7.7 percent during the last quarter of 1985 to an average of 3.7 percent during the last quarter of 1986, resulting in a slowdown of price increases. The price increment on rice, for example, was 2.1 percent in the first three months of 1986 compared with 5.4 percent in the last quarter of 1985 and 43.7 percent in the first quarter of 1985.

Coming as they did barely a month after the revolution, Fernandez said, these evidences of economic improvement "suggest that confidence in the economy has risen and that the political and economic situation has started to stabilize."

The report also included, however, negative changes such as:

-- The "generally disappointing" performance of exports, with large declines in electronics and garments reflecting a slack in international demand for these products.

-- The failure of revival of domestic production, which Fernandez called "the most disturbing" aspect of the country's economic performance.

-- The budgetary deficit of P9.7 billion in the first three months of 1986, which was only slightly lower than the P11.8-billion total for the whole of 1985 and six times the deficit for the same quarter last year, because of election spending by the previous government.

It was the previous government's unrestrained spending in its last months, the CB governor said, which dislocated a recovery program that had been put in place only two years before. But, he added, the situation has changed with the coming to power of a government that enjoyed "positive factors and strengths" working in its favor.

He urged a rethinking of the recovery program to gear it to obtaining a reasonable rate of growth for the economy, and suggested that this be done "within a framework of cooperation with friendly nations and the international financial community." He cautioned against what he called "extreme actions," saying a middle-of-the aisle posture does not necessarily mean the surrender of sovereignty.

OICS CALLS FOR DISSOLUTION OF PARAMILITARY UNITS

HK171113 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in Tagalog 1000 GMT 17 Jun 86

[Text] Various resolutions will be submitted by provincial and city Officers in Charge [OIC'S] to President Aquino at the end of their 5-day orientation seminar. Among the resolutions are the ones calling for the dissolution of the Civilian Home Defense Forces and other paramilitary units as well as the return of OIC control over police. Another resolution calls on President Aquino to postpone the import liberalization program.

At the said orientation seminar, OICs from 79 provinces and 60 cities appealed for full authority to serve as local chief executive so that they could implement their respective programs.

Deputy Governments Minister Ciriaco Alfilor is expected to make the closing remarks at the orientation seminar of provincial and city OICs at the Club Filipino in Greenhills. Alfilor will speak on behalf of Local Government Minister Aquilino Pimentel Jr who is currently on a speaking engagement in the United States.

'TASK FORCE' TO FIGHT WESTINGHOUSE CONTRACT

[By Catalino F. Makabenta]

[Text] Malacanang plans to create a high-powered task force to wage the government's legal battle against Westinghouse, a U.S. multinational, over the controversial contract covering the $2.1 billion Bataan nuclear power plant project.

"The contract is unconscionable," presidential spokesman Rene Saguisag, chairman of the Cabinet committee on the Bataan nuclear plant, quoted the Arnold and Porter law firm as saying. Arnold and Porter, the biggest law firm in Washington D.C., conducted a preliminary analysis of the contract entered into by the previous Marcos administration with Westinghouse, according to Saguisag.

He said the law firm is one of many foreign organizations which have offered their assistsance to the Aquino government in its fight against Westinghouse.

Saguisag justified the creation of the task force on two main grounds:

-- Westinghouse, with its unlimited resources, has hired a giant U.S. law firm to handle the case against the Philippine Government besides mounting a multi-million peso propaganda barrage to counteract criticisms of the Bataan nuclear plant contract.

-- Of the five members of the Cabinet committee on the nuclear plant, Saguisag alone can give his full-time attention to the case since he has gone on leave as presidential spokesman. The other committee members -- Budget Minister Alberto Romulo, Commission on Audit Chairman Teofisto Guingona, Solicitor General Sedfrey Ordonez and Deputy Central Bank Gov. Gabriel Singson -- are all very busy, Saguisag told Malacanang newsmen in an interview yesterday.

Commenting on the series of two-page ads on the Bataan nuclear plant project that Westinghouse is currently running in some local dailies, Saguisag said it is obviously a reaction to the recent visit of the team of lawyers from the U.S. departments of justice, state and defense.

The U.S. Government's legal team had signed an agreement on procedures for mutual legal assistance with a counterpart Philippine panel headed by Minister Jovito R. Saionga, chairman of the Presidential Commission on Good Government. [PCGG]

The Salonga commission is investigating alleged illegal activities involving numerous contracts in which the Philippine Government was a party, such as the Bataan nuclear plant project. The two legal panels had agreed to provide mutual assistance on the PCGG investigations.

On Westinghouse's claim in its ads that the nuclear plant contract is on the level, and that no bribes were paid to Philippine Government officials in connection with the contract, Saguisag said: "Westinghouse's record is far from immaculate. It is not good in terms of morality. In 1978, for instance, they admitted having bribed an Egyptian official.: Saguisag disputed Westinghouse's contention that it would be in the Philippines' interest to operate the Bataan nuclear plant. "It is in the best interest of Westinghouse. That's what they mean," he said.

BASES AGREEMENT'S EFFECT ON INDEPENDENCE VIEWED

HK171550 Manila PHILIPPINE DAILY INQUIRER in English 12 Jun 86 pp 20, 21

[By Narciso G. Reyes]

[Text] The unhampered use of the military bases for the projection of American power in distant places gives the U.S. a blank check which could involve the Philippines in wars not of its own making.

It may be an admirable token of "special relations," or an expression of a unique friendship. But it is incompatible with national sovereignty and places in question the authenticity of Philippine independence.

In fact there are nationalists who claim that the Philippines has never known complete independence. The Military Bases Agreement was not a product of free negotiations between two sovereign states. Together, with the "parity" agreement giving Americans equal rights with Filipino in exploiting Philippine natural resources, it was imposed by the United States as a precondition to Philippine independence. The consequence was, that Philippine sovereignty was curtailed in two of its most vital aspects, control over natural resources and control over national security, at the inception of the republic. From the very beginning, Philippine independence was flawed and incomplete.

"Parity" is gone, but the Military Bases Agreement remains. The review negotiations and the resulting amendments constitute a history of Philippine efforts, sustained over a period of nearly four decades, to restore impaired sovereignty and repair a flawed independence.

Progress has been made in previous negotiations. But the work at best is only half-cone. President Aquino has the historic opportunity to try and finish the job.

The terminal date of the Military Bases Agreement between the Philippines and the United States is Sept. 16, 1991. The required one year's prior notice of termination need not be given until Sept. 16, 1990. The issue, however, may come to a head well before these deadlines, perhaps as early as 1988, on the occasion of the last periodic review of the agreement before it is terminated, extended or replaced with a new government. [as published]

Neither the United States nor the Philippines would wish to postpone a decision on this important issue until the very last minute. Too much is at stake for both sides. Confidential soundings will almost certainly be made, and at least an informal understanding sought, before 1990.

President Aquino's decision to abide by the provisions of the agreement until its expiration date in 1991, meanwhile keeping all her options, buys time for the formulation of policy. But simple deferment, without any positive measures to make it meaningful, also creates a potentially harmful political vacuum. It invites attempts to preempt or influence the policy decision through pressure groups, covert action or tendentious appeals to public opinion over the heads of the authorities. The resulting disputes are bound to be bitter and divisive.

If there is a single public issue today which requires a national consensus, it is the military bases issue. It would be a disservice to the nation to allow it to become a political football.

The first necessity is to raise the issue above partisan politics. One way of doing this is for the President to create three top-level, non-partisan commissions composed of persons of unquestioned competence and integrity, who would make a thorough, objective study of three main aspects of the military bases issue. These are:

-- The economic consequences of terminating the Military Bases Agreement;
-- The security implications for the Philippines; and
-- The nature and magnitude of the risks to which the military bases expose the people of the Philippines.

The proposed commissions will not prejudge the policy decision on whether or not to terminate the Military Bases Agreement. Their task will be to provide the objective data and identify the options upon which a sound policy decision may be made. The policy decision itself will be the reponsibility of the national leadership.

I have suggested three instead of only one commission because of the highly specialized and vastly different expertise needed in each field. The commission on the economic consequences of terminating the agreement, for instance, will have to consider not only the loss of the Economic Support Fund, it will also have to study the possible repercussions on American investments in the Philippines, on Philippine exports to the United States, and on U.S. support of Philippine efforts to cope with its debt crisis and obtain new funds for economic development with the cooperation of the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund and the principal lender countries.

The commission on security implications will study the problem of replacing the armaments, military equipment and training facilities previously obtained from the United States under the Military Bases Agreement. It will also consider the consequences of the termination of the agreement on regional security and the balance of power. This commission should not only consider alternative sources of arms supplies and credits, it should also identify alternative measures for bolstering regional security in the absence of the Philippine military bases.

The scientists on the commission on the nuclear danger will assess the risks of an enemy nuclear attack on the military bases, the measures that could be taken to provide whatever protection is possible to the civilian inhabitants in the vicinity of the bases, and the chances of national survival in a limited nuclear exchange, considering the size of our country and the concentration of our population in the vulnerable areas.

The proposed commissions should be created as soon as possible and enabled to complete their work within six months, say by early 1987. This would provide ample time for the careful consideration of their reports and the judicious determination of whether or not the Philippines would be in a position to terminate the Military Bases Agreement.

In case the Philippines is obliged or persuaded to extend the term of the agreement, the extension should be for a limited period, say for not more than five years, with the option to terminate the agreement upon one year's prior notice.

This option to terminate the agreement should be retained at all costs. If it is ever relinquished, we may never have a second chance to exercise it.

It is also imperative that the compensation issue should be re-examined. Every effort should be made to change the mode of payment which, presently categorized as "aid," not only permits and invites but REQUIRES [captialized word in boldface] U.S. interference in Philippine domestic affairs. The Economic Support Fund, as it has been administered, has served to "deodorize" the more sinister aspects of the military bases, such as their high social costs, and cloaks them in a mantle of magnanimity as the source of funds for such benevolent projects as rural markets and school houses situated in villages far removed from the harsh realities around Clark and Subic.

The Economic Support Fund procedures enable U.S. officials to poke their fingers into the very innards of Philippine domestic affairs. The inordinate publicity given to their beneficent aspects, completely dissociated from the grim business of unhampered military operations in the bases themselves, tends to foster, no doubt inadvertently, a divided loyalty among our people including those serving in our armed forces. They have the side effect perhaps unintended of helping to create a popular constituency for the perpetuation of the Military Bases Agreement. They tend to erode our national sovereignty at the grass roots.

If it is extended, the agreement should be further amended to conform more effectively with the requirements of Philippine sovereignty and national security. A possible basis for Philippine proposals of new amendments would be the draft "Agreement Between the Philippines and the United States of America on Military Cooperation" prepared by the Philippine delegation to the 1976 negotiations on the review of the Military Bases Agreement. It was rejected at the time by the American side. But 10 years have passed, and we have a new government responsive to the people's will and zealous in protecting their rights. It is time, perhaps, to present anew the valid, reasonable and thus far disregarded Philippine proposals.

Article II of this draft agreement, entitled "Use of Facilities," contains in Paragraphs 3 to 11 a list of proposals covering a wide range of Philippine concerns, from the preservation of the natural resources inside the bases to the full sharing of the intelligence information produced through the use of the base facilities. The most vital, in the sense of affecting national survival, is the proposed ban on weapons of mass destruction set forth in Paragraph 6, the text of which is as follows:

"The United States shall not introduce, store or install in the Philippines nuclear weapons or components thereof, ballistic missiles, toxic chemical agents of either biological or chemical origin, or other weapons of mass destruction. The United States shall not, without the express consent of the Philippines, introduce, install or lay mines or similar obstructions in Philippine waters."

The proposal most directly relevant to Philippine sovereignty is contained in the following provision in Paragraph 3:

"The facilities shall not be used for, nor shall their activities serve, purposes other than those authorized by the Philippines. Neither shall the United States use the facilities for the purposes contrary to the Charter of the United Nations, or for military combat operations without the express consent of the Philippines."

This proposal pertains to the vastly expanded security commitments which unhampered U.S. use of the military bases now imposes on the Philippines. The use of the bases to project American power into distant areas of confrontation and potential conflict automatically involves the Philippines in the super-power struggle in those places, as well as in the bitter, intractable local conflicts which constitute potential flash points of new wars. Our country has thus become hostage to the consequences of U.S. policies not only in our region of Southwest Asia but also in the Indian Ocean and the Middle East -- politics in which we have no say, leading to actions over which we have no control. To that extent, the military bases seriously impair our sovereignty and effectively reduce our independence in foreign affairs.

Due to the unhampered U.S. use of the military bases, we are now saddled with a dangerous kind of military commitment; undefined, open-ended and far beyond the limits of our own modest military capabilities.

The situation is reminiscent (with much more serious implications) of our involvement in SEATO, when we, a non-military power, undertook military commitments extending to the outer limits of the treaty area. But in SEATO we at least had the safeguard of a voice and a vote in the alliance's decisions requiring military intervention. In the case of the Military Bases Agreement, our role is reduced to that of a forward base, useful, convenient and expendable.

Why has it become necessary, anyway, to project American power into the Persian Gulf from such distant bases as Clark and Subic? It is because the unhampered use of military bases, such as that enjoyed by the U.S. in the Philippines, is already an anachronism in the Third World. When President Jimmy Carter formed the U.S. Rapid Deployment Force in 1979, to counter the effects of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, military bases in the Gulf area were urgently needed to make the force credible and effective. The U.S. shopped around, but there were no takers.

Unable to station troops, combat equipment and supplies in military bases provided by friendly countries in the area, the United States was obliged to fall back on less satisfactory and less effective "sub-optional" measures, such as the pre-positioning of arms and supplies aboard ships stationed in the Indian Ocean. The Rapid Deployment Force in consequence suffers from a "critical mobility deficiency." Clark and Subic are being used to make up, at least partly, for this deficiency.

I was serving as ambassador in Beijing at the time. When China attacked Vietnam to "teach the Vietnamese a lesson" I became concerned about a possible U.S.-Soviet reaction which might escalate into a nuclear war. I plunged into an intensive round of diplomatic soundings, including consultations with all the Socialist and Arab ambassadors in Beijing. One of my significant findings was the unanimous refusal of the Gulf states to grant the U.S. permanent military bases or the unhampered use of military base facilities in their respective territories. The most they would do, as in the case of Egypt, was to agree to make certain military facilities, such as airfields, available for U.S. use in the event of a war which could, in Egypt's judgment, threaten Egyptian security. But Egypt would decide whether or not it would become involved. It would retain its sovereign right to determine its own role in the crisis.

It has been argued that we should not "rock the boat" referring to persistent Philippine efforts to improve the Military Bases Agreement -- at a time of heightened tension in Southeast Asia. I find this argument unconvincing. I believe that concern for security should never be used as an excuse to freeze inequality or to perpetuate injustice.

KBL DENOUNCES U.S. REPORT ON FEBRUARY POLL FRAUD

[By C. Valmoria Jr.]

[Text] The Kilusang Bagong Lipunan (KBL) debunked yesterday the report of an 18-man bipartisan mission sent to the Philippines by President Reagan to observe the Feb. 7 "snap" presidential election.

Former Speaker Nicanor Yniguez, acting KBL president, said the report was "grossly erroneous, biased, presumptuous, and self-serving," adding that it may have served the purpose of some Americans who interfered with local affairs and may have engineered the ouster of President Marcos.

Yniguez noted that the report mentioned that the proclamation of Ferdinand E. Marcos and Arturo M. Tolentino as duly elected president and Vice President of the Republic, respectively, by the Batasang Pambansa did not reflect the will of the electorate.

He said the Batasan was merely performing a ministerial duty mandated by law -- that of counting the votes reflected in the certificates of canvass submitted to it and proclaiming the winner on the basis of the results.

Yniguez said that during the canvassing at the Batasan, the opposition representatives had alleged that copies of the certificates of canvass have been tampered with of fraudulently prepared. "At no instance, however, were they able to prove their allegations," Yniguez said. "They failed to show any variance in the figures in their own copy of the certificates and that of the Batasan."

He recalled that Mrs. Corazon C. Aquino ran for President in the Feb. 7 election under the Omnibus Election Code (Batasan Pambansa 881) which provides that the winner shall be proclaimed by the Batasang Pambansa on the basis of the certificates of canvass, prepared in five copies, submitted to it by the provincial, city, and district boards of canvassers.

These certificates were furnished the Batasan speaker, Commission on Elections (Comelec), authorized representatives of the ruling party and the dominant oppoisiton party, as well as the election supervisor concerned, he said.

The Batasan, as ordained by law, proceeded to perform its task and after tallying the votes reflected in the certificates of canvass furnished the speaker, proclaimed Marcos winner for having garnered 10,807,197 votes as against Mrs. Aquino's 9,291,716 votes. Tolentino was proclaimed winner in the vice presidential contest with 10,134,130 votes over Laurel who had 9,173,103 votes.

The losers would have a recourse through an election protest before the Presidential Electoral Tribunal which the opposition had visited to be created, does not have jurisdiction over a presidential election protest, Uniguez said.

The National Citizens Movement for Free Elections (Namfrel), which the Americans supported and which trumpeted itself as an independent, non-partisan organization of concerned citizens, has since been exposed for its pretensions to non-partisanship, he said.

Yniguez said Namfrel's true nature as a highly partisan, Catholic Church-supported group working for the Aquino-Laurel ticket becme apparent when its top leders were rewarded top government posts. He said Namfrel Chairman Jose Concepcion Jr. Became minister of trade and industry and Namfrel co-chairman Vicente Jayme was made president of the Philippine National Bank.

The former speaker said the conclusions in the report of the U.S. mission were all debated in the Batasan but since the assembly had no power under the law to pass judgment on electoral protests, the losers should have filed a protest with the tribunal having jurisdiction on such cases.

Yniguez said the charges were as wild as they were baseless. The Batasang Pambansa could not have rail-roaded the proclamation of winners as charged, he said. All that the Batasasn was empowered to do was to open all the certificates, count the votes reflected, and upon completion of the canvass, to declare elected the candidates obtaining the biggest number of votes for President and Vice President, he said.

PNP CON-COM MEMBERS SEEK LIMIT TO EXECUTE POWER

HK171028 Quezon City BUSINESS DAY in English 16 Jun 86 p 12

[Text] The Partido Nacionalista ng Pilipinas [Philippine Nationalist Party] said yesterday it will ask the Constitutional Commission to limit the power of the president by making it an impeachable offense, to abolish the legislative body and to remove elective local officials by appointing Officers-in-Charge.

PNB members, who are Con-Com commissioners Blas F. Ople an Regalado Maambong, said such a constitutional safeguard properly belongs to the Con-Com because impeachable offenses are mainly defined in a constitution and not ordinary legislation.

The abolition of the Batasang Pambana and the "systematic replacement of elected governnors and mayors by Officers-in-Charge many of whom have never known the grace of a popular mandate is tantamount ot a coup d'etat against the popular will, ultimtely imposed by the Armed Forces or the naked power of state," PNP members said.

The proposed resolution which is to be filed with the Committee on Public Accountability and Executive branch, will extend the same protection to elected members of the legislature but it will raise the offense to the rank of a "treasonable act".

ENRILE, RAMOS SUBPOENAED IN MARCOS ABUSES CASE

[By Chay O. Florentino]

[Text] Arguments over procedural and national security requirements snagged yesterday's hearing of the case of thousands of torture victims against deposed President Marcos and his chief of staff Gen Fabian Ver at the sala of Regional Trial Court (RTC) Judge Filemon Mendoza in Quezon City.

The hearing was set following the issuance of subpoenas to Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and AFP Chief of Staff Gen Fidel V. Ramos, in accordance with a letters, rogatory (letter of inquiry) sent by Judge Edward Gahn of the U.S. District Court, Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

Enrile and Ramos were summoned to testify and produced documents and records relevant to the torture charge as sought in the letter. Representing Enrile and Ramos, lawyer Antonio Bautista claimed it is not mandatory for the court to heed the letter as it is merely a request from a foreign court to local court for assistance regarding a case.

He said documents which are relevant to a national security could be brought out in the open, an act which would be "highly irregular and absurd."

The Solicitor General's office represented by lawer Romualdo Reynes said there was need to "ascertain substantive issues" before issuing the required subpoenas. He also said there was need to determine the appropriate mode, scope and nature of the matter which may be inquired into. Reynes told newsman in an interview that the government merely wants the procedures to be laid down according to law.

Jose Mari Velez, counsel for Maximo Hilao, et al, and thousands of other human rights victims, expressed "surprise" at the governments's apparent move to make it difficult to assist the victims. "The new government should help them," he said.

The local court cannot inquire into the substantive issues of the case like whether or not Marcos and Ver committed human rights violations, because the complaint was filed in the United states, Velez reasoned, adding that the local court can only ensure that the requirements of the issuance of the letters rogatory are met.

Though not notified to appear in court, lawyer Rafael Recto represented defendants Marcos and Ver. Hitting the government's decision to keep Marcos in the U.S., Recto countered, "Let him (Marcos) come here and defend himself like a man."

ENRILE-PCGG CLASH OVER SEQUESTRATION FEARED

HK171236 Manila THE NEWS HEARLD in Engish 15 Jun 86 p 8

["Business" column by Raul Valino: "Enrile-Salonga Clash Feared"]

[Text] Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, concurrently chairman of Philcomsat, a sequestered telecommunications firm, appeared headed for a clash with the Salonga Commission over a request by the former for the lifting of the sequestration order.

Enrile wrote the Presidential Commission on Good Government a letter request last June 6 asking for the lifting of sequestration of Philcomsat and its parent company Philippine Overseas Telecommunications Corp. (POTC). The defense minister justified his request by arguing that "it is now timely for the complete lifting of sequestration of Philcomsat/POTC," without prejudice to the continued sequestration of the shares and interest of Independent Realty Corp. and Mid-pasig Development Corp., both Marcos front companies, holding almost 40 percent of Philcomsat's outstanding stock issues.

Enrile, at the same time, cited the adverse effect of the sequestration and the fact that Marcos' interest have already been pinpointed. The PCGG, however, instead of giving due course to the request, appointed yesterday another batch of fiscal agents, in effect, relieving the incombent PCGG officer in charge Carlos Farrales from his post.

Salonga reportedly has appointed Salvador Hizon, formerly an executive of the defunct Construction Development Corporation of the Philippines (CDCP) and bankrupt Philippine Underwriter Finance Corp. (Philfinance) to head the new team.

The move is widely seen by insiders as clear indications of a brewing rift within the PCGG with Salonga and Commissioner Raul Daza on one side and Commissioners Mary Concepcion Bautista and Ramon Diaz on the other. Diaz had personally appointed Farrales to head the telecommunications task force.

In the Philcomsat case, Enrile also underscored the fact that net cash dividends amounting to P106.6 million had already been turned over to the government. These are proceeds which were originally due the Marcos front companies.

It was learned that the government still has to appoint a nominee to the board of Philcomsat to represent the sequestered shares. A cousin of President Cory Aquino is reportedly being groomed for the position.

ENRILE CONFIRMS TALKS STARTED WITH NPA REBELS

HK180755 Hong Kong AFP in English 0751 GMT 18 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 18 (AFP) -- Informal talks between Philippine Government and communist rebel emissaries have begun, Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said here Wednesday. Mr Enrile told reporters after a cabinet meeting at the presidential palace that the emissaries were engaged in "informal discussions about the rules of the game."

His statements were the first official confirmation that talks had begun on President Corazon Aquino's call for a ceasefire aimed at a political solution to the 17-year-old communist insurgency.

The Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) and its New People's Army (NPA) have named a fugitive former journalist, Satur Ocampo, as chief emissary to the talks. A 16,000-member guerrilla force has been fighting the 250,000-strong security forces.

The government is represented by five persons whose names have been kept secret by the Office of the President, which said they do not include anyone from the military. Asked if he knew the identities of the negotiators, Mr Enrile said "more or less, but I am not in a position to reveal their names." He said he was being informed about the progress of the talks.

On the prospects for the talks' success, he said: "I'm a very optimistic person."

Meanwhile, Mr Enrile brushed aside fresh rumors of a bitter rift between him and allegedly radical members of the Aquino government. He also dismissed a columnist's claim Wednesday that he was to have been sacked on June 12, Independence Day. "I'm still here," he said with a smile. Asked about his relations with other cabinet members with whom he is constantly reported to be at odds, he said "they're okay."

Mr Enrile led the civilian-backed military mutiny in February that toppled former President Ferdinand Marcos after 20 years in power. Mrs Aquino retained him from the Marcos cabinet, in which he served for more than 15 years.

The PHILIPPINE TRIBUNE newspaper Tuesday quoted an unnamed presidential palace official as saying that Mr Enrile was blocking Mrs. Aquino's peace efforts. He also reportedly issued an "irresponsible" statement this month on alleged communist infiltration of the government.

Despite their amicable ties in public, there have been reports of conflict between Enrile supporters and so-called radicals led by Minister Joker Arroyo, the presidential executive secretary. Mr Arroyo and other former activities now in government have been branded communists by rights critics.

Mr Arroyo, the chief architect of the peace talks with the rebels, said in a statement published Wednesday that "there is no much intrigue being banded about an alleged rift ... this is absolutely false."

RAMOS URGES SEPARATION OF MILITARY, 'POLITICS'

[By Cecilio Francisco, Jr]

[Text] General Fidel V. Ramos, armed forces chief of staff, disclosed yesterday a proposal to free the military from partisan politics. Ramos who just arrived from an inspection tour of different military units in Western and Central Visayas said the proposal will be submitted to the Constitutional Commission for the inclusion of a provision to "shield the armed forces from the debilitating effects of partisan politics."

Ramos said that the decision to include this proposal in the constitution being drafted was arrived at following a series of consultations with senior military commanders on June 4 and 5. He said he had also discussed this matter with military field commanders in the Visayas.

The consensus among the ranking officers, General Ramos said, was to include this provision which will be implemented by legislation.

The AFP proposal states: "It shall be the policy of the state to keep the Armed Forces of the Philippines free from political partisanship or influence. Accordingly, appropriate measures legislative or otherwise, shall be undertaken by the government to insulate the Armed Forces of the Philippines from the influence of partisan politics in order that it will constantly remain as the impartial guardian of the people, the constitution and the flag."

Ramos said this particular aspect of the role of the AFP was not included before in the old constitution. Ramos pointed out that the Armed Forces should be free as much as possible.

"The individual soldier must not be loyal to one man, and should not engage in partisan politics. His loyalty, should be to the people he is sworn to protect, to the flag which represents the peole, and constitution," Ramos said.

CPP/NPA ATTEMPTING TO ISOLATE URBAN CENTERS

[Text] The classic communist strategy of isolating the urban centers from the countryside to heighten unrest is being attempted by the Communist Party of the Philippines and its military arm, the New People's Army.

As a result, Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, armed forces chief of staff, alerted all regional and field commanders to the development even as the military establishment awaited developments in the impending ceasefire talks between the governemtn and the CPP/NPA.

General Ramos wired his order to headquarters from Iloilo City where he presided over a command conference of the AFP's Regional Unified Command 6 in the Western Visayas. The employment of the strategy was confirmed by a captured document from a slain NPA commander. It instructs partisans to increase the level of unrest and violence in the cities.

During the conference, Col. Domingo Rio, regional commander, briefed General Ramos on the strategy shift of the CPP/NPA Panay Island party committee. Colonel Rio said that, based on a document recovered from a slain NPA commander in Jaro, Iloilo, the subversives will be massing their forces in urban centers. He said sightings of dissidents have been made in the towns surrounding Iloilo City like Miagao, Oton, Cabatuan and Maasin.

The same documents also showed that armed city partisans, from 15 to 25, have already been fielded in Iloilo City. Rio said these elements have mounted a series of kidnapings, liquidations, bank robberies, "Operation Agaw Armas" [Arms Grabbing] to terrorize civilians and destablizie the city government.

Rio also reported that the CPP/NPA Panay Island party committee has split the fighting fronts from the original two to four: The northwest, central, south, and the east fighting fronts. The new rebel tactics, according to Rio, was intended to make the dissidents match the fighting capability of government troopers.

Region 6 military commanders estimated that about 811 armed regulars operate in the whole of Panay island while 1,222 are in Negros Island. Rio also informed Ramos that compounding the insurgency problem in the Western Visayas are reports that a group close to former Assemblyman Arturo Pacificador of Antique is recruiting experienced military men loyal to deposed President Marcos. The recruits according to Rio are being paid from P1,500 to P2,000.

In the same briefing, Ramos reiterated the national reconciliation policy of the government saying that the armed forces for the sake of unity is extending the hand of friendship to the insurgents.

Ramos also disclosed of the initial success of the ceasefire in Negros del Norte, Cebu and Region II which saw a number of dissidents coming down from the hills.

General Ramos yesterday relieved two army generals, one of them to go on schooling. Camp Aguinaldo sources identified them as Brig. Gens. Pedro Balbanero of the GHl Infantry Brigade (formerly the Military Police Brigade) and Dionisio Tan-gatue Jr., chief of Recom [Regional Command] 6 and the Western Visayas regional unified command. Tan- gatue will go to Monterey, California, USA for schooling.

CPP, NDF ISSUE PROPOSALS FOR ECONOMIC IMPROVEMENT

[Text] Bacolod City -- Chances of peace being settled soon in the economically depressed island of Negros heightened, when the Communist Party of the Philippines/the New People's Army and the National Democratic Front [NDF] here jointly issued detailed proposals for economic upliftment. The CPP-NPA-NDF proposals also indicated the rebels' willingness to work with the Aquino. The documents were believed to [be] an offshoot of talks held recently between Bacolod Bishop Antonio Y. Fortich and the highest ranking leaders of the CPP/NPA on the possibility of calling an end to hostilities which have disturbed the Negros countryside for almost 17 years now.

Fortich held talks with rebel representatives last May 27 and again last Monday in an undisclosed place in southern Negros Occidental. Although the bishop would not identify the leaders, reliable sources said two of them were Francisco "IKO" Demafiles and Silvino "Makao" Gallardo, heads of the movement in Negros Island and Negros Occidental, respectively.

The documents are entitled "Economic Upliftment of the Masses Is the Road to Peace" and "Let Us Give Peace a Chance." Both are attributed to the CCP/NPA and NDF Negros Island.

The first described Cory Aquino's call for peace and reconciliation as "a hallmark of her popular-democratic rule" and a "significant step toward a solution of a two-decade-long deteriorating peace and order situation." It also said it welcomes the efforts of the President and those of the forces working with her government to uplift the economic well-being of the masses. However, it said, "There is a wide space for freedom but not yet for livelihood" and reiterated the demand for genuine land reform.

They listed their demands as follows:

-- Land reform of sugarcane land at the minimum of 10 percent upwards.
-- Free distribution or allowing free usage of all lands sequesterd by the government from the Marcos cronies.
-- Free usage of vacant lots in sugarcane plantations where land reform is not yet in effect.
-- Purchase of sugarcane lands by the peasant-farm workers from the landowners-planters at the very low price and on easy term payment basis.
-- Conversion of certificates of land transfer to a formal land title.
-- Free distrbution of the disposable public lands to the real tillers.

The paper also gives credit to sugarcane planters and landowners for having "reached a level of social concern." It said the rebels too have been victims of fascist economic plunder.

The rebels demanded immediate relief and rehabilitation and financial and technical assistance from either the church or the government to be channeled through organizations which have proven integrity and are acceptable to the church, the CPP/NPA and the government.

The second paper speaks of peace as a necessary condition for socio-economic development. Stressing that President Aquino's call for peace "does not fall on deaf ears," it presents three basic demands: The demilitarization of Negros; the prosecution of fascist military criminals through speedy trials; and the indemnification of the victims of military atrocities for loss of lives and damage to properties, working animals, and crops.

It asked that financial and technical assistance for the peasants and farmers for agricultural production be given in the following order of priority:

-- Principal and secondary crops for self-sufficiency.
-- Cash crops production for domestic consumption.
-- Cash crops for export.

They indicated NPA support for all efforts towards peace, freedom and economic progress. The documents were dated June 8 but were furnished BUSINESS DAY only Wednesday night.

AQUINO BROTHER-IN-LAW MEETS WITH REBEL PRIEST

[Text] Manila, June 17 (AFP) -- Agapito "Butz" Aquino, acting as an emissary of his sister-in-law, President Corazon Aquino, said here Tuesday he had held "cordial" talks with rebel Roman Catholic preist Father Conrado Balweg. "We talked about peace, but definitely nothing about surrender," Mr. Aquino told AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE in a telephone interview. He declined to discuss in detail the dialogue he had with the renegade priest.

(Rebel sources in the northern city of Baguio said the meeting took place Sunday in the town hall of Dadanga, high in the northern Cordillera mountains where Father Balweg leads an unknown number of insurgents.)

Mr. Aquino said he was acting as a special emissary of Mrs Aquino, who has opened delicate negotiations with communist underground aimed at setting up projected ceasefire talks. Father Balweg, who took to the hills in 1979, was the best-known spokesman of the communist New People's Army (NPA) until he broke ranks with the 16,500-strong insurgent force two months ago over policy disputes.

Mr. Aquino described the talks as "very cordial, very civil and very progressive." He cited the "willingness of both sides to come together and find out what areas we disagree on and what areas we agree on, so we can get together and solve our problems." He said the dialogue will continue in the future.

(In Baguio, sources in the splinter group Cordillera People's Liberation Army (CPLA) which the priest heads told AFP Father Balweg "reiterated his proposal for the creation of a federal cordillera state or an autonomous Cordillera region.")

The Cordillera mountain ranges are populated by Igorot tribesmen who have long been in dispute with the government and large multinational firms over the alleged seizure of their ancestral lands for development projects.

Several government officials, including Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, has said the autonomy question should be addressed by a 48-man panel now drafting a new Philippine constitution.

Father Balweg is a Tinguian, a strain of the Igorot tribe.

(Rebel sources said Mr. Aquino was accompanied to the meeting by Governor William Claver of the nearby Kalinga-Apayao Province and Mario Yag-ao, head of a confederation of Igorot Tribes in the region.)

MAGNO PROMOTION HAILED BY CHRISTIANS, MUSLIMS

[By Roy C. Sinfuego]

[Text] Cotabato City -- Christian and Muslim leaders of Mindanao hailed the promotion of Brig Gen Jose P. Magno Jr to major general by President Aquino last June 12.

Chairman Sali Wali of the Lupon Tagapagpaganap ng Pook [Regional operations commission] [LTP] in Region 9 and former Lanao del Sur governor Mohamad Ali Dimaporo said the two-star promotion of Magno is timely and deeply appreciated by Christians and Muslims.

Gov Zacarias Candao of Maguindanao who is concurrently chairman of LTP 12, said President Aquino made the right decision in promoting Magno. Candao said Magno is a veteran military officer in Mindanao and is fully respected and supported by the people of Mindanao regardless of their political affiliations.

He cited the general's ability and competence in handling delicate problems confronting the island, particularly those involving secessionists, insurgents, and other lawless elments. He said the relation of Magno with the present crop of political leaders in the Aquino government has greatly enhanced the closer ties between the military and local leaders in Mindanao.

Magno was then colonel when he landed in Malabang, Lanao del Sur, as chief of the 10th Infantry Battalion in 1974. He got his star-rank in Lanao del Sur when he was brigade commander. He later assumed leadership of the Central Mandanao Command (Cemcom), now Regional Unified Command (RUC-12) under Brig Gen Rodrigo B. Gutang.

In 1984, he was transferred to Central Luzon as the first commander of RUC-3 with headquarters at Camp Olivas, Pampanga. He was reassigned to Mindanao in 1985 as RUC-9 commander and became chief of the Southern Command (Southcom) after Maj Gen Delfin C. Castro retired. Magno is a veteran of the Vietnam war and was designated as Army deputy commander before he took over Cemcom.

MORE TO REJECT CON-COM IN NON-MUSLIM MINDANAO

[Text] Davao City -- The campaign to reject the approval of the "Aquino Constitution" has been started here for failure of the present government to appoint not even one delegate from the 17 million non-Muslim Mindanao population to the Constitutional Commission [Con-Com].

Former Mayor Luis T. Santos, an Aquino supporter, said "Mindanao has been unjustly treated once again." He said he will join the campaign to reject the Aquino Constitution. He pointed out that the four Con-Com commissioners from Mindanao were Muslims who represent Regions 9 and 12. Southeastern Mindanao (Region 11) and Central Mindanao (Region 10) have no delegates in the Con-Com, he said.

Santos said Mindanao people fought hard for justice, freedom and democracy during the 20 years rule of Marcos. In fact, the confrontations between the Marcos forces and the freedom fighters were more intense in Davao City than in any part of the country.

"How many Edsas [Epifano de Los Santos Avenue] had we fought during the numerous "Welga Ng Bayan [National Strike]" in Davao City? And yet, no one from Davao City and other cities and provinces in Regions 10 and 11 is representing us in the Con-Com," Santos stressed.

Santos pointed out that President Aquino's Proclamation No. 9, section 1 clearly specifies regional representation in the Con-Com. "They now violate their own law," he said. He said several lawyers were readying a case to declare the Con-Com void before the Supreme Court because its creation violated Proclamation No. 9 which has become a part of the law of the land.

DIMAPORO OFFERS TO LEAVE COUNTRY IF ALLOWED

[Text] Former Lanao del Sur Gov Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur said yesterday he was willing to leave the country if the government and the Muslims believe there is no more need for his services in bringing peace to Mindanao. Until this is allowed, Dimaporo said, he has a duty to stay to protect his "thousands of followers," and to fight on the side of the military in defending the government.

"All the government has to do, if it believes there is no more use for me as a man of peace, is to lift the hold order against me, and I will depart either for Los Angeles or Saudi Arabia," he said.

"I have committed no crime, I'm not guilty of any offense," he said. "My only interest, an interest nurtured since childhood, is to support the military and the government." He chastised the advocacy of Brig Gen Rodrigo Gutang, Regional Unified Command (RUC) 12 commander, "to bring war to me and my followers," a measure he insisted did not carry the approval of Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Gen Fidel Ramos, armed forces chief of staff.

"If this happens, I'll fight," he said. "I and my supporters all over Mindanao and Sulu and Manila will fight to the last drop of blood." He made the statements in a visit that turned into an instant press conference at the 365 Club at the Hotel Intercontinental in Makati.

Dimaporo said he was perplexed by the sudden hostility of Gutang whom he described as "my tail, he was always with me wherever I went during the Marcos regime." He urged Gutang's repacement by "a military man of peace" like Brig Gen Mariano Adalem, RUC 10 chief.

Dimaporo sued for time to gather the "loose" firearms, reputed to number more than 2,000, among Muslims in the two Lanao provinces. He recalled that Gutang has issued so far six ultimatums, including one ending yesterday, but that "this has not been followed because no soldier who knows Mindanao believes this is possible."

Dimaporo said the guns were issued to men in his territory to fight the Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF), the New People's Army (NPA) and other criminals. he said everyone knows the difficulty of making the Muslims part with their guns which, by feudal tradition, "is dearer to them than life itself."

The 68-year-old leader blamed media for calling him a "warlord" and his political enemies for branding men loyal to him as "barracudas." "I am not a warlord and my followers are no barracudas," he told media men pointedly.

Dimaporo insisted he is a "tired and unswerving loyalist" of deposed Presient Marcos. "However, we must now face the reality that Marcos has left the country and President Aquino is now the recognized leader of the land," he said.

President Aquino is "good by heart, and she means well," he said. "But the people around her have made her their prisoner. President Cory should be careful of the people around her." "Now that they are in power, we must follow their command as law abiding citizens," he said.

But he pointed out that it is not easy to retrieve the guns which he said were distributed by Gutang and other military offficals to protect the Muslims from lawless elements. It is true, he admitted, that most of the guns he surrendered were unserviceable. Most are worn out because of the locally manufactured bullets that exploded in the chamber of the guns, he said.

MANAGEMENT BODY BACKS CALL FOR RESTRAINT

[By E.T. Suarez]

[Text] President Aquino's call to labor and capital to exercise maximum restraint in resorting to strikes and lockouts was supported by the Personnel Management Association of the Philippines (PMAP).

In a 10-point statement of concern, PMAP said strikes and lockouts must be resorted to only after exhausting all peaceful means and avenues for the steelement of labor disputes. "To promote industrial peace and discourage exploitation of workers, we supprt measures to liberalize the requirements for workers' self-organization," PMAP said.

On the matter of strike vote, PMAP proposed that in the determination of a simple majority vote requirement, a representative of the Bureau of Labour Relations should be present to supervise the balloting. "Similarly, a lockout can be declared with the vote of a simple majority of the board of directors of the company with such balloting subject to Bureau of Labor Relations' supervision," PMAP said.

PMAP said the issue of labor relations should be viewed within a broader social context considering the current political and economic situation.

"The labor relations issues should, therefore, not be limited to the technical and legalistic approaches but should be considered against the backdrop of the national recovery program," PMAP said.

On the issue of apprenticeship, PMAP endorsed the limitation of apprenticeship period to a maximum of six months, after which the apprentices should be considered regular employes.

"PMAP rejects any form of exploitation of workers, security guards included. PMAP recommends close supervision of security agencies not only by the PCSUSIA [expansion unknown] but also by the Ministry of Labor and Employment to ensure that the benefits of labor standard laws and social legislation, particularly on wages and allowances, may be fully enjoyed by security guards."

To promote democracy in labor unionism, PMAP proposed that automatic certification election during the freedom period of collective bargaining agreement be made imperative. It supported the President's decision to lower to 20 percent the required number of employes to warrant the holding of a certification election provided that compliance with said requirement is duly verified by the Bureau of Labor Relations or at the instance of any interested party.

On profit sharing, PMAP said it should be a voluntary agreement between labor and management and not a result of legislation or compulsion.

NATIONAL OIL COMPANY TO IMPORT CHINESE CRUDE

HK171037 Quezon City BUSINESS DAY in English 16 Jun 86 p 9

[Text] The Philippine National Oil Co. [PNOC] will soon import Shengli crude from China under a netback or spot-market pricing scheme, sources in government said. A Chinese delegation arrived last week to negotiate for a pricing formula which will be based on a netback or spot-market related scheme that will also use a reference crude possibly the price for Middle East heavy crude, the sources said.

Negotiations started Wednesday and were still ongoing as Friday. Discussed was the question of what reference crudes would be used and the level of discounts or premiums above or below the reference crude, the sources said.

The drop in world oil prices last year and early this year, to as low as $10 per barrel, have strongly motivated PNOC to negotiate for conversion of its government-to-government contracts into the spot-market or netback-related deals.

Shengli crude, imported form China on a government-to-government basis, accounted for 8,088 million barrels or 15.7 percent of the country's total crude supply last year of 51.513 million barrels.

BOMB FIRED AT GSDF INSTALLATION IN OKINAWA

OW190045 Naha Radio NHK in Japanese 2210 GMT 18 Jun 86

[Text] What appeared to be a gasoline bomb was fired at the First Composite Group of the Ground Self Defense Forces [GSDF] on the outskirts of Naha city from a firing device before dawn today [19 June]. The Naha City Police Station is investigating the incident, focusing on possible links to similar gasoline bomb guerrilla incidents on the mainland and arson involving SDF vehicles in Okinawa Prefecture.

The incident occurred at about 0015 [1815 GMT]. What appeared to be a gasoline bomb was fired in the direction of the headquarters building of the First Composite Group of the GSDF in Kagamizu, Naha city. It landed on the road near Gate 1, and burst into flames. There was also an explosion. The rain which was beginning to fall extinguished the fire, however. There was no damage to buildings or other facilities.

According to police investigators, numerous pieces of broken glass were found where the bomb landed. In addition, two wooden sticks, approximately 28 centimeters long each, and an empty can broken in two were found on the road near a sidewalk on National Highway 331 about 50 meters away. The can was stuffed with material which appeared to be styrofoam. Police suspect that the culprit or culprits fired the bottle filled with gasoline from a firing device placed near the embankment along National Highway 331, targeting it at the GSDF building.

The scene of the indicent was the GSDF compound along National Highway 331 leading to Itoman. Passing motorists appeared to be curious about the investigative activity going on there.

A series of arson cases involving SDF members' vehicles in parking lots have been reported in Okinawa Prefecture this year. Police are investigating the incident's possible links with previous cases, as well as other details, including the firing device. They are also investigating the possibility of today's incident having links with similar gasoline bomb incidents on the mainland.

Caller Claims Responsibility

OW190633 Naha NHK Television in Japanese 0315 GMT 19 Jun 86

[Text] In telephone calls to media in Okinawa Prefecture a man identifying himself as member of the Japan Socialist Youth League of the Revolutionary Workers' Association has claimed responsibility for a predawn incident today in which a gasoline bomb was fired at the installation of the First Composite Group of the Ground Self Defense Force [GSDF] in Naha.

At about 0015 [1515 GMT 18 June] an explposion was heard and white smoke rose near Gate 1 of the headquarters of the GSDF First Composite Group in Kagamizu, Naha City. There was no damage to buildings or other facilities, however, Police, searching the area, discovered what appeared to be launchers made of three steel pipes and batteries on elevated ground across the highway approximately 110 meters from where the bomb landed. They believe that it was aimed at the SDF installation from there.

Meanwhile, at about 1110 [0210 GMT 19 June] a man identifying himself as a member of the Japan Socialist Youth League of the Revolutionary Workers' Association claimed responsibility for the incident in a telephone call to NHK's Okinawa station.

In a young voice with no hint of provincial accent, he read out a five-point statement, declaring that he had carried out a revolutionary gasoline bomb attack against the GSDF First Composite Group as part of a counteroffensive against the criminal attempt to trample the Okinawan people underfoot again, as seen in cases involving the national flag and anthem and the projected 20-year expropriation of land under lease to the military. All types of tactics will be employed and attacks will be launched successively to deal effective and thorough blows, he added.

Earlier, there had been incidents of arson involving vehicles of SDF members and fire bombs hurled at the office of the Naha Defense Facilities Administration Bureau. However, this is the first time the culprits ever issued a statement claiming responsibility. Evidence led police to believe that the latest incident is the work of organized guerrillas. While pursuing the investigation along these lines, they have tightened security measures.

NAKASONE'S RECORD, PERSONAL STYLE VIEWED

["Nakasone's 'Settlement of Postwar Accounts' Will Be Judged" by Hiroaki Furuno" -- KYODO headline]

[Text] Tokyo, June 18 KYODO -- With the formal proclcamation of an upper house election Wednesday, candidates running for the July 6 double polls have entered a final stage of their vote-gatherine campaign. A variety of campaign issues have arisen so far, but opposition parties are increasingly turning their attention to the political record of the past three-and-a-half years of Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone.

How will the voters judge Nakasone's record, characterized by his call for a general settlement of postwar accounts, a restoration of national pride and a change in the overall course of government planning? Putting aside the dispute as to how far he has achieved his political goals, it is worth recalling the policies or catch phrases he has adopted since taking office in November 1982.

Since his inauguration, Nakasone has introduced a string of reforms at home, while adopting a flamboyant style of diplomacy abroad, unlike the low-key approach of his predecessor Zenko Suzuki. In December 1982, soon after he took office, Nakasone clearly described his "hawkish" itntention in a Diet committee, when he said he personally wanted to revise the Constitution as part of his plan to "overhaul" the postwar account. His remarks were interpreted among opposition parties as meaning that he intended to boost Japan's military capability, by revising a clause in the war-renouncing constitution.

In January of the following year, Nakasone surprised Diet members and the public by unveiling the first official visit of a Japanese prime minister to South Korea in a bid to open a new era between the two countries. The visit was soon followed by the announcement by the administration that Japan would allow transfers of its military technology to the United States, which had been long withheld by his predecessors. Then Nakasone made an official visit to the United States in which he drew attention to himself by saying that Japan and the United States were bound by a common destiny and that the Japanese archipelago was an "unsinkable aircraft carrier" playing a part in U.S. military strategy in the western Pacific. Public opinion and opposition camps fiercely reacted against these statements

The price was high. In November of that year, the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP) suffered a serious setback in Nakasone's first general election as premier, winning only 250 seats, six less than a bare majority in the then 511-seat lower house. Nakasone attributed the result to a court ruling in which former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka was found guilty in the lockheed bribery scandal. The "revisionist" Nakasone has since been placing priority on what the public wants. In fact, when he learned the public was most concerned with school problems, he quickly initiated an "overhaul" of the postwar educational system in Feburary 1984.

When public interest centered on unfair taxes in December of that year, he publicly declared a postwar tax reform to be settled by the administration. While pushing a policy of creating a "small government," he occasionally hinted at the need for scrapping the 1-percent-of-GNP ceiling on the defense budget. Like it or not, the flair of his political style improved in a way the shaky U.S.-Japan relationship. A high public approval rating together with the support of Tanaka, then regarded as the "kingmaker" of Japanese politics, helped him win re-election as president of the LDP in October 1984 for a second two-year tenure.

Then came his official visit last summer to Yasukuni shrine, where those enshrined include war criminals as well as the war dead. The visit was a long-cherished wish of Nakasone to restore national pride. The visit, said by critics to violate the constitutional separation of politics and religion, was made in defiance of taboos his predecessors had shied away from. The former Imperial Navy officer seem jubilant. His romanticism in pursuing what he labeled "new nationalism," groping for international power and a revival of Japanese traditional values -- a Japanese identity -- seemingly gained ground. As regards his economic strategy, Nakasone has continued an austere fiscal policy aiming at curbing public spending while speeding up the privatization of state-run bodies including the deficit-ridden Japanese National Railways (JNR).

On the international scene, confronted by Japan-U.S. trade friction resulting from a huge trade surplus in Japan's favor, Nakasone has been forced to proceed with a series of its market-opening policies to fend off U.S. criticism against Japan. Consequently, the value of the yen hit a record high of 159.99 yen against the dollar following the May 4-6 Tokyo summit of seven industrialized nations. At the summit, showing good chairmanship, Nakasone successfully projected, more or less, an image of Japan as an international state closely involved in the interests of the western democracies. These are the outlines of policies the Nakasone administration has pursued in a move to seek what he calls a general settlement of postwar accounts. The fact remains, however, that most of his political goals -- the revision of the Constitution, scrapping of the 1-percent-of-GNP lid on the defense budget and tax and education reforms -- are still to be achieved, with only four months remaining until his second term expires in October.

Why? Has his tenure been too short? Hardly. In addition to his weak power base within the LDP -- his faction holding only 48 lower house seats -- his political style tells everything. To many senior LDP leaders, political pundits say, Nakasone's style of leadership, in which he sometimes neglects to seek party consensus, relying instead on his advisory bodies, looks too autocratic. So he may have lost party support in pursuing his long-cherished political goals. Have Nakasone's politics proved to be pie in the sky? The double polls will show his destiny.

FURTHER ON KPA SUPREME COMMAND CALL FOR TALKS

Radio Report

[Excerpts] In connection with the new important peace proposal recently made by the KPA Supreme Command to alleviate tension and end the state of military confrontation in our country, a press conference for domestic and foreign reporters was held at the People's Palace of Culture today. Placed at the front of the site of the press conference was a portrait of the great leader of our party and people Comrade Kim Il-song. Present at the press conference were reporters from the publishing and reporting organizations in Pyongyang, including NODONG SINMUN, KCNA, the Korean Central Broadcasting committee, MINJU CHOSON, and TONGIL SINBO; foreign reporters; and the publication functionaries of the embassies of the foreign countries in our country. Yi Hong-sun, major general of the KPA, spoke at the press conference.

[Begin Yi Hong-sun recording] First, I would like to express my deep gratitude to you, foreign and domestic reporters, for attending this press conference. Recently, the KPA Supreme Command has taken an important step in connection with the tense situation prevailing in our country and decided to announce a KPA Supreme Command Information in that connection. I am now going to make public the KPA Supreme Command information to the foreign and domestic reporters who are present here.

I will continue. At Panmunjom at 1200 today, pursuant to the step taken by the KPA Supreme command, the minister of the People's Armed Forces of the DPRK delivered to the U.S. side [michuk] and South Korea respectively a letter to the commander in chief of the UN Forcces [yonhapkuk kun] stationed in South Korea and a letter to the South Korean minister of National defense. The delivery of these letters was delayed considerably relative to the original plan. At 1000 on 7 June, pursuant to the step taken by the KPA Surpeme Command, the secretary of our side to the MAC sent a first telephone notice to the secretary of the other side in connection with the matter of delivering, upon authority, the letters of the minister of the People's Armed Forces of the DPRK to the commander in chief of the UN Forces and to the South Korean minister of national defense.

In this telephone notice, the secretary of our side informed [the other side] that our side would send two liaison officers to the conference room of the Neutral Nations Suprevisory Commission of the MAC in Panmunjom at 1500 on 9 June 1986 to deliver the letters of the minister of the People's Armed Forces of the DPRK to Commander Livsey of the U.S. side and Yi Ki-paek, minister of national defense of South Korea, and requested the other side to send their corresponding personnel to take delivery of the letters.

However, the other side failed to show any response on 9 June, when our side was supposed to deliver the letters. Hence at 1050 on that day, the secretary of our side again sent to the secretary of the other side a telepone notice urging the other side to promptly send the corresponding personnel to take delivery of the letters. When we thus sent a notice again, the secretary of the other side sent us a blunt response to the effect that they would send a reply later.

Our side waited patiently for 2 days for the other side to send a reply. However, we received no respone The secretary of our side, therefore, sent a telephone notice again to the secretary of the other side at 0815 on 11 June, reminding them of the fact that 4 days had passed since our side sent the first telephone notice concerning their taking delivery of the letters proposed by us and that 2 days had passed since the other side said that they would send us a reply, and urging them to promptly send the corresponding personnel to take delivery of the letters.

Then, on 14 June, the secretary of the other side sent us a reply that the U.S. side and the South Korean side would take delivery of our letters at 1200 on 17 June, which is today. Thus, we were able to deliver our letters containing a new peace proposal to the U.S. side and the South Korean side today, 10 days after our side sent the first telephone notice.

This is my brief account of how the letters have been delivered. Thank you for your listening to me. [end recording]

GFTUK Official Supports Plan

[Text] The peace initiative of the KPA Supreme Command to alleviate tension on the Korean peninsula is arousing a great response among the people of various strata. In this hour, we will present a reaction by Kim Yong-nam, vice chairman of the GFTUK Central Committee.

[Begin Kim recording] The KPA Supreme Command, proceeding from the urgent demand of the prevailing situation of our country, put forth a new peace initiative to hold talks for the alleviation of tension on the Korean peninsula by getting together those holding real military power in the North and the South. In accordance with the step taken by the KPA Supreme Command, to Livsey, the commander of the U.S. forces [Mingun] in South Korea, and to Yi Ki-paek, defense minister of South Korea, Comrade O Chin-u, minister of the People's Armed Forces of the DPRK, sent letters containing the specific proposal presently arising in eliminating the state of tension and confrontation. This peace initiative which the KPA Supreme Command put for this time is the most fair, most just, and epochal measure to alleviate the state of tension and confrontation in our country.

As has been noted in the information of the KPA Supreme Command, recently the tense situation of the Korean peninsula has been extremely aggravated and, in the frontline areas where the huge armed forces of the North and the South are tensely confronting one another, an acute situation in which even a small accidental incident can explode, the kindling of war is being created.

In recent years, in order to prevent the development of such a situation, the Government of the Republic has made all possible efforts. Proceeding from the ardent desire to alleviate tension and create a favorable environment for dialogue, after entering this year, too, the Government of the Republic put forth the proposal to halt large-scale military exercises and to cease all military exercises during dialouge, and proposed that the South Korean authorities respond to this. Nevertheless, all these efforts of the Government of the Republic have earned no due response; instead, contrary to our expectation, the United States and the South Korean authorities, loudly raving on the bogus threat of southward invasion, have invariably sought the policy of confrontation and war. This is an open military threat over our Republic, and is the development of a new situation which further heightens tension on the Korean peninsula.

Because of the policy of confrontation and war sought by the United States and the South Korean authorities, north-south dialogue, which was arranged with so much effort, has been suspended, and the situation has reached a more serious, extreme stage. This tense situation on the Korean peninsula must be alleviated immediately, and war must be prevented by all means. To this end, acute tension should be alleviated, the state of confrontation should be eliminated, and, above all, a measure of alleviation should be taken in the military field.

Historical experience has fully proved that, in the uneasy circumstances in which the danger or armed clash and war hangs over, the sentiment of distrust and animosity can never be dissipated, and progress never be made in north-south dialogue and in settling the question of the reunification of the country.

Even if the basic settlement of the question of peace is difficult, at least, the measures which will help the settlement of the pending questions should be sought. At the same time,under the circumstances in which the Military Armistice Commission is not playing its due role, the measure for the settlement of questions should be sought, even outside of its framework.

The peace initiative which the KPA Supreme Command put forth this time is the most just measure to fulfill precisely this urgent demand. To alleviate the prevailing tension, those who hold real military power in the North and South should get together and hold sincere discussion. If the United States and the South Korean authorities are truly interested in the alleviation of tension and in peace, they should respond to our peace initiative. Attitude toward our peace initiative will become a touchstone which will show who truly desires the alleviation of tension in Korea and peace of Korea. Therefore, the entire working class of the northern half of our Republic strongly hold that the United States and the South Korean side should not turn their backs to our peace initiative, which has reflected the unanimous aspiration of all Korean people and the peoples of the world, but respond to it affirmatively.

PRC Ministry Supports Talks

[Text] Beijing June 18 (KCNA) -- Ma Yuzhen, spokesman of the Chinese Foreign Ministry, at a news briefing in Beijing on June 18, voiced firm support to the new peace proposal of the Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army for relaxation of the tension in Korea.

Referring to the proposal of the KPA Supreme Command for talks between the military authorities involving the minister of People's Armed Forces of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, the commanders-in-chief of the U.N. Forces in South Korea and the defence minister of South Korea, he said: The proposal is of positive significance for removing the military confrontation between the North and the South and for relaxing the tension of the Korean peninsula.

"We believe that realisation of such talks will help ease the current situation on the Korean peninsula and create a favorable atmosphere for the resumption of the dialogue between the North and the South," he added.

NODONG SINMUN ON TRIPARTITE MILITARY ALLIANCE

[Text] Pyongyang June 18 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today comes out with an article titled "Parts of Triangular Military Exercises", which says: The "Naval joint exercise" of the U.S. Navy and the South Korean puppet Navy staged in the east sea of Korea and the U.S.-Japan naval "joint exercise" held on the coast of Honshu, Japan, were by no means isolated ones. Through them the U.S. imperialists sought to hasten the formation of the tripartite military alliance of the United States, Japan and South Korea.

It continues: The U.S. imperialists scheme to knock into shape U.S.-Japan-South Korea three-way military alliance as a military lever to establish their domination over Asia. The U.S. imperialists concluded a bilateral "security treaty" with Japan to form their military tieup. The United States is now going to tighten military links between the South Korean puppets and Japan.

The visits to South Korea and Japan by U.S. President Reagan, U.S. Defense Secretary Weinberger and U.S. State Secretary Shultz, and the South Korean visit of Nakasone were chiefly aimed at hastening the formation of the tripartite military alliance. This year in particular, each time a joint exercise of the U.S. Forces and the South Korean puppet Army was staged in South Korea, various joint maneuvers of the U.S. Forces and the Japanese "Self-Defence Forces" took place in Japan and her surrounding waters. All these moves are connected with the scheme to form the tripartite military alliance.

RADIO TALK DENOUNCES U.S. 'STAR WARS' PLAN

[Unattributed talk: "The Criminal Star Wars Plan by the U.S. Imperialists"]

[Text] The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The imperialists are not only accelerating the production and deployment of nuclear weapons, but are also scheming to expand the arms race into space by coming up with the adventurous 'star wars' plan. The U.S. imperialists are now desperately trying to realize their 'star wars' plan. The 'star wars' plan is a plan for war in space, alias a space militarization plan or a plan for establishing the defense system for antiballistic missiles. In other words, the 'star wars' plan is a dangerous war plan which calls for the establishment of many militarized space stations in space; commands and controls the ground armed forces using these stations as relay stations; guides missiles launched from the ground, sea, and air to attacking targets; and attacks military targets and other facilities in other countries from the ground, sea, and outer space using lasers and other space military means, thereby attempting to attain the so-called military superiority in a war. This criminal plan has been mapped out since the 1950's. However, this plan has been more frantically accelerated by Reagan, a warmonger.

In July 1982, the U.S. imperialists announced a so-called presidential memorandum regarding the 10-year space development project for a 'star wars' plan. In accordance with this memorandum, a new space corps was organized in September 1982 and the space technology center of the U.S. Air Force was established in October of the same year. Thus, the U.S. imperialists began to conduct basic research activities for a 'star wars' plan through this center. The U.S. Air Force Space Command was also established in Colorado. Along with this, the U.S. imperialists issued their National Security special space directive No 119 in January 1984.

The U.S. imperialists are now scheming to use F-15 fighters as the means of attacking space satellites of other countries. The test for this has already been completed and the research and development activities for the means of attack by lasers using the satellites in space as relay stations are also being vigorously accelerated. On the other hand, the U.S. imperialists are scheming to further strengthen their military satellites to effectively utilize them in a war of aggression.

The most dangerous element in the U.S. imperialists' 'star wars' plan is the so-called missile intercepting systems in space. One of the systems is a system of intercepting the nuclear attack means of other countries in three phases. That is to say, in the first phase, the laser weapons established in the satellites attack nuclear attack means in space. In the second phase, the laser weapons based on the ground destroy nuclear attack means with the refracted rays created when the rays are beamed through the reflecting mirror device established in the satellites. In the third phase, the laser artillery pieces and particle ray weapons established on the ground attack and completely destroy the remaining nuclear attack means which broke through the first and second phase.

Clamoring about the plan for such a three-phase intercepting system, the U.S. imperialists call their 'star wars' plan the Strategic Defense Initiative. However, this is nothing but a deceptive trick. In fact, the U.S. imperialists are trying to attain military superiority by attacking first the military targets, including nuclear weapons, in other countries. The U.S. imperialists are also trying to deploy various attack weapons in space on large quantities by further accelerating such research activities under the pretext of the establishment of the so-called intercepting system in space. This vividly shows that the U.S. imperialists' 'star wars' plan is part of their adventurous, dangerous nuclear war strategy.

Today, the U.S. imperialists have poured huge amounts of funds to accelerate the 'star wars' plan. Since the latter part of the 1950's, the U.S. imperialists have spend $60 billion for this plan. They plan to spend $26 billion in the next 5 years and as much as $100 billion in the 2000's. Thus, the U.S. imperialists' 'star wars' plan is not only a reckless plan for aggression, but is also new war preparation maneuvers. This plan is aimed at launching a preemptive attack against socialist countries. Lurking in this plan is also a sinister ambition to use nuclear weapons in their arms intervention in the progressive countries for world domination.

This notwithstanding, U.S. Secretary of Defense Weinberger has clamored that the United States will continue its 'star wars' plan. U.S. Government-patronized scholars have been trying to conceal the dangerous nature of the 'star wars' plan, babbling that the plan is dramatic and far-sighted. However, this is a foolish scheme.

Deputy head of the U.S. Defense Intelligence Center recently exposed that those weapons to be established in space are part of the system for a nuclear war.

The U.S. imperialists' 'star wars' plan is a criminal one to further aggravate the arms race in space and is a vicious challenge to the people of the world who want to utilize space for peaceful purposes. If the U.S. imperialists continue to scheme for the realization of the criminal 'star wars' plan despite the strong protest and condemnation of the people of the world they will not escape ruin.

U.S. Air Force Nuclear Exercise Condemned

[Commentary by station commentator Kim Myong-nam: "An Adventurous Military Exercise in Accordance With the Nuclear Strategy"]

[Text] According to foreign news reports, the U.S. imperialists have launched a global military exercise simulating a full-scale nuclear war. Participating in this military exercise, which begas on 10 June and which is expected to last until 23 June, are all of the U.S. Strategic Air Force units stationed in various parts of the world.

This is another reckless game of playing with fire -- a demonstration of the bellicose insanity of the U.S. imperialists who are determined to plunge mankind into a nuclear holocaust without hesitation in order to achieve their ambitions for world domination.

Eliminating the danger of a thermonuclear war and defending world peace and security is a pressing problem arising in the international political field as well as mankind's unanimous aspiration. The world's peace-loving forces, including those in the socialist countries, are not sparing sincere efforts to achieve nuclear disarmament, to halt nuclear tests, and, going one step further, to completely abolish nuclear weapons.

Nonetheless, the U.S. imperialists, challenging this serious demand of the times, are frenziedly accelerating the expansion of nuclear arms and continuing nuclear tests, while at the same time continuing to launch war exercises simsulating a nuclear war without letting up.

The U.S. imperialists are assuming a nuclear policy as a basis in their world strategy based on strength. On the basis of this, they are enthused over nuclear war exercises presupposing the use of nuclear weapons, along with a large-scale development and replacement of nuclear weapons, and the deployment of nuclear weapons in forward areas in various parts of the world. In this way, they are foolishly aiming to threaten the socialist countries and progressive forces, to deal with international affairs in accordance with their aggressive demands, and to overwhelm opponents by mounting a preemptive nuclear strike against them in the case they provoke a war.

Unlike their past habit of assuming nuclear weapons as the background against which to formulate their policy of strength, the U.S. imperialists are now assuming them as a means of their policy of strength. Herein lies the seriousness of the problem as well as the adventurous and dangerous nature of the global nuclear war exercise which they have recently begun.

What cannot be overlooked is that the U.S. Strategic Air Force units stationed in Kadena base in Okinawa are participating in this dangerous military exercise. In-flight refuelling aircraft belonging to the Strategic Air Force group at Kadena base are reportedly refuelling B-52 strategic bombers flying from Guam. It is no longer a secret that Okinawa and Guam have become U.S. imperialist nuclear launching bases for an emergency on the Korean peninsula. The U.S. imperialists are having the B-52 strategic bombers carrying nuclear weapons fly frequently from Anderson base in Guam to South Korea, including at times when the "Team Spirit" exercises are conducted.

That the U.S. imperialists launch the B-52 strategic bombers carrying nuclear weapons fly frequently from Anserson base in Guam to South Korea, including at times when the "Team Spirit" exercises are conducted.

That the U.S. imperialists launch the B-52 strategic bombers from Guam and have the U.S. Strategic Air Force units stationed in Okinawa carry on in-flight refuelling for these bombers demonstrates that the aggressive brunt of this war exercise is mainly turned to the Korean peninsula.

In addition, South Korea has now been turned into a most dangerous nuclear forward base by the U.S. imperialists. No other place in the world is so densely deployed with some 1,000 nuclear weapons of various missions and capabilities, inclusing neutron bombs, nuclear bombs, nuclear shells, and nuclear backpack bombs, as in such a small place as South Korea. Moreover, the U.S. imperialists are attempting to ship anew into South Korea such medium-range missiles as the Pershing II and cruise missiles. They have even gone so far as to turn South Korea into an overseas base for 'star wars'.

Regarding the Korean peninsula as the primary igniting point of a nuclear war, the U.S. imperialists have fully prepared to provoke a nuclear war in Korea at any given time.

On top of this, the U.S. imperialists are now engaged, repeatedly, in war exercises designed to light the fuse of a nuclear war. This is nothing but an act of a nuclear lunatic.

Under the pretext of protecting with the so-called nuclear umbrella, the U.S. imperialists have now turned strategically important areas such as South Korea into nuclear forward bases and into nuclear lightning rods and shields for the continental United States as well.

The U.S. imperialists' ulterior motive is to achieve their ambitions for world domination by making other countries and other areas and peoples of other countries victims of a nuclear war.

Today's reality urgently demands that the anti-U.S., antiwar, and antinuclear struggles be staged more vigorously. The reckless maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists to prepare for a nuclear war should be checked resolutely. If the U.S. imperialists continue to advance on the road of adventurous nuclear war running counter to the aspirations of the world's peace-loving people, they will pay dearly.

JAPAN DEFENSE AGENCY DIRECTOR'S COMMENTS DECRIED

[Text] Pyongyang June 13 (KCNA) -- MINJU CHOSON today in a signed commentary hits at the insidious design of the Japanese reactionaries to stage a comeback to Korea. The commentary points to the fact that at a conference with South Korean newsmen, the Defense Agency minister of Japan prattled that Japan "estimated" the "efforts" of the South Korean puppets for "security", babbling that "security" on the Korean peninsula was a matter of "great concern" for Japan.

It says: The utterances of the Japanese military boss fully disclosed the sinister design of the Japanese reactionaries to stretch their claws of aggression deeper into South Korea and stage a comeback to Korea. It is an invariable design of the Japanese reactionaries to restore their old position of colonial dominator in South Korea.

The Defence Agency minister's babbling about the "plan to defend sea routes up to 1,000 miles off Japanese shores" is tantamount to announcing that Japan would seize the "command" of the sea up to 1,000 miles off her shores including Korea and make preparations to quickly move materials in case of war in Korea.

Manipulated by the U.S. imperialists, the Japanese reactionaries zealously encourage and instigate the South Korean puppet clique to confrontation and new war provocation to freeze the division of Korea.

WORLD PEACE COUNCIL ON U.S. WITHDRAWAL FROM SOUTH

[Text] Pyongyang June 18 (KCNA) -- The World Peace Council issued a letter to its member organizations on June 6 on the occasion of the month of anti-U.S. joint struggle, appealing to all the national peace committees of the world to intensify the movement for solidarity with the Korean people.

The letter says: The situation on the Korean peninsula is assuming more grave dimensions each day with the United States further building up arms including nuclear weapons in South Korea. In particular, the "Team Spirit-86" joint military exercise of the United States and South Korea brought the situation there to the extreme pitch of strain.

Such war manoeuvres threaten peace in Asia and the rest of the world, not to speak of that in this area. Peace on the Korean peninsula can be guaranteed only when the U.S. troops withdraw from South Korea with all their lethal weapons including nuclear weapons. The question of the peaceful reunification of Korea must be solved by the Korean people themselves without outside interference.

POLICE 'SUPPRESSION' FOR ASIAN GAMES DEPLORED

[Text] Pyongyang June 15 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today comments on the plan of the Chon Tu-hwan group to host the Asian Games in South Korea by turning it more thoroughly into a pandemonium of police. The author of the commentary says:

The South Korean puppet Home Ministry made public a "100-day plan of the preparatins for Asian Games" under the name of coping with terrorist and criminal groups at home and abroad inluding international terrorist groups, the puppet Seoul Police Bureau launched a "three-stage wholesale roundup for preventing crimes" and the puppet police headquarters adopted a "decision" to mobilize 100,000 plice during the games. The puppets are advertising that all these are "operations" for a success of Asian Games. But this only shows what an unstable and precarious place South Korea is.

On the pretext of the Asian Games, the puppets plan to bolster up the tottering colonial fascist rule by covering South Korea all the more with a forest of bayonets and ruthlessly cracking down upon the anti-U.S., anti-puppet struggle of the students and people of all other sections and their struggle against international sports games, which are gaining momentum as the days go by. Despicable and base is the scheme of the puppets to use international sports games as means of suppression and long-term office. The Chon Tu-hwan group tries to host the Asian Games in South Korea which has turned into a theatre of fascist suppression by bayonets to improve its public image and create an international climate favourable for the "two Koreas" plot. This only invites the derision of the world.

EMERGENCY SECURITY ORDER IN SOUTH DENOUNCED

[NODONG SINMUN 18 June Commentary: "They Are Already Reeking of a Bloody Smell]

[Text] On 16 June, the puppet police headquarters issued a class A emergency security order to the police throughout South Korea. This repressive order was issued under the pretext of the national athletic meeting reported to begin on 20 June. The repressive order calls for the puppet police throughout South Korea to be on a 24-hour emergency duty and, in particular, to further strengthen security at foreigners' facilities, as well as political party buildings.

South Korea is now virtually under a state of martial law without formal promulgation. South Korea, where such numerous repressive orders as wholesale arrests and mass crackdowns have been issued in succession, has never found a quiet atmosphere.

With the issuance of the current class A emergency security order, South Korea has been turned into a more fascist and warlike land of terror. This vividly shows that traitor Chon Tu-hwan has faced an extreme crisis to the extent that he cannot maintain his power even for a moment without restoring to violence and that his dictatorial rule will not last long.

We cannot but ask how such international sports events as the Asian Games or the Olympic Games can be held in South Korea where even a domestic sports event cannot be held without issuing numerous repressive orders as well as the current class A emergency security order. It is no doubt that such an international sports event will be a man-hunting international sports event which will chain numerous people and force them to be victims.

The puppets are already reeking of a bloody smell on the excuse of the Asian Games. For those, who have been thoroughly isolated from the people and who have to establish the repressive nets layer upon layer in all places where the people gather, trying to upgrade their status through the international games is a preposterous act.

The fact that traitor Chon Tu-hwan is more frantically running wild for repression recently is closely related to the fact that his situation today has become more difficult since his last trick to dampen the people's struggle through such a way as deceiving them by clamoring about democracy has been completely laid bare. As has been reported, recently, the Chon Tu-hwan clique has loudly clamored about constitutional revision during its term of office while babbling about great polticial compromise. However, its real intention has been completely laid bare before the world. While talking about constitutional revision based on an agreement of the people the rascals have arrested and detained, at random, those calling for the constitutional revision for a direct presidential election system. Thus, they themselves have laid bare that the constitutional revision they clamored about is not the constitutional revision the people caled for.

The people are calling for the release of the detained persons. However, the puppets are not going to release them while babbling about legal procedures. They are threatening and blackmailing those university professors who issued a joint statement calling for the establishment of a democratic constitution by coming up with a 9-point investigation program. We cannot find from the puppets' acts the slightest degree of the will to revise the Constitution for a direct presidential election system and to enforce democracy.

Therefore, the off-stage opposition forces in South Korea have declared that they will continue their struggle until democratization has been achieved. The South Korean students are waging rallies and demonstrations everyday against the formation of the special National Assembly committee for constitutional revision.

When the dictator's last trick mapped out by his U.S. master faces the strong resistance of the broader masses of people, what situation will he face? This is only too clear. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan has completely bound the South Korean people with the fascist iron chains by constantly perpetrating violence against them and is desperately trying to block the further expansion of the flames of the anti-U.S. and the antifascist struggle. However, it is a foolish act. The dictator's indiscreet fascist outrage will face the stronger resistance of the people.

ANTICOMMUNIST SECURITY ACTIVITIES IN SOUTH SCORED

[Text] Pyongyang June 13 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today lambastes the South Korean puppet Administration for having set June as a "month of free citizens' campaign" to organize "government"-sponsored anti-communist activities under the name of "security." The daily says in a signed commentary: This tells that the puppets plan to run riot, launching a large-scale anti-communist campaign among the South Korean people against our republic.

Twaddling about the June 25 "tragedy" and its "lesson," the puppets try to infuse "security" consciousness into the minds of people. This means that they would conduct all activities against the North. The puppets are now crying that "security" is important as "threat" of the North is imminent. This is a whopping lie. The puppets' "security" ballad is aimed to veil their aggressive moves and invent a pretext for the provocation of war.

The anti-communist confrontation racket in South Korea is based on the crisis of the shaking colonial fascist rule, the commentary notes, and says: The Chon Tu-hwan group is scheming to intensify its suppression of the people, while trying to divert the anti-U.S., anti-fascist fighting spirit of the people to anti-communism by creating the consciousness of crisis in South Korea.

SOUTH INCITES ANTICOMMUNIST WAR FEVER IN YOUTHS

'THREAT OF SOUTHWARD INVASION' RIDICULED

[Text] Pyongyang June 13 (KCNA) -- Although the U.S. imperialists and South Korean puppets are persistently crying about "threat of southward invasion" against the North with the approach of the day when they provoked the war in Korea in the past, in an attempt to justify the U.S. Forces' occupation of South Korea and their aggressive moves, this is in vain. MINJU CHOSON today says this in a signed commentary.

Pointing out that at the plenary session of the puppet National Assembly on June 11 the South Korean puppets brought forward again the punctured argument on "threat of southward invasion," the commentary says: This is nothing but a dastardly trick to make the people believe it by hook or by crook.

In actuality the threat of aggression on the Korean peninsula comes not from the North but from the South. This is proved by the fact that the U.S. imperialists and South Korean puppets frequently staged provocative military exercises to invade the North and perpetrated military provocations violating the Armistice Agreement on more than 15,000 occasions this year alone.

The commentary further says: Seizing the Asian Games and 88 Olympic Games slated in Seoul as a golden chance, the puppet clique schemes to create "two Koreas" and stay on in power indefinitely. But the situation is developing unfavourably to them due to public opinion at home and abroad opposing the holding of the Olympic Games in Seoul and to socio-political circumstances in South Korea, etc. And sincere efforts of the DPRK for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country and her proposal for the cohosting of the Olympic Games are enjoying broad support at home and abroad.

Feeling uneasy about such developments, the Chon Tu-wan group is spreading the fiction of "threat of southward invasion" to impair the international authority of the DPRK and deliver itself from international isolation.

The South Korean puppets are crying about "threat of southward invasion" also to make the situation appear tense and therby divert elsewhere the attention of the South Korean people and harshly crack down on their anti-U.S., anti-"government" struggle by connecting it with the North, says the commentary.

16 JUN CIVIL DEFENSE TRAINING IN SOUTH 'CRIMINAL'

[Text] Pyonghang June 18 (KCNA) -- The Chon Tu-hwan military hooligans on June 16 staged "civilian defense training" simiultaneously in all cities and county-seats and at main work places of sub-country level and traffic centres throughout South Korea, according to a radio report from Seoul.

This frantic military exercise suspended the activities of the population for living for a while and classes at all schools down to primary schools.

The fascist junta continues the criminal "civilian defence training" to whip up a war fever among the people and divert elsewhere the attention of people of all strata who have risen in the anti"government" struggle.

SOUTH HAS DIFFICULTY SECURING FUNDS FOR OLYMPICS

[Text] Pyongyang June 16 (KCNA) -- The South Korean puppets have come up against a huge snag in securing fund for the Olympic Games.

They had planned to cover more than a half of the fund with television coverage fees, estimating them above 600 million dollars.

But, recently, U.S. TV companies notified to the puppets that they would offer no more than 300 million dolllars for reasons of unfavorable conditions of televising the games.

The puppet clique are attempting to fill the gap with taxes. But the chance of this is slim in the face of the opposition of the people of all strata. TON-A ILBO, KYONHYANG SINMUN and other south Korean papers asked: "What's the use of inducing the Olympics which none of the developing countries dare venture?" "Why must the Olympics be sponsored here with foreign debts to the tune of more than 50,000 million dollars?"

FURTHER REACTION TO NORTH'S KPA TALKS PROPOSAL

Defense Ministry Reaction

SK180425 Seoul Domestic Service in Korean 0300 GMT 18 Jun 86

[Text] Today, the Ministry of National Defense said that the letter received yesterday in the name of the minister of the People's Armed Forces of the North Korean puppets does not deserve attention, because its content is for the purpose of seeking stereotyped propaganda to evade responsibility for the suspension of the north-south dialogue. A Defense Ministry official said that the North Korean puppets, in this letter, have proposed the holding of military talks between the ROK defense minister, the commander of the United Nations Command in South Korea, and the minister of the Peoples Armed Forces of the North Korean puppets on the pretext of discussing the questions of halting military exercises by the north and the south, reducing armed forces, and respecting the Armistice Agreement. His reaction was cold in saying that such a proposal of the North Korean pupets deserves no consideration at all.

The official said that the questions of reducing armed forces and halting military exercises mentioned by the North Korean puppets are not mere working-level military questions between the North and the South but questions which should be handled within the framework of politics and diplomacy He stressed that, if the North Korean puppets desire practical progress in the north-south dialogues, they should sincerely utilize the existing channels of the north-south dialogues, and should respond to our proposal for talks between the highest authorities of the north and the south.

The official said that he regards the proposal of the North Korean puppets for military talks between the ROK the United States, and the North Korean puppets as their mere propaganda trick, not as one for practical discussion between the concerned parties of the North and the South. He said that this reveals their lack of independence, because they are trying to turn the national question into an international matter and to violate the principle of settling questions between the concerned parties of the north and the south.

He also noted that the proposal of the North Korean puppets is for the purpose of concealing their ongoing military buildup and of pretending to seek the alleviation of tension. He said that, judging from the past acts of the North Korean puppets, behind this trickery, schemes to seek an excuse for another provocation may be hidden. In this respect, he said that the people's vigilance is necessary. Meanwhile, it hs been learned that the content of our reply to the letter of the North Korean puppets and the official stand of our side will be made public later.

Military Analysts' Views Cited

[By Yi Sang-sok]

[Text] The Ministry of National Defense yesterday made a cool response to North Korean Defense Minister O Chin-u's suggestion for a meeting of the top defense officials of South and North Korea and the commaner of the U.N. Command. "The letter does not deserve any attention because it is simply a repetition of Pyongyang's propaganda against Seoul," a ministry spokesman said.

Military analysts speculate that Pyongyang might have come up with the unprecedented letter apparently believing that it might serve its interests both at home and abroad. First, they say, the leter is aimed at passing the responsibility for the suspension of a series of inter-Korean talks to Seoul by giving the false impression that Pyongyang still wants a dialogue to help ease tensions on the peninsula. They point out that the communist regime has been under increasing pressure form the international community for unilaterally suspending the economic, Red Cross and parliamentary talks with the South in the wake of the annual ROK-U.S. military training exercise, Team Spirit 86.

Second, Pyongyang is trying to improve its image abroad, especially among the nonaligned nations, the observers say. They note that the annual summit meeting of nonaligned countries will get under way from Aug. 26 through Sept. 7 in Zimbabwe. An international conference on the so-called nuclear-free Korea is also slated for Pyongyang Sept. 6-8, they say.

With the two major international gatherings in mind, Pyongyang seems to be desperately trying to garner international support by asserting that the presence of U.S. troops in Korea and the annual Team Spirit exercise are the major obstacles to the easing of tensions on the peninsula. At the same time, the North Korean proposal for a three-way military talk is aimed at driving a wedge into relations between Seoul and Washington.

Analysts believe it likely that Pyongyang will take the most advantage of the anti-U.S. and antinuclear sentiments among some Korean youths, if the proposed meeting takes place.

As to the matters regarding an end to the Team Spirit exercise and arms reduction, they say, such measures are not suitable for discussion by military officials. "Those matters are very sensitive so they must be taken up by political and diplomatic channels," an analyst says.

He says that North Korea must respond positively to a four-point proposal put forth by the U.N. Command to help ease military tensions on peninsula. The proposal, presented by the UNC during the Military Armistice Commission (MAC) meetings, calls for the "demilitarization" of the Demilitarized Zone and mutual notification of major military exercises.

Two others are mutual invitation of military observers to major military exercises to be held on both sides and the investigation into incidents involving both sides by a joint investigation team with the participation of members of the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission.

All in all, observers say, Pyongyang made in clear that it is not serious in holding the high-level military meeting it has proposed. They note that North Korea made public the content of O's letter through two radio networks at 3 p.m. Tuesday, only three hours after it relayed the letter to the southern side. The radio broadcasts alleged that they proposed the three-way military talk in order to avert a "northward" invasion by South Korean and U.S. forces. They also accused the combined forces for rapidly preparing for a war against them, while describing the Team Spirit exercise as "a war exercise."

Military observers also warn that North Korea may try to find an excuse for an armed provocation against the South, in case Seoul does not accept the sugar-coated proposal.

THE KOREA TIMES Report

[Text] Defense Minister Yi Ki-paek received an "unprecedented" letter from his North Korean counterpart, O Chin-u, yesterday, the Defense Ministry announced. Ministry officials said that the letter, sent through Panmunjom, was picked up by the South Korean officials at the truce village at noon. It was the first time that a North Korean defense minister dispatched such a mesage to his South Korean counterpart since the division of the Korean peninsula four decades ago. The contents of the letter have yet to be announced by the authorities. The officials said that pertinent authorities are closely examining the contents of the letter.

The letter was sent after North Korea broke off all dialogue with South Korea six months ago in protest against the annual joint Korea-U.S. joint military maneuvers in the South of Korean peninsula. Those who have thus far received letters from their North Korean counterparts include the National Assembly speaker and the president of the Korean National Red Cross. All the messages were in connection with the inter-Korean talks.

The long-deadlocked south-north talks resumed, following the positive policy taken by Seoul in accepting North Korea's offer of relief goods to victims of flooding in the South, in September 1984. Unfortunately, the inter-Korean talks were suspended again because of the unilateral boycott by the North Korean Communists, using the annual ROK-U.S. joint and combined training exercise Team Spirit '86 as an excuse.

In May and August of 1985, Red Cross delegations of South and North Korea exchanged visits to Pyongyang and Seoul. In addition, the first exchanges of visits between members of separated families and performing troupes were also realized during that time.

Security experts, however, recently pointed out the fact that North Korea had launched an active peace offensive right before invading the South on June 25, 1950, warning that any excessive expectations or optimism should be avoided. They also noted that the North Koreans had dug underground tunnels for infiltration into the South while the south-north Red Cross talks were under way in the 1970s.

PRC FISHERMEN RESCUED; ASYLUM REQUEST REPORTED

AFP Report

[Text] Seoul, June 17 (AFP) -- South Korean authorities rescued 19 Chinese fishermen found adrift in a small wooden boat in the Yellow Sea off the west coast of Susan Monday night, reliable sources said Tuesday. The authorities refused to comment on reports that the Chinese fishermen were seeking political asylum in Taiwan, although they said they were now being questioned.

Last September, two Chinese fishermen reached the South Korean shore aboard a small rubber raft, asking to be sent to Taiwan, but Korean authorities rejected their request and sent them back to the Yellow Sea in hopes that they would return to mainland China.

The two men drifted southward, however, to South Korea's Cheju Island and, following intervention by the nationalist Chinese Embassy in Seoul, they were allowed to be picked up by a Taiwan freighter to be sent to Taiwan.

YONHAP Report

[Text] Inchon, South Korea, June 18 (YONHAP) -- A crew of 19 Chinese who were aboard a small boat found drifting off the west coast of Korea Tuesday were transferred here from Sosan County, some 150 kilometers south of here, early Wednesday morning for investigation.

The crew members arrived in Inchon, a port city 29 kilometers west of Seoul, by bus, according to maritime police.

The police said that the 19 crew members embarked on their voyage from Shantung Peninusla aboard a wooden powerboat weighing four to five tons around 4 p.m. on Sunday.

A maritime police patrol sighted the Chinese ship six miles off the coast of Sosan County, at 9:50 p.m. Monday, and it was led ashore at 3:00 a.m. the next day, according to the police.

The vessel, an obsolete model, had a damaged bow, and is now under repair at Sosan. When the repair work is complete, the boat will be towed to Seoul.

Sixteen of the 19 crew members are from Guangdong Province, and the rest are from Guangxi autonomous district. The crew members comprise 11 technicians, four engineers, two medical personnel, one cook and one public official, police said.

FISHING ZONE READJUSTED AFTER JAPAN DECLARATION

SK180117 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 18 Jun 86 pp 1, 2

[Text] Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs Yi Sang-ok said yesterday that a need for a comprehensive readjustment of Korea's fishing zone is emerging following Japan's declaration of its 200-mile fishing zone.

Yi said the government is studying possible options for Japan's declaration by considering relations with neighboring countries. He was responding to lawmakers' questions in the National Assembly Foreign Affairs Committee. The committee was one of the 13 committees that were convened on the first day of a six-day committee session.

The vice minister said the envisaged readjustment of fishing zones is needed to establish fishing order between Korea and Japan and to develop the continental shelf.

Should Korea and Japan declare their own 200-mile fishing zones, it might trigger controversy between the two countries, he said.

The vice minister said North Korea is expected to obstruct the 1988 Seoul Olympics by taking advantage of the eighth nonaligned summit scheduled to start in Harare, Zimbabwe Aug. 26.

Pyongyang is likely to strive for the adoption of a statement at the summit that includes a clause that reflects its own position on the Korean peninsula, he said. The government, he said, will try to discourage the nonaligned summit from discussing the Korean question.

During the ongoing six-day committee session period, rival parties are expected to wrangle over the projected formation of a special constitutional committee. The issue involving the alleged political detainees is also expected to dominate discussions at committee sessions.

The two issues are closely interrelated, as the opposition party demands the release of all the detainees as a precondition for the formation of the special committee.

Political observers said they do not expect committee sessions to hit major snags because the Democratic Justice and the New Korea Democratic parties do not plan to connect the issues with the operation of committee sessions.

The committees are scheduled to resume hot debates on major outstanding issues including the proposed constitutional reform. During a six-day plenary interpellation session that ended Monday, the Political parties dealt intensively with those issues.

The three major parties -- DJP, NKDP and the Korea National Party -- are planning to handle those issues at committee sessions in an in-depth manner. Among key outstanding issues are the contents of the envisaged constitutional revision, the formation of a constitutional committee, amnesty and restoration of civil rights for Kim Tae-chung, the release of political detainees and campus unrest.

The establishment of the ad hoc constitutional committee is certain to trigger controversy between rival parties at the Steering Committee. The three major parties agreed late last month to set up the committee during the current special Assembly session.

The opposition's demand for the liberation of political detainees is the main roadblock to the establishment of the committee, which will draw up a compromise constitutional reform bill.

The ruling DJP and the main opposition NKDP sharply disagree over the division of the membership of the special committee.

The ruling party insists the membership be divided among political parties in proportion to their representation in the Assembly. The opposition party asserts the membership should be split equally between rival parties.

A heated controversy is in store for the Legislative-Judiciary Committee, which is scheduled to resume debates on the opposition's call for a release of political detainees and amnesty and restoration of civil rights for Kim. He is now under a suspended 20-year prison term for sedition originating from the 1980 Kwangju incident.

In testimony before the Legislative-judiciary Committee, Yi Yang-u, director of the Office of Legislation, said the presidential Research Commission on Constitutional Government is nothing but an advisory organ. The commission will cease to function when it completes serving as an advisory organ, Yi said.

DISAPPROVAL OF JAPANESE FINGERPRINTING VOICED

Urged To Abolish Practice

[Editorial: "Fingerprinting in Japan"]

[Text] One internationally disputed controversy gripping Japan for years now concerns the practice of requiring foreigners residing there to be regularly fingerprinted for alien registration -- and, at that, at frequent intervals.

The system has faced vociferous opposition movements by foreigners and Japanese as well, to the extent that those staged last year were rated the largest civil disobedience drives in Japan since student rallies in the 1960s.

In May last year, the Japanese government revised the relevant law, but it turned out to be all but cosmetic, failing to subdue the repercussion. The issue has also developed into a diplomatic row, particularly with Korea demanding the repeal of the discriminative system in the interest of Korean residents there, who occupy a dominant portion of the foreigners living in Japan.

The controversy flared up again in recent days -- this time, over a Japanese government move to deport a Korean poet studying at a Tokyo university on account of his refusal to be fingerprinted for renewal of his alien registration.

What makes the latest case acute is the prospect that, if deported, he will become the first foreigner expelled from the country in connection with the fingerprinting dispute, along with the fact that dozens of prominent international writers, church leaders and human rights activists have appealed to the Tokyo government not to force him out.

A crucial point at issue regarding the system is its nature of grossly discriminating against foreigners in Japanese society, where those fingerprinted are regarded as potential, if not actual, criminals.

In this regard, it must be noted that most of the Korean residents in Japan are those who were forcibly taken to the country during World War II for hard labor, and their descendants.

Such an unfortunate background makes the fingerprinting requirement all the more disgusting and unpalatable for the Koreans in Japan and their compatriots at home. Besides Koreans, there are a number of other foreigners, including Americans and Europeans, among more than 11,000 persons who have refused to be fingerprinted.

Also notable is the reported admission by Tokyo government officials that Japan is the only country that requires regular fingerprinting of foreigners, a sorry fact that has prompted about 800 local autonomy councils across the island country to pass resolutions urging the abolition of the system.

In view of the outstanding opposition waged by both Japanese and foreigners, the Tokyo government is called upon to take immediate remedial steps and eventually to do away with the disputed device undermining international amity.

Foreign Ministry Request

SK190213 Seoul YONHAP in English 0158 GMT 19 Jun 86

[Text] Seoul, June 19 (YONHAP) -- The South Korean Foreign Ministry Wednesday asked the Japanese Government to reconsider, from a humanitarian point of view, its decision to deport a South Korean poet who has refused to be fingerprinted, ministry officials said Thursday.

According to the officials, the ministry made the request to the Japanese Government through Yoshihisa Ara, Japanese minister [as received] in Korea.

The Japanese Justice Ministry has informed Kim Myong-sik, a Korean poet studying at Tokyo's International Christian University, that his residence permit will not be renewed unless he submits to fingerprinting by Thursday.

Under Japan's controversial alien registration law, all foreign residents, including Koreans who were born in the country, must be fingerprinted and carry resident's certificates with them at all times.

The Korean Foreign Ministry pointed out that Kim's refusal to be fingerprinted is in tune with the demand being made by Korean residents in Japan that the Japanese Government improve or eliminate the fingerprinting system.

It also expressed the view, via the Korean Embassy in Tokyo, that the extreme measure of deporting Kim would not be advantageous to the promotion of Korean-Japanese relations.

DISTORTIONS FOUND IN JAPANESE TEXTBOOKS

[Text] The Ministry of Education said yesterday that distorted historical facts on Korea in the revised Japanese high school history book totaled 13.

The ministry also said the Japanese history book does not mention a word on the Japanese colonialists who forcibly recruited Koreans for labor, forced Koreans to change their names into Japanese names, pressed Koreans to worship before Shinto shrines and exploited Korean farmland.

The history book justified the annexation of Korea in 1910 by saying the relations between Korea and Japan were aggravated following the assassination by An Chung-kun of Hirobumi Ito, governor general of the Japanese colonial government in Korea, in 1909. The book describes An, viewed as a patriot by Koreans, as a libertine, the ministry said.

BOU THANG MESSAGE TO COMBATANTS ON ARMY DAY

BK180754 Phnom Penh SPK in French 0445 GMT 18 Jun 86

[Text] Phnom Penh, 18 Jun (SPK) -- Bou Thang, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers, and defense minister, today sends warm congratulations to combatants of the KPRAF on the occasion of the traditional army day and army-people solidarity day (19 June).

In the message, Minister Bou Thang says:

"This year, we are celebrating the 35th traditional day of the KPRAF, which is also army-people soldarity day, at a time when our revolution is further consolidated in its position of strength, particularly after the victories of the 1984-85 dry season scored along the Cambodian-Thai border and inside the country.

"During the past 35 years, Bou Thang continues, the KPRAF have shown the value of the good traditions of the Issarak army. With genuine Marxist-Leninist light, the KPRP has led the KPRAF -- spearhead of the Cambodian proletarian class -- in the victorious struggle. The KPRAF have also grown in quantity and quality. Strengthened by the militant solidarity of the three Indochinese countries and their armed forces, the Cambodian people and their armed forces have thwarted French colonialism and U.S. aggressor imperialism and toppled the Pol Pot-Ieng SAry-Khieu Samphan genocidal clique, ignoble lackeys of Chinese expansionism, and thus recovered the fatherland's freedom and independence.

"The grandiose military victories of the 1984-85 dry season scored by the Cambodian people and their armed forces have caused a change of strategic significance in the process of our revolution: The Cambodian revolution continues to consolidate its position of strength, while the enemies grow weaker and weaker daily and their complete disintegration is only a question of time.

"Yet, Thai ultrarightist circles, Chinese hegemonists, U.S. imperialists, and other reactionary forces have always sought by every means to falsify the real situation in Cambodia with the aim of hindering the advance of our revolution. During the past almost 8 years, the Cambodian people and their armed forces, shouldered by the people's army of Vietnam, have thwarted the strategic maneuvers of all stripes of enemies and are continuing to hold firm in border areas to effectively ensure security and public order.

"On the same occasion, I wish to express my profound gratitude to the volunteers of the Vietnamese Army who have made many sacrifices in the spirit of proletarian internationalism for the cause of the Cambodian revolution.

"I am firmly convinced that, with their high sense of responsibility, the KPRAF will further heighten their fighting spirit and will always be ready to fight for the defense and construction of our Angkor fatherland."

REACTION TO THAI ALLEGATIONS ON 'INTRUSION'

Thai Ambassador Summoned

BK190929 Vientiane KPL in English 0859 GMT 19 Jun 86

["Protest to Thai Allegation" -- KPL headline; quotation marks as received]

[Text] Vientiane, June 19 (OANA-KPL) -- Souban Salitthilat, deputy-minister of foreign affaires, on June 18 Summoned Chaiya Chindawong, Thai ambassador to Laos to inform him on the Lao Government's stance on June 14 event in Huai Pong village, Chiang Kham District, Thai Phayao Province.

Soubon Salitthilat said that the Lao Government regrets to hear the allegations made by Thai newspapers and an official interview of the Thai Government on the so-called "The intrusion of Lao army in which refugee camp in the mentioned village was attacked.

The Lao official refuted the Thai claim and said the allegation was groundless. The reverse is true because since the founding of the Lao PDR, Laos has become subject of Thai terrorist activities."

The Lao deputy foreign minister, in addition pointed out facts related to Thai violations of Lao territory especially the case of Thai troops' armed attack and occupation of three Lao hamlets in Sayaboury Province two years ago. Here, Souban raised the incongruity of the matter: Why should Laos sees the need of sending troops to such thing while it has for some time suggested to have meetings between the two countries' foreign ministry officials. [sentence as received]

"The allegation can only be seen to create new tension along Lao-Thai border. It serves to divert Thai public from the present political and economical hardship. Consequently, he said the Lao Foreign Ministry has categorically rejects the Thai allegation and Thailand has to bear all the consequences that might result from the tension along the border caused by the allegation.

PASASON on Thai 'Tricks'

BK190752 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0500 GMT 19 Jun 86

[PASASON 19 June commentary: "The Tricks of the Thai Ultrarightist Reactionaries Will Be Turned on Them as in the Past"]

[Text] While remaining indifferent to the Lao side's reasonable proposal aimed at consolidating and normalizing relations between Laos and Thailand, which was reiterated early this month on the occasion of the second anniversary of the nibbling attacks launched by the Thai ultrarightist reactionary forces against the three Lao villages in Paklai District of Sayaboury Province, the Thai ultrarightist reactionaries have lately intensified their systematic slander campaigns against Laos by accusing Lao soldiers of slaughtering 35 Lao nationals living in a Thai village. They arrogantly declared that Thailand would send a protest note on the incident to the United Nations.

The incident took place 1 week after a visit to Beijing by Asa Sarasin, permanent secretary of state for foreign affairs, as a representative of Thailand's Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila who was tied up in settling the internal rifts within his Social Action Party and in carrying out an election campaign at home.

The NATION newspaper of Thailand on 29 May reported that the visit to the PRC by the delegation of the Thai Foreign Ministry was fruitful, for China pledged to render cooperation to Thailand in supporting the geneocidal Pol Pot clique and other Cambodian reactionary groups. The newspaper went on to say that Thailand and China pledged to strengthen close relations in the political and other fields. The reassurance of its dark desire by the Beijing reactionary clique has further strengthened the confidence of the ultrarightist reactionaries in the Thai ruling circles in following a path of pan-Thaiism by committing provocations against the neighboring countries. For instance, on 3 June, they accused Laos of sending forces to attack Thai troops at (Nam Huam) inside Thai territory. Earlier, on 31 May, they had accused Lao soldiers of destroying a school in Ban Keng Muang village, Thali District. On 17 June, they accused Lao soldiers of attacking and burning down Houai Khoun village located some 5 km inside Thailand. Of late, they accuse the Lao troops of attacking Huai Pong village in Thailand and killing a number of Lao refugees. However, some local Thai officials of those vilages reaffirm that each of these incidents was created by Thai nationals themselves over certain internal rivalry problems. The same is true with the burning down of the school at Ban Keng Muang and the Ban Huai Pong village incident.

The facts related to these incidents clearly reflect the truth that the ultrarightist reactionaries in the Thai ruling circles create sensational incidents with a view to making accusations against Laos in various forms, including accusing the Lao side of killing Lao refugees. Nevertheless, such slanderous accusations will never be able to deceive anyone. This is because in the past Lao autahorities have willingly held ceremonies on several occasions to welcome back Lao refugees from Thailand. The Lao side has never harassed the Thai people nor attacked and killed Lao refugees in Thailand. Because of this fact, the allegations made by Thailand against Laos can be seen only as another sinister scheme of the ultrarightist reactionaries in the Thai ruling circles, aimed at diverting the attention of the Thai people from the power struggle among the ruling circles, in which even dismissals from duty have been carried out among them. On 16 June, the Voice of America radio reported that Roengwit Roengprasoetwit, 29-year old Thai politician who was running for next month's general elections under the banner of the Democrat Party [as heard], was assasinated in northern Thailand. At the same time, the slanderous campaign against Laos can also be used as a pretext to commit provocations and aggression against Laos in accordance with the pan-Thaiist scheme under the instruction of the Beijing clique, as in the case of the attack on the three Lao villages in 1984. Everyone must remember that the 1984 incident at the three Lao villages in Paklai District occurred after the visit to Beijing by Athit Kamlang-ek, Thai military supreme commander and then army commander in chief, and after a slanderous campaign was carried out to accuse the Lao side of attacking and nibbling at Thai territory so as to justify the attack against and occupation of the three Lao villages by Thai forces on 6 June 1984.

Nevertheless, it should be noted that the situation in 1986 is much different from that in 1984. This is because 1986 is the international year of peace. The Lao people, like the Thai people, strongly aspire to live in peace so that they will be able to strengthen and normalize the Thai-Lao relations of good neighborliness in accordance with the 1979 joint Lao-Thai communiques.

If the Thai ultrarightist reactionaries still remain too stubborn to learn from past lessons and continue to follow in the footsteps of the Beijing reactionary clique by persisting in implementing the pan-Thaiist doctrine against the neighboring countries, especially Laos, as they have in the past, they will certainly be duly and more shamefully punished.

WEEKLY SAYS PRC ARMY REFORMS FOR EXPANSION

[Text] Hanoi, June 18 (AFP) -- China is bent on forging an "army of conquest" with its current military reforms, an official magazine said here. The drive is aimed at "reshaping the army in such a way that it will be capable of achieving (Beijing's) political and strategic ambitions, including military expansion into neighboring states," said the latest issue of "VIETNAM WEEKLY".

The People's Liberation Army (PLA) was no longer a revoluntionary army centered on national defense but simply a "strong conventional army of several million men armed with the equipment, doctrines and modern organization of the hardened expeditionary corps of Western countries," said the magazine which is published by the VIETNAM NEWS AGENCY. This was a "dangerous" development, the magazine said, predicting that the PLA would one day bring "terrible catastrophes" to the countries of Southeast Asia.

The reshaping of the Chinese military also was aimed at purging from the ranks all opponents of the politics of current paramount leader, Deng Xiaoping, the magazine said. The move reflected a "fierce battle" raging between supporters and opponents of current policies and pointed to a weakness at the top, the magazine maintained, adding that there was no one leader capable of rallying the entire PLA behind him. China has announced plans to demobilize one million of an estimated 4.2-million PLA soldiers by the end of this year.

CHILDREN'S GROUPS CONDEMN PRC SHELLING OF SCHOOL

[Text] Hanoi VNA June 17 - "Chinese troops' barbarous artillery shelling of children's summer camp in Quan Ba District, Ha Tuyen Province, on June 1 is in contempt of international laws, morality and conscience of humankind". This comes in a statement released here today by the Vietnam commission for Young Pioneers and children condemning the Chinese troops' artillery shelling of the children of the Quyet Tien General School during their camp on the International Children's Day. The shelling killed two pupils and wounded five others. The statement holds the Chinese authorities fully responsible for their crimes against the Vietnamese children.

The statement demands that the Chinese ruling circle carry out international laws, ensuring the fundamental rights of the Vietnamese children so as they can, together with their friends in the world, enjoy their life in peace and happiness.

NATIONAL LEADERS INTERVIEWED ON RECENT PAST

AU171524 [Editorial Report] Prague Television Service in Czech at 1545 GMT on 13 June carries the 35-minute fifth and final installments of a documentary by Czechoslovak television reporter Antonin Kubes entitled "Vietnam 40 Years." It contains recorded interviews of approximately 1 minute each with four Vietnamese leaders: Colonel General Dam Guang Trung, chief of staff of the first military region, Army General Van Tieng Dung, SRV national defense minister, Nguyen Co Thach, SRV foreign minister and Pham Van Dong, chairman of the SRV Council of Ministers. The interviews are recorded in Vietnamese and fade into Czech translation; the dates and places are not specified.

In his interview, Colonel General Dam Quang Trung says; "I say frankly that I graduated from the military academy in China. I also have many friends in China. My parents are buried on Chinese territory, about 1 kilometer from the border. But I have always emphasized that everybody as the right to defend his fatherland. And my fatherland is Vietnam. The Chinese attack in 1979 was a great personal disappointment for me. But it was with all the greater feeling that I participated in repelling it. I worked out the current plan for the defense of our northern border. Relations with China are not good now. But I fully agree with what our supreme representatives say and what our citizens are thinking. That is, that it is necessary to restore normal relations, that hostility does not benefit either country, that good cooperation between the people of both countries is necessary."

Army General Van Tieng Dung, SRV national defense minister, says in his interview with Kubes: "Special relations exist between Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. This is a long time and solid alliance based on similar historical development, which began with the French colonization. It is an alliance that developed among these three Indochinese countries and gained strength in half a century, when we suffered and fought together, when we won victories together and decided in favor of the socialist road. Our Army fought in Cambodia and Laos even earlier for the independence and freedom of these countries, but the same time also for the independence and freedom of Vietnam. Because in Indochina the independence of one country cannot be separated from the independence of the second or third country. This is a manifestation of the solidarity which is being strengthened even today when, together with the fraternal armies of Laos and Cambodia, we are defending the social system and freedom of our countries. As a result of the fact that each country mutually respects the independence of the other our strategic alliance is of long standing."

Foreign Minister Ngyuen Co Thach tells Antonin Kubes: "The special relations between Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia resulted from a common threat, the attack of imperialist and reactionary forces against the Indochinese countries. People in the outside world well know that in the past 40 years Vietnam bore the brunt of the imperialist wars and aggressions against the national liberation movements. The victory at Dien Bien Phu contributed to the downfall of world colonialism. It was also in the sixties and seventies that Vietnam refuted the legend of the military invincibility of the United States. Forty years ago hardly anybody knew anything about our country, but now names such as Vietnam, Dien Bien Phu, or the name of Ho Chi Minh have become familiar concepts and have found a home in people's hearts all over the world. In the 40 years that have elapsed since the end of World War II, Vietnam is the only country where war has never stopped throughout all that time. That is why we value peace so highly. Our foreign policy strives for friendship and peace. We very much appreciate the sympathy shown to us by the world public in the past and also at present."

Pham Van Dong, chairman of the SRV Council of Ministers, says in his interview: "The past 40 years only constitute one single percent of the Vietnamese people's history. But it is perhaps the richest period, connected with Ho Chi Minh's name. It is an epoch which led the Vietnamese people from obscurity into the light, a period in which the struggle for national independence was linked with the struggle for socialism. I would like first of all to stress the successes which we have achieved in the past 10 years, because these 10 years are a period of courageous and stubborn struggle for the actual unification of the country, for healing the wounds caused by the war, a period of embarking on the building of socialism. For the first time in history the people became the real masters of their own destinies. For the first time they were able to devote all their minds and hearts to the building of a new life. It also is a period of building the material-technical base of the economy. Significant progress has been achieved in many fields, particularly in the output of cereals. We achieved tangible results in culture and the health system. The living standard is gradually improving, particularly in the countryside. National defense and security have been ensured.

The past 40 years are also a period of firm linkage of the Vietnamese revolution with the progressive movement in the world. Our victory is a victory of the incessant and extensive international support which we have receive from all over the world. It also is a victory of the support and solidarity of the international communist and workers movement, of the national liberation movement, the Nonaligned countries' movement and of the support of the working people in the capitalist states, including the French and American people. The Vietnamese will always recall this great and generous international solidarity and aid and will appreciate it. We have actively joined the life of the socialist community and we are attaching great significance to our participation in the joint CEMA programs. It must be said frankly that we have achieved our main successes in the past 40 years thanks to the effective assistance of the Soviet Union, the CSSR, and of other countries of the socialist community."

PARTY RIFTS, CABINET RESHUFFLE SCENARIOS CITED

[By Laurent Maillard]

[Text] Hanoi, June 18 (AFP) -- A major cabinet reshuffle could be in the works at the end of the next Vietnamese National Assembly session, which is expected to be held in Hanoi next week, sources here said Wednesday. They said the reshuffle would be the first concrete result of the Communist Party Central Committee plenum held from May 19-June 6.

The capital has been abuzz with contradictory rumors on the extent of the reshuffle in the face of a news blackout the authorities imposed on the plenum proceedings and their results. But reports filtering out from the sessions point to the likelihood that the discussions focused on personnel questions and the selection of new leaders for the government and party. Some participants said the debate was unusually frank and open.

Beyond this, even generally reliable sources differ on what the future political landscape will be. The various rumours appear to boil down to two main possibilities. The first is that the pragmatists within the ruling circle, who favour acceleration of the current economic reforms and greater opening to the outside world, gained the upper hand during the plenum.

This would mean a reshuffle of the main portfolios, starting with the popular and respected prime minister, Pham Van Dong, 80, who has said often in recent months that he would like to step down because of his age and health.

Sources close to the pragmatists mention General Vo Nguyen Giap most often as the possible successor to Mr. Dong. Gen Giap, 74, who led the Vietnamese to victory over the French at Dien Bien Phu in 1954, was sidelined from power in 1982 but is still seen as Vietnam's most popular man. A victory for the pragmatists at the plenum would also likely mean an end to the power of Le Duan, the 79-year-old party chief who has been ailing and largely discredited within the communist ranks, sources said.

Generally reliable sources said the plenum had decided to set up a "Party Management Committee" under the party's number two, State Council President Truong Chinh. The committee would take charge until the sixth party congress, scheduled for the end of the year, could name new leaders.

A second hypothesis, also circulated by reliable sources and supported by communist country diplomats here, holds that the Central Committee was bogged down by dissension at the end of its mandate. The plenum, according to this scenario, was unable to agree on anything other than the maintenance of the status quo and postponed any decision on new leaders or policies until after the congress. The hypothesis does not rule out moves to press the current reforms, nor the increasing influence of the pragmatists. But it would put the damper on any expectations of a quick transition as mentioned by senior leaders in recent months.

This version would appear to be backed up by the final communique issued by the plenum and the rare press reports on the sessions which indicated that no fundamental decisions had been taken on Vietnam's economic crisis. The Central Committee merely reaffirmed its support for the reforms lauched last year and wrote off the current difficulties to "problems of implementation" of the party's directives.

The second scenario would probably mean a less sweeping cabinet shuffle next week and the likelihood that Mr. Le Duan, Mr. Chinh and Mr. Dong would stay in power beyond the congress. Whichever hypolthesis proves correct, sources said, there is a little doubt that the pragmatists within the party continue to meet major resistance from conservatives. Observers did not rule out the possibility that a middle solution might be found that would avoid an internal crisis within the party, which has traditionally operated on consensus.

AQUINO WELCOMES HELP OF PBPS IN ECONOMIC RECOVERY

[By Catalino F. Makabenta]

[Text] The country is back in business.

Thus declared President Aquino yesterday as she welcomed back the helping hand of private enterprise in the task of nation-building.

"With your continued support, we know that we can and shall be viable" the President said in a speech highlighting the annual membership meeting of Philippine Business for Social Progress [PBSP] at Malacanang's Kalayaan Hall.

The President said it was reassuring that the PBSP, which she called a group of "smart businessmen," was squarely behind the country's economic recovery program.

"With business joining us in the task of reconstruction, the combined effort will be invested with the efficiency, pragmatism and energy that are the hallmarks of private enterprise," the President said.

She noted that PBSP's five-year work program from 1986 to 1991 has been set along parallel lines with the government's agricultural development program designed to alleviate the poverty of about 37.8 million Filipinos living in the countryside.

"Because a percentage of your profits are regularly and voluntarily set aside for your socio-economic programs, I know your commitment to a better future for the country and a better life for the Filipinos goes far beyond mere posturing and words," the President said.

The PBSP, a private social development foundation organized and supported by the Philippine business sector, has decided to regionalize its development efforts to benefit specific poverty groups in priority provinces.

Among other things, the foundation and its member companies have donated P2.073 million to launch the "Tubigan ng Bayan," [Water in the Villages] a project for the installation and development of communal potable water systems in poor rural communities not covered by the government's water program in the countryside.

The P2 million donation will finance the purchase and installation of some 250 village handpumps in five pilot provinces, including Negros Occidental and Camarines Sur. The program will eventually cover all baranggay in the country.

Rizalino S. Navarro and Bienvenido A. Tan Jr., PBSP chairman and president, respectively told the President that the group has assisted 23 potable water supply projects in various rural communities since 1978.

The President lauded the PBSP approach of giving immediate attention to pressing problems, saying that while long-term programs providing a total solution far into the future were desirable, there can be "no delay in conscience for the solution of urgent problems."

LAUREL DESCRIBES TRIP AS 'COMPLETELY SUCCESSFUL'

BK190309 Manila PNA in English 0254 GMT 19 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 19 (PNA) -- China has pledged to help the Philippines overcome its economic crisis, Vice President and Foreign Minister Salvador Laurel said Wednesday. Laurel returned home following a three-day official trip to Beijing on invitation of the Chinese Government.

I would sum up my trip to China as completely successful, Laurel told reporters. He said he talked with top government officials of China, including Chairman Deng Xiaoping, on wide-ranging subjects ranging from economic to incurgency problems here. He said China has agreed to increase trade with the Philippines by importing local products and providing credit loans.

China also made it clear that it has nothing to do with the activities of the Communist Party of the Philippines, citing its policy of non-interference in the country's internal affairs, Laurel said. Laurel said he and the Chinese officials also agreed to expand cultural exchange problems. He was met at the airport by Chinese Ambassador to the Philippines Chen Songlu and other Chinese Embassy officials.

MINISTER ASSURES RELEASE OF POLITICAL PRISONERS

[Text] Justice Minister Neptali A. Gonzales assured yesterday the release of all political prisoners as he ironed out "the bureaucratic impediments in the process of releasing detainees."

The Task Force Detainees of the Philippines claimed there are still about 600 political prisoners held in various jails in the country. During the seminar on services for political detainees conducted yesterday by the Board of Pardons and Parole (BPP), Gonzales issued the following directives:

1. Assumption of jurisdiction by the BPP over detainees whose cases are still pending final determination in higher courts or review boards, particularly those who served the minimum sentence imposed by law.

2. Coordination with the Ministry of National Defense (MND) in reviewing the guidelines set for the release of political prisoners.

3. Collaboration with the MND in ferreting out genuine political prisoners.

4. Review of all cases tried by military commissions.

At the same time, Gonzales proposed that the BPP be given authority to grant temporary release to political prisoners who have served the minimum penalty imposed by law pending final adjudication of their cases by reviewing authority.

Gonzales said "the arrest and detention of political prisoners or the so-called prisoners of conscience is a dark blot in our history as a people and it will continue to sear our national conscience until the last of them is ultimately released."

He added that "each day that passes will constitute a serious indictment on our sense of fairness, our commitment to freedom and human rights and the criminal justice system."

Meanwhile, the Ministry of Justice, through Deputy Minister Silvestre Bello III, has recommended executive clemency for 13 convicted political prisoners. Recommended for absolute pardon were Alexander Albofera, Jesus Aviso, Romeo Lawian, Andres Manglallan, Andres Ganigan, Mike Randa, Liling Radia and Carlos Yari, all detained at New Bilibid Prison Annex Bldg., Fort Bonifacio, Makati; Roy Gomez, William Subista, Gabriel Salonga, Nestor Luntayao and Oscar Santiago, all detained in Muntinlupa.

Recommended for further study were the cases of Silver Basilio who is in Ilocos Norte Provincial Jail; Pedro Maca in Fort Bonifacio; Rally Anquillano in Muntinlupa; Rogelio Gutierrez in Palawan; and Florentino Maravilla, Bienvinido Miravilla and Florendo Maravilla, and Florendo Maravilla, and detained in Sablayan Penal Colony, Mindoro.

NEW MANDATE FOR AQUINO, LAUREL URGED

HK180925 Manila THE NEW PHILIPPINE DAILY EXPRESS in English 17 Jun 86 pp 1, 7

[By Melchor Parale]

[Text] The opposition in the Constitutional Commission [Con-Com] sought yesterday the holding of a separate plebiscite for the new Constitution's transitory provisions, which are expected to propose a six-year term for both President Aquino and Vice President Salvador Laurel.

Former Labor Minister Blas F. Ople, minority leader in the charter assembly, said at the Kapihan sa Manila [Manila Coffeeshop] that his group has drawn up a proposed covering resolution for filing with the commission.

Ople said that the proposal will encounter rough sailing in the assembly because of the numerical superiority of administration-backed representatives. "We will pursue it just the same because it will be the real test for the assembly's independence," Ople said.

Ople's group has been batting for the submission of Mrs. Aquino and Laurel to a new people's mandate because they were brought to power by the people's revolution and their present term should thus coincide with the revolutionary government. Approval of the new charter being framed would complete the transition from provisional to constitutional government, and, subsequently, end the revolutionary nature of government.

Ople said that failure to hold a separate plebiscite for the transitory provisions would endanger the entire new Constitution. "There is no doubt that the Con-Com can come up with a good Constitution and rejection by the people merely because they do not subscribe to the transitory provisions could be fatal," Ople said.

Con-Com member Joaquin Bernas disagreed abut the prospects of the charter being rejected. He said only one Constitution was ever rejected by the electorate in world history, referring to the fourth draft constitution of the First French Republic which was rejected in a plebiscite.

Bernas also challenged detractors to cite any law prohibiting members of the clergy to exercise their political rights, saying that "their presence (in the Con-Com) may not be necessary but it is good."

Former Sen Francisco "Soc" Rodrigo, also a Con-Com member, rejected proposals that the Aquino government should resign if the new charter is voted down by the electorate. "If the new charter is turned down (in the plebiscite), it is not President Aquino but the Con-Com that is spurned and the Con-Com after that had no business convening again to write another draft," Rodrigo said. He explained that the government will have to continue functioning under the Freedom Constitution if the Con-Com-drafted charter loses in the plebiscite.

ISSUE OF U.S. NUCLEAR WEAPONS EXAMINED

[By Abrino Aybinan]

[Text] Is there really an agreement between the Philippines and United States Governments which effectively prevents the introduction of nuclear weapons in the US-operated military bases here?

Vice-President and Foreign Minister Salvador H. Laurel recently said in an evidently scripted television interview that while the Philippines, strictly speaking, cannot be neutral because of the presence here of the US bases it can deny this part of the world to American deployment of nuclear arms.

"What we can do is to ensure that no nuclear weapons is stored here without our knowledge, and we have an agreement with the Americans (to this effect)," Laurel said.

Asked to confirm the existence of such an agreement, a U.S. Embassy spokesman indicated that the American government would not give this kind of commitment. He cited the standing policy "not to confirm or deny" the presence of nuclear weapons in specific areas so as not to reveal where these are deployed.

The current New Zealand Government's ban on the entry of nuclear weapons into that country and insistence on checking U.S. ship's compliance with the rule has left Washington-Wellington relations badly strained. Rather than agree to declare its battleships nuclear-free, the U.S. has chosen to stand pat on its own policy of hedging the deployment pattern for its nuclear warheads and sacrifice the ANZUS (Australia-New Zealand-United States) military alliance.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Michael [name as published] Kapitsa said here during a visit last April that the former government had assured the Soviet Union it would not allow the Americans to keep nuclear weapons in the Philippine bases. He said his government is counting on President Corazon C. Aquino's government to "look after" the continued fulfillment of that guarantee and "will (not) create a new situation [as published]."

"We have guarantees from the former government that it will not allow the Americans to have stores of nuclear weaponry at these bases."

The 1983 amendment to the Military Bases Agreement provides for "prior consultations" between the Philippines and U.S. before "establishment of long-range missiles in the bases." Anti-bases activists, however, think the provision confirms the Philippines' helplessness in preventing the introduction of nuclear arms in the bases because it has no way of knowing American plans unless informed by the other side. Under another provision in the 1983 agreement the Americans are required to inform "within a reasonable period" the Philippine Government of the current weapons system in the bases, which means, the critics say, that the "Filipinos would know only at the pleasure of the Americans."

EMPLOYEES AT U.S. BASES PROTEST LAYOFFS

HK190357 Manila MANILA BULLETIN in Enlish 18 Jun 86 pp 1, 10

[Text] Olongapo City -- The federation of Filipino Civilian Employes Associations [FFCEA] in the U.S. bases assailed the U.S. Government yesterday for the "unwarranted dismissal" of more than 500 Filipino workers at Subic Naval Base.

U.S. Navy authorities said the dismissal was due to budget cuts being implemented by the U.S. Department of Defense in all U.S. military installations worldwide.

Roberto A. Flores, FFCEA president, said the removal of the Filipino workers was unreasonble and meant a loss of economic benefits due them including their mid-year bonus and one sack of rice to be given next month.

Flores said the budget cut being implemented under the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill passed by the U.S. Congress not only in U.S. bases but also within continental United States takes effect in the next fiscal year starting on Oct. 1.

This could not be used as the basis for the removal of Filipino workers in the U.S. bases in the Philippines at this time, he said.

Flores said the U.S. Government should find ways to avoid any reduction in base workforce because this would adversely affect the operations of the bases and the security in the region.

"If the U.S. Government can promise millions of dollars as aid to the Philippines and other countries, then why can't it divert a small portion of these money to pay for the salaries of the Filipino workers in the bases instead of throwing them out of jobs?" he asked.

Flores said he is making representations with base authorities at Subic, Clark, and other military installations to find measures of preventing mass layoffs, as well as rotation of workers or reduction of working hours.

"Reducing the number of working hours or resorting to rotation of Filipino workers in the bases is certainly better than outright dismissal form their jobs," he said.

[Text] Manila, June 19 (PNA) -- Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile has said he believes the United States will retain Clark Air Base and Subic Naval Base far beyond the Aquino administration.

Saying he was expressing a personal opinion, Enrile said no matter how unpleasant the reality may be, whether we like it or not, these military bases in the Philippines will be with us far beyond this administration. He said security in this part of the world dictates whether these military bases will remain or not.

Former detainees Charito Planas' idea of a neutral Philippines was rejected by Enrile, saying that neutrality can only be enforced by a country if it has sufficient military might. Unfortunately, he said, the Philippines has no military force that could equal the superpowers.

Clark Air Base, some 80 kilometers north of Manila, is the home base of the powerful 13th U.S. Air Force. The United States has stationed several squadrons of F-4E Phantom fighter-bombers and F-5 jets at Clark.

On the other hand, Subic Naval Base in Zambales, some 120 kilometers north of Manila, is the biggest ship repair facility outside the United States. Warships from the U.S. 7th Fleet are repaired at Subic and thousands of American sailors spend their rest and recreation at Subic.

ENRILE ON MILITARY SITUATION, NEGOTATIONS

Vows No Surrender to NPA

[Text] Manila, June 19 (PNA) -- Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile Wednesday accused the communists of indulging in a systematic campaign of deception and propaganda to grab power at an opportune time.

It is clear that through such maneuvering, they wish to place us at a tactical disadvantage, Enrile said in a speech before the national forum sponsored by the National Council of Churches of the Philippines in Quezon City.

He said the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) and its military arm, the New People's Army (NPA), are portraying themselves as seekers of peace, but at the same time are attempting to seize the political initiative.

They aim to enhance their freedom of action, both politically and militarily, and at the same time, to limit our own, and capturing the countryside by default, Enrile said. All the while, the CPP/NPA are consolidating their fronts in the urban centers and perhaps, capture the institutions of society from within, he added.

Enrile, however, said, no one in his right mind would expect our government, of course, to deliver the republic to our adversaries on a silver platter. Enrile vowed that we shall never surrender the freedom of our people to them (communists) without any confrontation. He said the government will continue to undertake both active and passive measures to safeguard the new found freedom as a result of the Feb 22-25 civilian-backed military revolt. Enrile also warned that the gains during the revolution are again threatened by the forces of division and intrigue.

Day after day, we hear discordant voices in our midst not only attempting to divide our government against itself, but insidiously seeking to displace our people's faith in it, he said. He said these forces are out to grab the triumph of the revolution from the hands of the people. To counter these divisive forces, Enrile asked the support of all patriotic Filipinos to achieve unity and stability of the country.

Denies Hindering Talks

[Text] Manila, June 19 (PNA) -- Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile Wednesday expressed hope that the projected ceasefire talks between the government and the rebels would produce some positive results. He denied hindering any effort for the success of the ceasefire dialogue, although he was vocal about his reservations.

Why should we hinder the talks? We welcome it hoping that something will come out of it in a positive way. Enrile said in reply to a question following his speech before the national forum sponsored by the National Council of Churches of the Philippines in Quezon City.

Of course, like anybody who has been with this kind of problem over the years, I have my own reservations, Enrile said.

The defense chief also said that he anticipates the demands of the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) during the forthcoming talks would be:

-- demilitarization in the countryside;
-- reduction of the defense budget;
-- dismantling of all multi-nationals in the Philippines;
-- land reform;
-- dismantling of U.S. facilities; and
-- formation of a coalition government.

Enrile said his ministry is now conducting a study on the possible demands of the CPP/NPA but said the results of the study will not be released without the clearance of President Aquino.

He said it is illogical for one who would go to a discussion by telling the others side what is the position of the government. [sentence as received] At the same time, Enrile scotched reports of any differences of opinion with Mrs. Aquino.

He said there is no truth to the speculation that as a member of the cabinet, his job is to implement the policies of the president.

Elite Urban Unit Formed

[Text] Manila, June 19 (PNA) -- The military is training a new elite battalion specializing in urban guerrilla warfare, according to Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile.

Enrile said the formation of the anti-terrorist unit is in anticipation of the emergence of rebel attacks in the cities, probably in the future. "The communists were prepared to launch an urban guerrilla war approximately at the same time as the historic February revolution, but their timetable was torpedoed by the people's power revolt staged by the military and backed by millions of civilians," Enrile said.

The defense chief said that even in the past, the subversives were always attempting to unleash an urban warfare in Metro Manila but were preempted by timely military action. He justified the formation of the anti-guerrilla unit as necessary to meet any contingency.

Unlike regular soldiers, this elite force is being trained in urban guerrilla tactics, including how to deal with hostage-taking, Enrile said. Members of the unit will be selected from various military commands.

ENRILE SUPORTERS GATHER AT DEFENSE MINISTRY

[Text] Manila, June 19 (AFP) -- Opposition supporters regrouped outside the Defence Ministry here Thursday, police said, amid speculation that Defence Minister Juan Ponce Enrile was about to be dropped from the government.

Hundreds of the supporters had spent the night outside the ministry, police added, in what some of them said was a show of support for Mr. Enrile against more radical members in the cabinet of President Corazon Aquino.

The overnight vigil, which began late Wednesday, included supporters of former President Ferdinand Marcos, who was toppled in a civilian-backed military coup led by Mr. Enrile and General Fidel Ramos in February.

Manila newspapers this week were full of speculation of a rift between Mr Enrile, who was also defence minister under Mr. Marcos, and the allegedly radical members of Mrs. Aquino's cabinet.

The newspapers speculated that the alleged rift was over the government's current negotiations for ceasefire talks with the 16,500-strong communist New People's Army (NPA).

Mr Enrile, who is reported to have reservations about the negotiations, is currently in Mr Marcos' home province of Ilocos Norte in the north for talks with local civilian and military officials.

Other cabinet members and Mrs Aquino's spokesman Rene Saguisag have denied there is a rift with Mr. Enrile, Spokesmen for Mr. Enrile could not be reached.

FARMERS COMPLAIN OF PC-INCP HARRASSMENT

[Text] Farmers in Barangay San Gabriel, Bayambang, and Pangasinan complained of continued harrassment by members of local PC-INP [Philippine Constabulary-Integrated National police] command. The farmers who are members of the Federation of Free Farmers [FFF] claimed that tractors were forcibly driven over their plantation and some farmers even lost their houses which were burned or torn down as part of terrorizing tactics by interested party [as heard].

According to a report by Alfredo Camacho, FFF (Maabo) chapter president, the 153d PC-INP company in Bayambang sided with the troublemakers.

NEGROS NPA CONDEMNS MILITARY'S 'AGRESSIVE' STANCE

[By Teodoro Y. Montelibano]

[Text] The New People's Army on Negros Island welcomes President Corazon Aquino's efforts to make peace with Communist insurgents but fears continuing aggressive moves by the military on the island might jeopardize the President's call for a ceasefire there.

This was expressed by NPA leaders on the island last week in a talk with newsmen and human rights workers in a rebel lair at the foot of Kanlaon Volcano, south of Bacolod, capital city of Negros Occidental province.

The NPA stressed that they "want and need peace so that economic development and true democracy in Negros, as elsewhere, can be had, but what is happening here now is that the military are acting as if they are unaware of the civilian government's wish for peace."

They said that despite a so-called interim ceasefire (in line with the temporary regional ceasefire in effect until guidelines for a formal truce are spelled out by the national government) which had been publicly announced by the local military commands, soldiers continue to venture into known NPA territory and launch operations "which have only succeeded in the deaths of innocent civilians while not causing any significant dents in the local NPA."

The rebels also say that instead of heeding President Aquino's calls for a truce, the military in the area seems to have intensified their counterinsurgency campaign, including the building up of troops and armaments.

"In other words, it seems that conditions are being created which lead us to conclude that they (the military) would want to destabilize the Aquino government by disregarding the President's call for a truce in hostilities," said the NPA commander.

Another cadre pointed out that Armed Forces chief of staff Gen. Fidel Ramos and Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile may, in fact, want fighting between the NPA and the military to continue, and for the ceasefire to fail, so as to justify "the perpetuation of militarization in the country."

They cited recent incidents which have again erupted involving the military and the NPA in Negros after a three-month lull that followed February's revolt.

They also pointed to the arrival late last month of the 6th Infantry Battalion [IB] from Mindanao, which reinforced two battalions of soldiers already in the area, the 7th IB and the 11th IB.

Also they are wondering why neither Ramos nor Enrile has done anything about staunch Marcos loyalist and Negros del Norte strongman Armando Gustilo, despite President Aquino's orders for the top military command to disarm warlords in the country.

Appointed by then President Marcos as governor of Negros del Norte, a new province created just before the last presidential elections, Gustilo was also former executive committee chairman of the unpopular and now defunct Philippine Sugar Commission and was allegedly notorious in harassing poll watchdog volunteers in Cadiz City (his home base) and other areas in Northern Negros during the recent poll.

He has also been named a suspect by a national fact-finding committee organized by Enrile to look into the massacre of demonstrators in Escalante town last year.

Apparently, one of Gustilo's favorite pasttimes is spewing tirades against the Aquino administration, which he calls a "de facto government" in a regular program aired over DYAG, a radio station he controls in Cadiz.

Gustilo was a member of the Marcos clique, the NPA said, and the fact that he is still there, behaving like he was during the Marcos era "shows the insincerity of the AFP's efforts to help stabilize the Aquino government."

The NPA, meanwhile, recounted the series of recent incidents indicating renewed hostilities between the rebels and the military.

First of these incidents was one which involved elements of the 7th IB in Candoni town and where four alleged cadres and 10 soldiers were reportedly killed.

The NPA said the incident resulted from an operation initiated by the 7th IB which may have been in reprisal for the killing of one Pat. [Patrolman] Joey Galvez, a policeman from Himamaylan town, who was liquidated for sending notes to landlords in the area, demanding that taxes be paid to the NPA or they would be killed by the sparrow (urban specialized liquidation) teams.

According to the NPA, Galvez had been using Civilian Home Defense Forces members, who were passing themselves off as NPA, to deliver the notes.

Apparently, Galvez's action constituted a grievous crime against the NPA in that not only was he an imposture, but his action put the insurgents in a bad light.

"We do tax," the NPA admitted, "but only such known Marcos cronies like (Roberto) Benedicto and Danding (Eduardo Cojuangco) and other big landlords, but certainly not the poor peasants and not in the way that the cop (Galvez) tried to pass off as the NPA way."

The Candoni incident was followed by another in early May when soldiers, still from the 7th IB, allegedly shelled an NPA cadre training camp in Sitio Bactolon, Sipalay, which caused the death of two male youths claimed by the military to be NPA.

Lt. Col. George Moleta, commander of the 7th IB OPERATING in the so called chicks area (Candoni, Himamaylan, Ilog, Cauayan, Kabankalan and Sipalay towns where the concentration of rebel forces are) said the Bactolon incident was brought abut by reports he recieved from informants that the NPA was running a training camp on the area.

He said they spotted the camp, bombed it and killed two rebels in the process.

This account was disputed by the NPA, who claimed that what the 7th IB shelled with mortar was actually all of Sitio Bactolon and that the two youths Moleta said were NPA were just two young field hands clearing a sugar cane field of cogon when chanced upon by the soldiers.

"The people here are afraid of the military and when the two hapless youths saw the soldiers approaching in full battle gear, their first reaction was to drop their machetes and run," one rebel said.

He said the soldiers, seeing the two men sprint away, opened fire and killed them.

Asked the NPA, "If indeed, the military says there is an interim ceasefire, what was the 7th IB doing with mortar and othe heavy armaments in the area which is 10 kilometers away from their headquarters?"

"The way they moved around, it looked as if they (the soldiers) were on a search and destroy mission." another said.

Moleta, talking with reporters in Bacolod City after the incident, said initially that there was indeed a team from his command that had set out on a "defensive, security police patrol operation, on the basis of reports that the NPA was training cadres in Bactolon."

If indeed it were true, as claimed by Moleta, that the soldiers were on a defensive patrol, why were they spotted with heavy armaments, a newsman wanted to know.

Moleta replied that the "mortar and other material with my men were weapons normally brought along in such a patrol."

Newsman also wanted to know why another battalion, the 6th IB, had come to the province. Moleta gave two reasons. The first was speculative. He said it could be part of the national commands regionalization program in which soldiers were recalled from existing field assignments and sent to places where they are natives of.

Another reason he gave, and one which he seemed more sure of, was that this could be the response to a request made by Negros prelate, Monsignor Antonio Fortich, for him (Moleta) to send additional security to Dacongcogon (a sugar central in the south where the local church has stocks) after the bodega there was robbed of 40 sacks of sugar.

This reporter interviewed Bishop Fortich and when asked to comment on Moleta's explanation for the presence of the 6th IB, uttered a remark not very becoming of a churchman.

Fortich pointed out that he asked Moleta for "only a few men, and definitely I did not mean an entire battalion!"

The NPA emphasized that they have valid grounds for distrusting the military. They point out that until they can see clear indications otherwise, they will continue to perceive both Ramos and Enrile as "hold-outs" of the past regime.

They said they will help stabilize the new government and support particularly President Aquino's progressive steps to attain true national democracy. Their reasons for trusting the President are varied, but among others, they said it is because they do not see Cory Aquino as either a partner or a puppet of the Reagan government.

Said one rebel commander, "The U.S. is maneuvering to pressure the Aquino government but the President, so far, seems to be adopting an independent stance. We see her as not wanting to be anyone's puppet and it is clear to see that the Reagan government would try to use increased aid to blackmail her in giving in to its demands."

On the other hand, they view Ramos and Enrile as the U.S. government's most likely instruments in ensuring that the latter's interests in the country, such as the bases, would be protected.

"Just as Ramos and Enrile did not raise a squeak on issues which poked a disturbing finger on U.S.-related questions during the Marcos regime, we do not see either as doing that now," was the opinion of one NPA member.

The NPA also threw a question to the military leadership: "Its now all up to the AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines]: whom will they protect, the U.S. interests here or the Filipino people?"

One thing that bothered the NPA somewhat was that they could not yet see the Aquino presidency as strongly asserting its civilian supremacy over the military.

The people, they said, must urge the military not to work against their (the people's) interests and to give a chance for the successful implementation of the democratic reforms being pushed by the Aquino government.

While they are not against the reforms being espoused by the new government, they, however say that they are looking further, "for more substantial rar-reaching reforms supportive of national democratic interests" to take root in the national landscape.

"Meaning, we would want to see the question of multinational corporations and foreign military bases here resolved and the achievement of a genuine land reform program by the new dispensation," explained one NPA commander, adding that the plan to distribute 9,000 hectares of sugar land foreclosed by the Philippine National Bank in Negros was "welcomed as part of a partial land reform program."

With regards President Aquino's calls for a ceasefire, they said that, for their part, they would support efforts to effect a negotiated truce provided armed hostilities stop.

They acknowledged that without a truce, no economic refroms can take place. But they want to be assured of the military's sincerity in respecting the President's efforts for a negotiated ceasefire. "If the AFP is sincere, we don't see any reason not to cooperate with them since, after all, we are working for the same goal, that is, the people's welfare," they said.

Finally they urged the Aquino government to recognize, "if it can," the initiatives taken by the people in taking care of and defending themselves during the long repressive Marcos years when the former regime not only "either ignored or abused them but in many instances, declared war against them."

That the NPA have grown over the years and with obviously no external help is only because the masa (the common people) believed in the organization enough to support it, they claimed.

They stressed that it would be a mistake for the President not to recognize this.

One NPA member said: "She (the President) must realize that the military rebellion in EDSA [Epafano De los Santos Avenue] last February was actually a culmination of events long before even her husband died in August 1983."

He added that the Filipino revolution had long before then been raging in the countryside, in areas definitely larger than the strip of highway liberated through the help of ordinary people, staged by people in numbers much bigger than those who trooped to Crame and Aguainaldo.

SISON RULES OUT BOYCOTT AT CONSTITUTION PLEBISCITE

[Text] Manila, June 19 (PNA) -- Freed Communist Party leader Jose Ma. Sison Wednesday ruled out any boycott of the comming nationwide plebiscite on the proposed new constitution. I don't think that the boycott position in the plebiscite will do us any good, he said during a symposium.

Sison admitted that the new constitution will be better than the 1973 constitution. He said there are at least eight of the 48 Constitutional Commission members who will push through the adoption of various reforms that will free the country from foreign domination, feudalism and from the shackles of transnational corporations.

Sison, who described the eight members as progressive thinkers, refused, however, to identify them.

The constitution that will be presented to the people for ratification will have anti-fascist safguards because a lot of men Con-Com in the are espousing the same anti-fascist line he said. There are also efforts to institute enough safeguards to curb any abuse of presidential authority, Sison added.

However, Sison expressed fears that the Con-Com might be silent on certain basic issues affecting the people. These include, he added, national sovereignty, umperialism and feudalism. The exploitation of the natural resources might be reintroduced in the constitution under more clever phrases, he said.

DIMAPORO-GUTANG TRUCE IN LANAO DEL SUR REPORTED

[Excerpt] A truce was forged yesterday between former Lanao del Sur Governor Muhammad Ali Dimaporo and Central Mindanao Regional Unified Command (RUC 12) head Brig Gen Rodrigo Gutang. The two figured prominently in the ongoing campaign by the Armed Forces to retrieve firearms believed to have been issued to Dimaporo by the government of deposed president Ferdinand Marcos.

In a related development, military sources provided BUSINESS DAY with a complete list of the 714 firearms "loaned" to Dimaporo. These are the firearms to be inventoried by Gutang and Dimaporo in the next few days.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and AFP chief of staff Gen Fidel V. Ramos intervened to get the two to sit down yesterday in Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City.

Both Dimaporo and Gutang pledged to follow a three-point program drown up by Enrile geared to achieve peace in the predominantly-Muslim province of Lanao del Sur. The three conditions are as follows:

Dimaporo, Gutang and RUC 10 commander, Brig Gen Mariano Adalem will form a special committee which will gather and check the records of firearms believed to have been issued to the Lanao del Sur Civil Home Defense Forces [CHDF] local police and mayors and other personalities. The committee will sit down and verify if the said firmarms were indeed brought to Lanao and distributed to Dimaporo's hencemen.

Dimaporo will work with Gutang in conducting an inventory of the present level of strength of the CHDF units in his province.

Both Gutang and Dimaporo are enjoined by the minister to refrain from issuing "strong statements" to the media about each other.

"I am not interested in bloodshed. I am interested in peace," Enrile told Dimaporo and Gutang. Earlier, the defense minister assured the Muslim warlord that "The military has no intention to harm or embarrass him or create tension in Lanao."

For his part, Dimaporo promised to adhere to the three conditions set by Enrile.

[Text] In Cebu City, soldiers raided the homes of the politically powerful Durano family as part of the government-ordered drive against private armies and worlords. The military spokesman said they found only six pistols, a shotgun, and an 18-inch bolo carried by the family patriarch, 80-year-old Ramon Durano. One of his three sons said the shotgun and the .357 magnum and .38 revolver found in his house did not belong to him.

FINANCE MINISTRY TO SEEK 'MINUS GROWTH'

[Text] Tokyo, June 19 KYODO -- Akira Nishigaki, director general of the Finance Ministry's Budget Bureau, said Thursday the ministry will seek "minus growth" in general expenditures for fiscal 1987 starting next April for a fifth straight year. The ministry formally began its fiscal 1987 budget making work. Nishigaki said the ministry will adhere to the government's avowed goal of ceasing to issue deficit-covering bonds by fiscal 1990. The statement runs counter to rising calls for increased spending on public works as a means to stimulating domestic demand.

The ministry is expected to call for cuts of 10 percent in current expenditures and 5 percent in investment outlays. The ministry, as usual, will set a standard for budget requests by governmental agencies by the end of July.

NEW MITI VICE MINISTER SPEAKS ON GOALS

[Text] Tokyo, June 20 KYODO -- Shinji Fukukawa, new international trade and industry vice minister, Friday pledged to promote the reorganization of Japan's industrial structure into a domestic demand-oriented type. Fukukawa, 54, made the pledge at a press conference following his promotion to MITI's No. 2 post, succeeding Keiichi Konaga, 56, who retired. MITI faces many difficult tasks, including establishment of stable relations with the country's major trading partners, he said.

"Japan should expand domestic demand flexibly by mobilizing various steps like deregulation and utilizing private-sector vigor," Fukukawa said. He predicted that the Japanese economy will pick up toward the end of this year, saying the yen's value against the U.S. dollar is expected to stabilize in the months ahead. Hiroshi Sugiyama, 53, former director general of MITI's Machinery and Information Industries Bureau, succeeded Fukukawa's former post of director general of the Industrial Policy Bureau.

JAMA SEES NO NEED TO CURB CAR EXPORTS TO EC

[Text] Tokyo, June 19 KYODO -- The Japan Automobile Manufacturers Association (JAMA) does not consider it necessary to curb Japanese car exports to the European Community (EC) immediately, JAMA President Shoichiro Toyoda said Thursday. Toyoda, also president of Toyota Motor Corp., told a press conference that a recent sharp increase in car shipments to EC nations is attributable to economic recovery in the countries. He said he does not think the Japanese share in the EC car market has dramatically increased recently.

JAMA thus has no plans to immediately take measures to hold down exports to the EC, Toyoda said, adding that it is basically a matter to be left to the discretion of individual automakers. According to JAMA statistics, Japan's motor vehicle exports to the EC totaled 112,442 units in April, up 69.1 percent from a year earlier.

KPA TALKS PROPOSAL ELICITS FURTHER RESPONSE

NODONG SINMUN on Proposal

[NODONG SINMUN 19 June Editorial: "A new Important Initiative To Prevent the Danger of War and to Alleviate Tension"]

[Text] The KPA Supreme Command has proposed talks by the military authorities in which the minister of the People's Armed Forces of the DPRK, the commander in chief of the UN Forces stationed in South Korea, and the national defense minister of South Korea participate be held in an effort to find ways for adopting measures for alleviating tension in Korea. In this connection, on 9 June the minister of the People's Armed Forces of our country sent a letter to the commander in chief of the UN Forces and the national defense minister of South Korea respectively.

In the letters, the minister of the People's Armed Forces, indicating that the Supreme Command's initiative is a timely and reasonable one, formally proposed that talks be held between the military authorities who are directly responsible for the heightening of the tension on the Korean peninsula and who have the unavoidable duty for alleviating it. The letters expressed the desire to discuss and resolve problems concerning the suspension of military exercises and arms buildup, the reduction of armed forces and military expenditures, and the observance of the Armistice Agreement.

The letters indicated that the problems the other side proposes may be discussed together at talks if they are helpful toward alleviating tension on the Korean peninsula, and then expressed an opinion with regard to the venue and date of the talks. The letters also proposed that a preliminary contact of the working-level delegates and suite members for military authorities' talks be held at Panmunjom on 27 June.

A series of affirmative steps for alleviating tension on the Korean Peninsula have been advanced by our side to date. However, this is the first time our side has proposed the matter of holding military authorities' talks. Our proposal envisages talks by the responsible military authorities -- who hold real power in the armed forces -- that can discuss and resolve the problem of alleviating tension on the Korean peninsula. At the same time, this proposal includes measures which can alleviate tension in a timely manner at a time when war has become a realistic danger. This is why, upon announcement, the proposal is arousing great reaction at home and abroad. Our proposal for holding military authorities' talks to prevent the military situation from becoming acute is an epochal peace proposal that can make it possible to discuss and resolve the most imminent and ardent problems arising in preventing the danger of war and in alleviating tension at present.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The region where the danger of a nuclear war is most serious in the world today is precisely the Korean Peninsula. The U.S. imperialists have introduced various means of war, including various types of nuclear weapons, into South Korea on a large scale and are frequently staging war exercise rackets against the northern half of our Republic. As a result, the danger in which war may break out at any time has been created in our country.

The situation on the Korean peninsula has been aggravated continuously and faces a touch-ang-go crisis. The military forces standing in confrontation with each other across the Military Demarcation Line have reached the highest levels since the cease-fire of the Korean War.

The United States and South Korea have deployed their armed forces in the area along the Military Demarcation Line. They have increased the mobility of these armed forces. They have not only increased their nuclear combat capability, but have also reinforced their special commando forces on a large scale. Latest military equipment, including missiles, rocket launchers, tanks, armored vehicles, and F-16 fighter-bombers, and new units will be additionally deployed. The completion of combat readiness by military troops is being stepped up. Steps for moving the U.S. armed forces on the U.S. mainland and the Asia-Pacific region to the Korean front are being accelerated.

The units of the KPA, too, have maintained a high security posture to cope with the military measures of the United States and South Korea. In the frontline area where the vast armed forces of the North and South are confronting each other, a tense situation, in which a war may break out at any moment, prevails. If a war breaks out, it will inevitably turn into a nuclear war.

Preventing the danger of war and alleviating tension on the Korean Peninsula is the pressing and ardent demand of the times and the nation. To prevent the danger of war, immediate measures conducive to the alleviation of tension should be taken, even though the fundamental solution of the peace problem is difficult. To alleviate the situation, military exercises and arms buildup, which constitute a direct factor of the aggravation of tension and the danger of war, should be suspended and military forces and arms should be reduced. This can be solved by those who hold real power in military affairs.

Our proposal for holding military authorities' talks is to resolve his imminent problem. Holding military authorities' talks constitutes an important step that makes it possible to resume the North-south dialogue, which has been in a condition of suspension, and to make progress in the dialogue.

Last Year, multilateral dialogue were held and partial mutual visits were realized between the North and South. Thus, they gave the brethren joy, and, with this as the occasion, further enhanced the desire for national reunification throughout the country. However, at a time when a favorable atmosphere for dialogue should be created, the United States and the South Korean side brought the hard-won dialogue to state of suspension by staging such a large-scale war exercise racket as the "Team Spirit-86" exercise, thus threatening the other side to dialogue. The maneuvers for confrontation and war by the United States and the South Korean authorities have clouded prospects for resuming North-south dialogue and have driven the situation to a more grave nature.

To successfully realize the North-south dialogue, the tension existing between the North and South should be alleviated. To this end, military exercises opposing the other side to dialogue should, first of all, not be staged. Amid the circumstances under which tension is being aggravated and the danger of war prevails, dialogue cannot proceed with minds at ease, and success cannot be attained even though dialogue is held.

Historical experience in contacts and dialogue between the North and South has clearly proven that under a situation where the danger of war prevails, distrust and antagonism cannot be removed, nor can a step forward be made in the dialogue between the North and South and in solution of the question of national reunification. Herein lies one of the reasons why we have proposed taking measures for alleviation in the military field in an effort to create a favorable atmosphere for North-south dialogue by preventing the danger of war and by alleviating tension.

Talks between military authorities constitute a realistic step that makes it possible to contribute to the cause of peace in Asia and of the world by discussing and resolving the pressing problems arising in preventing the danger of war and alleviating tension on the Korean Peninsula. All situations developing in South Korea today show that the danger of nuclear war in Korea and the Far East has become a real problem of today, not a problem of tomorrow. If a nuclear war broke out in Korea, it would expand outside the boundaries of Korea, destroy peace in Asia and the world, and drive mankind into the holocaust of a nuclear war.

The prevailing situation is creating deep apprehensions among peace-loving people of the world and ardently demands that all possible steps to remove the danger of a nuclear war and to preserve peace be taken without delay. Our proposal for holding military authorities' talks is an expression of our ardent desire to be faithful to the national duty assigned before the Korean people and to the cause of peace in Asia and of the world. Our proposal for holding military authorities' talks firmly reaffirms the peace-loving stand of our party and the government of the Republic, which have consistently made sincere efforts to guarantee peace on the Korean peninsula and to create an atmosphere for dialogue and negotiations.

In recent years our party and the government of the republic have made all possible efforts to prevent the danger of war and to alleviate tension. We have proposed that, in an effort to alleviate tension prevailing on the Korean peninsula, to preserve peace there, to arrange prerequisites for the peaceful reunification of the country, tripartite talks among us, the United States, and South Korea be held, a peace agreement be signed between us and the United States, and a nonaggression declaration between the North and South be adopted. At the same time, we have put forward a new peace proposal for holding North-South parliamentary talks to announce a joint declaration of nonaggression. Last year we also put forward reasonable proposls regarding the elimination of the danger of armed conflict within the framework of the MAC. Early this year, proceeding from the desire to alleviate tension and to create favorable circumstances for dialogue, we also took active steps for not staging large-scale military exercises throughout the northern half of the republic from 1 February and for suspending all military exercises during the North-South dialogue.

However, none of our repeated just proposals have been realized, and there are still many obstacles and difficulties lying on the road toward peace in our country and its reunification. This is entirely because of the policy of national division of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique and their new war provocation maneuvers.

The KPA Supreme Command's proposal for holding military authorities' talks with those who hold real power in the armed forces in the North and South by sitting face-to-face is a fair and aboveboard one that can be acceptable to anyone who wants peace on the Korean peninsula. To date the United States and the South Korean authorities have never accepted not only our policy of national reunification, but also any of our repeatedly advanced proposals for peace and for the alleviation of tension. Rather, they have dashed toward aggravating tensions under the excuse of a nonexistent threat of southward invasion. The rackets of arms buildup and war preparations that they have unfolded under the pretext of the nonexistent threat of southward invasion have engendered an infinite arms race and have finally led the situation on the Korean peninsula to the brink of war as seen today. The United States, the South Korean authorities, and, in particular, those who hold real power in the military in South Korea should feel a due responsibility for this.

In South Korea today, the struggle of youths, students, and people for the abolition of the U.S. nuclear bases and the withdrawal of the U.S. forces is being staged vigorously. This clearly proves that the South Korean people themselves do not admit a threat from the North, and that the threat actually existing on the Korean peninsula is only the threat caused by the U.S. military occupation of South Korea, its war maneuvers, and its maneuvers for nuclear war in particular. We have no intention to invade the South. Our People's Armed Forces are reliably standing to defend the security and peace of the country while opposing the policy of aggression and war. No one should doubt this.

The United States and the South Korean authorities should renounce their anachronistic stand and attitude of sitting and clamoring about the nonexistent threat of southward invasion while dashing toward the road of aggravating tension behind the scenes. They should come to the venue of military authorities' talks and solve problems with us. The attitude of the United States and the South Korean authorities toward our current proposal will become a touchstone determining whether they want peace on the Korean peninsula or whether they attempt to trigger a war there.

This year is the Year of International Peace. The people of the world today eagerly desire that an actual step to prevent the danger of a thermonuclear war hanging over the heads of mankind be taken this year at the earliest possible date. For the South Korean people, who have been under the danger of nuclear war at all times from nuclear bases -- the largest in the Far East -- their antiwar, antinuclear, and peace desires are greater.

We consider that the United States and the South Korean authorities should accept without delay the KPA Supreme Command's peace initiative, which fully accords with the desire of our people and peoples of the world. For our nation, which has undergone the tragedy of division for some 40 years and, in addition, has been under the danger of a new war, there is no more important and ardent problem than peace and reunification. In the future we also will make all possible efforts for peace in Korea and its reunification.

Military Figures Support Talks

[Text] Pyongyang June 19 (KCNA) -- Colonel of the Korean People's Army Kim Su-hyon said the proposal of the KPA Supreme Command to open talks of military authorities involving the military power holders in the North and South and discuss the question of relaxing the present tensions and removing the state of confrontation on the Korean peninsula is a realistic one to prevent war.

He said: The KPA's mission is to deter aggression and war and creditably defend the country's security and peace. The United States and the South Korean authorities must neither have slightest doubt about this noble mission of the KPA nor dare attempt to test our defense capabilities.

KPA Colonel Pae Ki-yun said: The attitude of the United States and the South Korean side towards our peaceful initiative is an important touchstone showing which they prefer, war or peace. They should not cry over fictitious "threat of southward invasion" but sit face to face with us at the talks of the military authorities.

L.

Mun Chang-pom, a department director of the Education Commission, said: The current proposal reflects our patriotic stand to save the nation from the danger of war by reducing tensions and create a favorable atmosphere for solving the Korean question by means of dialogue and negotiation.

Chin Ung-won, a workshop head of the Chollima iron and steel complex, said: Our proposal is timely and aboveboard. The military power holders in the South must sincerely respond to our new peaceful initiative.

Yi Sok-chun, vice-director of the Secretariat of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland, said the new peace proposal is a manifestation of the Korean people's desire for peace. The Korean people will follow the approach of the United States and the South Korean side to this proposal, he added.

Viewed as Peace Initiative

[NODONG SINMUN 20 June special article: "A New Realistic Initiative To Prevent War"]

[Text] The KPA Supreme Command's proposal for holding talks by the military authorities in the North and South who hold real power in the armed forces by sitting face-to-face at one place is a most epochal peace initiative that makes it possible to resolve the grave situation prevailing on the Korean peninsula.

The situation of our country today has become extremely acute. The overall armed forces of the U.S. forces stationed in South Korea and the puppet army have been deployed in the forward area along the Military Demarcation Line [MDL] and are now under a security posture capable of being mobilized into a war at any moment. The KPA units, too, are maintaining a security posture to cope with this. The state of military confrontation in which the vast armed forces are confronting each other across the MDL is creating a dangerous situation in which a war may break out merely as a result of any accidental event.

Because of the acute and tense situation, dialogue has been suspended, and North-South relations have been returned to the state that existed prior to the dialogue. The situation has aroused deep apprehensions not only among the Korean people, but also among the people of the world. The KPA Supreme Command's proposal for holding military authorities' talks was advanced proceeding from the demands of this imminent situation.

In its new initiative, the KPA Supreme Command proposes that military authorities' talks be held with the participation of those who hold real power in the armed forces in the North and South and that all possible military measures arising in removing the present confrontation and tension be discussed and resolved in the talks. The initiative envisages the discussion and resolution of problems concerning the suspension of military exercises and arms buildup, the reduction of number of troops [pyongryok] and arms [kunbi], and the observance of the Korean Armistice Agreement as originally agreed upon. In addition to this, the initiative makes it clear that the problems the other side proposes may be discussed at talks if they are helpful toward alleviating tension.

This initiative is a very righteous one because it proposes that the persons concerned [tangsajadul] who should bear responsibility for the aggravation of tension and who hold real power sit face-to-face and resolve those problems which become the direct cause of the aggravation of tension and the danger of war.

As has been known to the world, proceeding from the desire to resolve the Korean question by means of dialogue and negotiations, not by means of war, we have proposed to the United States, 12 years ago, that they sit face-to-face with us to discuss the problem concerning the replacement of the Armistice Agreement with a peace agreement.

In recent years, we put forward a proposal for tripartite talks in which the South Korean authorities would participate in talks between us and the United States. We also put forward a proposal for holding North-south parliamentary talks to adopt a joint declaration of nonagression. We have repeatedly put forward not only proposals for seeking ways to achieve a political resolution, but also proposals aimed at preventing armed conflicts within the framework of the MAC.

Early this year alone, we put forward a proposal for suspending military exercises during the period of North-south dialogue and took active steps for suspending military exercises from 1 February. This is a fact widely known to the world. However, none of our repeated steps and sincere efforts have been realized because the other side has turned away all that we have proposed.

The situation demands that, even though it is difficult to immediately realize at present such a problem for ensuring solid peace as replacing the Korean Armistice Agreement with a peace agreement, those who hold real power in the military affairs sit face-to-face and rapidly take measures for eliminating the imminent danger of war and for alleviating tension.

Speaking of those who hold real power in the armed forces in the North and South, they are the persons concerned [tangsajadul] who are directly responsible for the aggravation of tension on the Korean peninsula. They also have the authority and power [kwonnung] to resolve the problem of removing confrontation. This shows that the problem of alleviating tension can actually be resolved through military authorities' talks.

The problems concerning the suspension of military exercises and arms buildup, the reduction of the number of troops [pyongryok] and armaments [kunbi], and the observance of the Korean Armistice Agreements as agreed upon originally, which we proposed to discuss and resolve at military authorities' talks, are important problems that should be preferentially resolved in eliminating the danger of war prevailing on the Korean peninsula at present. In fact, the problems of military exercises and arms buildup are precisely the direct factors in increasing the danger of war. As has been known to the world, the United States and the South Korean authorities have rapidly reinforced their overall armed forces and have increased armaments on a large scale.

The reorganization of the U.S. forces occupying South Korea and the puppet armed forces into offensive-type armed forces, their forward deployment in the area along the MDL, the organization of a new special commando unit with 180,000 troops, and the additional introduction of neutron weapons and new-type chemical weapons into South Korea, where some 1,000 nuclear weapons have already been deployed -- this alone gravely jeopardizes the situation on the Korean peninsula. This notwithstanding, such war exercises as the "Team Spirit" exercises have been staged in succession in South Korea, taking on their clear color of attack for a northward invasion as the years go by. The "Team Spirit" war exercise is virtually a preliminary war in which vast troops numbering some 200,000 capable of completely waging a war are mobilized and may be turned into an actual war at any moment.

The frequent military provocations that the U.S. forces and the puppet army have perpetrated in violation of the Armistice Agreement also cannot be overlooked. It is clear to everyone that such acts of violating the Armistice Agreement as those in which our side's members who were on duty in the Joint Security area were mercilessly murdered and our peaceful fishermen who were navigating on the open seas became the target of an attack can bring about irretrievable grave consequences. Under such conditions, the problems concerning the suspension of war exercises and arms buildup, the reduction of troops and armaments, and the observance of the Armistice Agreement are most (?urgent) steps for the alleviation of tension.

Our proposal for holding military authorities' talks is too righteous and reasonable in view of the character of the talks and the content of problems to be discussed and resolved in the talks. If the talks were held, the problems presented there were successfully discussed, and, thus, relevant and practical steps regarding these problems were taken, the danger of war would be eliminated, tension would be alleviated on the Korean peninsula, and a good atmosphere for resuming the suspended North-South dialogue would be created.

Our proposal for holding military authorities' talks is a reasonable one that can be acceptable to anyone who really wants the alleviation of tension on the Korean peninsula. The United States and the South Korean authorities, as the parties concerned [tangsaja] responsible for the aggravation of tension on the Korean peninsula, should deeply ponder over our proposal and show an affirmative response to it.

The United States and the South Korean authorities have turned aside our peaceful initiatives at all times and have aggravated tension under the pretext of the nonexistent threat of southward invasion. If they still cling to such old tricks again this time, their true colors as ringleaders who have created the danger of war and aggravated tension on the Korean peninsula will be further revealed. Today, the world is watching the attitude of the United States and the South Korean authorities.

JAPAN MINISTRY STATEMENT ON HO TAM VISIT ASSAILED

[Text] Pyongyang June 20 (KCNA) -- Kim U-chong, vice-director of a department of the Central Committee ot the Workers' Party of Korea and chairman of the Friendship Society for the Promotion of Korea-Japan Amity, had a press conference with home and foreign reporters here on June 19.

He said: These days South Korean radios reported that the Japanese foreign Ministry said Comrade Ho Tam, member of the Political Bureau, and secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea, hoped for a visit to Japan but it would not be realised unless the Japanese Government withdraws a precondition that he should not conduct polticial activities in Japan. He explained our stand on this matter.

We have never applied to the Japanese side for visit of Comrade Ho Tam, member of the Political Bureau, and secretary of the WPK Central Committee, to Japan and have had no idea of it, Kim U-chong said, and continued:

His visit to Japan was proposed first by Yoichi Tani, Liberal Democratic [Party] member of the House of Representatives and acting chairman of the Dietmen's League for the Promotion of Japan-Korea Friendship, when he visited Korea in January this year.

At that time Comrade Ho Tam said in an unambiguous term that he had no need to visit Japan if the Japanese Government tried to place restrictions on his activities as secretary of the party Central Committee, attaching a precondition that he should not conduct political activities in Japan.

To begin with, we cannot consider a visit to Japan by a high-level official of our party Central Committee as long as the Japanese authroties refuse to renounce a hostile policy towards us, clinging to the "two Koreas" line. To talk at will about a visit to Japan by a high-level official of our party Central Committee, attaching even a precondition that he should not conduct political activities, is an intolerable encroachment upon our sovereignty and one more expression of the hostile policy aimed to impair the high external authority of our party and the government of the republic. If the statement of the spokesman of the Japanese Foreign Ministry is true, it must be withdrawn at once.

Kim U-chong said: Whether the Korea-Japan relations will be improved in the future or not hinges entirely on the attitude of the Japanese authorities. We have no expectation of illusion about the Japanese Government. We have nothing to ask "withdrawal" or "favor" of the Japanese authorities and do not want to be indebted to them. We will approach the Japanese authorities the way they do us. The Japanese authorities had better discard the bad habit and idea of the past when they occupied others' country and enforced a colonial rule there.

U.S. 'ZEALOUS BACKING' OF S. AFRICA BERATED

[Text] Pyongyang June 20 (KCNA) -- MINJU CHOSON today notes that the South African racists' acts of aggression and proclamation of "emergency state" enjoy zealous backing of the U.S. imperialists. A signed commentary of the paper says:

Many governments and peoples of Africa and the world are in unison calling for mandatory economic sanctions against the South African racist clique. But the U.S. imperialists alone stand openly against the sanctions. This is a master's patronage of his stooge.

By defending the South African racist clique, the U.S. imperialists intend to establish their political, economic and military domination over the region with the Botha clique as their agent. But this is a foolish dream. With no crafty and vicious ruse can the U.S. imperialists save the South African racist clique racing headlong to destruction, isolated and rejected within and without, or gratify their desire to rule the Southern African region.

Our People's Army has become a mighty contingent which is ever-victorious in the struggle against the imperialist aggressors and in effecting unprecedented miracles in creation and construction struggles to reform nature. Because we have such a revolutionary army, our party is mighty and the nation is strong, and socialist construction is being vigorously accelerated.

Deeply cherishing pride in having a reliable revolutionary army, our people are vigorously advancing along the single path of revolution in firm unity with the army.

1. Actively contributing to construction work for the prosperity of the nation is the great pride of the People's Army, the revolutionary armed force of our party and people.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The people's Army has not only excellently fulfilled the mission of defending the fatherland but also greatly contributed to construction work for the prosperity of the nation and the happiness of the people.

An army, as its word indicates, is a contingent that carries out military missions with arms in hand. Thus, any army serves to fulfill a military mission. At the same time, a revolutionary army must participate in the creation and construction struggle for the prosperity and development of the fatherland. This is a unique nature of the genuine People's Army and of a revolutionary army.

Unlike a revolutionary army, a reactionary army serves as a means of violence to repress the working people and as a tool to subjugate other countries. Aggression, plunder, destruction, and massacre are the basic characteristics of an imperialist reactionary army. Viewing such an army of the anti-popular and reactionary exploiting class, we cannot think of genuine creation and construction. Proceeding from its class nature and mission, the army of the working class is actively devoted to creation and construction. This army is the people's army which is composed of the sons and daughters of the working people, including the workers and peasants, and which serves the people's interest. For such an army, the people's cause becomes the very cause of the army itself. Therefore, the army of the working class cannot be separated from the destiny of its people and cannot exist without the struggle to achieve the people's interests and happiness.

The path which our People's Army has traversed is a proud history in which it has remained endlessly loyal to the nation and the people and has been actively devoted to creation and the cause of construction in accordance with the demand of the party and the revolution.

Our revolutionary armed forces pioneered their path by always standing up against the strong imperialists. Thus, they had to direct all strength to obtaining the nation's independence by repelling the imperialist aggressors and to safeguarding the security of the fatherland. Their path was the course of bloody struggle.

Our People's Army devotedly contributed to the creative labor of building the nation as soldier-constructors while overcoming unprecedentedly arduous storms of revolution. In this course, the People's Army glorified its honor as a mighty contingent of creation and a unit of construction.

During the arduous anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle period, the members of the anti-Japanese guerrilla units actively aided the struggle of the revolutionary masses, including the people of the guerrilla bases, for creation of a new life even while carrying out fierce battles constantly as the main force of the Korean revolution against the Japanese imperialist aggressors.

Indeed, helping the people's creative labor amid manifold sieges by a host of enemy troops while crossing the death line was beyond imagination. However, our revolutionary army realized a noble tradition of carrying out the cause of creation by always staying with the people and remaining side by side with them. Our Army safeguarded and brilliantly inherited this precious tradition on the land of the liberated fatherland. In the days of building of a new fatherland and during the arduous wartime period, the Army actively helped the people's creative labor struggle. When the people were rehabilitating the national economy and building the foundations for socialism by clearing away the ashes in the postwar days, the soldiers of the People's Army courageously rose in this sacred struggle and effected brilliant labor exploits.

A number of plants, schools, cities and farms were built by their hands and the appearance of the nation was innovated. The proud exploits effected by the officers and men of the People's Army in the struggle for postwar rehabilitation construction and for socialist construction are being engraved in construction sites throughout the country, including the sites of rehabilitation work in Pyongyang, the capital of the revolution, and the construction site of the Hamhung vinalon plant.

In the course of remodelling the entire society on the chuche idea, our Army is playing an important role in achieving the prosperity of the nation with its devoted labor struggle and by upholding the party's cause.

Our Army demonstrated the dignified appearance of chuche Korea by taking direct charge of building important facilities for socialist construction and carrying out their construction work. Construction of the magnificent Pyongyang Metro and various plants; development of mines and expansion work for increasing production; construction of modern-type roads and bridges and construction of the lockgates of Mirim, Ponghwa, Hyangsan and Tongam were carried out through devoted labor struggle by soldiers of the People's Army. In particular, the soldiers of the People's Army miraculously built the gigantic Nampo Lockgate, which the people regard as a miracle, in a short time. Thus, they vigorously demonstrated their boundless creative strength. This is a remarkable event in the history of the struggle of our people and the People's Army for the prosperity of the fatherland.

Today the soldiers of the People's Army are devoting their youth and wisdom at the sites of construction struggles, including Taechon and Sunchon, in response to the call of the party and the revolution. The achievements and spirit of the heroic struggle demonstrated by the soldiers of the People's Army, comprised of the genuine sons and daughters of the fatherland, at the sites of rewarding construction where great monumental creations illuminating the era of the Workers' Party are being built, give great confidence and courage to our people and are encouraging and inspiring them to innovations.

It is not simple for the army to merely carry out the mission of defending the fatherland under such circumstances as in our country, where the situation is strained and where we are confronted by the strong U.S. imperialist aggressors. However, the People's Army is actively contributing to socialist construction while strengthening combat and political training to cope with the enemy's challenge against our revolution and while firmly maintaining the defense line of the fatherland.

This represents a heroic epic and immortal exploits that can be created only by a revolutionary army, a genuine army of the people which is vigorously struggling and advancing in firm unity with the party and the people. The fact that the People's Army is actively participating in socialist construction is of great significance in vigorously pushing ahead with the revolutionary struggle and construction work and in consolidating the might of the army and of the revolutionary ranks.

With the active participation in socialist construction by the People's Army, the might of the army is being further strengthened. The might of the revolutionary army chiefly depends on the degree of political and ideological preparedness of the ranks and on the unity between the Army and the people. Such a might is being firmly consoldiated, not only through arduous class struggle but also in the course of participating in the struggle of socialist construction.

The struggle for economic construction is a difficult and complex revolutionary struggle to reform nature. Through this struggle the soldiers train themselves physically, ideologically and in volition. Thus, they come to possess a noble revolutionary spirit and revolutionary traits. The site of socialist construction is a stage of rewarding struggle where the soldiers of the People's Army are fostering the quality and outlook of genuine revolutionaries. Amid the vigorous labor struggle to conquer and reform nature, the soldiers of the People's Army have come to realize the justness of the cause of socialism and communism led by our party and to more firmly have confidence in victory. Thus, they cherish ardent love for the socialist fatherland and nobel traits, including the spirit of loving labor.

The construction sites where exploits have been created have become training sites where the soldiers are fostering their courage, boldness, ambition and passion, as well as creative power. In the construction sites of great monumental creations, a number of heroes have emerged among the soldier-constructors, and ardent patriots and unheralded persons of merits have appeared. This shows that our army is growing and developing into an army which has a strong revolutionary spirit and combat capability in the practical struggle of socialist construction.

Those who are in direct charge of socialist construction are the working people, including the workers and peasants. When the Army jointly struggles with the people by participating in socialist construction, the Army and the people will have the same ideas and will. Thus, they will highly demonstrate the traits of trusting, loving, and helping each other.

While our people's Army was accelerating the cause of creation and construction, its kinship relations with the people have been constantly strengthened. The soldiers of the People's Army voluntarily took over and carried out the most difficult and arduous tasks for the people, and the people have helped the People's Army, which is devoted to the prosperity of the fatherland, with sincerity and wholeheartedness just as their own kin.

Such a laudable traditional custom of unity between the military and civilians is in full bloom in all places where our People's Army is working, including construction sites and cooperative farm land. This is a firm guarantee for constantly consolidating and developing the unity and cohesion among the party, the people, and the army that are the source of our Army's combat capability.

The People's Army is excellently contributing to increasing the nation's wealth and to promoting the authority of the party and the fatherland by actively participating in the struggle for economic construction. The genuine army struggles to ensure the might and dignity of the nation and the people. When the army commits exploits in the practical struggle of socialist construction and creates miracles, it can directly contribute to attaining the nation's prosperity and to promoting the nation's authority.

What our People's Army built in the past were important facilities for strengthening the nation's might and for increasing the people's wealth. Large-scale plants and enterprises that the People's Army built in the 1950's and 1960's by keeping step with the people's gigantic rehabilitation struggle and with the great Chollima march and a number of lockgates, transportation facilities, cultural establishments, and plants built in the 1970's and 1980's are playing an important role in promoting the people's living standard and in consolidating the foundations of a self-reliant economy. They will prove their greater worth in achieving the nation's prosperity with each passing day.

The cause of creation and construction in our era is a gigantic task organized and led by the party's leadership. Effecting great exploits in socialist construction is a rewarding struggle to glorify the lofty authority and dignity of our party. Our People's Army rose courageously in this struggle with ardent loyalty and is continuously effecting innovations. Thus, it is glorifying the lofty authority and honor of the party with its creative exploits and labor.

The People's Army is a contingent which has strong unconditionality and combat capability in achieving the party's plans and is an iron-clad rank which has a lofty organizational nature and discipline. Because it is such a contingent, no task that was decided on and set forth by our party has not been accomplished.

All monumental creations built by the people's Army have become testimony to history, vigorously displaying the greatness of the WPK, a party which struggles while carrying out the revolution and which has ever-victorious might. The peerless mass heroism displayed by the People's Army in practical struggle for creation and construction and achievements in the cause for the nation's prosperity, and the happiness of all generations to come are brilliantly illuminated together with our party's history and the cause of socialist and communist construction.

2. Throughout the entire course of embroidering the heroic epic of creation and construction, the People's Army has vigorously demonstrated the noblest traits of a revolutionary army. Comrade Kim Chong-il, member of the Political Bureau Presidium and secretary of the party Central Committee, has indicated: The fact that we have the People's Army, which tenaciously defends and protects the party and the leader and fulfills the party's orders and directives to the end, unconcerned about fire or water, is the greatest honor and pride of our party.

All the heroic exploits demonstrated by the revolutionary army, both in time of arduous war and in peaceful construction, originate in its mental status.

Our People's Army is a revolutionary army which regards loyalty to the party and the leader as the fundamental element in its life. In the course of long arduous struggle, the People's Army created the tradition of loyalty to the party and the leader and brilliantly inherited this tradition. In particular, amid the march of remodelling the entire army along the chuche idea, the People's Army came to have clear features as a revolutionary army which safeguards the party's cause to the end and inherits and perfects this cause.

It is the unanimous aspiration of our People's Army to become a banner-holder of struggle who carries out the leader's ideas and intention to the end, just like Kim Hyok and Cha Kwang-su in the 1920's, and to be a defender and a shield which upholds the party. Such a thoroughgoing position and spirit are included in all miraculous successes and exploits attained by the People's Army in the sites of struggle for socialist construction. Our People's Army is a courageous and capable contingent in carrying out the cause of creation and construction. The noble traits of struggle displayed in this course by the soldiers of the People's Army serve as a model showing with what spirit and what way of work the army of the people, a genuine revolutionary, should live and struggle.

The spirit of absoluteness and unconditionality to struggle only in accordance with the party's intention, receiving the demands of the party and the revolutionary as its vital issue, represents the firm traits of struggle of the People's Army. Nothing is more important for the revolutionary army than the demands of the party and the people and the interests of the revolution.

The soldiers who are prepared to dedicate their lives to the fatherland and revolution should be resolutely determined to rise in any place if so demanded by the party and the revolution. Such an outlook can be displayed only by a army with the lofty consciousness of upholding the party's call with ardor. A soldier's life should be filled with the sense of unconditional obedience to orders. This constitutes the source of the Army's combat capability. For a revolutionary army, such lofty discipline is being bolstered by the soldiers' lofty awareness of their mission and revolutionary duties.

Our People's Army knew about accepting as its supreme mission the tasks of struggle that the party wanted to complete urgently, and has regarded devotion to such tasks as its great happiness and joy. The fact that our People's Army voluntarily took charge of constructing the unprecedentedly gigantic Nampo Lockgate is the result of warmly accepting the intention of the party and the leader to achieve the everlasting prosperity of the fatherland.

The soldiers of the People's Army, who have lofty revolutionary consciousness and a sense of responsibility, have demonstrated their organizational nature and discipline to work only in accordance with the intention and demand of the party in the sites of building great monumental creations. It is the unshaken faith of our People's Army to act only in accordance with the intentions and decisions of the party, regarding them as an absolute line.

Our People's Army has made no complaints, even in the face of gigantic projects, and did not put forth any preconditions. Thus, there is no limit to the heroism demonstrated by such a contingent of creation and construction which is accustomed to complying with the standards set forth by the party, including the duration, speed, and method of construction.

The traits of the Nampo Lockgate construction-type struggle, known to our people today, are a demonstration of such a spirit of absoluteness and unconditionality. These traits are overflowing with the spirit of soldiers of the People's Army, who are struggling on after receiving such vigor, passion, boldness, persistence, and examples as the ones displayed by our party center while leading the cause of creation and construction.

The indomitable and ever-victorious spirit of struggle to courageously overcome all difficulties, pulling down mountains and filling in rivers, is a lofty trait displayed by our People's Army in the sites of socialist construction. The revolutionary army is standing at the outpost of class struggle. Thus it should have a stronger militant temperament than any other contingent. Such an indomitable termperament should be invariably retained not only in wartime but also during peace. The Army, which is creating a history of indomitable and unyielding struggle from its creative labor, will fully demonstrate heroism in a fierce battlefield deciding life or death.

Our People's Army is an indomitable rank which maintains its tenacious trait of struggle in carrying out any mission. The essential mission of the army is the work of defending the nation. The soldiers who are participating in the nature-remaking combat are outpost guards who stand at the posts of defending the fatherland with arms. However, they are sincerely carrying out unfamiliar construction projects by courageously overcoming all trials and difficulties, just as in fulfilling a military mission. Our soldier-constructors did not hesitate or waver, even when they undertook a large-scale project which appeared to be abnormal to anyone. They never retreated from the arduous struggle to overcome grave natural circumstances.

The fact that the People's Army could create heroic exploits with the military spirit to remove even mountains and to fill in the seas is the result of the revolutionary martial spirit which was formed in the course of long struggle. The martial spirit of the People's Army is the indomitable spirit to defend and protect the party, the leader, and the nation by making oneself a human bomb; it is the spirit of tenacious struggle to fight by rising again every time one falls. Cherishing such a spirit, the young communists and the anti-Japanese guerrillas crossed the death line and bloody roads, and heroic fighters of the fatherland liberation war crossed raging rivers and rugged hills and mountains.

Today tasks facing military building are new ones and the circumstances of struggle are different from those in the past. However, the martial spirit of the officers and men of our People's Army has not changed. The trait of self-reliance to overcome any difficulty with one's own strength by firmly trusting one's might; the tenacious spirit to participate in any difficult task, undaunted by fire or water; and the boldness and courage to vigorously push ahead with any gigantic construction work by undertaking difficult work first are the features of our People's Army, which is contributing to socialist construction.

The soldiers of the People's Army who live and fight with such a martial spirit are the genuine revolutionaries of today and the Kim Kyoks of the 1980's. For our People's Army, which overcomes rugged hills and violent storms without fear, no construction work is impossible. Continuous innovations and continuous advances toward a greater target without knowing self-admiration in victory are the revolutionary traits always demonstrated by the soldiers of our People's Army in the historic struggle to accelerate the cause of gigantic creation and construction.

Heroism by soldiers should be displayed even in a moment's exploits as well as in long-term struggle. One should prevent the enemy's fire in a decisive battlefield by becoming a human bomb, and one should ceaselessly carry out one's revolutionary mission without minor stagnation and dullness in normal times. This is the temperament of a genuine revolutionary army.

Our People's Army is a heroic army which has embroidered the entire course of struggle with peerless exploits, cherishing such a temperament. The great monumental creations undertaken by the People's Army in the past were gigantic facilities that could not be completed merely by one or two campaigns or assaults. It was not easy at all to fight with the spirit of continuous innovations and continuous advance to complete such gigantic construction without the slighest stagnation and dullness. However, the soldiers of our People's Army did not know even a minor degree of self-admiration or an easy-going attitude but tenaciously struggled until it completed construction projects with an attitude worthy of masters toward the revolutionary mission, and with the lofty sense of responsibility and with invariable sincerity.

For the past 5 years, during which the construction of the Nampo Lockgate has been ongoing, constant miracles were effected every day and high speed was continuously ensured. This showed the lofty revolutionary spirit of the soldiers of the People's Army, who do not know stagnation or dullness. Such a gigantic construction project, which the people have termed a war without the boom of guns, has been pushed ahead and completed through such spirit and vigor.

Today our People's Army is vigorously demonstrating its disciplined strength and indomitable heroic spirit in effecting a new turning point in the struggle to achieve the cause of the nation's growth and development. The courageous and sagacious soldier-constructors are struggling, overflowing with the firm resolution and spirit of struggle to effect greater exploits than ever before in the construction of new power plants, land reclamation work, and construction of major plants.

Thanks to the heroic struggle of the People's Army, the might of our economy will be strengthened, the magnificent features of the prospering fatherland will be vigorously demonstrated, and the people's happiness will be further promoted. The noble revolutionary traits historically displayed by our People's Army in the struggle for socialist construction are based on the leadership of and the great trust by our party.

The party is the leader of the revolutionary army, and the army is the defender and protector of the party. The party and the army have always been united with each other in our revolution. Our party firmly believes in the might of the People's Army. Our party has fostered the People's Army, which is endlessly loyal to the fatherland and the revolution and which has a strong organizational nature and discipline, to be a unit capable of carrying out any task.

Our party's trust in the army is firm and unvarying in all circumstances and is a special one which deepens as time passes. It is the motive power which makes all the ranks -- from generals and officers to privates -- seeth with revolutionary zeal and which inspires them to peerless mass heroism. Indeed, never has there existed the situation in which the party has firmly trusted the revolutionary armed forces and depended on them while the army has tenaciously defended and protected the party politically and ideologically with its life and upheld the party as seen in our revolution. Thus, they have forged great blood ties with each other. Herein lies the decisive factor for our People's Army to become a contingent of heroic struggle and creation in the future, as it was in the past.

The decision of the soldiers of the People's Army to achieve the gigantic designs for socialist construction put forth by our party is firm and unshakable. Our People's Army will endlessly glorify the honor as the mighty combat unit for creation and construction in the future, too, under the wise leadership of the great party and the leader.

FURTHER ON NORTH PROPOSAL FOR TRIPARTITE TALKS

[Text] Washington, June 19 (YONHAP) -- The U.S. State Department Thursday rejected the north Korean proposal for a meeting of defense officials from south and north Koreas and U.S. Forces commander in Korea, saying "it is not constructive." Charles Redman, deputy spokesman for the department, said at Thursday's noon briefing that "we are not convinced that it is constructive to propose a new forum when a perfectly adequate mechanism to address reduction of tensions, with all the necessary players, has been in existence for more than thirty years." "The Military Armistice Commission (MAC) is the forum that is charged with overseeing the armistice," Redman said and called on north Korea to avail itself of these mechanisms and proposals for reducing tension.

He confirmed that on June 17, north Korean liaison officers at Panmunjom passed a letter signed by the north Korean defense minister and addressed to the commander-in-chief of the U.N. Command. In this letter and in a companion letter to south Korean Defense Minister Yi Ki-Paek, North Korea proposed three-way talks on ways of reducing tensions.

Stressing that the U.S. Government welcomes all efforts to reduce tensions on the Korean peninsula, Redman said it has long been "our view that contact between the two parties concerned south and north Korea remains key to reducing tensions." "Aside from supporting such direct efforts to reduce tensions, the U.N. command has put forward a number of proposals to reduce tensions at the MAC in Panmunjom, including those for advance notification of significant military exercises and exchange of observers," he said. "But, north Korea has studiously ignored our longstanding proposals in this forum." "We would regard as a positive development any north Korean move to resume the dialogue it suspended with south Korea last January and to address seriously the important proposals on the table at Panmunjom," he added.

Labeled Propaganda Ploy

[Editorial: "A letter from Pyongyang"]

[Text] It is without doubt that north Korea's proposal for three-way military talks among the defense ministers of south and north Korea and the commander in chief of the United Nations Command in Korea is just the latest in a series of propaganda ploys. Its propagandistic intention was made plain when Pyongyang's propaganda machine, including radio broadcasts and overseas news service, began publicizing the proposal with fanfare barely two hours after a letter containing the offer, signed by its defense minister, O Chin-u, and addressed to his south Korean counterpart, Yi Ki-paek, was delivered to the southern side, without even waiting for any reaction from the south.

This fact alone amply demonstrates that the Pyongyang regime is not really interested in talks with the south but only in propaganda. It is eager to project itself as the champion of peace in the eyes of the outside world, after having been blamed for unilateral suspension of all dialogue with the south early this year.

It wants to shift the blame to the south, especially in light of the forthcoming Nonaligned Summit Conference in Zimbabwe from Aug. 26 to Sept. 7 and an international conference on so-called nuclear-free Korea in Pyongyang Sept. 6-8.

Another of Pyongyang's objectives is the withdrawal of American forces from South Korea, the presence of which it regards as a major obstacle to its takeover of the south by force of arms. The Communist rulers in the north must be thinking that the recent emergence of anti-American sentiment among some left-leaning student activists renders conditions favorable for them to press hard for an American pullout.

Coming from the most militant Communist regime in the world, that has recently stepped up its military buildup with Soviet aid and deployed 65 percent of its offensive forces along the supposedly Demilitarized Zone, the proposal gives us cause to worry that Pyongyang may be secretly scheming an aggressive action against the south behind the smokescreen of peace gestures. This is what they did just before launching an all-out invasion 36 years ago this month and before staging a murderous bomb attack on the south Korean presidential party visiting Burma in October 1983.

If Pyongyang is truly interested in establishing peace on the Korean peninsula, it must desist from any propaganda tricks, resume the existing channels of inter-Korean dialogue and accept Seoul's repeated proposal for a summit meeting.

GOVERNMENT REVIEWS IOC PROPOSAL FOR SEOUL OLYMPICS

[Text] New York, June 19 (YONHAP) -- South Korea is "affirmatively" reviewing a proposal by the International Olympic Committee (IOC) that it allow two of the 1988 Seoul Olympics events to be held in north Korea. "To help create an atmosphere of reconciliation between south and north Korea, the Korean Government is affirmatively studying the IOC proposal and is believed to send a favorable reply to it," South Korean Unification Minister Pak Tong-chin said Thursday. Pak made the remarks to reporters following his meeting with United Nations Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar here.

IOC President Juan Samaranch, in an inter-Korean sports talks held recently in Lausanne, Switzerland, proposed that table tennis and archery and part of soccer matches be switched to north Korea and gave both Koreas until the end of June to make replies.

Pak said since an IOC congress awarded the 1985 Olympic Games to Seoul, the Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee is obliged to faithfully abide by the IOC charter and its spirit and that it has no obligation to share some of the events with north Korea. However, "in deference to the IOC president's dedicated efforts to make the coming Olympiad a success" as well as south Korea's desire to help create an atmosphere of reconciliation between south and north, the south Korean government is giving an affirmative consideration to the IOC suggestion, Pak said.

Touching on north Korea's announcement that it would sponsor an international conference in September on the removal of nuclear weapons from the Korean peninsula, Pak dismissed it as a "propaganda ploy." He said that the move apparently was intended for a nonaligned summit meeting scheduled for Zimbabwe late in September. He reminded that north Korea has plotted various schemes in the past -- all to no avail -- to have nonaligned meetings adopt a resolution on the Korean peninsula.

FOREIGN MATERIAL PATENT RIGHTS PROTECTED IN 1987

[Text] Seoul, June 18 (YONHAP) -- The South Korean Government opposes the retroactive protection of foreign material patent rights in Korea, which the United States has been pressing it to provide. The United States has requested that Korea grant material patent rights on manufacturing methods now under application and that some products carrying U.S. patents but not Korean patents be protected retroactively, the patent office reported Wednesday.

In a report submitted to the national assembly, the office said that the granting of pending material patents to manufacturing methods would expedite the protection of foreign material patent rights in Korea. Because materials that hold foreign patents contain no trade secrets, granting them Korean patents and protecting them retroactively in Korea would violate the principle of law, the office argued in the report.

If the government meets the U.S. requests, it will give greater protection to patent applications from third countries than to those from the United States, according to the office. The Korean Government plans to convey its position to the United States in future negotiations.

The office said that the government will begin protecting foreign material patent rights in July of next year. The protection will bring additional financial burdens to Korean businesses and will make them more dependent on foreign technologies, according to the report. It estimated that the financial burden resulting from the protective measures would total 10 million U.S. dollars annually, including royalties.

In reality, however, such adverse effects would not be apparent until after 1995 because it would take a long time for materials patented in foreign countries to receive Korean patents, to be produced in Korea and to be marketed in Korea. Moreover, the early protection of foreign material patent rights would encourage Korean firms to develop technologies on their own, according to the report.

PATENT ISSUE DISCUSSED AT U.S. TRADE TALKS

[Text] Discussion of retroactive protection of the U.S. intellectual property rights in Korea and the U.S. GSP favor to Korea have dominated the two-way, working-level trade talks between the two countries, which opened in Seoul yesterday. Ministry of Trade and Industry officials said yesterday that the U.S. side strongly called for the controversial retroactive protection of copyrights and patents on pharmaceuticals and agricultural chemicals. The U.S. request, however, was rejected by the Korean party, which asserted that the U.S. demand is in violation of international trade practices.

In the talks, Korea is represented by a 11-member delegation headed by Pak Un-son, director general of the International Trade Promotion Bureau of the ministry, while 12 U.S. delegates are led by Peter Allgeier, assistant U.S. trade representative.

According to the ministry officials, the United States has requested that Korea grant material patent rights on manufacturing methods currently being applied and that some products carrying U.S. patents but not Korean patents be protected retroactively.

The ministry officials said that if the government meets the U.S. request, it will give greater protection to patent applications from third countries than to those from the United States. The Korean government has already agreed with the United States to protect the foreign material patents here beginning July 1 next year. However, the problem of "retroactive protection" of the patents still remains unsolved. "If chemical compounds are allowed a patent beginning next year," the ministry officials said, "domestic production of any chemical compounds invented by a foreign country, will not be permitted without acquiring a license from the foreign country."

Under the current Patent Act of Korea, a chemical compound or substance is not granted a patent, which triggers a complaint from the United States. For example, when a patentee owns a "process (manufacturing) patent" in Korea, a production of the chemical compounds of substance invented by foreign countries will not constitute an infringement on the patent under the current patent act.

The protection of material patents, slated for July 1 next year, will bring an additional financial burden to Korean businesses and will make them more dependent on foreign technologies. The ministry estimated that such a financial burden would total $10 million annually, including royalties. In reality, however, such adverse effects would not be apparent until after 1995 because it would take a long time for materials patented in foreign countries to receive Korean patents, to be produced and marketed in Korea.

In the meantime, the U.S. delegates made it clear that the granting of U.S. GSP benefits will partly be tied to the efforts of Korea to open its market and to protect intellectual property rights including material patents. So far, Korea has been under heavy pressure from the U.S. party to open the market wider to U.S. beef, cigarettes and personal computers as soon as possible.

In 1984, the U.S. government decided to extend the effective period of the concessional tariff system (CSP) until June 1993. But Congress asked the administration to review it and tighten eligibility requirements for newly industrializing countries (NICS) including Korea. The review will be completed by next January. Analysts here say that the CSP has never enjoyed a broad-based political support in the United States. Many view the program as a unilateral giveaway that sacrifices the jobs of American workers.

In reply, the Korean delegates have reportedly said that given the original goal of the GSP which was to help developing countries through trade, not aid, the United States should bear in mind that any strict application of the reciprocity principle would likely be injurious to the economic program of developing nations and would clearly deviate from the original goal otthe GSP program.

Analysts said that should the U.S. government totally abolish the GSP favors to the Korean goods, an average 5 percent in additional tariffs would be levied on the Korean-made products. This will, in turn, take about $200 million worth off Korea's exports to the United States annually.

DEFICIT REPORTED WITH JAPAN, SURPLUS WITH U.S.

[Text] Seoul, June 20 (YONHAP) -- South Korea has been running up growing deficits in its trade with Japan, undercutting its efforts to shore up its balance-of-payments position. In the first five months of this year, the deficits reached 2.19 billion dollars, up 68.3 percent from the corresponding period of last year, the Trade and Industry Ministry reported Thursday.

During the January-March period, the deficits rose 66.7 percent from the same period of the last year, to 1.1 billion dollars, and during the April-May period, they totaled about 1 billion dollars.

The trend toward rising deficits in Korea's trade with the neighboring country is expected to continue for the rest of this year, according to the ministry. By the end of 1986, the total deficits could reach 4.5 billion dollars, up 50 percent from the figure recorded at the end of 1985, an official said.

Contributing to the growing deficits are increased import prices of Japanese-made machinery, parts and raw materials, coupled with Korea's increasing demand for the importation of Japanese capital goods, the official explained.

In its trade with the United States, however, Korea chalked up a surplus of 1.3 billion dollars at the end of March, up 80 percent from the corresponding period of last year. This year's surplus is expected to reach 5.9 billion dollars, compared with 4.27 billion dollars recorded in 1985 and 3.6 billion dollars in 1984. The growing surplus is likely to fuel protectionist sentiment in the United States against Korean-made goods and to prompt Washington to put more pressure on Korea to open its market, the official said.

In response to a question asked by a member of the major opposition New Korea Democratic Party (NKDP) in the National Assembly, No said that the president tries to meet as many people as possible, but that there are some people with whom it is difficult for Chon to meet because of their "political and legal status."

Before he made the charges in a meeting with reporters, he made a similar allegation in a meeting of assistant chairmen of the House standing committees of his party. DEFENSE MINISTRY ISSUES ARMY DAY MESSAGE

[Undated message of the PRK Defense Ministry to party, state, and mass organizations on the 35th anniversary of KPRAF's tradition day and Army-people solidarity day]

[Text] The time-honored tradition of struggle and combat of the KPRAF, successor to the Issarak army, under the correct leadership of the Indochinese Communist Party and the Khmer People's Revolutionary Party -- now the KPRP -- has been through untold tests and trials in a courageous struggle while closely joining hands with the people and cooperating in combat with the Vietnamese and Lao peoples and armies, successively fighting and defeating the French colonialists and U.S. imperialist aggressors.

For the independence, freedom, and happiness of the Cambodian people, although the traitorous Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan gang of Beijing expansionist-hegemonist anti-Marxist-Leninist stooges is continuing to nurture all kinds of designs and maneuvers to crush the revolutionary army and transform it into a cruel and savage tool for the massacre of the people, our revolutionary army under the direct leadership of the KPRP, born from the storm of hatred in the revolutionary struggle full of pure patriotism and profound proletarian internationalism, has fought and tempered itself in the roaring flames of revolutionary war and has grown daily in size and quality. To the present, the revolutionary army has continued to fight and successively vanquish all sabotage maneuvers and activities of the enemies of all stripes. Particularly, the resounding victory of the 1984-85 dry season inflicted the most damaging defeat to the enemies, driving them into a complete loss of mastery and into panic, weakness, and an unstoppable slide toward total collapse in the near future. By contrast, our revolution is advancing firmly and the cause of national defense and reconstruction is developing, gaining momentum, and winning growing stability with each passing day.

All these gains are due to the correct leadership of the KPRP; the bonds of militant solidarity between Cambodia and Vietnam; the important participation of the masses throughout the country in general; and the cooperation and contribution of the provinces, cities, ministries, offices, mass organizations, and the forces of the masses in particular.

Over the past 7 years, under the beacon of the resolutions of the fourth and fifth party congresses, which set forth the common strategic goal of the revolution, the provinces, cities, ministries, offices, and institutions at all levels as well as the mass organizations and Armed Forces have enthusiastically participated in the common effort to transform the party resolutions into concrete activities in the cause of defending and rebuilding the fatherland.

As for our people, they have offered their beloved children and husbands to serve in the Army; to build the national defense; and to set up militia forces to protect the villages, communes, and the borders of the beloved fatherland while opposing and overcoming all difficulties and complications and fulfilling all glorious tasks entrusted by the party and people. While doing so, a number of our combatants and workers have been injured, fallen ill, or died most valiantly. This is a sacrifice permeated with great honor and pure patriotism. The fatherland will never forget such a priceless sacrifice.

Availing ourselves of this opportunity, on behalf of the National Defense Ministry and the whole Armed Forces, we would like to express profound gratitude to the party organizations, state authorities, ministries, offices, provinces, cities, mass organizations, and the people throughout the country for sparing no efforts -- either material or moral -- to assist the Army and families of Army combatants, thus contributing to building and developing the KPRAF, enabling it to advance rapidly in close combat cooperation with the Vietnamese Army volunteers, to successfully assume national defense duties, and to control the border and the interior of the country. We would especially like to express gratitude to the families of fallen soldiers to war invalids, and to those who have rendered great services to the revolution for offering the flesh and blood of their loved ones for the cause of the nation, fatherland, and people.

We salute all comrades, friends, and beloved fraternal people. Although the enemies have experienced serious setbacks, the Beijing expansionists, in collusion with the imperialists and the Thai ruling circles, continue to feed and support the reactionary Cambodian groups to oppose the Cambodian revolution. Therefore, the whole party, people, and Armed Forces must make greater efforts to contribute to the emulation in implementing the common strategic tasks according to the resolutions set forth by the fourth and fifth party congresses; enhance combat readiness and fight to defend the localities and units; accelerate the production of crops and goods; increase the advantages of mastery both at the border and in the interior of the country; build true revolutionary forces; participate in building the Armed Forces as a core for the people in the attack against the enemy to defend the villages and communes; heighten the special Cambodia-Vietnam-Laos militant solidarity; and raise the level of cooperation with fraternal socialist countries, especially the Soviet Union.

To continue developing the priceless tradition of the Issarak Army, the regular, regional, and militia forces as a whole must pay chief attention to raising their own political quality so as to build the proeltarian character of the Army to deserve being an army of the people, by the people, and for the people.

On behalf of the National Defense Ministry, we would like to appeal to all party organizations, state authorities, ministries, offices, mass organizations, provinces, and cities to participate in the emulation to implement Circular No. 03 of the party Central Committee dealing with the motivation of the whole people into emulating to build the Armed Forces, strengthen national defense, promote the implementation of the bonds of alliance between the provinces and cities on the one hand and the brigades and divisions on the other, and correctly observe the rear policy to make the KPRAF strong and powerful, capable of fully ensuring the cause of national defense and reconstruction in a gradual advance toward socialism.

We appeal to the fraternal people throughout the country to participate actively in all national defense movements to build a strong national defense and to contribute to the movement to teach and encourage their children to serve in the revolutionary army to defend and perpetuate our beloved land of Angkor.

Once again, on behalf of the National Defense Ministry and the cadres and combatants of the whole Armed Forces, we would like to express profound gratitude to the party organizations, state authorities at all levels, ministries, offices, mass organizations, and the people throughout the country for giving all kinds of assistance and support to the Armed Forces, enabling them to carry out brilliantly the tasks entrusted by the party and people.

We thank the comrade Vietnamese experts at all levels for assisting and actively participating in our Cambodian revolutionary cause. We wish the provinces, cities, ministries, offices, regional armed forces, militiamen, and the people in general the best of health and more and greater successes in implementing the resolutions of the fourth and fifth party congresses. We wish the families of the fallen soldiers, war invalids, and those who have rendered great service to the revolution the best of health so that they remain good examples for the people of their respective localities. May the bonds of alliance between the provinces and cities and the brigades and divisions grow and develop firmly.

Heng Samrin Addresses Meeting

BK191401 Phnom Penh SPK in English 1128 GMT 19 Jun 86

[Text] Phnom Penh SPK June 19 -- Heng Samrin, general secretary of the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea and president of the State Council made a speech at the meeting in Phnom Penh Thursday morning in honour of the 35th tradition day of the People's Revolutionary Armed Forces of Kampuchea and the 35th Army-People solidarity day (June 19).

After welcoming the presence of the military delegations from Cuba, Laos, the Soviet Union and Vietnam, President Heng Samrin said that this was a great honour and an encouragement to the Kampuchean Army and people. Heng Samrin said that in Kampuchea under the leadership of the Khmer section of the Indochinese Communist party, the Kampuchean Armed Forces on June 19, 1951 were merged into Khmer "Issarak Army". This is a new army led by the party, an army of the peoples of the two fraternal countries of Vietnam and Laos, our Army successfully defeated the French colonialists and the U.S. imperialists.

After the victory over the U.S. imperialists, the Kampuchean Revolutionary Armed Forces should have together with the people built our country and our new life along the path toward socialism. On the contrary, the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan Clique -- lackeys of the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists -- betrayed Marxism-Leninism and the Kampuchean nation, destroying all the Revolutionary gains and pushing the country into an uprecedented tragedy of genocide. Then, they turned the Kampuchean Pary into a repressive force for cruelly slaughtering their own people.

Thanks to the timely and precious assistance and support form the fraternal Vietnamese Army and people, The Kampuchean revolutionaries and combatants closely united in their uprising and overthrew the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan genocidal regime, thus completely liberating the Angkor land on January 7, 1979.

Since then, our Army and people have continued fighting and gradually defeating all enemy schemes and acts of sabotage. Especially in the 1984-85 dry season, our Army and people destroyed and seized all strongholds of the Khmer reactionaries along the Kampuchean-Thai border, thus facilitating the steady development of our Army as well as our national defence and construction.

The enemies are weakening and will certainly meet with inevitable and complete defeat.

He also recalled the experiences of the kampuchean Army, praised the spirit of proletarian internationalism of the Vietnamese volunteers, and expressed profound thanks to the communist party, the government, the people and the heroic Armed Forces of Vietnam and to the parties, the governments, the peoples and the Armies of Laos, the Soviet Union, Cuba and all other fraternal socialist countries for their support and assistance to the Kampuchean revolution.

On the situation in Southeast Asia and the world he said: "In the past eight years Kampuchea is still a hot spot in South East Asia. The international situation remains tense and complicated due to the bellicose policy of the U.S. imperialists who are obstinately steping up the arms race, opposing the socialist countries and checking the national liberation and peace movements the world over.

"We warmly acclaim and fully support all the peace initiatives of the Soviet Union and the communique issued by the political consultative committee conference of Warsaw Treaty countries on June 11, 1986 in Budapest.

"The Beijing expansionists and hegemonists working hand in glove with the U.S. imperialists and other international reactionary forces and the Thai ruling circles are sticking to their insane policy towards the three Indochinese countries and the world revolution".

He called upon the entire Revolutionary Armed Forces to promote the spirit of self-reliance in line with the international solidarity, particularly the Kampuchea-Vietnam special friendship and solidarity, a main factor to ensure the defence of the motherland.

... The great victory obtained in the 1984-85 dry season by our Army and people created a turning point of strategic importance in our country's revolution. It has shown more clearly that the Kampuchean revolutionary forces are getting stronger and stronger while the enemy forces are declining, and that the Kampuchean situation is irreversible.

Though the enemies have suffered from bitter defeats the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists, teaming up with the U.S. imperialists and the ultra-rightists in the Thai ruling circles, have resorted to all plots and tricks in order to destroy the Kampuchean revolution and impede our advance. They still continue to foster the Khmer reactionaries in an attempt to perpetrate another war of aggression against Kampuchea and to overthrow our revolutionary power...

We are determined to defeat all enemy schemes and acts of opposing the people's revolutionary cause. The Revolutionary Armed Forces of Kampuchea are capable of accomplishing all from the entire people, the strong support and assistance from fraternal socialist countries and progressive people the world over, and because they have been backed by the special Kampuchea-Vietnam-Laos militant alliance and solidarity....

LAO AMBASSADOR SUMMONED TO RECEIVE PROTEST

BK191235 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1030 GMT 19 Jun 86

["Special report on measures taken by the Thai Government over the violation of Thai sovereignty and territorial integrity by Lao forces"]

[Excerpt] The Thai Government has taken two kinds of measures to deal with the Lao attack. Its Foreign Ministry has instructed the Thai permanent mission at the United Nations in New York to submit a protest note to the UN secretary general and to circulate the document at the UN General Assembly and the UN Security Council. It also has instructed the Thai permanent mission in Geneva to inform the UN Human Rights Commission of the incident. On 19 June, the Lao Ambassador was summoned to receive an aide memoire on Thailand's protest over the incident. The aide memoire contains the following major points.

On 14 June 1986 at 2120, 40 LPDR troops crossed the border, penetrating about 10 km to Thailand in Ban Huai Pong, Tambon Romyen, Chiang Khan District, Phayao Province. They fired on the shelters of 142 Lao immigrants taking refuge in the area. Before retreating, they took the immigrants' property and set the shelters ablaze. As a result of the attack by the LPDR soldiers, 35 Lao -- 6 men, 11 women, 15 boys, and 3 girls — were killed, and 18 others were wounded.

The Lao soldiers' unprovoked intrusion up to 10 km into Thai territory constitutes a blatant violation of Thailand's sovereignty and territorial integrity. It indicates that the act was planned in advance and carefully executed. This shows that Laos has discarded the principles of international law. The Lao soldiers' intrusion was directed against the shelters of the Lao immigrants taking refuge in Thailand from war. Lao soldiers resorted to atrocities and brutality, heedless of the lives of a large number of innocent children. Such a crime violates the principles of human rights and humanitarianism. The Thai Government protests this infringement upon Thailand's territory and strongly condemns the act of the LPDR Armed Forces, which violates the principles of peaceful coexistence and the UN Charter. The Lao Government is held responsible for the losses. The Thai Government, meanwhile, calls upon the Lao Government to refrain absolutely from such acts, otherwise the Thai Government reserves its legitimate right to take retaliatory measures to defend its national sovereignty and protect the lives and property of peole in Thailand.

The incident contradicts the Lao Government's proposal for meetings and discussions between the two countriesto normalize bilateral relations. It once again proves Laos' insincerity concerning its own proposal.

Following the meeting at the Foreign Ministry between Lao Ambassador to Thailand Khamphan Simmalavong and Director General of the Political Department M.R. Thep Thewakun this morning, Director General of the Information Department Sawanit Khongsiri, in his capacity as Foreign Ministry spokesman, held a press conference to report that the Lao ambassador was summoned for a meeting with the director general of the Political Department to receive a protest over the 10-km intrusion into Thailand and the brutal massacre of a number of Lao immigrants taking refuge in Thailand. He said the director general of the Political Department stressed two points to the Lao ambassador to Thailand.

First, Lao soldiers violated Thailand's sovereignty by making the 10-km cross-border intrusion. Second, he pointed out the atrocities the Lao soldiers committed against their Lao compatriots inside Thailand, again violating Thailand's sovereignty. The Lao ambassador to Thailand denied the Lao soldiers' involvement in the incident. But the director general of the Political Department confirmed to him that Thailand has proof that the incident was certainly committed by Lao soldiers. He presented photographs to the Lao ambassador. The latter accepted the photographs. The director general of the Political Department asked the Lao ambassador to report the matter to the Lao Government and to call on it to refrain from such acts. Director General of the Political Department M.R. Thep Thewakun stressed to the Lao ambassador to Thailand that Laos' act contradicts the Lao leaders' declaration that Laos wants good relations with Thailand. It also conflicts with the joint Thai-Lao statement signed in 1979 in which both countries pledged not to resort to violence or armed operations but to make efforts to establish a peaceful atmosphere along the Thai-Lao border. The Laos action constitutes a violation of the Thai-Lao joint declaration.

ARMY RADIO DISCUSSES LAO ATTACK ON REFUGEES

BK191200 Bangkok First Army Division Radio in Thai 2300 GMT 18 Jun 86

["Sayamanusati" Feature]

[Text] While we were dwelling in election-related activities, several papers on 17 June ran headlines saying: Lao refugee village victim of atrocity. The reports said some 30 Lao soldiers intruded into Chiang Kham District, Phayao Province and massacred some 35 Lao refugees. The reports are accurate and have been substantiated by many sources. It is also a fact Thailand continues to be the victim of occasional acts of harassment and threats from Laos and Cambodia. We feel it would not be right to ignore this incident simply to focus on the election, and so we present our listeners with the following article:

Regarding the aforementioned headline, it follows that among the killed Lao refugees were children, women, and old people. The Lao soldiers also set fire to the settlement of Lao refugees before retreating back to Laos. The governor of Phayao reported the incident to the Interior Ministry on 16 June. The police chief of Phayao reported to Newsmen that at about 2120 on 14 June the temporary settlement of 23 Lao families who had fled to Thailand for a better life was attacked by Lao soldiers whose motive was probably to punish them for fleeing to Thailand.

Reports about this kind of Indochinese communist behavior are quite regular. What we want to discuss is why does the Lao administration treat Lao people this way? What is the reason for its regular harassment along the Thai border, at a time when Thailand has tried to compromise to avoid tension by giving assistance to Laos whenever possible in a brotherly manner? Why has Laos not reciprocated Thailand's good will by refraining from violating Thai sovereignty and territorial integrity? Another question is why has Thailand persisted in using the compromise approach when the Lao administration has not shown any good will toward it? Why does Thailand not punish Laos?

First, we feel that Laos cannot reciprocate Thailand's good will and friendly attitude no matter how badly it may want to do so because the Lao Government is communist and belongs to the Vietnam-USSR camp. It must obey all instructions from the camp master regardless of whether or not it is willing. We believe, however, that the Lao administration would not perpetrate atrocities against Lao people or provoke Thailand if it had the freedom to make its own decisions. However, because the Lao administration has enslaved itself, it must follow directions from its master.

Second, the Lao Government let itself be deceived into joining Vietnam's Indochinese Federation policy, or the so-called Ho Chi Minh dream. Ho Chi Minh dreamed about establishing an Indochinese Federation with Vietnam at its core. This federation envisaged the entire Indochinese territory and 17 northeastern Thai provinces under Vietnamese control. The Vietnamese generations that followed Ho Chi Minh, such as Pham Van Dong, Nguyen Co Thach, and so forth, have pursued this dream.

Listeners, communists do not change a policy easily once it is set, but will continuously try to achieve the goal regardless of how long it might take. Now that the Lao administration has been deceived and traveled so far along this evil scheme, it has become the sharp end of the spear whose handle Vietnam holds to stab at Thailand regularly. It is fortunate for Thailand in that Vietnam has not been able to completely occupy Cambodia. Cambodia would become the point of another spear stabbing at Thailand if Vietnam should ever gain complete control. We can hardly blame the spear points because they simply point in the direction that their holders want. If we use our spears to stab back, they would crush the rival spears -- Laos and Cambodia -- and that would not be the proper solution to the problem. The proper solution is for us to come to an agreement with the spear holder so it will not stab us.

On the question of why Thailand does not punish Laos, we want to explain it this way. Laos is merely the end of the spear which is held by someone who can point it in any direction. For this reason, it would not be right to punish Laos. The most important thing is that we must distinguish between the Lao people and the Lao Government. Listerners know that a communist government is not a government of the people, for the people, or by the people. The Lao Government is a government by Vietnam, for Vietnam, and of Vietnam. The majority of Lao people are not communists but are victims of dictatorial administration under control of the Vietnamese. They can do nothing lest they would be killed. Even after they successfully fled across the Mekong River to Thailand they became victims of the latest cross-border Lao raid.

Some listeners may note huge demonstrations by Lao people in support of the Lao Government whenever disputes occur bvetween Thai and Lao governments. This should not surprise you. In a communist administration, people can be mobilized to do anything except live and eat well. You can see that people along both banks of the Mekong River have continued to maintain close bonds of friendship because the Lao people there are not communists. Not doctrine can destroy this friendship. For this reason, Thai punishment of Laos is not the correct solution. The correct solution lies in the use of political measures toward Vietnam. In the meantime, we must use restraint and justd push out the intruders.

SIAM RAT DESCRIBES CONDITIONS IN PHNOM PENH

WA200001 [Editorial Report] The Thai language daily SIAM RAT on page 3 of its 1-7 June 1986 Sunday edition carries an 1,100-word news feature written by its regular foreign affairs commentator Chaiwat Yonpiam describing conditions in Phnom Penh. The author says that although the city still shows signs of neglect experienced during the Khmer Rouge era and that the 2100 curfew is an indicator of the divsions and guerrilla warfare the country still faces, "it is still a beautiful city...with much more joie de vivre than the other Indochina capitals." The article described abundantly stocked markets and French restaurants patronized not only by foreign relief workers, but also by ordinary Cambodians. The writer noted the movie theaters showed films from socialist countries, "but even more popular are private video showings for which a viewing fee is charged on special occasions like weddings". The article ends with the observation that temples and schools, which had been abolished by the Khmer Rouge, are once again operating, albeit with a shortage of qualified teachers for the schools.

SITTHI CONFIRMS PREM'S STATEMENT ON VIHEAR

[Text] Commenting on the view expressed by Prime Minister Gen Prem Tinsulanon that Mount Phra Vihear belongs to Thailand and Thailand wants it back, Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila told reporters on 6 June that CGDK President Prince Norodom Sihanouk once said that Thailand should share the ownership of it with Cambodia in case CGDK has success in its struggle for national liberation. "If the CDGK wins, the situation may change and a share in the ownership of the mount could be brought up for later negotiations, the deputy prime minister and foreign minister said.

Air Chief Marshal Sitthi said that, from a geographical point of view, Mount Phra Vihear should belong to Thailand. Anyway, Thailand lost it by the World Court's ruling because it had signed a map treaty.

Asked about the possibility of amending the treaty, which is unfair to Thailand, and trying to regain the mount, Air Chief Marshal Sitthi said the matter must wait until the situation in Cambodia is settled first.

On 5 June Prime Minister Gen Prem visited Sisaket Province and talked with villagers about the question of Mount Phra Vihear. He stressed to the people that the mount belongs to Thailand and Thailand wants it back.

TRUONG CHINH SPEECH AT HANDICRAFT EXHIBIT

OW151001 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 11 Jun 86

["Text" of speech by Truong Chinh, member of the CPV Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the SRV Council of State, at the exhibition of small industry and handicraft products in Hanoi on 9 June 1986 -- read by announcer]

[Text] Dear Comrades: I warmly acclaim Vietnam's small industry and handicraft sector for making important contributions to our country's economy during the years of the resistance wars against France and the United States and especially during the past 10 years of socialist construction and defense of the Vietnamese socialist fatherland.

The value of Vietnam's small industry and handicraft products accounts for 45 percent of that of its industrial, small industry, and handicraft products. In terms of consumer goods alone, their value accounts for nearly two-thirds of the total value of industrial consumer goods for domestic use.

The small industry and handicraft sector has created jobs for 1,600,000 laborers while worthily contributing to exports, achieving nearly 20 percent of the counry's total export value in 1985.

Welcome to the first national contest of arts and crafts products sponsored by the Vietnam Union of Small Industry and handicraft Cooperatives and the Vietnam Plastic Art Workers Association!

I hope that you comrades will continue to properly organize more contests, develop the strength of the small industry and handicraft sector, and contribute to restoring and developing other sectors and occupations as well as the production of our nation's traditional products under your state-assigned management.

In visiting the hall exhibiting your products selected for the national contest, I am gladly aware of our people's extremely great capabilities, which, if properly exploited, will worthily contribute to effecting changes in our national economy in the years ahead. I hope and believe that these great capabilities will be fully developed.

Our still poor country, with its underdeveloped production, is currently in the initial stage of transition to socialism while advancing directly from the state of small prodution to socialism while bypassing the stage of capitalist development. For this reason, Vietnam's small industry and handicraft sector plays an important role and bears a heavy, yet glorious responsibility.

We must continue to develop trades and occupations, pay attention to restoring and developing traditional occupations, improve the quality of existing products, produce new goods, and fully exploit the present conditions in equipment, materials, energy, local raw materials, and discarded materials to turn out larger quantities and vast assortments of better quality goods at lower manufacturing costs while achieving increasingly high productivity, output, and efficiency. We must produce goods in abundance in order to barter with our peasants for grain and other farm products, satisfy the people's diverse needs, contribute to implementing the basic socialist economic laws, and meet the laboring people's increasing material and cultural needs.

We must strive to develop our national potential from the urban to the rural areas, arouse large numbers of workers to take part in production, and secure jobs for millions of laborers at present and in the coming 5 years. These vast problems must be solved satisfactorily in order to fully use our valuable labor potential, properly develop the talents of highly skilled artisans, and create excellent and unique goods showing the high creativity of our plastic art workers.

It is necessary to properly organize the formation and training of artisans for future generations. We must develop trades and occupations in the cities and towns as well as in the countryside, and fully make all idle peasants produce large quantities of goods.

In the years ahead, if our country's industry may not develop vigorously enough and our state may be unable to engage many people in the state-operated area, part of our laborers may be motivated to go and build new economic zones. Meanwhile, we must create jobs in the small industry and handicraft sector. There must be a correct policy of boosting production, and coordination between the state providing jobs and laborers creating jobs for themselves, in accordance with policies and laws.

The small industry and handicraft sector must contribute to further increasing the sources and quantities of export goods, strive to raise productivity and product quality, gradually coordinate handicrafts with small industry, and use more equipment and machines. Wherever conditions permit the production of a certain article, we must boldly apply modern technology and coordinate handicrafts with semimechanization and mechanization as well as rudimentary means with semimodern and modern means. We must advance from piecemeal production to mass production, gradually move from small-scale to large-scale production, rapidly increase output, and produce good quality goods.

In the course of production, you should coordinate with the Vietnam Plastic Art Workers Association in constantly making studies so as to produce new articles, meet consumers' needs and preferences, and maintain and raise the reputation of our Vietnamese products on the world market. You should strive to achieve an increasingly high export value and increasingly high effectiveness in order to worthily contribute, in the initial stage of the transition period, to leading our country out of backwardness and poverty so as to steadily advance to socialism. To this end, you must satisfactorily implement the eighth party Central Committee plenum resolution by gradually eliminating centralism, bureaucratism, and subsidization and applying the socialist trade accounting system. Conditions for the small industry and handicraft sector to realize this are somewhat more favorable, because it is less bound to these various restrictive systems than the state-operated sector. This does not mean that it lacks complicated problems. The old management system characterized by centralism, bureaucratism, and subsidization still impedes our nation's economic activities, even in the small industry and handicraft sector.

The Political Bureau of the party Central Committee recently issued resolution No 306 ensuring the autonomy of primary economic units in production and business operations. This resolution deals in part with collective economy. You should study this resolution carefully to implement it properly. You should propose to the state some appropriate policies and regulations concerning the small industry and handicraft sector.

Small industry and handicraft production is related to many other sectors and to all localities. Those sectors concerned must help the small industry and handicraft sector and create conditions for it to develop.

Localities must closely guide this sector in local production. It is necessary to streamline intervillage organizations at all levels so that they can fulfill their duties as organs in charge of managing this sector in accordance with the eighty party Central Committee plenum resolution.

Since we are advancing to socialism from a very low starting point, we must seek by all means to strongly develop the production forces and to constantly increase production strength. At the same time, we must constantly consolidate and strengthen production relations and make them consistent with the nature and level of production forces at all stages so that they can develop their impact and spur production forces to further develop in the advance of socialism.

We must concentrate on constantly carrying out the socialist transformation of the small industry and handicraft sector in appropriate ways and stages and in accordance with the motto of transforming it and putting it to better use. Socialist transformation must be aimed at developing production without impeding the correct development of production forces.

The party and state have assigned you the task of mangaging an important and pretty complex link of our economy. This is a collective economic sector, one of the components of the socialist economy, with its various levels such as cooperatives and production cooperative teams, and of the private individual economy, in which many artisans practice numerous and varied traditional occupations. For this reason, it is very important to achieve socialist transformation and to consolidate and strengthen the new production relations in this sector.

To harmoniously ensure the interests of the entire society, collectives, and laboring people, you should intensify the education of members of cooperatives and production teams as well as of individual producers, to make them engage in production with enthusiasm, develop all their capabilities, constantly improve their professional skills. Their love for the country and socialism should be manifested by providing to the state increasingly large quantities of high quality goods at reasonable manufacturing costs and by scrupulously complying with all policies and laws.

You must make everyone aware of the fine qualities of our people, namely of doing business seriously and honestly, of emulating the superior qualities of laborers, and preserving one's prestige as well as the reputation of the collective and the entire country, especially in the production of export goods.

We will encourage and acclaim those who do business honestly and legitimately, study diligently, strive to raise their knowledge, develop technical improvement innovations, turn out good quality products and new articles needed by society, comply with policies and laws scrupulously, and are therefore moderately well off.

On the other hand, we must resolutely oppose and punish those who do illegal business, cheat, steal, pilfer, produce bad quality and fake goods to deceive the state and consumers, violate policies, and dodge laws. These people must be expelled from the ranks of laborers in the small industry and handicraft sector to prevent them from blackening its reputation.

To vigorously develop the small industry and handicraft sector, it is necessary to erase the prejudices against those working in the state-operated sector. According to a prevalent view, to enjoy glory one must be assigned to the state-operated sector. This is an erroneous view. Uncle Ho taught that labor means glory. Anyone, whether inside or outside the state-operated sector, who works diligently and enthusiastically, produces many goods for society, observes policies, laws, and discipline seriously, deserves glory. It is a most glorious task to labor in production and fight for national defense.

Whether inside or outside the state-operated sector, those who are parasites, embezzlers, thiefs, and lazy laborers and who are against policies and laws must be condemned and punished.

It is necessary to encourage, help, and create conditions for those working in the collective sector to compete with the entire people in building socialism and defending the socialist fatherland.

To satisfactorily implement these tasks, you should coordinate with the local party committee echelons and mass organizations and strive to consolidate and strengthen the party installations in the collective economic sector; strengthen the mass organizations, especially the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union; and ensure thorough party leadership over the entire sector.

I have dealt here with only a few important points, which I hope you will study and apply. On this occasion, I convey, through you, my solicitous regards to all workers of the nation's small industry and handicraft sector. I hope that this sector will develop the tradition of loving the country and socialism and strive to score still greater achievements.

I hope that the comrade leaders of the sector will satisfactorily fulfill all tasks entrusted by the party and state and will contribute to developing our country's small industry and handicraft sector.

EDITORIAL LAUDS KPRAF ON 35TH ANNIVERSARY

[NHAN DAN 19 June editorial: "Congratulations to the KPRAF"]

[Text] On 19 June 1931 -- 35 years ago -- the Issarak Army, which is today's KPRAF, was founded in accordance with a decision made by the Cambodian Provisional National Liberation Central Committee headed by Comrade Son Ngoc Minh. The 35 years of glorious combat and victories of the KPRAF have entered during the history of the Cambodian Revolution. For over 7 years, the KPRAF which has inherited the fine nature and traditions of the Issarak Army -- led, educated, and trained by the KPRP, a genuine Marxist-Leninist party -- has quickly reached maturity.

This is an army that comes from the people, entertains a flesh-and-blood relationship with the people, fights for the people, and joins the people in creating an invincible strength for defending the fatherland. It is a revolutionary army imbued with a high degree of fighting spirit, a valiant determination to overcome difficulties and hardships, and readiness to make contributions and sacrifices for the fatherland and the people. It is also an army that maintains militant solidarity, a special relationship and close alliance with the people's armies of fraternal Laos and Vietnam, as well as the armies of the Soviet Union and other socialist countries.

Its members, being elite sons and brothers of the Cambodian laboring people, serve as the firm backbone of the movement to fight for national defense. Together with the people, it has defeated all the schemes of sabotage by Polpotist army remnants and other Khmer reactionary forces to safeguard the revolutionary gains that were achieved with the blood of tens of thousands of Cambodian cadres and soldiers as well as millions of patriotic Cambodians killed by the genocidal regime of Pol Pot -- Beijing's henchman.

Today, our armed forces and people greatly rejoice over the comprehensive growth and resounding exploits of the KPRAF in recent years. During the memorable 1984-85 dry season, the Cambodian armed forces and people, acting in coordination with Vietnamese army volunteers, wiped out the whole network of bases set up by the Pol Pot army remnants and other Khmer reactionary forces along the Cambodian-Thai border, thus weakening them and creating a new stance and a new strength for the Cambodian revolution.

Following this glorious victory, the KPRAF again joined the people across the country in scoring a new feat -- settingup the Cambodian-Thai border defense line while boosting the strength of the revolution nationwide. The KPRAF today comprises many armed services. Both its regular and local forces as well as the militia and guerrilla forces and the people's public security forces have taken big steps forward and are capable of gradually taking over the duty of defending the fatherland. This has been demonstrated by the five withdrawals of Vietnamese army volunteers as agreed upon by the PRK and the SRV.

The great achievements recorded over the years by the People's Revolutionary Armed Forces and people of Cambodia have greatly contributed to increasing the revolutionary strength and militant alliance of the three Indochinese countries' armed forces and peoples and positively helped consolidate peace and security in Southeast Asia and the rest of the world.

The Chinese expansionists and hegemonists, acting hand in glove with U.S. imperialism and other reactionary forces, are frenziedly pursuing a policy of hostility against the PRK and the three Indochinese countries as a whole and are plotting to reimpose the genocidal regime on Cambodia. For this very reason, the KPRP's Fifth Congress clearly set forth the primary strategic task of the Cambodian party, armed forces, and people as follows: it is necessary to always uphold vigilance, high determination, and great efforts to defend the fatherland and safeguard the fruits of the revolution.

The cause of the KPRAF is still very demanding but extremely glorious. Our people and armed forces are very proud to have the fraternal KPRAF as their loyal comrade and militant friend. Standing shoulder to shoulder for decades, they have defeated one enemy after another and shared weal and woe. We deeply note the great, extremely valuable support and assistance accorded by the Cambodian people and the KPRAF to our people's revolutionary cause. Our people and armed forces pledge to closely join the Cambodian people and armed forces in the struggle against the common enemy to firmly safeguard the sacred fruits of the Cambodian revolution and protect the independence, sovereignty, and peaceful construction efforts of each people; and to do their best to make the great, special militant solidarity between Vietnam and Cambodia as well as among Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos last forever.

On this great festive day of the KPRAF, our armed forces and people respectfully wish the KPRAF even more glorious achievements in training, combat, and other work activities and join the entire people in successfully implementing the resolution of the KPRP's fifth Congress so as to bring the Cambodian people's revolutionary cause to new heights of success.

While meeting with Mining and Energy Minister Subroto, the visiting junior minister said he agreed with the need to raise oil prices in the international market and to reduce oil production.

SUHARTO COMMENTS ON FUTURE OF NUCLEAR ENERGY USE

BK191315 Jakarta Domestic Service in Indonesian 1200 GMT 19 Jun 86

[Excerpts] At the Bina Graha Presidential Office in Jakarta this afternoon, Chairman of the Supreme Advisory Council M. Panggabean exchanged views with President Suharto and offered additional information on the council's recommendations, which had been submitted to the president some time ago. Speaking to newsmen afterwards, Panggabean disclosed that the recommendations covered, among other issues political indoctrination to promote the growth of Pancasila democracy.

As for the future construction of a nuclear plant in Indonesia, the chairman of the Supreme Advisory Council quoted the head of state as saying that construction depends on national needs and timing. If Indonesia wishes to progress, there is no choice but to do so with industrial development. Various energy resources in the country will be used, and if they are insufficient to support industrial development, nuclear power will be the alternative. The president stressed that Indonesia must make efforts to remove or minimize the possibility of radiation leakage, such as occurred recently in many countries, including the Soviet Union.

LEADERS DENY ENRILE DISMISSAL, COUP REPORT

[Capitalized passages spoken in Tagalog]

[Text] President Corazon Aquino, her Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, and AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] Chief of Staff General Fidel Ramos denied the reports that Enrile has been dismissed and there is a planned military coup. The president and the two other top leaders of the country made the denial in separate statements yesterday [19 June]. President Aquino said the rumors could be the handiwork of deposed President Marcos and her [as heard] supporters. For added details, here is FEBC correspondent Al Dovar:

[Begin recording] [Dovar] President Corazon Aquino today said that everything is well in the country. She scotched reports of a military coup d'etat, which she said could be the handiwork of deposed President Ferdinand Marcos and his followers. She also said that Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile did not walk out of yesterday's cabinet meeting, but had to leave before the session ended for a speaking engagement with the council of churches.

She told reporters in an interview that everything is well. She sleeps well and she eats very well, but whatever it is, all is really proceeding even better than what she expected it to be. [sentence as heard]

[Aquino] Everything is very well. I sleep very well and eat very well, so THIS IS PROBABLY THE DOING OF MARCOS, so let him have his little fun; but I think that's enough for that.

[Unidentified voice] This is information confirmed?

[Aquino] I guess so. MARCOS IS VERY USED TO THAT. It's either disinformation or misinformation, but whatever it is, all is proceeding better than what I expected it to be.

[Dovar] Meanwhile, Gen Fidel Ramos, new Armed Forces chief of staff, described reports of a military coup as pure fantasy, speculation, and exaggeration. Gen Ramos, who was in Malacanang to attend a meeting with representatives of political prisoners, also said Minister Enrile would say the same thing about the reports. He added that Enrile would certainly support what President Aquino had said about everything in the country being under control. [end recording]

AQUINO ADDRESSES UNIVERSITY ANNIVERSARY CEREMONY

[Text] President Corazon C. Aquino last night assured the University of the Philippines [UP] community that she will listen and be responsive to its criticisms.

"(The new government's) windows are open to catch fresh wind carrying both condemnation and constructive suggestion from the corridors of UP," she told UP faculty members and officers led by UP president Edgardo J. Angara at the celebration of its 78th anniversary yesterday.

During ceremonies held at the Asian Institute of Tourism, the President said while she is now a member of the establishment, she is aware of the "venerable tradition, the life force the saving grace, that is our irrepressible UP."

She called UP "the problem no Philippine president has managed to solve; not even its (UP's) illustrious sons have escaped villification."

Since it was founed on June 18, 1908, the UP has always seen and denounced flaws in government. Its criticisms and prescriptions have taken an increasingly radical direction to reach a peak in the Marcos era, the President noted.

Speaking of that era, the President said "violent revolution had been offered as the only effective remedy to an exploitative and self-serving regime."

In the latter years, however, she said she detected in the UP a no-less powerful alternative to tyranny and suffering quietly sweeping the campus," a breath of the fresh wind of non-violent change that blew into the sails of our yellow revolution."

Under the new dispensation, what now lies ahead for UP, what judgment will it make, what pressures will it exert on the fledgling government that is now viewed by the university as the establishment, the president wondered.

She said she cannot presume that her administration, unlike past administration will escape the harshest scrutiny of the university. However, "just as I had convinced myself to accept that I am now on the establishment's side (at least one that endeavors to be just) I have also prepared myself to listen and to be responsive to criticisms," the President said.

The President recognized that ideas emanating from the UP has served "not to upset but to balance the government." She assured the UP community that while her government may be separate from the university, "it will not be insulated from it."

AQUINO ORDERS SPEEDY RELEASE OF DETAINEES

[Text] President Aquino yesterday ordered the Justice Ministry and the military to speed up the relase of remaining political detainees still languishing in jail. She issued the order to Justice Minister Neptali Gonzales, Presidential spokesman Rene Saguisag, and General Fidel Ramos, AFP chief of staff.

The president's order followed a meeting with leaders of cause-oriented groups, tasks Forces Detainees, Kapatid [Kapisanan sa Pagpapalaya ng Detenidong Pulitikal -- Association for the Release of Political Detainees], Selda [Samahan ng Mga ex-Detainees Laban sa Detensyon at Para sa Amnestiya -- Coalition of Ex-detainees Against Detention and for Amnesty] [word indistinct], Martyr, Ecumenical Movement for Justice and for Peace, and the Philippine Alliance for Human Rights Advocates.

CON-COM RESOLUTION ON DETAINEES, FOREIGN LOANS

[Text] The Constitutional Commission's [Con-Com] committee on the Bill of Rights yesterday decided to incorporate in the new charter the principle of recognizance to give poor detainees freedom pending resolution of their cases. The committee was taking up resolution No 4, introduced by Commissioner Hilario Davide Jr, which would expand the guaranteed rights of citizens.

The committee agreed to adopt the recognizance contract following explanation by Commissioner Teodulo Natividad, the former National Police Commission chairman, that only 15 percent of all detained persons are convicted, while 85 percent are later found innocent. The 85 percent languish in jail because they are too poor to post bail. Recognizance is the release of prisoner on his promise to return, usually upon guarantee of individual or organization.

In another move, the Constitutional commission executive committee yesterday decided to invite the government economic managers to help clip the president's foreign borrowing powers. The move followed the filing of a resolution by opposition members of the Con-Com led by former labor minister Blas Ople. One resolution provides that the president may not contract and guarantee foreign loans on behalf of the republic without the prior concurrence of the monetary authorities and with due notice to the legislature. A similar resolution suggests the government should first determine its capabilities to pay as well as secure authority from the legislature before incurring such borrowings or loans.

OPLE WARNS GOVERNMENT AGAINST BREAK WITH ENRILE

OPPOSITION PARTIES TO UNIFY FOR ELECTIONS

[Text] Three opposition parties unanimously agreed yesterday to unify and organize an entirely new party under a new name.

The leaders of the KBL, the Partido Nacionalista ng Pilipinas [PNP], and the Group of Independents, in a meeting at the Manila Polo Club, agreed that the opposition would face disaster in the local elections proposed to be held in November unless they quickly heal the misunderstanding between them.

Obviously absent from the meeting was the Nacionalista Party [NP], identified with former MP Rene Cayetano, a known associate of Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile.

The Group designed former MP Jose Rono to establish immediate liaison with the leaders of the NP. Among those who met were former Speaker Nicanor Yniguez, president of the KBL; Arturo M. Tolentino, titular head of the KBL; PNP acting chairman Blas Ople; KBL secretary general Manuel Garcia; Rono, former Cavite Gov. Juan Renmulla, Rodolfo Ganzon and Antonio Raquiza.

During the meeting, Ople briefed the opposition leaders on the issues pending before the Constitutional Commission.

They agreed that the ratification of the Constitution should be undertaken separately from the holding of elections.

Enrile debunked rumors that he is interested in the presidency, because of moves of people close to him to form a revitalized Nacionalista Party, among them former MP Rene Cayetano.

However, Enrile said he is still a card bearing member of their Nacionalista Party but clarified that he is referring to the old party under which he ran for senator in 1971.

"I was, I am and will be a Nacionalista because I have never resigned my membership in the party," said Enrile.

Reiterating his earlier stand on the parliamentary system of government, Enrile said it is best to have a multi-party system in the country today so that all interests, voices can be heard and this means all party whether they are CPP [Communist Party of the Philippines], Unido [United Nationalist Democratic Organization], PDP-Laban [Pilipino Democratic Party-Lakas ng Bayan or Nacionalista.

ENRILE COMMENTS ON REPORTED RIFT WITH AQUINO

Denies 'Gap' With President

BK200417 Manila PNA in English 0357 GMT 20 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 20 (PNA) -- Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile Thursday said he is confident that President Corazon Aquino would not just fire him without any valid reason. However, if I would be kicked out, I would probably go back to private life, practice law, watch the situation and live a peaceful life, he said.

Enrile was asked during an open forum following the regional peace and order council meeting here about his earlier statement that he was ready to be fired.

He said he is confident that he would not be fired just like that without a cause, and denied any gap between him and the president. Everything was fine when I attended Wednesday's regular cabinet meeting in Malacanang Palace, he added.

Enrile was briefed by Col. Jesus De La Cruz, Ilocos regional unified commander on the mounting insurgency problem in Ilocandia. De La Cruz estimated the rebel strength in the region at 1,000 regulars, 800 of them identified by name, 163 identified by aliases and 37 unidentified. The Communist Party of the Philippines in the Ilocos is backed by about 1,026 support elements and about 24,000 mass base supporters.

He said the rebels have 700 assorted high-powered firearms in the region, and the CPP-NPA have gained considerably in their organizational expansion drive, logistics buildup and propaganda.

He also said the rebels have intensified their expansion work in some affected areas in eastern Pangasinan.

Cool on Loyalist Support

[Text] Manila, June 20 (AFP) -- Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile is pessimistic about the outcome of current ceasefire talks with communist guerrillas and denies plotting another coup, a newspaper reported here Friday.

Mr. Enrile, who led a military mutiny which toppled strongman Ferdinand Marcos and installed Corazon Aquino as president in February, was also cool on his newly-found support from diehard supporters of the former president, THE MANILA CHRONICLE said.

On the ceasefire talks, the minister told the newspaper: "I would like to disabuse minds. Let us not pin all our hopes on these efforts. It's better to approach it cautiously, aware of the risks involved so we will not be terribly disappointed."

"What appears to be an easy solution is not always a possible solution," he added.

Earlier this week Mr. Enrile confirmed that rebel and government emissaries were now engaged in "informal discussions about the rules of the game."

The government is represented by five persons whose names have been kept secret by the Office of the President, which said they did not include anyone from the 250,000-strong military. The talks are aimed at a political solution to the 17-year-old rebellion of the new 16,500-strong communist New People's Army (NPA).

THE MANILA CHRONICLE said the interview was conducted in the northern province of Ilocos Norte. Defense Ministry spokesmen here said Mr. Enrile was due to return to Manila later Friday.

Mr. Enrile is currently the center of attention of the press here amid rumors of a military coup and a widening rift between the allegedly leftist members of the Aquino government and the defense establishment. President Aquino and Armed Forces chief General Fidel Ramos has dismissed the rumors and Mrs. Aquino accused Mr. Marcos, now in exile in Hawaii, of conducting a "misinformation" campaign against her government.

Marcos "loyalists" threw their support behind Mr. Enrile Thursday, saying they could not allow a communist takeover, while former Communist Party of the Philippines chief Jose Maria Sison said the NPA would back Mrs. Aquino in the event of a coup.

The newspaper quoted Mr. Enrile as saying: "Why should I stage a coup ... I think the president knows what I am doing is for the interests of the people." On the Marcos loyalists he said: "I would not allow them to manipulate me."

ENRILE REVOKES BOUNTY FOR CAPTURE OF REBEL PRIEST

HK190840 Quezon City Radyo ng Bayan in Tagalog 0800 GMT 19 Jun 86

At the same time, Enrile said he is ready to recommend to President Aquino the granting of autonomy to the Cordilleras but within the sovereignty of the republic. He further explained that the towns of Lanut in Ifugao, and Tabuk, Clara, Santa Marcela, Rizal and Luna in Kalinga Apayao should not be included in the autonomous region because these are predominantly Christian areas.

MARCOS SAID READY TO ARREST 10,000 IN 1983

[Text] Former President Marcos was ready to arrest some 10,000 people in 1983 to suppress a series of demonstrations in metro Manila and other parts of the country which broke out following the assassination of former Senator Benigno Aquino Jr.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile made this revelation at a meeting of the peace and order council in Paoay, Ilocos Norte. However, he said he strongly opposed this planned move of Marcos, arguing that feeding and guarding of these 10,000 people would pose an enormous problem. [Passage indistinct.]

RAMOS DISCUSSES THREAT FROM INSURGENCY, LOYALISTS

[Text] Manila, June 20 (PNA) -- Insurgency remains the No 1 problem of the military, according to Armed Forces Chief of Staff Gen. Fidel V. Ramos.

Ramos said while the situation in most parts of the country is relatively stable, the Communist Party of the Philippines-New People's Army have taken advantage of the new government's magnanimity. The communist insurgents have taken advantage of the national reconciliation policy as seen from the intensified armed activities in the countryside presumably to make up for the decrease in the CPP/NPA mass protest activities after the assumption of President Aquino.

According to Ramos, the present communist strength in the country is estimated to be some 16,500 with about 11,664 firearms. These individuals are scattered in 47 guerrilla fronts in the different parts of the country. The CPP/NPA are exercising varying degrees of influence in about 18 percent of the 41,615 Barangays in the Philippines, he said.

Another faction which represents a formidable force which the military should reckon with is the pro-Marcos forces. Ramos said the Marcos loyalists are to be watched considering the large amount of resources at their disposal to regain power.

In the case of southern Philippines, he said in spite of the secessionist rebels' initial peace feelers in response to the national reconciliation efforts of the new government, the Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF) has stepped-up armed activities.

MILITARY BROTHERHOOD GROUP TO FOSTER REFORM

National Chairman Lorenzo Mateo [Central Luzon Philippine Constabulary-Integrated National Police regional Commander] said the objective of the project is to strengthen the AFP in its fight against communism.

NPA INFLUENCE IN SAMAR, LEYTE DESCRIBED

HK171209 Quezon City WE FORUM in English Vol 8 No 6, 10-16 Jun 86 pp 8-9

[By Marc Villavicencio]

[Text] Western Samar — In the remote villages and outlying towns of this island province, the New People's Army still commands a large following. The place remains a Communist stronghold, protected by rugged terrain and helped by the absence of a strong local government.

Till today, the government security forces manning the checkpoints along the national highway from Catbalogan, Western Samar to Tacloban City in Leyte, rarely venture to the villages.

Skirmishes between the guerillas and government troopers have escalated despite the usual calls for peace and national reconciliation.

Last month, Brig. Gen. Benjamin Cruz, regional commander of Samar and Leyte, called on the rebels to lay down their arms and forge national unity.

The NPA Regional Operational Command had earlier announced its willingness to end the hostilities in the countryside on the condition that the military pulls out its regular and paramilitary troops from both the islands of Smar and Leyte.

Col. Jocelyn Nazareno, chief of staff of the Regional Unified Command 8, calls the military operations "preventive offensives" aimed at protecting the lives of civilians and troopers from NPA attacks.

For their part, the guerillas consider their actions as a "defensive posture" although they say they are ready to strike back should the government-initiated peace talks fail.

"I will accept the peace proposal of Mrs. Aquino," said Ka Dodong, a commander from the first guerrilla front, "only if it does not jeopardize the interest of the masses," Ka Dodong concedes that Pres. Aquino is different from Marcos "who ordered wanton terrorism and manslaughter throughout his rule."

The rebel commander, however, pointed out that they will not lay down their arms due to the continued military operations.

The dissident movement, which started in the village of San Andrews, Villareal, Samar in 1973 attracted more followers and sympathizers when the soldiers allegedly arrested, tortured, detained and summarily executed suspected Communist dissenters.

These "mopping-up" operations by government security forces have helped swell the ranks of the rebels. About 50 battletested insurgents under Ka Dodong's command cited military abuse as the main reason why they took up arms. Poverty and landlord oppression were the other causes given by them.

Only a few of the armed regulars are ideologues and hardline communist members. Says one Army lieutenant: "Hindi nila alam ang Komunismo. Basta ang isinasagot lang sa amin pag nahuhuli sila ay biktima sila ng lipunan." [They know nothing of communism. Once captured, their reply to us is that they are victims of society.]

To solve the land question, the CPP-NPA have fashioned a radical type of land reform program.

Ka Nita, 30, a member of the powerful executive committee of the regional Party Committee said they recently confiscated and parceled out lands in 5-acre lots to the farmers, the program's "maximum level" and reduced land rent, which is the "minimum level".

She also said a group of farmers inside the guerrilla zone have benefited from it, saying they harvested a big quantity of corn. She pointed out that the old 50-50 percent sharing of farm inputs between the landlord and the tenant was changed to 75-25 percent, with the later giving the smaller contribution.

The insurgency problem has hampered the operations of government workers. A top official of the Ministry of Human Settlements here said the government is unable to deliver the services to the people because they fear that the military or the rebels may accuse them of working for either one of the combatants.

Indeed, the fear for their safety has been so great that many government workers have moved out of the countryside. There are only two municipal health officers here, the exodus prompted by the brutal slaying of Dr. Remberto "Bobby" de la Paz in Catbalogan, Samar three years ago.

"Here in Samar, you can see that the rebels are offering the people an alternative government, unlike in Cagayan and Mindanao where most of the action centers on tactical offensives, noted a foreign correspondent who visited the rebel zones recently.

Taking advantage of the government's inability to serve the people, the Communist-led guerrillas have put up barrio revolutionary committees (BRCs). It is a coalition government advocating popular support and represented by 10-15 persons coming from the different sectors of the village, mass associations, and individual cadres.

Brig. Gen. Cruz reported there are about 32 percent or 755 villages influenced by the rebels, 16 percent or 691 of them infiltrated, and 4,400 threatened by either influence or infiltration.

Even so, he assured the people in Samar and Leyte that the military is in full control of the peace and order situation. "The government will not allow the rebels to rule. They have never won in the many clashes with us since the early 1930's," Cruz said.

Some analysts, however, believe that Cruz's assessment of the rebels' potential striking capability is poor. In their view, the NPAs can overrun any military detachment and ambush soldiers at will.

The insurgents have also evolved a system of taxation from its members and from multinational corporations and local businessmen. Early last month, they seized 15 boxes of cigarettes and P70,000 cash from two delivery trucks owned by Lucio Tan, a prominent businessman in Samar. Explaining their action, the rebels said the masses must also be given a part of the businessmen's profits, even in little amounts.

Their system of justice is unconventionally harsh. Those they consider traitors and criminals pay dearly for thier misdeeds.

To raise the literacy of its members, the CPP-NPA in Samar and Leyte have waged a vigorous education campaign. They hold regular classes in reading and writing.

The basic party course includes dialectical materialism, imperialism, political economy and the philosophies of Marx and Lenin.

The women firghters, apart from serving the cause of the national liberation movement, involve themselves in the struggle against the exploitation of women.

Ka Ulding, a member of the communications team in the Central West Guerrilla district, said that women in the "sona" [zone] are treated as fellow revolutionaries rather than "objects of sexual gratification by men."

But other members in the movement say that the number of women may be trimmed down soon because of their physical capabilities, such as their monthly period, which reportedly hampers guerrilla operations.

The arrival of new hand-held UHF transceivers has vastly improved their communication system. The rebels can contact other commands as far as the Bicol region and Mindanao.

Is Pres. Aquino's peace initiative a cause for optimism?

Rebel leaders here say they will support Pres. Aquino if she continues her sincere undertaking in uplifting the plight of the poor.

Military officials, on the other hand, hope that peace talks will succeed. Said Col. Nazareno: "I believe that we can have reconciliation because we are brothers living in one country."

Still, neither side can say when the guns in the countrysides will finally fall silent.

INSURGENTS REPORTEDLY PENETRATING NORTHERN SAMAR

[Text] According to Samar PC commander Colonel Ibarra Mariano, some 871 barangays in the 15 towns of northern Samar have been penetrated by rebels. He said that among the 970 barangays in Samar, 323 have been entered by NPA people while 100 more are under NPA influence and more than 400 are being targetted for penetration.

The provincial commander said most of these barangays are situated in remote or mountainous regions. Moreover, he said that he had received reports that the NPA was sighted in the barangays of Calbayog, Catbalongan, Gandara, Jiabong, Motiong, Wright and Calbiga.

SISON CLAIMS 'TOTAL REVAMP' NEEDED IN MILITARY

[Text] Manila, June 20 (PNA) -- President Corazon Aquino does not have a strong hand in the military, Jose Ma. Sison, former head of the Communist Party of the Philippines (CCP), said here Thursday.

According to Sison, the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) is still divided into three blocks -- that of Aquino-Ileto, Ramos and Enrile and Marcos-Ver.

The CPP founder, who was released and given amnesty a few days after President Aquino came to power after the February people's revolution, suggested for a total revamp in the AFP.

The AFP must undergo a total revamp. If it remains to be as it is today, the structure on which deposed President Marcos built his power, still remains, he said.

He said he is for the removal of Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, because of alleged over-staying, reason of Delicadeza, and had served the post in the best way he could. [sentence as received] Sison said Enrile has become ineffective in the anti-surgency effort. Even in his Cagayan region where he comes from, there are still so many military abuses being committed, he said.

President Marcos, Sison said, should be issued a subpoena and not a passport. If a passport is issued to him, he could go anywhere. But if a subpoena from the Philippines courts would be issued against him, he ought to return to the country and be immediately arrested at the Manila International Airport upon his return, and be tried accordingly, he said.

Sison likewise criticized Aquino's cabinet, branding some members as pro-American, not pro-Filipino. Some cabinet members are not totally committed for the welfare of the masses, he said.

REPORT OF NPA CAPTURING NEGROS TOWN CORRECTED

[Text] Bacolod, Philippines, June 20 (AFP) -- Some 300 communist guerrillas briefly occupied a military coup at a mining town near this central city Friday, the military said, correcting an earlier report that they had taken over the town.

Colonel Miguel Coronel, the provincial commander of Negros Occidental province, earlier told reporters here that the entire town center of Hinobaan had been taken over by communist New People's Army (NPA) guerrillas.

Troops sent to the rescue however reported that the early morning attack actually took place at an Army detachment camp near the town hall, and that the military suffered an unspecified number of casualties, the colonel said.

No civilian casualties were immediately reported, but a running gunbattle between the rebels and troop reinforcements was still ongoing hours later, he added.

Hinobaan is a mining town on the southern end of Negros Island, the country's sugar bowl, some 580 kilometers (348 miles) south of Manila.

The attack came two days after the NPA, the 16,500-strong armed wing of the banned Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP), issued press statements here warning the military not to stage further operations in south Negros, a hotbed of the 17-year-old rebellion.

The NPA command in the island is currently engaged in peace talks with Bacolod Roman Catholic Bishop Antonio Fortich.

It was the first known major NPA attack since Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile confirmed Wednesday that informal talks between government emissaries and CPP representatives were under way in the main island of Luzon to pave the way for ceasefire talks.

(Colonel Luis san Andres, the Armed Forces spokesman, told AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE in Manila they have not received any reports of the attack.

MUSLIM LEADERS SETTLE FEUD, PLAN TO NEGOTIATE

[Text] Manila, June 20 (PNA) -- Muslim secessionist leaders Nur Misuari and Hashim Salamat have buried their hatchet and agreed to negotiate jointly with the Aquino government. This was revealed by a ranking foreign-trained Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF) commander. The MNLF commander, who requested anonymity, said he had just arrived via the Philippine backdoor with other MNLF cadres. He was accompanied by an Arab-looking escort.

Misuari and Salamat, who used to be together in the movement, broke their relationship years back and then led separate factions. According to the MNLF commander, Misuari and Salamat settled their long feud over the MNLF leadership through the intervention and initiative of the Islamic conference in Jedda, Saudi Arabia, middle of last month. He said the two have agreed to negotiate with President Aquino for the full implementation of the Tripoli agreement which aimed to seek full autonomy of Mindanao.

The MNLF leader also told the PNA that Misuari did not issue an order to attack various parts of Mindanao after the month-long Muslim fasting Ramadan which ended June 9. Misuari's instructions concerned entirely on the solidification and strengthening of the MNLF forces and mass base support, he said.

NAKASONE ACCEPTS ISHIBASHI CHALLENGE FOR DEBATE

[Text] Yonago, Tottori Pref., June 22 KYODO -- Chairman Masashi Ishibashi of the no. 1 opposition Japan Socialist Party (JSP) Sunday challenged Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone to a face-to-face debate on major election issues. Ishibashi made the proposal at a press conference here in a move to clarify election issues for the July 6 double polls for both houses of the Diet.

Topics would include national security, the 1-percent-of-gnp lid on defense expenditures, measures to cope with the rising value of the yen against the dollar, financial reform, social welfare, educational reform, introduction of large-scale indirect taxes and official visits to the Yasukuni Shrine to the nation's war dead, said Ishibashi.

Nakasone accepted the offer on condition that other debates take place between himself and leaders of the middle-of-the-road Democratic Socialist Party (DSP) and Komeito. Nakasone also suggested that the debate include such topics as Japan-Korea relations, nuclear power, the U.S.-Japan security treaty in connection with the status of the Japan self-defense forces and privatization of the Japanese natinal railways. Nakasone spoke in Kochi Prefecture.

TANAKA CANDIDACY FOR LOWER HOUSE ANNOUNCED

[By Hideharu Torii]

[Text] Nagaoka, Niigata Pref., June 21 KYODO - Former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, who has not appeared in public for 15 months following a stroke, was officially declared a candidate Saturday for his home constituency in Niigate Prefecture in the July 6 lower house general election.

Tanaka, who suffered a stroke in February last year, is expected to be unable to actively canvass for votes in the Niigate no. 3 constituency during the 15-day campaign period as he is still recuperating at his Tokyo home.

A Tanaka supporters' organization, the Etsuzankai, held a ceremony marking the beginning of his campaign in a hall in Nagaoka. It was attended by 1,500 people.

Former Health and Welfare Minister Tatsuo Ozawa, Tanaka's top aide, made a speech on behalf of Tanaka at the ceremony, saying he has recovered physically except for a speech disorder. Ozawa encouraged the supporters to garner votes for Tanaka.

Seven candidates are contesting for five seats in the constituency, and there is little doubt that Tanaka will top the poll. The major focus of attention is how many votes he will get.

Tanaka, once regarded as the "kingmaker" of Japanese politics, is standing as an independent member of the lower house, although he still controls the largest faction within the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party.

The 68-year-old former prime minister was re-elected with a record 220,000 votes in the last general election in December 1983 amid a mounting opposition campaign demanding he resign from the Diet. Tanaka was found guilty in the Lockheed payoff scandal in October 1983, and sentenced to four years imprisonment and a fine of 500 million yen for accepting that amount in birbes from Lockheed Corp. His appeal against his conviction and sentence is currently being considered by Tokyo high court.

KYODO VIEWS DOUBLE ELECTION CAMPAIGN 'BATTLE'

[Text] Tokyo, June 21 KYODO -- Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone and opposition leaders launched their full-scale campaigns Saturday for the July 6 twin elections of both houses of the Diet.

A total of 838 people declared their candidacies for the expanded 512-seat House of Representatives, joining 506 upper house candidates who had already officially started their campaigns three days before.

Nakasone, leader of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP), spoke to a crowd of commuters at Omori railway station in Tokyo, reiterating the importance of continuing his top priority policy of achieving administrative reforms.

Nakasone said public support is necessary to continue the policies his government has promoted during the past three-and-a half years, since November 1982.

Referring to the administrative reform policies, including education, tax, social welfare and privatization of the deficit-ridden Japanese National Railways (JNR), Nakasone said, "if we stop the job halfway, no gains can be expected."

On education, he maintained that the focal point is "moral education" stressing that need for a sense of responsibility to be acquired by school children to cope with problems currently facing society.

Masashi Ishibashi, chairman of the no. 1 opposition Japan Socialist Party (JSP), appealed to voters outside the main station in Omagari, Akita Prefecture, northern Japan, saying that the Nakasone administration has expanded military expenditures at the cost of social welfare.

"The policies required at the moment are a large-scale tax reduction and an increase in workers' wages and pensions. If Nakasone fails to stimulate domestic demand, the only thing for him to do is to step down."

Ishibahi said the double polls will test the voters' approval for the more realistic approach of the JSP toward national security and diplomatic issues.

Komeito Chairman Yoshikatu Takeiri, kicking off a "stop Nakasone" camapign at Tokyo's Ueno Park, accused Nakasone of failing to take pump-priming measures to help minor businesses hard hit by the rising value of the yen.

"Nakasone has begun talking about compilation of a large-scale supplementary budget and tax reduction. That means a failure in coping with the current business slump," he said.

Saburo Tsukamoto, chairman of the Democratic Socialist Party (DSP), also attacked Nakasone, saying he had no justification for dissolving the lower house in the way he did on June 2.

Nakasone did so solely for his personal purposes, so as to be re-elected as LDP president in October, Tsukamoto said.

The 838 candidates for the lower house election include 34 women. Candidates by party were LDP 317, JSP 138 (including 3 women), Komeito 61, DSP 56, JCP 129 (including 22 women), New Liberal Club (NLC) 12, United Social Democratic Party (USDP) 5, minor parties 15 and independents 105 (including 8 women).

At dissolution, the LDP had 249, the JSP 110, Komeito 59, the DSP 37, the JCP 27, the NLC 8, the USDP 3, and independents 7 with 11 vacancies.

The focus of the upcoming double elections, political commentators say, is how many seats the LDP can win in the lower house poll.

Nakasone and top LDP leaders aim to capture more than a bare majority of 257 of the 512 seats. One seat has been added following changes approved in the last Diet session, in which seven other seats were transferred from sparsely populated rural areas to urban areas to correct an imbalance in the ratio of voters to seats.

If the LDP wins less than 257 seats, Nakasone will step down immediately, the commentators say. On the other hand, if it obtains more than 284, the number it won in the 1980 twin elections, there will be calls within the party for him to stay in power beyond October by changing an LDP rule.

The party president is allowed to serve only two consecutive two-year tems.

The ldp won only 250 seats and lost its majority by general election in December 1983, two months after former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka was convicted in the Lockheed payoff scandal..

Officially announced together with the gazetting of the lower house election is a review of supreme court justices, also to be conducted July 6. The constitution requires 10 of the 15 judges to have their appointments reviewed by the voters, as it is the first general election since their appointments.

RED ARMY MEMBER LINKED TO JAKARTA ROCKETING

[Text] Tokyo, June 20 KYODO -- An ultraleftist Red Army member released from jail in 1977 in response to demands from hijackers may have been involved in the rocketing of the Japanese and U.S. embassies in Jakarta in May, police said Friday.

Authorities said fingerprints found in room 827 of the Jakarta hotel from which pipe-shaped projectiles were fired May 14 were those of Tsutomu Shirozaki, a member of the Japanese Red Army, a band of radical leftists who were involved in hijackings and other disruptive activities in the 1970s. The missiles fired from the Jakarta hotel room did not damage either the Japanese or the U.S. Embassy buildings. At the time of the rocketings, Indonesian authorities said a Japanese identified as Shunsuke Kikuchi had stayed in the hotel room. Shirozaki, 33, was one of nine persons freed from jail in September 1977 by the Japanese Government in compliance with demands from Japanese hijackers who at the time held 151 people hostage abroad a Japan Air Lines jet they had seized and forced to land in Bangladesh.

Declaring that human life is "heavier than the earth," the cabinet of then Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda waived all legal steps and released Shirozaki and eight others who were serving time. The government also paid six million dollars ransom.

Police said at least two of the more than 10 fingerprints they received from Indonesian authorities were those of Shirozaki, a Tokushima University dropout who was a member of the Central Committee of the Red Army of the Communist League Alliance (Kyosanshugisha Domei).

Shirozaki was freed while serving a 10-year prison sentence he received for stealing a van and driving it without a driver's license. In the 1960s, Shirozaki was suspected of taking a leading part in the Red Army's assaults on post offices and banks in order to obtain funds for its operations.

The hijackers and the nine freed people proceeded to Algeria from Bangladesh. Police believe they later joined other Red Army members in Lebanon. There are at least 18 confirmed Red Army members living abroad, mostly in the Middle East, according to police. They suspect there may be an additional 40 unconfirmed members in Lebanon.

GOVERNMENT STATEMENT ON NEW PEACE PROPOSAL

[Text] In connection with this year, the year of internationa peace, and the lapse of 36 years since the outbreak of the Korean war, the government of the DPRK has issued a statement regarding a new peace proposal for establishing a nuclear-free peace zone on the Korean peninsula. The statement reads:

Statement by the Government of the DPRK:

Peace is the most precious desire and unanimous aspiration of mankind. Several hundred million people in the world today want peace to be preserved in the world forever and to live peacefully at all times. In particular, ardently desiring that this year, the year of international peace, become an epochal occasion in removing the danger of a nuclear war and firmly achieving solid peace on the earth, the people of the world are vigorously waging the antiwar and antinuclear movement for peace.

However, running counter to the ardent desire of mankind, the imperialists today are continuously accelerating the testing, production, and stockpiling of nuclear weapons.

Because of their maneuvers for nuclear arms buildup, the danger of nuclear war threatening the survival of mankind is further increasing with each passing day. Today, the Korean peninsula is fraught with the greatest danger of nuclear war in the world.

The danger of nuclear war on the Korean peninsula has become a danger to peace and security in Asia and the world.

Proceeding from its serious sense of mission for world peace, the Govenrment of the DPRK has made all possible sincere efforts to remove the danger of nuclear war and to preserve peace on the Korean peninsula. The Government of the Republic has already advanced on many occasions just and righteous proposals for withdrawing all nuclear weapons from South Korea and for turning the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free peace zone. It has also joined the pact on nonproliferation of nuclear weapons and has faithfully performed its duty.

The Government of the Republic has put forward numerous peace proposals for preventing a nuclear war and preserving solid peace in Korea and for opening the road toward a peaceful resolution of the Korean question, as well as a proposal for holding tripartite talks in which we, the United States, and the South Korean side participate, for replacing the Korean Armistice Agreement with a peace agreement and for adopting a declaration of nonaggression between the North and South, and has actively struggled for their realization.

However, none of these reasonable proposals of the Government of the Republic have been realized.

Today, the Korean peninsula has become the most dangerous source of nuclear war. More that 1,000 nuclear weapons of all kinds, including nuclear bombs, nuclear shells, and neutron weapons, have been introduced and deployed in South Korea; the total explosion power of these nuclear weapons is 1,000 times that of the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima, Japan, during World War II.

South Korea has been converted into the biggest nuclear base in the Far East with more than half the U.S. nuclear weapons deployed in the whole area of the Far East region and into the world's no. 1 nuclear base with a density of nuclear weapons deployment that is four times higher than the NATO nations.

The United States has openly threatened to use nuclear weapons in case a war breaks out in Korea. It has continuously staged war exercises simulating nuclear test war in south Korea with nuclear operation plans already drawn up.

If a war broke out on the Korean peninsula, it would soon become a nuclear war, spread beyond the boundaries of Korea, and expand into a world-wide nuclear war.

Only by eliminating nuclear weapons from South Korea can the root cause of the nuclear war be eliminated on the Korean peninsula and not only our people but also the people of the countries around us live peacefully.

The elimination of the danger of nuclear war on the Korean peninsula is now the most pressing task to ensure not only peace in Korea but also peace and security in Asia and the rest of the world.

The Government of the Republic and the Korean people believe that in order to prevent a nuclear war and to achieve solid peace on the Korean peninsula, it is necessary first of all to rapidly take measures for making the Korean peninsula a nuclear-free peace zone devoid of nuclear weapons and nuclear bases.

Reflecting the world people's growing desire for peace on the occasion of this year of international peace, the government of the DPRK clarifies at home and abroad its stand on turning the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free space zone as follows:

First, the Government of the DPRK will refrain from the testing, production, stockpiling, and introduction of nuclear weapons; will not allow the establishment of any foreign military bases, including nuclear bases; and will not allow foreign nuclear weapons to pass through its territory, territorial airspace, and territorial waters.

Second, the Government of the United States, in conformity with the desire of the Korean people and the peaceloving people of the world to make the Korean peninsula a nuclear-free peace zone, must take steps to stop the introduction of new-type nuclear weapons into South Korea; to reduce phase by phase all the weapons already introduced and, further, to withdraw them completely; and to abolish all operational plans concerning the use of nuclear weapons on the Korean peninsula.

Third, if the U.S. Government and the South Korean authorities deem it necessary to hold any negotiation regarding our proposal for making the Korean peninsula a nuclear-free peace zone, the Government of the DPRK will respond to such a negotiation at any time, irrespective of the formalities.

Our proposal for establishing a nuclear-free peace zone on the Korean peninsula is the most realistic and reasonable one whether in view of alleviating tension prevailing in this region and peacefully resolving the Korean question or in view of ensuring a solid peace and security in Asia and the rest of the world.

If a nuclear-free peace zone were established in Korea, the danger of a nuclear war that would impose a horrible nuclear holocaust on mankind in this region would be eliminated and a durable and solid peace under which mankind can live peacefully would be guaranteed.

There is no reason whatsoever for the United States not to respond to the peace proposal of the Government of the Republic, if it really treasures peace. The Korean people who love peace do not want a new world war -- a thermonuclear war -- to break out as a result of the Korean question in any case.

The Government of the DPRK and all the Korean people will, in the future, too, make all possible efforts to make the Korean peninsula a nuclear-free peace zone and to guarantee peace in Korea, Asia, and the world under the active support and encouragement of the governments and peoples of all the peaceloving countries of the world.

The Government of the DPRK and all the Korean people express the hope that the governments, political parties, and public organizations of the socialist countries, the nonaligned countries, and all the progressive countries, international organizations, international democratic organizations, anti-imperialist and peaceloving organizations, fighting organizations, and peaceloving figures and peoples of all strata in various countries will pay deep attention to the grave situation prevailing on the Korean peninsula, will express their active support to, and solidarity with, the Korean people's struggle to turn the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free peace zone, and will launch a more powerful movement to withdraw nuclear weapons from South Korea and to dismantle the nuclear bases there.

PAPER VIEWS 'SLANDEROUS REMARKS' ON PROPOSAL

[NODONG SINMUN 22 June commentary: "A Mean Position"]

[Text] The KPA Supreme Command proposal for holding talks among the military persons in authority to devise a measure for easing tension in Korea is creating great repercussions at home and abroad. Public opinion at home and abroad warmly welomes it, noting that our proposal for talks among the military persons in authority to discuss and solve such problems as a halt to military exercises and the arms buildup, the reduction of troops and armaments [pyongnyokkwa kunbi], and the observance of the Armistice Agreement is an important proposal to prevent the danger of war and ease tension in Korea and the most realistic and timely proposal.

If our proposal is realized, it will undoubtedly contribute greatly to ending the heightening tension and maintaining peace on the Korean peninsula and bringing the state of confrontation between the North and South to an end. No one who opposes war and aspires for peace will reject our proposal, which reflects the serious desire for easing tension.

We were expecting a positive response from the other party to our proposal. However, the United States and the South side, having received our letters, are behaving very strangely. Instead of seriously considering and deeply studying our proposal containing the serious contents, giving deep thought and making an affirmative response to them, they are making unreasonable remarks. They are making slanderous remarks, saying that our proposal is propaganda and that is is not constructive.

They will know whether our proposal is propaganda or not if the parties sit face to face and discuss it. Their slanderous remarks that we are conducting propaganda, without even meeting us or studying the proposal, constitute neither a proper attitude nor a position to solve a problem.

Today, ending the danger of war and easing tension in Korea is an urgent problem awaiting solution. No one who is interested in maintaining peace in Korea will be able to look on with folded arms.

The United States and the South side are saying that they desire easing tension and maintaining peace in Korea. If this is true, they should not turn away from our proposal. Making slanderous remarks without sitting face to face with each other and discussing is not an attitude to solve a problem.

The attitude of the United States and the South side toward our peace proposal will be a test case to show which they prefer -- heightening or easing of tension, war or peace. We will watch their attitude from now on.

VARIOUS OFFICIALS SUPPORT KPA PEACE PROPOSAL

Director of DFRF Secretariat

[Text] Pyongyang June 22 (KCNA) -- Yu Ho-chun, director of the Secretariat of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland, in his press statement issued on June 21 strongly demanded the United States and the South Korean authorities to stop the wrong act in speaking ill of us, clamouring about "propaganda" without consideration before sitting face to face with us and show a sincere response from an honest posture to the new peace proposal of the Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army.

The peace initiative of the KPA Supreme Command for talks between the military authorities involving the minister of People's Armed Forces of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, the commander-in-chief of the U.N. Forces in South Korea and the defence minister of South Korea is a very timely, reasonable and realistic proposal, he noted, and stressed:

In order to create an atmosphere for the resumption of the North-South dialogue and prevent the danger of war which is increasing hour by hour, it is necessary to have a sincere consultation between the responsible military authorities and take positive measures there.

If the U.S. troops had not occupied South Korea and created the danger of war and the South Korean authorities had not pursued the policy of confrontation in subservience to the United States, such grave situation as we see today would not have been created in the way of detente, peace and reunfication nor the problem of talks between the military authorities would have been raised.

The attitude toward talks between the military authorities, therefore, will be a touchstone judging who truly wants peace and who seeks war on the Korean peninsula.

CPRF Vice Chairman

[Text] Pyongyang June 23 (KCNA) -- I warmly hail and support the proposal to convene talks of military authorities elaborated in the report of the Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army, considering it to be a very timely and reasonable one to remove the imminent danger of nuclear war and improve the North-South relations.

So said Hong Ki-mun, vice-chairman of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland, in his press statement June 22.

He noted that this proposal is a unilateral one seeking only the interests of the DPRK but a most fair and aboveboard oen fully taking into consideration the interests and demands of the United States and the South Korean side and their stand.

The United States and the South Korean authorities should not shun our peace proposal, but should approach it with sincerity and ponder over it, he emphasized, and continued:

Showing a negative response to dialogue again, now the United States and the South Korean rulers are uttering the perverted words that it is "not constructive" but "for propaganda."

It cannot be considered as a reasonable conduct to utter a spate of slanders before discussing the question proposed with the other side.

I think the United States and the South Korean rulers will find no other way out but become a virtual target of denunciation of the world people as the disturber of peace and dialogue, if they refuse our peace proposal this time again.

KPA Officer

[Text] The new peace proposal of the KPA Supreme Command for relaxing tension in Korea is continuously evoking great repercussions among people from all walks of life.

Hwang Kwang-kuk, a KPA officer, states as follows:

[Begin recording] Our soldier-constructors, who heard the information of the KPA Supreme Command on talks by the military authorities as a new means for relaxing tension in Korea, cannot suppress their deep emotion. Today our soldier-constructors, together with the entire People's Army, fully support the new peace proposal put forth by the KPA Supreme Command for holding talks by military authorities to prevent the danger of war in Korea and to relax tension.

The new peace proposal of the KPA Supreme Command to hold talks between the Minister of the People's Armed Forces of the DPRK, the commander in chief of the allied forces in South Korea [yonhapkukkun] and the South Korean Defense Minister is the most realistic, just, and fair measure for eliminating the situation of grave military confrontation created on the Korean peninsula and for opening a new phase on the path toward peace in and the peaceful reunification of Korea.

As is known, the Korean peninsula has become an area where the most acute military situation prevails and where the danger of war is greatest, something not seen in any other part of the world.

The armed forces confronting each other across the Military Demarcation Line [MDL] have reached the highest level since the Armistice. The U.S. troops and the South Korean puppet army have assumed a perfect combat-ready posture, and can be launched into war at any time along the entire area of the MDL.

If the status of military confrontation, which is acute and strained as seen today, continues, nobody knows when a war may break out in our country. If a war breaks out in Korea, the Korean people will suffer the terrible calamities of war. Tensions must be relaxed in Korea, and our people in the North and South should live peacefully.

The prevailing situation urgently demands that realistic measures be taken to prevent the danger of war. In order to relax the acute military confrontation in Korea and to maintain the peace, those who possess real military power in the North and South should get together to exchange their views and should work out practical measures in accordance with the new peace proposal put forth by the KPA Supreme Command.

Our proposal for holding talks by the military authorities is a most reasonable measure to relax tensions in the military field. If those who hold real military power in the North and South sit face to face, agreements can be reached on a series of military issues to relax tension, and proper measures can be taken.

The issue on how they treat our peace proposal will be a touchstone showing whether the United States and the South Korean authorities want war or want peace. The soldiers of our People's Army hope that the new peace proposal put forth by the KPA Supreme Command will be realized at an early date, and that good fruition will be brought about.

The soldiers of our People's Army will devote all their strength and passion to implementing the sacred cause of accelerating national reunification. [end recording]

TASS COMMENTS ON KPA SUPREME COMMAND PROPOSAL

[Text] TASS has carried a commentary in connection with the KPA Supreme Command report under the title of "An Important Initiative of the DPRK." TASS called attention to the fact that the KPA Supreme Command proposed to the U.S. and South Korean side talks among those who hold real power in the military to explore measures for alleviating tension and preventing the danger of war on the Korean peninsula, and noted:

The new important peace initiative of the DPRK assumes a very urgent and realistic nature. The arms race accelerated by the United States and South Korea, their war preparations, including the deployment of new offensive weapons including various kinds of weapons of mass destruction, and the provocative "Team Spirit-86" joint military exercises recently conducted on the largest scale ever are extremely aggravating tension in this region and creating a danger to peace and security of Asia and the entire world.

In this connection, the DPRK proposed to discuss measures to bring an end to the situation on the Korean pensinsula in which a war could break out at any time and to eliminate the danger of war. In particular, it proposed to discuss a halt to military exercises, the reduction of troops and armaments [pyongnyokkwa kunbi], and a rigid observance of the Korean Armistice Agreement.

TASS noted that our republic made it clear that the talks can discuss problems raised by the U.S. and South Korean side as well if they serve to alleviate tension on the Korean pensinsula.

TASS continued: Undoubtedly, it will contribute to alleviation tension in this region, which has the potential danger of an armed conflict to hold talks to realize the alleviation [of tension] in military fields. Moreover, the talks will help bring end to distrust and hostility. Unless distrust and hostility are brought to an end, it will be difficult to resume North-South dialogue or to carry it on. Also it is clear that the spirit and contents of the peace initiative of the DPRK conform to the aspirations of not only the Korean people but also the people of Asia and the entire world.

TASS stressed that the U.S. and South Korean side should give deep heed to this important initiative of the DPRK so that the matter of taking measures for the alleviation [of tension] in military terms [kunsajok wanhwa chochi] on the Korean peninsula can be specifically raised.

TASS noted, referring to the reaction of the South Korean side, that this shows who is truly interested in peace and trying to achieve peace and who is attempting to maintain the situation in which the danger of explosion exists on the Korean pensinula, against the aspirations of the people, and to further aggravate tension in this region.

S. KOREA-U.S. JOINT MOBILE EXERCISE DENOUNCED

[Text] Pyongyang June 21 (KCNA) -- The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique on June 19 staged a frantic joint mobile exercise with the mobilisation of infantry, tank, artillery and Air Force units of the puppet army, according to a radio report from Seoul.

The fasicst clique is advertising that the exercise was held to "reexamine the combat preparations" with the 86 and 88 international games ahead. The provocative military exercise staged by the Chon Tu-hwan military hooligans on the pretext of the international games on the threshold of June 25, the day when the U.S. imperialists had provoked the war of aggression in Korea in the past shows how desperately they try to use the 86 Asian and 88 Olympic Games as a shield to justify their treacheries.

OLYMPIC COMMITTEE VICE CHAIRMAN ON COHOSTING

[Talk issued by Kim Tuk-chun, vice chairman of the DPRK Olympic Committee, in Pyongyang on 21 June]

[Text] Amid the great attention of the world's many sports lovers and people, the third joint meeting regarding the 24th Olympics in 1988 was held on 10 and 11 June in Lausanne, Switzerland.

Attending this meeting were delegates of the Olympic Committees of the North and South of Korea and responsible functionaries of the International Olympic Committee [IOC].

As at the previous talks, the single question of the North-South cohosting of the 24th Olympics was discussed at the talks. Proceeding from aspirations to prevent the crisis prevailing in the Olympic movement and create an atmosphere conducive to the peaceful reunification of Korea through the 24th Olympics, our delegates attending the talks participated in the talks with a sincere attitude from the beginning and showed all sincerity in discusssing the question.

At the talks, our side set forth a reasonable proposal that conforms to the North-South cohosting of the 24th Olympics, with the question of the North-South fair sharing of the sports events of the 24th Olympics, of calling the sports events to be held in our side the 24th Olympics -- Pyongyang, and of forming the Pyongyang organizational committeee as the main content. The proposal we put forth this time was not a proposal advanced for the first time, and it was a reasonable proposal advanced by fully taking the opinion of the IOC side into consideration.

Because of the overall refusal of the South Korean side, however, our proposal was not accepted and not even effectively discussed at the talks. The South Korean side insisted not on cohosting but on Seoul's separate hosting, showing the stand, in terms of allocation of the games, of considering the question of offering only one or two events to our side. The South Korean side said that the opening and closing ceremonies of the games will be held only in Seoul and we should participate in them. This, after all, means that we should participate in the Seoul Olympics. Indeed, this being the case, no agreement on the questions discussed was reached at the talks.

Nevertheless, the South Korean side is talking as if advance had been made at the third Lausanne joint meeting because it made a great concession by doing us a kindness. As for the one or two games which the South Korean side will consider making a concession of, even they are said to be held under the auspices of the Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee. This, after all, means making the games to be held in cities of our area appear as if they were held in local cities of South Korea. It goes without saying that this is too far from our cohosting proposal. Also, it is inconceivably unreasonable.

We did not set forth the proposal to cohost the Olympics in order to hold one of two games in our side's area. We advanced the cohosting proposal in order to prevent the crisis created in the Olympic movement in connection with the selection of Seoul as the venue of the 24th Olympics and arrange smooth Olympic games in which all can participate.

Furthermore, we put forward the cohosting proposal in an effort to contribute to removing misunderstanding and distrust between the North and South, to achieving national rapprochement and unity, and to realizing the reunifiation of the country through the Olympics. Our just proposal is arousing broad support and sympathy among many sports lovers and people in the world.

The South Korean side should contemplate this world public opinion and its serious social and political problems. It sould be aware that the 24th Olympics can never be used for creating an international environment to fix the division of Korea, and should not turn away from our cohosting proposal and the world's public opinion regarding the proposal.

For the realization of the cohosting of the 1988 Olympic games, our primary demands regarding such basic questions as the title of the games, the allocation of the games, the composition of the organizational committee, and the organization of the opening and closing ceremonies of the games should be materialized.

Availing myself of this opportunity, I express the expectation that the IOC side will also pay proper attention to our cohosting proposal, with regard to the issue of cohosting.

I am convinced that the governments of the socialist and nonaligned cuntries and the world's peace-loving countries and a broad range of sports lovers will continue to pay deep attention to and express active support for our proposal for cohosting the Olympics.

INTERNATIONAL SUPPORT FOR COHOSTING CITED

[Text] Pyongyang June 29 (KCNA) -- K. N. Singh, member of the Indian Parliament, made public a press statement on June 3, supporting the DPRK's Olumpic co-hosting proposal.

He said that participation in the Olympiad scheduled in South Korea would mean to support the U.S. troops' occupation of South Korea and encourage the United States and the South Korean authorities in their scheme to frame up "two Koreas" and perpetuate the division of Korea.

The Czechoslovak paper CESKOSLOVENSKY SPORT June 6 supported the proposal of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea to co-host the Olympic Games, saying it is conducive to the solution of the reunification question of the country desired by the Korean people who have Comrade Kim Il-song as their leader.

The Polish paper EXPRESS WEICZORNY June 8 stresed that the co-sponsorship of the Olympic Games by the North and the South of Korea would create favourable circumstances for a peaceful reunification of Korea and defend the idea of the Olympiad not only theoretically but practically as well.

The Democratic Yemeni paper AL RAYA June 7 said: The imperialist reactionaries and the South Korean authorities are obstructing the realisation of the DPRK's Olympic co-hosting proposal. If the 24th Olympic Games are to truly help in the reunification of Korea and contribute to saving the Olympic movement from a crisis, it should be co-hosted by the North and the South of Korea.

[Text] Pyongyang June 18 (KCNA) -- The delegation of the Communist Party of Canada headed by Mel Doig, member of the Central executive Committee of the party Central Committee, was interveiwed by a KCNA reporter on June 16 prior to his departure for home.

Stathis Stathopoulos, alternate member of the Central Executive Committee of the CPC Central Committee, said the CPC firmly supported the proposal put forward by the Democratic People's Republic of Korea that the 24th Olympic Games be cohosted by the North and the South.

The United States and the South Korean authorities must give up the "two Koreas" plot and accede to the DPRK's Olympic cohosting proposal, he noted.

Emil Bjarnason, member of the Central Committee of the CPC, said that to hold the 1988 Olympic Games in Seoul is aimed to attain the political purpose of the United States and stressed that the 24th Olympic Games should be cohosted by the North and South of Korea without fail.

NKDP LAWMAKER'S ANTI-GOVERNMENT REMARKS CITED

[Text] Pyongyang June 21 (KCNA) -- Song Chon-yong, a "national assemblyman" from the "New Korea Democratic Party," speaking at a meeting of the "Committee on Home Affairs" of the puppet National Assembly on June 19, criticized "the present 'government' for dancing attendance to the United States, labelling students opposing the United States and nuclear weapons as pro-communist elements", according to a radio report from Seoul.

He said: "I cannot but doubt whether the United States is a truly friendly country of ours or not".

"A call for the establishment of a government of the people is too natural when we think of the neglected majority of the people who are suffering from hardships of living as 'the rich are getting richer and the poor poorer' because of the failure of the 'modernisation policy'", he said.

When the opposition "national assemblyman" made this speech, the "national assemblymen" from the "Democratic Justice Party" raised dust, crying for "total withdrawal of the speech" and "apology", with the result that the meeting was suspended.

According to the radio, "DJP national assemblymen" plan to convene an "emergency meeting" under the sponsorship of its "representative member" and take a "disciplinary measure" and the "New Korea Democratic Party" is resolutely opposing it, branding it as a challenge.

NODONG SINMUN DENOUNCES PROSECUTION OF MUN IK-HWAN

[Text] Pyongyang June 22 (KCNA) -- The Chon Tu-hwan group arrested and prosecuted Rev. Mun Ik-hwan, chairman of the Federation of the People's Movement for Democracy and Unification ("Mintongnyon"), claiming that the "Inchon disturbance" was a "riotous one" caused mainly by "Mintongnyon" and its affiliated organisation. Commenting on this, NODONG SINMUN June 21 says in a signed commentary:

The "Inchon disturbance" is an "incident" fabricated on purpose by the puppets themselves to invent a pretext for allout suppression of the patriotic and democratic forces of South Korea. It is the zenith of vicious political plot breeding and shamelessness that the fascist clique tries to shift the responsibility on to "Mintongnyon" and its members, crying about "prior consultation" and the like.

The burlesque of the Chon Tu-hwan group proves that it is nothing but a farce aimed to stamp out and stifle the will of the people for constitutional amendments and their desire for democracy and deceive and flout public opinion that these days the puppets brought forward "big compromise between the opposition and the government", spreading a lie about "constitutional amendments" and babbling that they are "examining" the release of some of the detainees.

Holds Press Conference

[Text] Pyongyang June 18 (KCNA) -- Gustavo Herdoiza Leon, mayor of Quito, Ecuador, called a news conference in Pyongyang on June 16 prior to his departure for home. He said:

Ecuador and Korea are far away from each other with an ocean and a continent in between. But, I am well aware of the high international authority, tender-hearted and unceremonious personality of respected President Kim Il-song. Busy as he was with state affairs, respected President Kim Il-song received our group. It was his special favour for us. At the very moment I saw him, I keenly felt that he is the great leader enjoying unbounded respect and reverence from the world people.

Upon arriving in Pyongyang, our group was deeply impressed by the appearance of Pyongyang built into a beautiful and modern city. The industrious Korean people under the wise leadership of respected President Kim Il-song have achieved signal successes in a short period, pulling through all sorts of difficulties and hardships.

Today they follow him, holding him in high esteem, and are making heroic endeavors to move mountains and dam off the sea, if instructed by him.

No force on earth can break the iron will and unity of the Korean people rallied closely around respected President Kim Il-song, I think.

It is my belief that the reunificiation of Korea will be realized in accordance with the fair and aboveboard proposal advanced by the great President Kim Il-song.

In conclusion, he sincerely wished the great leader President Kim Il-song and the dear leader Comrade Kim Chong-il good health and a long life.

KIM IL-SONG 1961 SPEECH 'CONCLUSION' REBROADCAST

[Excerpt of concluding portion of the Text of Kim Il-song's "Historic Conclusion 'On Improving and Strengthening the Training of Technical Personnel and Rapidly Developing Science and Technology'" delivered at the 5th plenary meeting of the DPRK Cabinet on 13 June 1961 -- Text of this "Conclusion" is also published by NODONG SINMUN in its 13 June Issue]

[Excerpts] Chuche should be firmly established in scientific research and education. What is most important scientific research is to oppose dogmatism and flunkeyism and establish chuche. Establishing chuche in scientific research means developing science and technology to make effective use of our raw materials and resources in keeping with the trend of the development of modern science and technology. In other words, establishing chuche in scientific research means conducting scientific research with the emphasis on effectively using the natural resources of our country -- plant, animal, and mineral resources -- in keeping with the trends of development of modern science and technology.

Only when chuche is established in scientific research can we make all the people lead an affluent life with our own materials and resources. Otherwise it will be impossible for our people to lead a rich life or make developments. Therefore, by all means, we should develop science and technology to undertake the effective development and utilization of our own natural resources and pave the way to independent living.

In the struggle to establish chuche, the scientists and technicians of the chemical and metallurgical sectors are winning great successes. The chemical sector has succeeded in producing gas from anthracite. Thus, it has paved the way to further strengthen the foundations of the self-reliant national economy by industrializing this. As we have come to produce gas from anthracite, we should develop science and technology to develop the chemical and metallurgical industries and many other sectors of the people's economy with anthracite, which is abundant in our country. If scientific research is concentrated on using coking coal, which is not produced in our country, instead of effectively utilizing anthracite, which is produced in our country, this will be entirely useless. Research to produce gas from anthracite, which is boundlessly abundant in our country, for utilization in the industrial sector is precisely the establishment of chuche in scientific research.

We highly assess the production of vinalon. This is also because vinalon is a synthetic fiber produced from materials which are boundlessly abundant in our country. Of course, synthetic fibers can be produced from various materials. In other countries various synthetic fibers such as kaplon are produced from crude oil. However, in our country crude oil is not produced yet. The scientists who have conducted scientific research to produce vinalon from materials abundant in our country, have, it can be said, established chuche in scientific research.

We cannot say chuche has been established in the area of biology. The biological sector is not properly conducting scientific research on the plants of our country. As a result, we have no full knowledge of the grasses which can be used as fodder for domestic animals, and of the plants which should be cultivated for the solution of the fodder problems for domestic animals. To solve the fodder problem, we have put forth the policy to establish the mountain areas to produce arrowroots. However, this was because we found in the course of the conversations with peasants that arrowroot is good fodder for domestic animals. This was not the result of the scientists' research.

Scientists are proposing the use of clover and anemarrhena asphodeloides seeds as fodder, which are unfamiliar and hard to say by our people, instead of arrowroot, whch grows well anywhere in our country.

Not only in the area of scientific research but also in the area of education we see that chuche has not been established. Of course, as a result of the vigorous struggle to overcome dogmatism and flunkeyism in the area of education, some progress has been made. However, in the area of education there still remain not a few remnants of dogmatic and flunkeyistic ideas. Several years ago I visited a school. There, in the greenhouse, I saw only plants which grow well in tropical and subtropical zones. Maybe this was for the purpose of showing the students plants growing in the tropical and subtropical zones as common knowledge. However, I don't think this was right. In school education students should be taught about the plants growing in our country.

To establish chuche in scientific research and education, above all we must thoroughly oppose flunkeyism and dogmatism. Flunkeyism is, in a nutshell, an idea which despises the things of one's own country and admires the things of other countries. In the past some people admired Japan; today some people in South Korea are admiring the United States. All this is flunkeyism. If people are permeated with flunkeyistic ideas, they become idiots. Those permeated with flunkeyistic ideas regard what they have valueless and love what others have.

These days some scientists, regarding the treatise of some foreign country recommending bean chaff as fodder, are clamoring as if this is something now. However, this is also a phenomenon of flunkeyism. Ever since ancient times, the farmers of our country have fed cattle bean chaff, because they knew the bean chaff was good for the cattle.

In the past in our country flunkeyism and dogmatism created not a few troubles for the development of the science and technology of the country and its people's economy. If the scientists of the biological sector had liquidated flunkeyism and dogmatism and had established chuche in their scientific research at least ever since the time of the fatherland liberation war, when we criticized the remnants of flunkeyism and dogmatism, then livestock farming could have been developed notably.

The iron industry, which depends on the domestic fuel of our country, has not been established yet. This is also because the scientists and technicians of this sector have been filled with flunkeyistic ideas and, thus, have not been active in conducting scientific research to solve this problem. When iron making was starting, coking coal was used. This was because the iron industry was started in the country where coking coal was produced abundantly. Thus, if the industry was started in a country which produced anthracite, anthracite should have been used as fuel for iron making.

To establish chuche in scientific research, the national pride of the scientists and technicians should be enhanced. A considerable number of the scientists and technicians of our country did not possess lofty national pride, because they lived under the colonial rule of the Japanese imperialists for a long period. However, as a result of our party's vigorous struggle to establish chuche and promote the national pride of the people, the national pride of the scientists and technicians has been notably enhanced in recent years. The achievements which have been won in the scientific research to effectively utilize the materials and resources of our country fully show the correctness of our party's policy to establish chuche and enhance national pride among scientists and technicians. However, among the scientists and technicians the phenomenon of being devoid of national pride has not been completely eliminated. Scientists and technicians must not underestimate themselves. They should take due pride in what they have done.

Today, we are operating and developing the economy of the country by our own efforts. Scientists and technicians, with lofty national pride, should make active efforts to develop the science and technology of the country and to develop the people's economy a step higher.

To liquidate flunkeyism and dogmatism and establish chuche in education, adequate textbooks should be provided. At present, in some animal textbooks, lengthy descriptions are given about yaks. Only the Pyongyang Zoo has one in our country. This is absolutely wrong. It is sufficient to know about yaks as common knowledge. Thus, there is no need to fully describe them in the textbooks for students. In our country students should be taught about Korean oxes, not yaks. They should be taught about the fodder which is good for the Korean ox. Only then can students use this knowledge when they work in society after graduation.

Textbooks should be provided in such a way as to teach living knowledge, which can contribute to developing the science and technology of the country in keeping with the trend of modern science and technology, and developing and utilizing our own resources. Only when adequate textbooks are provided and education is conducted with such textbooks can chuche be established in education.

We should not seek chauvinism on the excuse of establishing chuche in education and scientific research. Establishing chuche bears no relationship to chauvinism. The establishment of chuche in scientific research and education does not mean opposition to learning science and technology from other countries. It only means the introduction of science and technology in accordance with the situation of our country and in accordance with the demand of socialist and communist construction.

While developing our own science and technology, we should actively learn and introduce the advanced science and technology and fine experience of other countries. But we should not swallow others' things whole, no matter how advanced and fine they may be. To swallow the things of other countries whole means falling into dogmatism. We must never mechanically introduce things which do not suit the specific conditions of our country. We must introduce the advanced science and technology of other countries and their fine experience in conformity with the actual conditions of our country. We must introduce them in a way toward helping the development of the science and technology of our country and the development and effective utilization of our own materials and resources.

The reason I stress the liquidation of flunkeyism and dogmatism and the establishment of chuche in scientific research and education is not because the phenomenon of flunkeyism and dogmatism is very dangerous in our country. In our country, already long ago serious blows were dealt to flunkeyism and dogmatism. What still remains are only their remnants. However, this still creates troubles for the development of the science and technology of our country and its education. Therefore, to make a turn in scientific research and education, the remnants of flunkeyism and dogmatism should be completely rooted out and chuche should be firmly established.

They scientifically proved the uniqueness, correctness, and great vitality of the outstanding economic ideas and theories which the great leader and dear Comrade Kim Chong-il elucidated in their historic works. In so doing, they put forth practical tasks to implement them.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Our party's line and policy are correct, and illuminate the path of victory for our people. They said that the chuche-oriented economic ideas and theories created by the great leader and developed and enriched by dear Comrade Kim Chong-il are the ideas and theories of communist economic construction, the correctness of which has been proved in the practice of revolution in our country. They stressed that the ideas and theories are guiding principles which should be firmly maintained in the course of socialist and communist construction.

They explained the perfect planning system which the great leader has established by putting forth the unique idea of unified and detailed planning with deep insight into the significance of the people's economic planning in the socialist economic construction.

They scientifically proved the essence, superiority, and great vitality of the great leader's policy of unified and detailed planning, and put forth measures to further intensify the discipline of democratic centralization in overall economic management and to actively accelerate the systematic and balanced development of the people's economy.

They explained the perfect scientific elucidation which the great leader has given for new and urgent questions which should be settled in socialist economic management. In doing so, they said that the intrinsic contents of the independent financial operation system and the method of the systematic management and operation of the socialist state-run enterprises are to apply the principle of material interests and to systematically utilize such economic means as price, cost, and profit in order to make the enterprises formulate plans correctly and fulfill them without fail.

They stressed the stabilization of production at a high level through the correct application of the independent financial operation system by the state-run enterprises and through the rational management and operation of the socialist economy.

They explained the correct utilization of commercial forms in the circulation of production means in socialist society. They said that the theory on commercial forms in the circulation of production means was the first scientific economic theory elucidated by the great leader. They stressed the scientific and rational management and operation of the economy through the thorough embodiment of the great leader's idea on commercial forms in production and the circulation of production means in socialist society. Saying that the idea and theory on the Taean work system occupy an important place in the unique economic ideas and theories of the great leader, they deeply offered explanations regarding this.

Stating that the Taean work system is the most outstanding form of socialist economic management which has brilliantly embodied the immortal chuche idea in the area of economic management, they said that its vitality is displayed in guaranteeing the collective guidance of the party committees, in managing and operating industry systematically, in intensifying technological guidance over production, in rendering comprehensive guidance over production, and in basically improving the supply of materials and support work.

Saying that the correctness of the Taean work system has been clearly proved in practice, they stressed the revolutionary measure recently taken by the great leader and dear Comrade Kim Chong-il for the establishment of complexes, a unique form of our industrial management for even better industrial management in accordance with the demand of the Taean work system and with the collective guidance of the party committees as basic elements. They put forth measures to continue to thoroughly implement the Taean work system and to further display the vitality of the complexes.

Noting the rural theses which the respected and beloved leader put forth as the great program for socialist rural construction, they elucidated the significance of the idea to vigorously carry out the ideaological revolution, technological revolution, and cultural revolution in the rural areas, strengthen support work for the rural areas, and improve state guidance over the cooperative farms as the basic tasks of socialist rural construction.

They stressed that the idea on the basic tasks is the most revolutionary policy to eliminate the gap between the urban and rural areas and the class gap between the working class and peasants, to win the complete victory of socialism, and to accelerate the building of communist society by continuing the revolution in the rural areas following the establishment of the socialist system.

Saying that the correctness and vitality of the basic tasks of socialist rural construction put forth by the respected and beloved leader have been fully proved through the rapid development of the rural economy in our country, through the ideological and spiritual traits of the peasants, and through fundamental changes in the appearance of the rural areas, they spoke about the need to bring the great socialist rural theses into fuller bloom on this soil.

They explained the scientific elucidation which dear Comrade Kim Chong-il, is publishing his classical document "The Position and Role of the Counties in Socialist Cosntruction," has given on the need to establish regional bases for socialist construction, on the reason why the counties are the regional bases for socialist rural construction, on the development of the local economy with the counties as units, on the inevitability of relations between sectors, on the question of evenly improving the people's standard of living through the comprehensive development of the local economy, and on the role of the counties as bases for economic relations between the urban and rural areas.

They explained the profoundness and correctness of the ideas, theories, and policies of the document and deeply proved the great vitality of the ideas and theories for the comprehensive development of the local economy.

Noting the programmatic guiding principle which dear Comrade Kim Chong-il has again put forth of late for developing the local economy, they expressed the determination to adhere to economic organizational work and to display the correctness and vitality of the economic policy of our party more vigorously.

They expressed that the creation of the outstanding economic ideas and theories through the embodiment of the chuche idea in the area of economic construction is an immortal achievement which the great leader and dear Comrade Kim Chong-il have won for the revolutionary cause of the working class and for the cause of socialist and communist construction.

They stressed the need to arm themselves more firmly with the outstanding economic ideas and theories of the great leader and bring about new upsurges in socialist economic construction by implementing them thoroughly with great pride and self-confidence for possessing the chuche-oriented economic ideas and theories.

NODONG SINMUN ON PRODUCING MORE CONSUMER GOODS

[NODONG SINMUN 16 June editorial: "Let Us Consolidate and Develop the Successes Attained in Producing 3 August People's Consumer Goods"]

[Text] City and county districts have recently attained great successes in their vigorous struggle for the 3 August production of people's consumer goods (?initiated) by the party. This clearly shows the justness and vitality of the party policy on mass producing the 3 August people's consumer goods. In the course of the struggle for the production of 3 August people's consumer goods, many examplary units have emerged.

While conducting working guidance on the work of 3 August people's consumer goods direct-sales shop in the City of Pyongyang, the dear Comrade Kim Chong-il highly appreciated the examples set by the functionaries of the Pyongchon district party, who have attained great successes in improving the people's standard of living by increasing the production of people's consumer goods. We should achieve new advances in the struggle to increase the production of people's consumer goods and to improve the people's standard of living by consolidating the successes attained in producing 3 August people's consumer goods and in popularizing the experiences of advanced units.

Comrade Kim Chong-Il, member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau and secretary of the party Central Committee, has noted: By thoroughly implementing the party policy on engineering a light industrial revolution, we should see to it that new upsurges are effected in producing people's consumer goods.

The party's intention with regard to the production of 3 August people's consumer goods is to produce more of various kinds of people's consumer goods on one's own, apart from what was allocated by the state index, through the positive exploration and mobilization of inner reserves. For this reason, the key to success in this work rests with the extent to which inner reserves will be explored and mobilized.

Pyongchon District is producing some 2,400 kinds of useful consumer goods out of scrap materials and waste materials that come in the course of production. The ranks of plants and enterprises that furnish all the employees with living expenses with the amount of production of 3 August people's consumer goods are lengthening with each passing day in the district.

What is important in mobilizing inner reserves is not conditions, but the ideological point of view and the fighting traits of the functionaries and masses. There are plants and enterprises in the city and county districts. Agricultural and fishery products are being produced there. Also, there are party members and working people who cherish the party policies as their own conviction and who ardently struggle to implement them in the districts of the cities and counties. Under such circumstances, if only the party organizations mobilize the masses well and plan and coordinate organizational and political work correctly, 3 August people's consumer goods can be produced everywhere on a large scale. Pyongchon District's experiences show this.

Today our country is provided with mighty foundations for the production of light industrial goods. A large amount of various kinds of daily necessities and consumer goods are being produced on the basis of national strength. In the meantime, our party has taken measures to make the city and county districts produce a large amount of 3 August people's consumer goods on their own. Reality has proven the justness of this measure.

Party functionaries in the city and country districts should vigorously demonstrate the justness of the party policy on increasing the production of consumer goods and see to it that the people are put in a position to be reached far better by the party's consideration and benevolence by pushing from behind the work of producing 3 August people's consumer goods well, as the party functionaries in advanced units, such as Pyongchon district, have done.

An important problem arising at present in consolidating and developing the successes attained in producing 3 August people's consumer goods is for the party organizations to lead the work for the production of 3 August people's consumer goods thoroughly in accordance with the party's intentions.

Our party has been stressing the need for the functionaries to plan and coordinate the work of producing high quality people's consumer goods in such a substantive way as to have more produced.

Party organizations in the city and county districts should tirelessly carry out the work for the production of the 3 August people's consumer goods while consistently adhering to it and turn this work into a course of establishing a revolutionary trait of carrying out the party's decisions and directives unconditionally by emulating the experiences of the Pyongchon District party committee, which has substantively implemented such intentions of the party. What is particularly important in this regard is to adhere to the work of providing solid foundations for the production of the 3 August people's consumer goods as the work of implementing the party intentions.

It is because all the plants and enterprises in the district have organized work teams and sub-work teams specializing in production of 3 August people's consumer goods and because the entire district has been turned into a base producing people's consumer goods with smooth supplies of tools, jigs, and equipment that the production of 3 August people's consumer goods has continued to grow in Pyongchon District.

Party organizations in the city and county districts should substantiatively plan and coordinate the work designed to increase the number of the work teams and sub-work teams for the production of 3 August people's consumer goods and to equip them smoothly with various production provisions and tools and push them from behind them by exploring labor reserves, as the Pyongchon District party committee did.

Also, they should lead them in such a way as to encourage them to think out and produce a great number of simple but useful miscellaneous daily necessities and other daily necessities in conformity with the standards set by the party in the course of estimating some new goods contrived and manufactured.

Another important problem arising in consolidating and developing the successes attained in producing 3 August people's consumer goods is to mobilize all the functionaries and working people by adhering to ideology and by doing a good job in political work. The secret of success in the production of 3 August people's consumer goods lies in stirring and mobilizing the masses' ideology.

Party organizations should first of all see to it that all the posts, quarters, and responsible functionaries of the city and county district party committees pay deep attention to the production of 3 August people's consumer goods and adhere to this. In this regard, it is important for the party committees of the city and county districts to do a good job of a combination operation between the organizational bureaus and propaganda bureaus. In this way, the organization bureaus should see to it that guidance on the party life of functionaries and party members of the plants and enterprises is conducted in combination with the state of production of 3 August people's consumer goods. The propaganda bureaus should create a mass atmosphere for the production of 3 August people's consumer goods by mobilizing propaganda and agitation forces and means.

In particular, party organizations in the city and county districts should find a correct methodology for the mobilization and stirring of functionaries at the central plants and enterprises who have great reserves with regard to the production of 3 August people's consumer goods so as to lead them to make great contributions to this work.

What is valuable in the experience attained from the mobilization of the masses in Pyongchon District is that it has called the masses to the production of 3 August people's consumer goods by finding an effective method. What has proven its worth in this regard includes an offering of prizes for the masses to design posters for the production of 3 August people's consumer goods, exhibitions of sample goods, meetings of appreciating such sample goods, and socialist competition by individual plants and enterprises.

Without exception, every one of the functionaries and working people at the plants and enterprises in the districts is now contributing to creating new products. In this way, such successes as producing modern [name indistinct] at thermal power plants, producing sewing machines at (?chemical workshops), and producing export goods at machine plants have been achieved.

Party organizations in the city and county districts should conduct the work of mobilizing the masses and enhancing a desire in them for the production in such various forms and with such vitality. Party organizations in the city and county districts should lead all the functionaries and working people in their own units in such a way as to make them make useful consumer goods out of things meant to be disposed of and to make many goods out of raw materials meant to make only one by positively exploring inner reserves with a meticulous economic way of life and trait of increasing production through conservation -- all by doing a good job of political work with the masses.

Another important thing in consolidating and developing the successes attained in producing 3 August people's consumer goods if for the responsible functionaries of the city and county district parties to adhere to and lead well the production of 3 August people's consumer goods and the work concerning direct sales shops.

Responsible secretaries of the city and county district parties bear the responsibility to take care of the living of the residents in their own units with a sense of responsibility, along with the party work of their own units. As in the case of all other work, the successes attained in the production of 3 August people's consumer goods in particular depends in large part on how the responsible secretaries of the city and county district parties conduct their work. Our party demands that the responsible secretaries of the city and county district parties pay deep attention to and guide the production of 3 August people's consumer goods as well as direct sales shop work.

By emulating the examples set by Pyongchon District, the responsible functionaries in the city and county district parties should think and search without interruption in the spirit of devoted service for the people and with the flair and air of masters in charge of the livelihood in their own districts. They should also contrive new consumer goods themselves, always visit the direct sales shops to check what the residents demand from the shops, the state of production, the state of supplies of production, and inventories of goods. They should also meticulously estimate the work of producing 3 August people's consumer goods and lead this sincerely.

In this way, they should become sincere functionaries themselves who draw plans and conduct operations on the basis of their own brains, who sow seeds, cultivate, and reap with their hands. When the party functionaries in the city and county districts loyally uphold the party's intentions on increasing the production of 3 August people's consumer goods, the might and combat capabilities of our party organizations will be further strengthened and great successes will be achieved in the work of improving the people's standard of living.

UNIFICATION VICE MINISTER: TALKS 'UP TO NORTH'

[Text] Vice Minister of National Unification Kim Ton-sop said yeaterday it is up to North Korea to decide the timing and place of the proposed inter-Korea summit talks.

Kim said, "Our government has consistently been proposing the summit talks since 1981. Should North Korea accept the proposal some day, it is up to it to determine when and where to hold the talks." The vice minister was testifying before the National Assembly Foreign Affairs Committee.

Kim also said, "The government has no plans to seek the South-North summit talks coincident with the 1986 Asian Games (Sept. 20-Oct. 5).

He made the remarks refering to some Japanese newspapers' previous reports that there is a posibility that South and North Korea may hold the summit before the start of the Asian Games.

The vice minister said Pyongyang's overture for three-way military talks with South Korea and the U.N. Command in Korea seems to be designed to serve its propaganda purpose. The proposed reduction of armament by the divided halves is a highly political issue that should be handled at the proposed summit talks, he said.

The most important thing between South and North Korea is to restore mutual trust, he said. The vice minister made it clear that the Seoul government will shortly send to Pyongyang an official response rejecting the proposal for military talks.

The Foreign Affairs Committee was one of the five standing Assembly committes that were convened on the fourth day of the ongoing six-day committee session. Originally, seven of the 13 committees were scheduled to meet, but a Home Affairs Committee session was aborted bacause of the continuing friction between rival parties over an opposition lawmaker's controversial floor speech.

The Finance Committee session stalled, as ruling and opposition parties wrangled over the proposed Monopoly Corporation Bill. Opposition lawmakers refused to attend the committee session, demanding a modification or elimination of Article 13 of the bill, which they asserted would clear the way for free imports of tobacco.

Part of the article says the scope of the corporation includes agencies duly authorized by the corporation and agencies in which it has made investments.

Meanwhile, members of the Trade-Industry Committee dealt intensively with measures designed to cope with U.S. trade pressure. Minister of Trade and industry Kum Chin-ho said the government is working on amendments to trade-related laws which do not "agree with our realities."

The amendments will be proposed to the National Assembly during a regular session starting in Septmeber, Kum said.

The minister also said the government has yet to make a decision on whether or not to import foreign tobaccos and cigarettes.

DISAPPOINTMENT VOICED OVER GAMES PLAN REJECTION

OW211255 Tokyo Kyodo in English 1236 GMT 21 Jun 86

[Text] Seoul, June 21 KYODO -- South Korean sports officials showed disappointment Saturday at North Korea's rejection of a compromise plan for the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul.

Kim Chong-ha, Chairman of the South Korean Olympic Committee, said North Korea did not understand the spirit and the significance of the Olympic Games. "Peoples around the world would not be able to understand the stand taken by North Korea," he said.

Kim was commenting on reports by North Korea's official radio quoting a leading sports official as denouncing the compromise plan put forward by the International Olympic Committee.

Kim, who headed a South Korean delegation to the talks with IOC and the North Korean Olympic Committee, said South Korea would continue to review the compromise plan until North Korea sends its official response to the IOC.

Officials of the Seoul Olympics Organizing Committee described the reported North Korean response as unworthy of comment.

DJP CHAIRMAN CALLS FOR NKDP COMPROMISE OF REFORM

SK220111 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 22 Jun 86 p 4

[From the "Out and About" column: "Backward Step"]

[Text] DJP Chairman No Tae-u said yesterday the NKDP should present a constitutional revision bill without a direct presidential election system for a compromise on the basic law reform.

"Just as we have taken a step backward and plan to present a revision bill without incorporating the current system, the NKDP should also make a backward step," said.

No was briefing reporters on his talks with NKDP president Yi Min-u, especially regarding his real intentions in the agreement that rival parties will initiate a "compromised" reform bill.

Asked how he felt about the possibility that Yi will present a revision bill without a direct presidential election system, No said he understood Yi's "troubled position." "But think he (Yi) is capable of submitting a reform bill without it," he added.

CITIZENS PROTEST AGAINST POLICE VIOLENCE

[Text] Some 100 citizens encircled a police bus and expressed their anger for one and a half hours in a crowded downtown market place in Seoul Friday night in protest against a group of combat policemen's gang violence on a passer-by.

The incident was learned to have been prompted when several people saw five combat policemen beating 30-year-old Choe Pong-sop after a quarrel on a trivial thing.

The combat policemen from the Song-dong police station were on stand-by duty against potential street demonstrations with their bus parked at the entrance of the Pangsan market in Clchiro, downtown Seoul.

Choe, the victim of the violence, was on his way home with his five-year-old son when a scuffle started between him and several combat policemen. He suffered bruises all over his body and a cut on his forehead.

According to a witness Kang Ku-chi, 29, several combat policemen ganged up on choe when he turned his attention to the scene, being startled by Choe's screaming.

Upon facing protests from some 20 citizens, the combat policemen hurriedly got on the bus and tried to get away only to be blocked by an ever-increasing number of angry citizens.

Citizens continued their protest, demanding a formal apology from responsible police officers and proper punitive action against the combat policemen who participated in the violence.

The police dispersed the protesting citizens encircling the police bus by dispatching another 100 combat policemen to the scene.

MUN INDICTED FOR INCITING DEMONSTRATIONS, RIOTS

[Text] Seoul, June 19 (YONHAP) -- The Seoul district prosecutor's office Wednesday indicted the Rev. Mun Ik-hwan, chairman of the Mintongnyon, a coalition of dissident organizations, on charges of inciting anti-government demonstrations and riot.

Prosecutors arrested Mun May 23 on a charge of agitating an anti-government demonstration at Seoul National University but later gave him the additional charge of planning and leading the May 3 riot in Inchon, a port city some 30 kilometers west of Seoul.

The violence in Inchon led to the cancellation of a rally that had been planned by the leading opposition New Korea Democratic Party to launch a local chapter of its campaign for constitutional revision.

Prosecutors consider Mun to have been an accomplice of 59 others indicted for their roles in the Inchon incident. Mun delivered a speech at a student rally at the university, which the prosecutors contend triggered the demonstration. The prosecutors said, "The Rev. Mun himself said he will assume all responsibility if he violated the law."

Mun allegedly convened a meeting with some 20 leaders of the Mintongnyon several days prior to the opposition rally and decided to hold a separate rally, according to prosecutors.

The prosecutors said that Mun directed the coalition leaders at the meeting to prepare leaflets calling for "the destruction of the military dictatorship and the establishment of democratic government" and that he distributed the leaflets at the Inchon rally.

The prosecution said it will not revoke the stay of Mun's prison term, however. Mun was indicted on sedition charges in 1980 and was sentenced to life imprisonment. His prison term was commuted twice before he was paroled in December 1982, with two years and seven months remaining on his sentence.

EDITORIAL ON OPPOSITION TO U.S. TRADE PRESSURE

[Editorial: "Korea-U.S. Trade Issues"]

[Text] It is not unusual that the operation of the National Assembly is marred by squabbles and disputes of various sorts, especially in connection with the outstanding political issues. Still yet, noteworthy was a development over the weekend, in which opposition lawmakers boycotted a Finance Committee session scheduled to deliberate an administration-proposed bill on transforming the Office of Monopoly, a government agency, into a public corporation.

The point at issue concerned a provision in the bill, which the oppositionists asserted would lead to the influx of foreign-brand cigarettes and the mushrooming of joint ventures with foreign capital on tobacco produce, jeopardizing the domestic cigarette industry and tobacco leaf farming as well.

While questions may arise as for the propriety of the opposition tactics, the boycott signified a repercussion -- and, at that, in the political dimension -- against the mounting U.S. pressure to open the Korean market to an ever-growing number of American goods and services.

In terms of timing, the filibuster coincided with a working-level trade meeting between Korea and the United States, a prelude to the fifth binational economic consultative talks opening here tomorrow, which is expected to take up a broad range of issues -- from bilateral market-opening problems to the launching of a "new round" of multilateral trade negotiations.

One highlight of the two-day preparatory meeting was an elaborate U.S. approach or threat to link the granting of GSP (generalized system of prererence) benefits to Korea with Korean efforts to further open its market and to protect intellectual property rights.

Such a U.S. pressure was irritating to the Koreans who have recently learned, with much misgivings, of the government's decision to raise the nation's import liberalization ratio to 91.5 percent beginning next month from the present 87.7 percent, while the two countries had agreed to protect the foreign material patents starting July 1 next year.

It is to be noted that the U.S. attempt to tie the GSP favor to Korea's market liberalization, already made wide open to the level of some advanced countries, runs against the original aim of the GSP, which was to help developing countries through trade, not aid. Criticism is also in order against the American demand for "retroactive" protection of copyrights and patents, which constitutes a violation of international practices.

Even granting that a further market opening is inevitable, the process ought to be gradual, lest the local industry be seriously crippled. What is more, keen attention should be paid to a recent rise of violent anti-Americanism in our society, which is partly attributable to what was alleged as the arm-twisting U.S. pressure on trade problems.

'BILATERAL FRICTION' TOPIC OF TRADE TALKS

[Text] Seoul, June 21 (YONHAP) -- Korea and the United States hold a trade meeting here June 23-24 to discuss bilateral trade friction and other economic issues pending between the two countries.

High on the agenda of the Fifth Economic Consultative Meeting are the U.S. demand for wider access to Korean market for American goods, the application of GSP (generalized system of preference) benefits to Korean products and Korea's protection of foreign intellectual property rights.

Vice Foreign Minister Yi Sang-ok is to lead the 19-member Korean delegation to the meeting, while Allen Wallis, Undersecretary of State, and Bruce Smart, Undersecretary of Commerce, is to head the 16-member U.S. delegation.

The two countries held a meeting of working-level officials June 19-20 here and reviewed overall trade isues in preparation for next week's conference and apparently in a bid to clear the way for a package solution to the trade friction.

Also to be discussed during the economic consultative meeting will be the boosting of cooperation in investment and matters involving energy, fisheries, aviation and maritime transportation, according to sources at the Trade and Industry Ministry.

The two delegations are also expected to exchange views on increased Korean participation in coal mining and participation in the liquified natural gas exploration project in Alaska, the overdue U.S. action to implement a bilateral aviation pact, giving the Korean Air right to fly to Chicago, and the promotion of joint business operations in third countries, the sources said.

PRACHEACHON EDITORIAL ON ARMY BUILDING

[PRACHEACHON editorial: "Strive To Build the KPRAF so That They Rapidly Become Stronger and Larger"]

[Text] Growing up in the protracted and arduous revolutionary struggle and out of the Issarak army of 35 years ago, the Cambodian Revolutionary Armed Forces joined with the Cambodian people, maintained close cooperation and solidarity with the Vietnamese people and the VPA in the struggle against the common enemy of the two nations, and won one victory after another over the French colonialists, U.S. imperialist aggressors, and their lackeys, thus completely liberating our beloved fatherland.

In January 1979, the KPRAF once again, shoulder to shoulder with the Vietnamese Army volunteers and together with the people throughout the country, rose up and fought the cruel, oppressive apparatuses of the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan gang -- the subservient lackeys of the Beijing expansionists-hegemonists -- saving the nation from the danger of genocide ad creating the PRK. Over the past more than 7 years, under the just leadership of the KPRP, our peple's Army has won great victories in the cause of defending and rebuilding the fatherland. In fact, it has helped in the revival of the nation, the fight against the consequences of wars and the genocidal regime, the socioeconomic and cultural restoration and development, and the nationwide founding and consolidation of the people's power with democratic characteristics.

At present, our Army and people are making firm strides along the line of the resolutions adopted by the fourth and fifth party congresses: to firmly defend national independence and to build the fatherland step by step hrough the transitional period to socialism. The KPRAF have made an important contribution to the defense of these great achievements. At present, they show remarkable development, possessing networks of organized units, command apparatuses at all levels from the central to the grass roots, special forces, regular forces, regional forces, and militia forces in every nook and cranny of the country. The fighting strength of the KPRAF has been increased steadily, enabling them to cooperate with the Vietnamese volunteer army in frustrating all enemy attempts, to succeed in defending the revolutionary gains, and to firmly maintain the advantage of mastery of the people thoughout the country. The invincible force of our Army comes from the correct leadership of the party and the affection and care of the people.

At the time of its founding, despite its lack of manpower and the primitiveness of its weapons, the Issrak army -- under the leadership of the party -- fought for the fatherland's independence and freedom and the people's happy existence. For this reason, the people loved it and provided it with support, affection, and assistance from the bottom of their hearts. Therefore, not only was it superior to the more numerous and powerful enemy, but it could vanquish him and grow steadily. The strength of our army also illustrates the excellent point that the cadres and combatants have a single common ideal: to fight for the fatherland and the people, maintain organization, observe discipline, uphold unity, be resolute in struggle, love one another, assist one another, and share weal and woe with each other.

At present, despite their serious and successive defeats, the enemies of our revolution remain stubborn, nurturing the ambition and illusion of military victory. Therefore, our people's major duty is to defend the fatherland and revolutionary gains. This is the cause of the whole people, whose core consists of the Armed Forces.

To launch a movement of the whole people against the enemy; to foil completely all the aggressive and subversive maneuvers of the enemy; to defend the fatherland firmly; and to ensure social security, order, and safety and the people's peaceful existence, it is absolutely imperative to coordinate closely the activities of the three categories of Armed Forces -- regular, regional, and militia. Thanks to the correct implementation of this coordination, of late our various Revolutionary Army Forces have gradually developed, vanquishing the French colonialist, the U.S. imperialist aggressors, and their lackeys. The growth and development of the KPRAF cannot be separated from the close bonds of special solidarity between the peoples and armies of Cambodia and Vietnam and the bonds of strategic solidarity of Cambodia, Vietnam, Laos, and the socialist community with the Soviet Union as the pillar. This is a firm guarantee for the cause of building the Army and strengthening national defense.

The resolutions of the fourth party congress stressed that the annals of the Cambodian revolution over the past more than half a century also clearly showed that when the relations between the Cambodian revolution and that of Vietnam are close, we win. On the contrary, whenever the relations of friendship between Cambodia and Vietnam are sabotaged by the enemy or because of narrow-minded chauvinism instigated by the enemy, the revolution of the two countries is consequently damaged.

Looking back at the stages through which the KPRAF have passed -- considering the fact that our common strategic duty in the current phase is to defend national independence firmly and gradually build the Cambodian fatherland through the transitional period to socialism and also examining all the achievements that have been won and that should be developed -- we can see that there are a number of shortcomings and weaknesses to be eliminated.

Developing the brilliant tradition of the KPRAF, it is imperative to strive to build the People's Armed Forces in all fields and aspects. The regular, regional, militia, and people's police forces must grow rapidly to become the core for the people as a whole in attacking the enemy and defending the fatherland. First of all, the regular forces must be increased both qualitatively and quantitatively, with the main emphasis on the quality of their political grasp, revolutionary ethics, conscience, observance of discipline, and combat ability. It is imperative to build the Army into a truly popular one born of the people, remaining close to the people, and fighting for the people.

Cadres must not only be good at commanding; they must also be good at taking care of the material and moral lives of the combatants. Superior cadres, especially party members, must be good models for subordinate cadres and set an example for the combatants. All must uphold internal unity, Army-people solidarity, and proletarian internationalist solidarity. On this occasion, all commanding cadres must conduct self-criticism in front of the combatants. The combatants must dare to express sincere opinions about their commanders. Wherever the Army units bivouac, they must organize inspection and self-criticism in front of the local people to allow the people to express their sincere opinions vis-a-vis the army. They must enhance solidarity and close cooperation with the units of the Vietnamese volunteer army.

The building and consolidation of militia units must be linked with production efforts in local productive units. Militia units must be the core of production and must join with the people, cadres, workers, and employees in defending the local revolutionary powers. The people's police must be constantly strengthened to ensure that the police forces remain truly clean, uncorrupt, and absolutely loyal to the revolution. To the present, the Beijing expansionists-hegemonists, in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and Thai reactionaries, have not given up their dark designs and perfidious maneuvers against the Cambodian revolution and the three Indochinese countries.

We must make great efforts in our forceful advance to build the Army and strengthen national defense step by step to assume the national defense duty ourselves. We pledge to maintain and enhance the Cambodia-Vietnam militant solidarity and alliance, the three Indochinese countries' solidarity, and solidarity with the socialist community with the Soviet Union as the pillar, determined to frustrate all perfidious maneuvers of the enemy. To implement all the tasks described above well, we most enthusiastically celebrate the 35th anniversary of the glorious tradtional day of the Revolutionary Armed Forces and the Army-people solidarity day.

Heng Samrin Receives Visitors

VNA, RADIO VIETNAM INTERVIEW WITH BOU THANG

[Interview with Bou Thang, KPRP Central Committee Politburo member and PRK Defense Minister, by VNA and Vietnam Radio on PRK's 35th Army Day -- Recorded, answers in Cambodian fading into Vietnamese translation]

[Text] [Question] Respected comrade minister, on the occasion of the 35th anniversary of the Kampuchean People's Revolutionary Armed Forces (KPRAF), please tell us about the historic experiences gained during the KPRP's course of building and fighting.

[Answer] First of all, I thank you comrades, for this interview on the occasion of the KPRAF's great festival. Now, in answer to your question, from the realities of the revolutionary struggle, we have derived some principled historic experiences in the building of the revolutionary armed forces. First, the people's armed forces and army must be led by a genuine Marxist-Leninist party. They must be trained and educated according to the working class' nature to be the loyal children of the people and be ready to sacrifice their lives to defend the people and the fatherland.

Second, the revolutionary army and armed forces must be closely attached to the people like blood and flesh in order to create an invincible strength to defeat the enemy.

Third, the revolutionary army must serve as a core for the all-people movement to fight the enemy and defend the fatherland and revolutionary gains.

Fourth, troops must be closely united, implement democracy, and maintain stern discipline. Cadres and party members must be exemplary in their perfomance of duty, in combat, and in their lifestyle. Cadres and combatants must protect one another and share weal and woe together. They must be determined to fulfill all tasks assigned them by our party and people.

Fifth, they must constantly promote and strengthen the special relationship, solidarity and strategic militant alliance between Cambodia and Vietnam as well as among Cambodia, Vietnam, and Laos and between Cambodia and the socialist community with the Soviet Union as the mainstay. This is a firm guarantee for building the army, consolidating national defense and defending the fatherland.

These historic experiences have been derived from the realities of revolutionary and armed struggles by several generations of our people. They have been paid for by the flesh and blood of tens of thousands of cadres and combatants and of millions of patriotic Cambodians who were killed by the genocidal Pol Pot regime, henchmen of the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists. These historic experiences still retain all their validity and will do so in the future for our KPRAF and armed forces on their path of development to fulfill all tasks victoriously.

[Question] Please, comrade, tell us of the KPRAF's contributions to victoriously fulfilling the three strategic objective set by the Fifth KPRP Congress.

[Answer] The Fifth KPRP Congress resolution clearly indicated the three strategic objectives in the present revolutionary stage;

— Increasing the revolutionary offensive against the enemy both along the border with Thailand and inside Cammbodia, weakening the enemy and foiling all its wicked moves and designs.

-- Qualitatively and quantitatively strengthening the revolutionary power in all fields, politically, military, and economically; and enhancing the revolutionary gains and defeating all kinds of enemy in order to build an independent, peaceful, happy and prosperous Cambodia.

— Developing the revolutionary alliance and special relations between Cambodia and Vietnam and among the three Indochinese countries and three parties, as well as with other socialist countries with the Soviet Union as the mainstay.

To achieve these three objectives, the KPRAF as a whole are doing their utmost, together with all the people, to foil all the dark schemes of sabotage by the Pol Pot remnants and other Khmer reactionary groups to defend the fatherland, the revolutionary gains, and the revival of the country, and to tighten Cambodia-Vietnam friendship.

The 1984-85 dry season victories won by the KPRAF In coordination with Vietnamese army volunteers, which reslted in the liquidation of all the hideouts of the Pol Pot remnants and other Khmer reactionaries along the Cambodian-Thai border, eradicated large numbers of enemy troops and drove them into a seriously weakened position.

Following these victories, the Cambodian revolutionary armed forces, together with the entire people, have focussed their efforts on building the western border defense lines and have strengthened the power of the revolution in the country to smash all the enemy's surreptitious tricks.

The 1984-85 military victories, the buildup of the border defense lines and the consolidation of inner stability have enabled the KPRAF and armed forces as a whole in the past two years to grow even more quickly and to assume ever heavier responsibility in the national defense task.

We are striving to build comprehensively strong people's armed forces composed of regular units, local armed forces, militia, and people's public security forces which will serve as a core for all the people to fight the enemy. We have achieved encouraging results. With its rapid growth and achievements as well as the valuable support and assistance from Vietnamese army volunteers, the KPRAF, together with all the Cambodian people, will certainly make worthy contributions to victoriously implementing the three strategic objectives laid down by the fifth KPRP Congress resolution.

[Question] Please give us your impressions of the militant solidarity and coambat alliance between the peoples and armies of Vietnam and Cambodia.

[Answer] The Fifth KPRP Congress resolution asserted that the history of Cambodia over the past half century or more has proved that each time the revolution in Cambodia was closely attahced to the revolution in Vietnam, victory was assured.

On the contrary, whenever the Cambodia-Vietnam strategic alliance was undermined and narrow-minded nationalism prevailed, the revolution suffered losses. This is a lesson paid for by the flesh and blood that communists, cadres and combatants of the revolutionary armed forces and all our Cambodian people must remember forever and transmit to future generations.

The Cambodian people always bear in mind the image of the heroic Vietnamese internationalists who for several decades fought side by side the Cambodian soldiers and people to defeat the French and U.S. imperialists and the genocidal Pol Pot clique, and who continue to stand beside the Cambodian troops and people in their national defense and construction.

The Cambodian people will be forever grateful to the Vietnamese parents, wives, sisters, and brothers who have heroically seen their children, husbands, and brothers off to Cambodia to help the Cambodian people liberate their nation and defend their country.

We will never forget those columns of troops bearing the title of Uncle Ho's soldiers that came to help the Cambodian revolution when the entire Cambodian nation was on the brink of the genocidal abyss. For this reason, the cadres and combatants of our Cambodian people's armed forces pledge to do their utmost, together with all the Cambodian people, to protect and constantly tighten the Cambodia-Vietnam militant solidarity and alliance and will not let any enemy destroy it.

On this occasion, I would like to convey my greetings of militant solidarity to all the cadres and combatants of the Vietnam People's Army and all the Vietnamese people, close friends of the Cambodian people, their revolutionary army and armed forces.

Reshuffle Only 'Prelude' to Changes

[By Laurent Maillard]

[Excerpts] Hanoi, June 22 (AFP) -- Vietnam has replaced ministers responsible for key economic sectors as Hanoi faces up to a lingering economic crisis brought about in party by a reform program launched last year.

Observers described the shake-up as the first concrete result of the latest plenum of the party's Central Committee. According to the scarce information which leaked out from the meeting, it was largely devoted to changing the personalities responsible for the economic crisis, which has hurt relations between the population and the party.

The age and health of several of Vietnam's senior leaders was also reportedly discussed at the plenum, and observers said that more changes could be announced when the National Assembly opens its summer session Tuesday. According to persistent rumors circulating in Hanoi, the Saturday reshuffle was only a prelude to other, more important, changes in the Vietnamese hierarchy.

Senior Vietnamese officials have indicated publicly and privately during the past few months that some of the country's principal "historical leaders" could abandon some of the functions, probably before the 6th party congress, which is to take place at the end of the year. Pham Van Dong, 80, chairman of the Council of Ministers, Politburo Member Le Duan, 79, and Truong Chinh, 79, chairman of the National Defense Council, are three men who have help top leadership positions for the past 40 years whose names are most frequently mentioned.

PRC FLOATING MINES INJURE TWO HANOI RESIDENTS

[Text] Hanoi VNA June 22 -- In the five days from June 13-17, two injuries were reported in the Hanoi area caused by mines floated by the Chinese downstream the Red River.

The victims were Nguyen Ngoc Bien, 22, and Dinh Thi Hong, 14, dwellers of Hanoi's suburban district of Tu Liem. They were both injured in the legs and hands on separate days when they stepped on Chinese floating mines along the river bank.

They are now hospitalized at the Vietnam-GDR hospital in Hanoi. Both lost their left legs, and their right feet and left hands were badly damaged.

Last year, Chinese floating mines caused many casualties among the population along the Red River. Early this month, Chinese artillery shelling killed two school children and injured five others and a teacher of a primary school in the northern border province of Ha Tuyen when they were celebrating the International Children's Day (June 1).

CONSTABULARY, PRO-MARCOS SUPPORTERS CLASH

AFP Reports 5 Injured

BK221429 Hong Kong AFP in English 1411 GMT 22 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 22 (AFP) -- Five persons were injured and 12 arrested Sunday as thousands of supporters of deposed President Ferdinand Marcos battled security forces in front of the Armed Forces Headquarters here, officials said. The clash occurred when paramilitary Philippine Constabulary troopers tried to break up a demonstration in support of Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, who the Marcos loyalists claimed was about to be fired by President Corazon Aquino.

A policeman was taken to hospital with head injuries and two troopers and two demonstrators were treated by paramedics for minor injuries during the 30-minute clash. Twelve demonstrators were arrested for unruly behavior, Constabulary Colonel Emiliano Templo, who led the dispersal operation, told reporters. Three truckloads of constabulary troopers fired their guns in the air and baton-charged some 10,000 demonstrators that had barricaded the street in front of the suburban Manila camp by deflating the tires of 10 buses. The troopers had earlier trained water hoses from firetrucks and lobbed tear gas grenades at the pro-Marcos crowd. The Marcos loyalists hurled rocks and soft-drink bottles at the troopers as they retreated.

Witnesses said some of the demonstrators had climbed the wall of the camp. A trooper that pursued a demonstrator into the camp found himself looking down the barrel of a military policeman's gun, triggering an argument. Col Templo angrily confronted the soldier, who retorted that the anti-riot toopers had indiscriminately lobbed tear gas inside the camp, while another claimed that some soldiers inside the camp had been injured. However, others intervened to stop the row, the witnesses said.

Some of the demonstrators carried placards that read: "Cory (Aquino) Loves NPA (communist New People's Army), Enrile Loves Loyalists." The government had earlier dismissed rumors of a rift between the government and the defense establishment as part of a misinformation campaign by Mr Marcos, now in exile in Hawaii following his overthrow in a military uprising led by Mr Enrile last February.

AQUINO HOLDS NEWS CONFERENCE

Comments on Cease-Fire Talks

[Text] President Aquino yesterday [20 June] said the cease-fire talks between representatives of the government and the communist guerillas are proceeding smoothly behind closed doors. Addressing a news conference at Malacanang, the president said the secrecy of the negotiations was at the request of the underground Communist Party of the Philippines. She told newsmen she has had consultations with defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] Chief Fidel Ramos on the progress of the talks.

[Begin Aquino recording] I guess 6 months will be the time that I will give for these talks to prosper into something more concrete like a definite cease-fire. Yesterday some people were really suggesting to me again that we should declare a cease-fire on a region-by-region basis. [end recording]

On the ongoing peace talks between her brother-in-law Butz Aquino and rebel priest Father Conrado Balweg in the Cordilleras, the president said this is also being kept under wraps. Aquino reiterated her previous press statements denying reports of an existing rift between her and Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile. She described the reports as false.

The president also said the next elections for governors, city and municipal mayors would be held early next year. She made the remark in reply to a question during the press conference at Malacanang. Last month the president said the local elections would be held not earlier than November this year or not later than March next year. She said that this would depend upon the Constitutional Commission. She also reiterated her previous commitment not to run for reelection.

Reaffirms Stand on Bases

[Text] Manila, June 20 (AFP) -- President Corazon Aquino Friday said she was optimistic about the outcome of current ceasefire talks with communist guerrillas. Mrs. Aquino told a news conference she would most likely call elections for municipal and provincial executive posts "early next year" and reiterated that she will not seek a second term.

She said she was unconcerned about the support thrown behind Defense Ministe Juan Ponce Enrile by supporters of her deposed predecessor Ferdinand Marcos, and again dismissed rumors of a military coup and a rift between the government and defense establishment.

On the ongoing top-secret ceasefire talks between government and communist emissaries, the chief executive said: "I would really like to look at it more positively and that some good will come out of these. But as I've said before, I guess six months would be the time that I would give for these talks to prosper and something more concrete like a definite ceasefire."

Mr. Enrile, in an interview published by the MANILA CHRONICLE. Friday took a more measured view of the ceasefire talks. "I would like to disabuse minds. Let us not pin all our hopes on these efforts," he was quoted as saying. "It's better to approach it cautiously, aware of the risks involved so we will not be teribly disappointed."

(As Mrs. Aquino held her news conference, Communist New People's Army (NPA) guerrillas were defending a military position on the central island of Negro which they seized in an attack earlier Friday, military authorities in the island capital of Bacolod said. At least three people were reported killed and 20 injured in the ensuing clashes with military reinforcements.)

Mrs. Aquino told the news conference said she was unaware of any fresh attacks.

She also said she was leaving the issue of Manila's claim to the Malaysian state of Sabah to a 48-man panel now drafting a new Philippine Constitution.

Mrs. Aquino said she was sticking to her position that she world respect a treaty granting U.S access to two large military bases in the Philippines until 1991 and keep her options open after that. "I'm not about to debate with anybody and Minister Enrile is no exception," she said, referring to the defense minister's vocal advocacy of the maintenance of the bases beyond 1991. She said she will "just listen to what he has to say" when asked what she will discuss with U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz, who will visit Manila for the second time this year next week.

In the newspaper interview, Mr. Enrile, who led a military mutiny which toppled Mr. Marcos in February, was also cool on his newly-found support from diehard supporters of the former persedent. "I would not allow them to manipulate me," he told the daily in an interview in the northern province od Ilocos Norte.

On his return to Manila later Friday, Mr. Enrile said when asked about his reported differences with Mrs. Aquino and an alleged coup plot: "I think it's better for us to laugh it off. I think this is the product of some fantasies and I'm not about ready to indulge myself in fantasies."

Views Relations With Enrile

HK210808 Laoag City Nation Broadcasting Corporation Station DWRI in Ilocano 2300 GMT 20 Jun 86

[Text] The talks on a cease fire between the government and the communist rebels have resumed. Mrd Aquino announced this to reporters yesterday. According to the president, there is a suggestion about the fulfillment of the cease fire in some regions.

Meanwhile, Mrs Aquino made it clear that there is no grudge between her and Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile. Here is an excerpt from her remarks: [Begin recording -- in English] I think, I wonder the reason this was given more reporting was last [word indistinct] meeting Enrile had left ahead of everybody, and the reason for this was that he had an engagement at the Council of Churches. In fact, earlier, he was seated just one chair away from me while Vice President Laurel was still in China at that time, and once in a while Minister Enrile would occupy Laurel's seat. In fact, he spoke on how to fight insurgency, and also, really, everything is going well. That's why it's very difficult for me to be saying otherwise, and in fact we are making a list for meeting the ASEAN foreign ministers. I asked my secretary to call Cristina Enrile to make sure that she would be present there, and Cristina said that much as she doesn't really attend socials anymore, whe could make it a point to be present at the dinner that I'm giving for the foreign ministers. So I don't know what else I can say. It's impossible for Enrile and me to be together everyday. So what more can I say so that everything is OK. If things were not OK, then I would not be here anymore. [end recording]

Aquino was also asked when the election of local officials would be held. She said it would be next year.

AQUINO MAKES PUBLIC APPEARANCE WITH ENRILE

[Text] Manila, June 21 KYODO -- President Corazon Aquino and Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile appeared together in public for the first time Saturday since rumors of an Enrile-led coup d'etat spread in Manila early this week. Aquino indicated that her presence at a luncheon meeting of air force pilots together with Enrile and Armed Forces Chief of Staff Gen. Fidel Ramos should dispel the rumors.

"I am sure that most of you agree that actions speak louder than words, and what you see today, I think, you believe rather than some unfavorable reports that we have been hearing about or reading about," Aquino remarked before she addressed a luncheon meeting of the Philippine Air Force Cadet Alumni Association.

Enrile and Ramos led a civilian-backed military revolt which ended the 20-year rule of Former President Ferdinand Marcos and installed Aquino, following the snap presidental election in which the popular widow of opposition leader Benigno Aquino challenged Marcos.

Aquino and Enrile were last seen together in public during the June 12 Independence Day celebrations when Aquino was rumored to have decided to fire her defense minister. Enrile was seated next to Aquino at the head table during the luncheon and they were engaged in lively exchanges and smiled and posed for photographers.

Enrile, who followed Aquino to her limousine and waved goodbye to her after the meeting, told reporters that "there are many who want to destroy the government, that's why these rumors are flying." Asked who he was referring to, Enrile replied, "They want to create intrigues. I do not know who they are. Whoever they are, they want to create intrigues."

A report that Enrile would be sacked and that he walked out of last Wednesday's regular cabinet meeting sent hundreds of Marcos loyalists to the Defense Ministry office in suburban Quezon City to show their support for him. They claimed that Aquino's government is being infiltrated by communists who will eventually run the country, and rallied behind Enril and Ramos, both staunch anticommunists.

Meanwhile, leftists say that Enrile and Ramos, who served under Marcos, are trying to obstruct the policies of the new government. The outlawed Communist Party of the Philippines and its military arm, the New People's Army, are holding preliminary talks on a possible cease-fire with the Aquino government but have said in the past that Enrile and Ramos are working against the success of the talks.

'RADICAL ELEMENTS' SEEK CPP-GOVERNMENT

HK200703 Manila THE MANILA EVENING POST in English 18 Jun 86 pp 1, 3

[Text] Some radical elements out to gain a high degree of influence in running the affairs of the government are reportedly pursuing a proposed coalition between the government of President Corazon Aquino and the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) and its military arm, the New People's Army (NPA), as a hedge against the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) whose loyalty the Aquino government has failed to obtain.

Ranking AFP officers criticized a statement from Malacanang Palace accusing Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile of blocking the impending peace talks with the communist movement as part of an evil design to disunite Enrile and Gen. Fidel Ramos, AFP chief of staff.

These officers said fair play dictates that the palace official who accused Enrile should identify himself inasmuch as the defense minister made the accusations against commuists in the government in a speech in Baguio City recently.

The Defense Ministry and the new Armed Forces of the Philippines have professed their loyalty to the people and the sovereignty of the Republic.

Both Enrile and Ramos have repeatedly said the military will never again be loyal to an individual as it had been during the Marcos regime.

Persons close to Aquino, including some members of her family, who exert some influence in the government have been approaching some ranking officers of the military in an apparent effort to gain their loyalty. These efforts, however, proved futile because of the new dynamism and confidence enjoyed by the military.

Except for a few officers and men, the entire armed forces are sworn to protect the people and preserve the democratic principles against the threat of communism, sources said. They claimed that while the military has sworn it will never be loyal to just one man, it is also extremely difficult for anyone to rule in this country without the loyalty of the military.

The failure of the government to solicit the loyalty of the armed forces, they said, is apparently the reason for the proposed plan of the governments to exact a ceasefire with the communists that may lead to the proposed coalition.

These radical elements in the government, sources pointed out, want to use the CPP-NPA as a separate force which they could use as a hedge against the armed forces. Intelligence reports by the U.S. government said the communist movement also enjoys the support of the people in at least one third of the country's 41,000 barangays.

ENRILE URGES REBELS TO IDENTIFY PANEL MEMBERS

Enrile said it is important that the government must first know who will compose the panel which will talk to government negotiators, wheee they are, and how they are deployed and organized. He said that should the cease-fire push though, the rebels should wear a uniform distinct from the military or use suitable countersigns in order to avoid any misencounter or exploitation by outside elements who might torpedo the cease-fire.

[Text] Obstacles in the search for peace in the Cordilleras continue to be cast aside as rebel priest Conrado Balweg invited President Aquino to visit the area. "It would be ideal for Ms. Cory Aquino to see for herself the real situation here in the Cordilleras," Balweg said. Balweg, who heads the Cordillera People's Liberation Army (CPLA), extended the invitation through the President's official emissary and brother-in-law, Agapito "Butz" Aquino during the initial negotiations with the rebels held in an undisclosed barangay.

In a press conference attended by four members of the CPLA military commission, the rebel priest later expressed his willingness to talk even with military officials. He told reporters he saw nothing wrong with rebel representatives discussing the plans for Cordillera autonomy with Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Armed Forces Chief Gen. Fidel Ramos.

He also said he looked forward to a dialog with oppositionist leaders like Blas F. Ople and his partymen who have reacted favorably to the proposal for a Cordillera autonomy. "We would like to talk to any individual or political force supporting the revolution waged by the Cordillera people," Balweg admitted. He also revealed that a note from a priest came a week ago, expressing Jaime Cardinal Sin's desire to confer with him.

He did not say when or where he would meet the chief Filipino prelate, but disclosed that the note specified: "It is up to you to arrange the time and place of such meeting."

Balweg also admitted rejecting an offer from the Ministry of Natural Resources for CPLA prospective surrenders to use at least 1,000 of the 100,000-hectares formerly leased to the Cellophil Resources Corp. but which was later cancelled by the government. "To agree to their offer will be to betray one of the reasons we took up arms," said Balweg. "We resorted to armed struggle for the absolute control of the Cordilleras, and to guard against the intrusion of outside people." He ruled out his surrender, saying that the CPLA should be retained as the Cordillera people's constabulary should the region be autonomous from that of the national government.

He said that though he stopped practicing priestly services in 1979 on orders of his SVD [expansion unknown] superior in Abra, he still considers himself a priest. "I have not surrendered the principle of incarnating religion in the concrete situation of Philippine society," he said. "I miss saying a mass," he said. "When all this is over, I hope to celebrate the Mass of the Resurrection."

Asked how his having a wife and two children would affect his intention to go back to priesthood, Balweg maintained that as early as the 1960s, he was for opening discussious within the Church hierarchy regarding the controversial proposal doing away with priests' vow on celibacy.

AQUINO TO VISIT ASEAN COUNTRIES BEFORE U.S.

[By Vic Agustin]

[Text] President Aquino yesterday confirmed reports that she will visit most likely this year the member-countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations first before the United States. "ASEAN first," the President told the INQUIRER When asked which of the two, ASEAN or the U.S. will she visit first. The president said the ASEAN trip may be made this year. But that she will have to talk with the association's ambassadors first.

Asked if the President's first official foreign trip would signal a foreign policy shift -- past Philippine presidents made it a point to visit Washington first before any other nation's capital -- Executive Secretary Joker P. Arroyo, in an earlier interview, answered: "That's the problem with the press. You always look for motives and hidden meanings. Ms. Aquino just feels she should visit her neighbors first. It's really a matter of common sense.

The President's remarks came in the wake of reports from Washington that the U.S. was preparing for a September visit of Ms. Aquino. When informed of the President's answer, a Malacanang official clarified that the planned visit not be for the whole ASEAN, "but at least one ASEAN country." The ASEAN groups Thailand, Singapore, Malaysia, Indonesia, Brueni and the Philippines. The official also hedged about the visit being made this year. "It might be December or January, for all you know," he said.

In an earlier press conference, the President said foreign travel is low on her priority for this year and, if there will be any, it would be taken "after we have done our assignments," meaning, according to her aides, after the constitution shall have been ratified and local elections held.

Meanwhile, the President last night said that her government is responsive to criticisms and would welcome constructive suggestions. Speaking at the 79th anniversary of the celebration of the University of the Philippines [UP] at the Asian Institute of Tourism, the President said that the UP, with its tradition of activism, has served as a check to the government. "Just as I had convinced myself to accept that I am now on the establishment side, I have also prepared myself to listen and be responsive to criticism. For as history has shown, the shove and pull of ideas emanating from the UP has served not to upset but to balance government," she said.

Mrs. Aquino also recalled that the university was formed 79 years ago "to demolish the intellectual underpinnings of the existing social order" then. Over the years, she added, the UP students had continuously denounced flaws in the various administrations reaching its momentum in the Marcos regime.

At the same time, the President also warned the State University that the February events, which, she said, catapulted "a simple housewife who used to serve coffee" into power, "should diminish in some measure the arrogance of academe."

LAUREL AGAINST U.S. NUCLEAR WEAPONS AT BASES

HK230729 Quezon City Radyo Ng Bayan in Tagalog 0700 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] Vice President Salvador Laurel said the United States should not keep any nuclear weapons inside the two military bases in the country, stressing that the Philippines and the United States have no agreement on this matter. However, he said that he has not spoken with Philippine military commanders of the two bases who would know about activities inside the facilities. On the other hand, anti-nuclear demonstrators believed that nuclear weapons are kept inside the Subic Naval Base and Clark Air Base.

POLL SHOWS MANILANS FAVOR RETAINING BASES

[Text] Metro Manilans favor the retention of the U.S. military bases after 1991 and the continued outlawing of the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP), according to a survey conducted by the Philippine Lawyers Association (PLA).

The PLA survey was conducted between May 22 and June 2 on a random sampling of 1,000 respondents in Metro Manila. Elena S. Lim, PLA board secretary, who released results, said the poll covered the form of government, the legislative system, the military bases, the Communist Party's legalization, term of office, and reelection off officials.

Former Sen. Lorenzo Mr. Sumulong, PLA president and member of the constitutional Commission (Con-Com) said the survey results will be submitted to the Con-Com for its reference. Con-Com teams are set to conduct consultations with sectoral groups in various provinces and cities starting this weekend.

The survey showed the Metro Manilans want a bicameral legislature, and that elective officials should be prohibited from running for reelection, from being appointed during their term of office and for one to three years after leaving public office. The survey said the 83 percent of those asked prefer the presidential form of government and 78 percent a bicameral legislature. Only 12 percent favored a parliamentary form of government.

On the Presedent's term 65 percent favored four years with one reelection, while 30 percent said the term should be six years with no reelection.

Only 19 percent would like a unicameral legislative body and 68 percent said the members should be allowed one reelection. Sixty-one percent favored a four-year term for members of the legislature, while 35 percent said it should be a six-year term.

On the question of U.S. military bases, 67 percent favored retention of the bases after the expiration of the Philippine-United States military bases agreement in 1991. Only 33 percent said the bases should not be retained.

On the proposal to legalize the Communist Party of the Philippines, 67 percent said no, while 33 percent said yes.

Sixty-one percent of the respondents said the public officials should be prohibited from being appointed or elected to another office during their term. Forty-six percent also said that this prohibition should continue one the three years after these public officials have left their offices, and 17 percent said the prohibition should stick from four to six years.

Fifty-seven percent of the respondents belong to the 21-30 age bracket, while 21 percent belong to 31-40 age bracket and 9 percent are below 21 years. Sixty-seven percent of the respondents are college students while 56 percent are employes and 20 percent are professionals or businessmen.

PLA Secretary Lim said the survey is part of the group's efforts to contribute to the constitution-making process. She said PLA will conduct other surveys on other critical issues and submit the results to the Con-Com.

ASEAN FOREIGN MINISTERS MEET IN MANILA

Aquino, Others Address Meeting

[Text] Manila, June 23 (PNA) -- A call for peace and security, including a nuclear-free zone in Southeast Asia, today dominated the opening session of the 19th annual meeting of the six member-countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN).

President Aquino in her keynote address set the tone for unity and peace when she underscored the need for ASEAN to adopt a common security interest to help balance the political power in the region. Let me remind you that we still share problems which remain unresolved and threaten to frustrate the tremendous promise of this region, the president told the foreign minister of host Philippines, Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand and Brunei. These problems equally threaten to render meaningless our continued association. Even as we meet today, we face the same obstacles to peace and progress which we have signally endeavored to overcome, she said.

Aquino said she also looks forward to the summit meeting in Manila next year, saying this should be the occasion when ASEAN makes the hard decision to reach the objectives of its creation. The only way I can explain the delay and hesitations of the past is that they are rooted in fear of failure, she said.

The president's address was preceded by a meeting among the six ASEAN foreign ministers and Massamba Sarre, permanent delegate of Senegal to the United Nations and chairman of the U.N. ad hoc committee of the International Conference for Kampuchea. Following the president's address, the six foreign ministers delivered their country statements focusing on the Kampuchean problem. They said the Kampuchean issue is the main stumbling block to the peace and security in Southeast Asia.

Brunei, the newest member of the regional grouping, stressed the need for a third summit to cope with the new economic, political and social events. ASEAN is now 19 years old. The direction set and chartered by our leaders is the first and second summits in 1976 and 1977, respectively, may have already been overtaken by fast moving events, said Brunei Foreign Minister Prince Mohamed Bokiah.

Indonesia, represented by Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja, batted for the establishment of a nuclear-weapon-free zone (NUFZ) in Southeast Asia to reduce the threat of a nuclear catastrophe posed by the escalating arms race among the super powers in the region. A nuclear free zone in the region, he said, could be made an essential component of the 1971 ASEAN declaration for a zone of peace, freedom and neutrality (ZOPFAN) in Southeast Asia.

Malaysia, on the other hand, sees the Kampuchean problem as the remaining major preoccupation of the region. In view of this, Foreign Minister Tengku Ahmad Rithauddeen urged the ASEAN members to spare no efforts and remain relentless in their endeavor to find a political settlement to the problem.

For his part, Philippine Vice President and Foreign Minister Salvador Laurel, who was elected chairman of the meeting, said the Kampuchean issue remains as one of the obstacles to peace and progress in Southeast Asia.

But, Laurel said, more countries are in support of the United Nations resolution on Kampuchea, saying that the pro-votes have increased from 110 last year to 114 this year. This should encourage us to be more persevering in our efforts to enlist the support of still uncommitted U.N. members for ASEAN's resolution on Kampuchea. Insistent international condemnation of armed Vietnamese intervention in Kampuchea can only serve to hasten the resolution of the conflict and restore peace and stability in our part of the world, he added.

Suppiah Dhanabalan, foreign minister of Singapore, the only country boasting of healthy economic activity, dwelt mostly on the need to give higher priority to regional economic cooperation in veiw of the present economic difficulties which threaten the region's solidarity. With a large combined population and resource base and sufficient know-how and excellent international linkages, there is a strong basis for optimism in the prospects for cooperation, he added.

Thai deputy Foreign Minister Arun Phanuphong spoke on the repercussions the Kampuchean problem has directly brought to his country. Arun assailed Hanoi for trampling upon the right of the Kampuchean people to self-determination and for incursions into Thailand's territory. The blatant violations of Thailand's territorial integrity by Vietnamese forces in Kampuchea constantly hightens tensions in the region, he said.

Papua New Guinea, which was invited to participate in the meeting as an observer, sought the current views of ASEAN member countries on the requirements to qualify for full membership status in the ASEAN. PNG Foreign Miniser Legu Vagi, in a statement, said his country has been strengthening its relations with ASEAN members.

Aquino on Cambodia, Economy

[By Antonio Kamiya]

[Text] Manila, June 23 KYODO -- Philippine President Corazon Aquino hit out at Vietnam Monday, saying Hanoi's continued occupation of Kampuchea poses obstacles to peace and threatens the balance of power in Southeast Asia. In a keynote speech at the opening session of the annual ministerial conference of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) Aquino also called on her partner countries in the six-nation group to take their own initiative to overcome their economic plights.

"It's lamentable that, despite our experience, we continue to look outwards from the region for the revival" of the ASEAN economy, she told the foreign ministers from the six ASEAN nations. ASEAN groups the Philippines, Singapore, Brunei, Malaysia, Indonesia and Thailand.

The two-day meeting, which opened at Monday morning at the Seaside Plaza Hotel, is expected to focus on economic cooperation and the Kampuchean War. Aquino did not single out Vietnam by name, but it was clear her remarks were aimed at Vietnam.

"Even as we meet today, we face the same obstacles to peace and progress which we have signally endeavored to overcome," she declared in her address, which was echoed by other speakers during the opening session.

Turning to economic issues, she said the global recession has wrought havoc on ASEAN's export-oriented economies, particularly in terms of foreign investment and the primary industries in the region.

She said ASEAN must rebuild its confidence through self-reliance and drew her own experience in trying to lift the Philippine economy out of the doldrums.

"My country is learning the hard way that strength must be built first from within," she said, and this is a lesson which should also apply to ASEAN as a whole.

The ASEAN ministerial conference is the first major diplomatic event here since the Aquino government took power in February.

Two agreements involving increased technical cooperation in energy-related projects and a petroleum-sharing arrangement are expected to be signed at the conference.

The meeting will be followed up with a series of meetings with ASEAN's six "dialogue partners" -- Japan, the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the European Community. These six, diplomats say, are expected to reconfirm their commitment to back ASEAN's efforts to seek a peaceful settlement of the Kampuchean issue.

The ASEAN foreign ministers, on the other hand, will reiterate their support for an eight-point political settlement of the Kampuchean problem proposed last March by Prince Norodom Sihanouk, president of the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea.

Economic Situation Viewed

[By Michael Adler]

[Excerpt] Manila, June 23 (AFP) -- President Corazon Aquino opened a meeting of foreign ministers of the Asssociation of Southeast Asian Nations here Monday with a call for ASEAN to take its economic fate into its own hands. Hosting her first international political conference since the February bloodless revolution against Ferdinand Marcos,she said it was lamentable that ASEAN had failed to fulfill its mission of economic cooperation and progress.

"Charity begins at home," she added, urging the ASEAN countries -- Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand to make cooperation a reality "instead of endlessly discussing how to get it off the ground."

The ministers echoed this sentiment in opening statments which stressed the costs to the region of protectionism, falling commodity prices and currency fluctuations.

"The developing countries like ASEAN are actually subsidizing the developed countries by billions of dollars a year through the export of cheap raw materials and the import of increasingly expensive manufactured goods," Malaysian Foreign Minister Ahamd Rithaudeen said.

He accused the leading industrialized nations of indifference since their performance at the Tokyo summit in May showed them "more interested in gaining political capital" than in the economic problems facing the world.

He called on Japan to explore with ASEAN ways to help repayment of debt burdens increased due to the appreciation of the yen, which has risen in value against the dollar by some 40 percent since the latter half of last year. ASEAN nations had received some 2,355 billion yen (14.2 billion U.S. dollars) from Japan under Overseas Development Aid (ODA) as of the end of March, according to official Japanese figures. Indonesia topped the list with 1,162 billion yen (seven billion U.S. dollars), but the sharp rise of the yen was of concern to most of the ASEAN countries, a Malaysian delegate said.

Singapore Foreign Minister Suppiah Dhanabalan suggested in his opening statement that ASEAN should abandon its system of absolute consensus decisionmaking on economic matters, noting that this had led to "lowest common denominator" decisionmaking and saying that there was a need to be more flexible. "Bold measures and tough decisions are more likely to be taken if there is a greater flexibility and tolerance in ASEAN's system of economic decisionmaking," Mr Dhanabalan said.

Philippine Vice President and Foreign Minister Salvador Laurel reiterated a proposal for "expanding and improving upon countertrade as a means of building up intra-ASEAN trade."

He said such a system would involve not only barter but also using ASEAN currencies.

Nations like the United States might challenge countertrade as a restriction of free markets but "we have to help ourselves," Mr Laurel said. "Countertrade even in its present unwieldy form is still better than no trade at all,' he added.

These proposals for reforming ASEAN illustrated the ministers' preoccupation with preparing for the ASEAN summit in Manila in July 1987, only the third summit since the organization was founded in 1967. "There is no doubt that ASEAN has lost some sense of direction as well as its momentum," Mr Rithauddeen said.

South Africa Condemned

[Text] Manila, June 23 (PNA) -- Foreign ministers from the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) today condemned the repressive policies and practices in South Africa.

In a declaration issued this afternoon by the ASEAN foreign ministers, they claimed that the escalating strife and tensions in South Africa pose a serious threat to regional and international peace and security.

The foreign ministers who are here for the 19th ASEAN ministerial meeting also reaffirmed their solidarity and support for the legitimate struggle of the South African people. They specifically called for the immediate revocation of the state of emergency, an end to the repressive measures and the unconditioal release of all political prisoners and detainees.

"In the face of Pretoria's intransigence, the foreign ministers were convinced of the compelling need to bring world-wide pressure to bear on South Africa through the application of comprehensive and mandatory sanctions in accordance with the charter of the United Nations," the declaration said.

The foreign ministers also reiterated their condemnation of the act of defiance by the racists Pretoria regime in continuing its illegal occupation of Namibia. They said the act is in "complete disregard of the right to self-determination of the Namibian people and in direct contravention of the relevant United Nations regulations and declarations."

In their declaration, the foreign ministers reaffirmed their commitment to the U.N.'s efforts to bring about, as early as possible, genuine independence to the Namibian people in a united Namibia.

The ASEAN foreign ministers also called upon the international community to maintain relentless pressure upon South Africa. At the same time, they called on the international community to continue to support the just struggle of the Namibian people under the leadership of the Southwest African People's Organization (SWAPO), "their sole and authentic representative."

They also expressed their hope that the fothcoming international conference for the immediate independence of Namibia in Vienna will be another significant step in realizing Namibian independence "on the basis of Security Council Resolution 435 of 1978."

Laurel Makes Opening Remarks

BK230713 Manila PNA in English 0701 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] Manila [no date as received] (PNA) -- Vice President and Foreign Minister Salvador H. Laurel today called upon the member-countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) to increase intra-ASEAN trade in view of the reluctance of the developed countries to ease their protectionist policies.

He made this proposal in his opening remarks at the 19th ASEAN ministerial meeting being held at the seaside Philippine Plaza Hotel.

In his speech, Laurel, who as foreign minister of the host country is presiding over the meeting, decried what he called less encouraging outcome of the special ASEAN-U.S. dialogue in Bali (Indonesia) last May as well as of the Tokyo economic summit that followed. He called upon the ASEAN ministers to start preparations of the ASEAN summit set to be held in Manila next year.

In the light of ASEAN experiences, the Philippine foreign minister sought a reorientation of the thrust and direction of future ASEAN action to make it more responsive to the development needs of its members. At the same time, Laurel pressed for the full preparation of plan of operation on his proposal for the adoption of what he called payments clearing arrangement. The proposal would allow participating countries to buy each other's currencies and, thereby, each others goods. Under the arrangement, a computerized matching of offerings and needs will be established, leading to exchange of letters of credit in national currencies, warehouse receipts, and other contracts, he said. According to Laurel, the benefits from this arrangement would be in the form of:

-- Currency saved or credits avoided because of the non-use of hard currency.
-- New trade that would not otherwise be possible because of foreign exchange shortage.
-- Build-up of intra-trade within ASEAN and with other developing countries.

ASEAN, he said, should take positive steps to develop further intra-ASEAN trade as a defense against the risks of dependence upon developed countries.

The Philipppine official pointed out that protectionism is often inherent in the economic systems of developed countries. Sudden abolition of this will create sectoral dislocations as well as widespread resistance from the affected sectors, he said. Despite this view, Laurel urged ASEAN countries to be more vigorous in their efforts and to use every available fora to resolve protectionism. He prodded ASEAN to begin consolidating its position on issues likely to be used in the forthcoming new round of multilateral trade negotiations to ensure that its interests are effectively safeguarded.

Attending the ASEAN ministerial meeting are the ASEAN foreign ministers -- Prince Mohamed Bolkiah of Brunei, Supiah Dhanabalan of Singapore, Mokhtar Kasumaatmaja of Indonesia, Deputy Foreign Minister Arun Phanupong of Thailand who represents Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila, and Tengku Ahmed Rithauddeen of Malaysia.

Foreign Minister Legu Vagi of Papua New Guinea, Ambassador Massamba Sarrre (permanent delegate of Senegal to the United Nations and chairman of the ad hoc committee of the International Conference on Kampuchea, and Rafudin Ahmad, UN secretary general's representative for humanitarian affairs, attended as observers. Also present were the members of the Standing Committee. They are the ambassadors of ASEAN countries to the Philippines, and the Philippine ambassadors to the ASEAN member countries.

Rithauddeen Addresses Meeting

BK230812 Kuala Lumpur BERNAMA in English 0745 GMT 23 Jun 86

[By Zainoor Sulaiman]

[Text] Manila, June 23 (BERNAMA) -- Malaysia places importance on a strong multilateral trade system as the basis for further expansion of international trade and the removal of trade restrictions, Tengku Ahmad Rithauddeen said Monday.

"An open international trading system is fundamental for the continued economic progress of all trading countries," the foreign minister said when he addressed the plenary session of the 19th ASEAN annual ministereial meeting (AMM), here.

The Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) groups Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia, Thailand, the Philippines and Singapore.

He said Malaysia found the proposed new round of the Multilateral Trade Negotiations (MTN) relevant in bringing about greater trade liberalisation in international trade. It will participate in the negotiations which will be officially launched in Uruguay in September.

Tengku Rithauddeen said ASEAN and other developing countries at present were actually subsidising the developed countries billions of dollars a year through the export of cheap raw materials and the import of increasingly expensive manufactured goods.

He said they were disappointed by the self-interest demonstrated by the major industrialised countries as shown in the outcome of the recent Tokyo summit of seven major industrialised countries. He said the Tokyo summit was too engrossed with problems of the developed industrialised countries. "They were more interested in gaining political capital and the summit paid scant, if not insufficient attention, to the economic problems facing the world," he said.

"The calls by developing and ASEAN countries to help boost their economies were left unheeded," he added.

He said the developed industrialised nations seemed to be clinging to the outmoded belief that if everything is fine with their economies, there is no further need for them to do more for the economies of the developing countries.

The summit showed that it would be a mistake for ASEAN to rely solely on the developed countries.

He urged member countries to ingrain in themselves a spirit of self-reliance in executing their development programmes.

"There are many areas where ASEAN countries can achieve some degree of complimentarity in economic cooperation," he said.

Tengku Righauddeen said Malaysai was playing an active role in promoting cooperation among developing countries. It hosted the second international south-south conference in Kuala Lumpur last month and among the decisions taken was the setting up of a steering committee to explore the possibility of establishing a south commission on lines similar to the Brandt Commission.

He invited other ASEAN countries to join Malaysia in the endeavour to promote and intensify cooperation among developing countries.

Tengku Rithauddeen also drew the attention of the ministers to the problems arising from the high appreciation of the yen against their respective currencies. Each ASEAN country has to bear the increasing burden of repayment in the same proportion as the yen appreciation.

"If the intention of the yen credit is to assist or generate growth in each ASEAN country, the yen appreciation will negatively affect those objectives," he said.

Speaking on political issues, Tengku Rithauddeen said the meeting would review and evaluate developments since their recent meeting in Bali and consider further actions in pursuing the commitment to seek a comprehensive political settlement on Kampuchea.

He expressed appreciation for the support given by the international community to the eight-point proposal of the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea (CGDK) and urged them to continue their diplomatic and political support to the CGDK in its struggle in Kampuchea. The CGDK are battling to remove the Hanoi-backed regime of Hen Samrin in Phnom Penh.

On the 3rd ASEAN summit due in Manila next year, he said the event would be followed with great interest not only by the people of ASEAN but also the world community.

He said it was the responsibility of the foreign ministers to prepare the groundwork for a successful summit which would open the door for a stronger and more effective collaboration, particularly in the economic field, among the six member countries.

"Malaysia is optimistic that the summit would lay the firm foundation for a stronger economic regional organisation of ASEAN," he added.

Tengku Rithauddeen is leading a 15-member Malaysian delegation to the meeting.

Vagi on New Caledonia

HK230940 Hong Kong AFP in English 0911 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 23 (AFP) -- Papua New Guinea hit out on Monday at France's attitude to its Pacific territory of New Caledonia, and called on Southeast Asian nations to suport New Caledonian Kanaks' struggle for independence.

Papua New Guinea Foreign Minister Legu Vagi said here that there had been some progress in negotiations between the Kanaks and the French Government previously, "but the situation has not been made worse by actions taken by the new government of France which took office in April."

Mr Vagi told foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations meeting here: "Papua New Guinea continues to support the struggle of the Melanesian Kanaks of New Caledonia to achieve independence peacefully, in a harmonious multi-racial society.

"We seek the support of ASEAN member countries for this just cause."

The new government of French Prime Minister Jacques Chirac has appointed as minister for its overseas territories Bernard Ponse, who does not favour full independence for the territory, as demanded by many native Kanaks.

Papua [New Guinea] is attending the meeting of ministers from the Philippines, Singapore, Brunei, Indonesia, Thailand and Malaysia as a special observer.

MORE REACTION TO MILITARY TALKS PROPOSAL

Parliamentary Talks Head

SK240150 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0000 GMT 24 Jun 86

[Statement by Chon Kum-chol, head of the DPRK delegation to the North-South preliminary contact for parliamentary talks, supporting the KPA Supreme Command's proposal for talks between military authorities -- read by announcer]

[Text] I consider the KPA Supreme Command's new peace proposal an epochal measure which will open a bright vista in rescuing all compatriots from the approaching danger of war and in resuming and advancing the multifaceted North-South dialogue, including the preliminary contact for parliamentary talks. Thus, I fully support and welcome it.

The KPA Supreme Command's new peace proposal for holding talks between military authorities is a very opportune and just measure in light of the urgency of the prevailing situation of our country, and in terms of the form of talks, as well as in terms of the contents of what is to be discussed at the talks.

As has been noted in the information of the KPA Supreme Command, today the situation in our country has become extremely strained. Thus, it is reaching a dangerous stage where a war can break out at any moment. As a result, a multifaceted dialogue which had been arranged with so much effort, including the preliminary contact for North-South parliamentary talks, fell into a state of suspension.

The prevailing situation demands that an epochal measure be urgently sought to pave a way to alleviation and peace on the Korean peninsula by all means.

Our new proposal for the holding of talks between military authorities has been put forth by reflecting precisely this urgent demand of the prevailing situation. If those who are directly responsible for the alleviation of tension on the Korean peninsula and who hold real military power get together at a place as proposed by us, many practical and specific measures will be ably sought for peace on the Korean peninsula.

At the talks between military authorities, if the question of halting military exercises and military buildup -- a direct cause of aggravating the situation and increasing the danger of war -- the question of reducing troops and armaments, and the question of respecting the Korean Armistice Agreement as demanded by its original contents are discussed and settled, this will provide a new opportunity for the elimination of the danger of war in our country, for the alleviation of tension, and for peace. This is crystal-clear to all people.

Our new proposal will provide a new turning point in creating a favorable environment for peace talks [pyonghua hoedam] in our country as well.

If a dagger is hidden and if we distrust and confront one another, a dialogue for conciliation and a dialogue for peace cannot be held. This is fully shown by the course of the past North-South dialouge.

If the danger of war is eliminated and tension is alleviated through the realization of our new peace proposal, misunderstanding and distrust between the North and South will be naturally eliminated, an atmosphere for dialogue will be created and, then, the North-South dialogue will be successfully advanced. There is no doubt regarding this.

If the talks between the military authorities are held, and thus, many military measures for the alleviation of tension are taken, this will provide a favorable condition for the North-South dialogue, including parliamentary talks.

I acknowledge that the new peace proposal thus is very rational and just in every aspect. Therefore, an attitude toward the KPA Supreme Command's new peace initiative will become a touchstone which will show if alleviation, dialogue, peace, and peaceful reunification in Korea are truly desired or not.

The United States and the South Korean authorities are presently unrealistically slandering our peace proposal and are adopting a negative attitude. This is a foolish act which can be welcomed by no one.

I hold that the United States and the South Korean side, instead of adopting an unprofitable attitude of refusing dialogue and opposing peace, should accept our new peace proposal and respond at once for the realization of preliminary contacts.

Chongnyon Vice Chairman

[Text] Pyongyang June 23 (KCNA) -- Paek Chong-won, vice-chairman of the Central Standing Committee of the General Association of Korean Residents in Japan (Chongnyon), issued a press statement on June 20 in active support of the peace initiative of the Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army, according to a KNS report from Tokyo.

The Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army proposed to hold talks between the military authorities involving the minister of People's Armed Forces of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, the commander-in-chief of the U.N. Forces in South Korea and the defence minister of South Korea, those who hold real military power in the North and the South, to ease the tension and remove the military confrontation in Korea, he said, and continued:

We warmly hail and support the most realistic and reasonable proposal which will practically help towards the relaxation of the military tension prevailing on the Korean peninsula at present.

The Korean residents in Japan who eagerly desire to see the removal of the danger of war from Korea and the realisation of the independent and peaceful reunification of the country through the resumption of the North-South dialogue now at a deadlock unanimously hope that the United States and the South Korean authorities will make a positive response to the proposal.

If the United States and the South Korean authorities truly want peace and detente, they must not harp on the seat on the fiction of the "threat of southward invasion", but immediately accept the proposal of the KPA Supreme Command and come out to the table for the talks between the military authorities.

We believe that the world's progessive people including the Japanese people will pay attention to the reality of the Korean peninsula where the danger of war is great and actively support the peace initiative of the KPA Supreme Command.

NODONG SINMUN on Significance

[NODONG SINMUN 23 June special article: "An Epochal Proposal for Peace in Korea, Asia, and the World"]

[Text] The KPA Supreme Command has proposed the holding of talks between military authorities to take practical measures for the alleviation of military tension which is being extremely heightened on the Korean peninsula.

Our proposal for talks between military authorities is for the purpose of taking the measures of alleviation in the military field to eliminate the state of tension and confrontation by gathering the concerned parties who are directly responsible for the aggravation of the tense situation, and therefore have unavoidable duties for its alleviation, and who hold real power to settle this question. Thus, this is indeed a new peace proposal which is of great realistic significance. This is an epochal proposal which will alleviate the situation and eliminate the danger of war on the Korean peninsula where the dark cloud of war hangs heavily and, by so doing, will greatly contribute to the cause of peace in Asia and the world.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Our party and the government of the Republic, proceeding from the national duties for the Korean people and the noble sense of obligation for mankind's cause of peace, are making efforts to settle the Korean question peacefully through dialogue and negotiation.

Today, preventing war and defending security and peace are the most urgent task presently facing the peace-loving peoples of the world. The U.S. imperialists, while spurring military buildup, are producing and deploying nuclear weapons and other mass-destruction weapons and intensifying the maneuvers of armed intervention and aggression everywhere. By so doing, they are disturbing the peace of the world.

The Korean peninsula is where the danger of nuclear war is the greatest in the world. At present, on the Korean peninsula, huge armed forces, which have grown to the highest level since the cease-fire, are tensely confronting one another with the Military Demarcation Line between them. The U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets have carried out the forward deployment of 80 to 90 percent of their armed forces in the areas close to the Military Demarcation Line, and are maintaining them in a high combat posture so that they can begin a war of aggression at any moment. Moreover, additional deployment of mass-destruction weapons, including nuclear weapons, and new-type military equipment is being sought.

In the whole area of South Korea, following the provocative "Team Spirit" joint military exercise which was a preliminary war and test nuclear war to carry out a preemptive attack against the northern half of the Republic, large-scale war exercises such as "Ttangbol," "Flying Tiger," "Pilsung Pangpae," and a joint exercise between the 7th U.S. Fleet and the puppet navy on the East Sea are being staged routinely. In the skies, on the seas, and on the ground of South Korea, not a day passes without gun smoke.

These military moves of the U.S. imperialists and the puppet clique are a grave threat to the peace of Korea and can bring the situation to an unforeseeable stage. The military threat is being imposed on us not only from South Korea but also from the huge U.S. armed forces and all U.S. military bases concentrated in the areas surrounding it. As a result, today, the situation of our country harbors the danger that any accidental incident can ignite a war.

Alleviating tension on the Korean peninsula and preserving peace there is urgent problems in defending peace in Asia and the world. If a war breaks out in Korea, it will undoubtedly be a nuclear war, and those who will suffer damages first are the Korean people in the North and the South. At the same time, this will easily escalate into a world-wide thermonuclear war and the peoples of the world will be unable to avoid nuclear catastrophe.

More than 1,000 nuclear weapons and nuclear delivery devices are deployed in South Korea today. If they were only for use in a war on the Korean pensinsula, such a large number would be unnecessary. The ranges of the nuclear weapon launching vehicles deployed in South Korea extend beyond the boundaries of Korea.

We do not want a war to break out in Korea, with the consequence that the nation suffers war disaster and the world suffers the disaster of nuclear war.

In particular, what is most precious for our people, who have been forced to endure the tragedy of national division for more than 40 years and who have lived under the danger of war at all times even after undergoing innumerable sufferings and tragedies in the past war that lasted 3 years, is peace and reunification. This is precisely why the South Korean people are now vigorously waging daily struggle under the anti-U.S., antiwar, antinuclear, and peace slogans.

The people of the world are also expressing deep apprehension with regard to the grave situation prevailing on the Korean peninsula and unanimously want practical steps to be taken rapidly to prevent the danger of a nuclear war and to alleviate tension there.

Our proposal for holding military authorities' talks in which those who hold real power in the armed forces in the North and South participate fully accords with the desire of our people and the peaceloving people of the world.

In the past, we have made consistent efforts for a peaceful resolution of the Korean question. In recent years alone, we put forward a series of proposals for preventing armed conflicts within the framework of the MAC along with political ways to achieve a peaceful resolution of the Korean question.

This year alone, we took positive steps not to stage large-scale military exercises throughout the northern half of the Republic and to suspend all military exercises during the period of North-South dialogue. All these vididly show the sincerity of our efforts to find ways to achieve peace on the Korean peninsula.

However, none of our repeated peace proposals and steps for peace have been realized because the United States and the South Korean authorities have failed to respond to them.

Our proposal for holding military authorities' talks, a new epochal initiative for peace, should be realized without delay. If military authorities who hold real power in the armed forces sit face to face and take practical military steps for the suspension of military exercises and arms buildup, the reduction of the number of troops and armaments, and the observance of the Armistice Agreement, as proposed by the KPA Supreme Command, the tension and confrontation prevailing on the Korean peninsula can be alleviated and a good atmosphere for North-South dialogue can be provided, even though the Korean question is not fundamentally resolved. This will also greatly contribute to peace in Asia and the world.

Our proposal for holding military authorities' talks is a fair and aboveboard one. Therefore, there is no reason whatsoever why the United States and the South Korean authorities cannot accept it. This is more true because the United States and the South Korean authorities have continuously talked about peace and the alleviation of tension.

The attitude of the United States and the South Korean authorities toward our proposal will become a touchstone determining whether they are pursuing the aggravation of tension on the Korean peninsula or the alleviation of tension of there and whether they are pursuing war or peace.

The United Stated and the South Korean authorities should stop all military actions aggravating tension on the Korean peninsula and should respond to our peace proposal.

RADIO COMMENTARY URGES ACCEPTANCE OF PROPOSAL

SK240405 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 1149 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Commentary by station commentator Cho Tu-ul: "An Unreasonable Act"]

[Text] The new peaceful proposal advanced by the KPA Supreme Command to hold talks among military persons in authority with the participation of those holding military power in the North and South to ease tension in Korea has aroused a stormy reaction among people at home and abroad. Ardently welcoming the Supreme Command proposal as most constructive, very opportune, rational, and practical, and designed to prevent the danger of war and ease tension on the Korean peninsula, people at home and abroad unanimously demand that the United States and the South Korean side positively respond to our proposal.

However, having received our letter, the United States and the South Korean side have acted to betray the expectations of people at home and abroad. According to news reports, instead of closely studying our peace-loving proposal and considering the issue carefully before answering they are behaving very unreasonably, claiming that our proposal is not constructive and describing it as propaganda. This is not a sincere attitude to ease tension and prevent the danger of war on the Korean pensinula.

As is well known, an acute state of military confrontation has continued between the North and South along the Military Demarcation line, and a dangerous situation has developed to where a war might be touched off at any moment. If war breaks out, it will easily expand to a thermonuclear war, a world war, in which sophisticated military hardware, including the use of the more than 1,000 nuclear weapons of various kinds which are deployed in the southern part of the Korean peninsula, where war exercises have frequently been staged in order to provoke a war of northward invasion through the mobilization of vast numbers of troops. If the situation develops in this way, world peace and security will be destroyed in a grave manner, and mankind would suffer the horrible disasters of war.

Preventing war and easing tension on the Korean peninsula poses the important question of guaranteeing world peace and security and of saving manking from the danger of war. Therefore, the military persons in authority, who are directly responsible for heightening tension and for the danger of war, yet who are unavoidably assigned the mission of alleviating tension, should sit face to face to resolve these questions.

The historical experience of the North-South dialogue held in the past shows that without taking practical measures in the military sector to alleviate tension, we cannot prevent the danger of war, nor can we hold North-South dialogue successfully to resolve questions concerning peace and the peaceful reunification of the country.

The new, peaceful proposal of the KPA Supreme Command is very rational and practical in light of the current situation in our country, the historical experience of North-South dialogue, and the desire of people at home and abroad who desire peace and the peaceful reunification of Korea. In particular, in delineating issues to be discussed in talks among military persons in authority, we made it clear that we can discuss any proposals advanced by the United States and the South Korean side if these issues are conducive to alleviating tension.

If our proposal is implemented, it will positively function to ease tension on the Korean peninsula, eliminate the danger of war, and improve relatons between the North and South. Accordingly, there is no reason for anyone to reject our proposal if they seek to prevent war and ease tension and if they desire peace.

Nevertheless, the United States and the South Korean side have not closely studied our proposal. Without sitting face to face with us, they first picked a quarrel with us, saying that our proposal is not constructive, but rather propaganda-oriented. This is not the proper attitude to resolve questions. The United States and the South Korean authorities have raved that they hope that tension will be alleviated in Korea, and peace preserved. However, their insincere attitude and erroneous act toward our recent proposal show that they are not interested in preventing war or in easing tension and that they only desire confrontation between the North and South and a war of northward invasion. If this is not true, how can they slander us without first sitting face to face with us?

How they deal with our peace proposal will serve as a touchstone to clearly determine what the United States and the South Korean side desire concerning alleviating heightening tension and choosing war or peace. By abandoning the attitude of blindly opposing our proposal, the United States and the South Korean side should come with a sincere attitude and should positively respond to our peaceful proposal. All Korean people and peace-loving people of the world will closely watch the attitude of the United States and the Suth Korean side toward our proposal.

GOVERNMENT PEACE PROPOSAL ANNOUNCED TO PRESS

SK231112 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1057 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 23 (KCNA) -- The government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea took a new important step on the occasion of the international year of peace this year and the lapse of 36 years since the start of the Korean war. In this connection Chon Chae-hong, vice-minister of Foreign Affairs, called a press conference with home reporters and foreign correspondents at the People's Palace of Culture on June 23.

To begin with, he made public the DPRK Government statement containing a new peace proposal to turn the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free, peace zone.

This new peace proposal is another clear expression of the consistent and sincere efforts made by the government of our republic to achieve peace and peaceful reunification on the Korean peninsula, he stressed.

Our peace proposal, he stated, fully reflects the unanimous desire and aspiration not only of the entire Korean people who desire peace but also of the world peace-loving people and it is a most reasonable and realistic proposal acceptable to anyone who truly desires world peace and security.

KPA GENERAL ON ARMY HEIGHTENING VIGILANCE

[Special Article by KPA General Kim Kwang-chin carried on the 24 June issue of NODONG SINMUN: "The People's Army Is Heightening its Vigilance Against the Enemy's Reckless War Provocation Maneuvers"]

[Text] It has been 36 years since the U.S. imperialists ignited a war of aggression against our Republic. Marking this day, our people and all soldiers of the People's Army are burning with intolerable hatred against the enemy, the U.S. imperialists, who turned the sacred fatherland into a fiery sea, who enforced immeasurable pains and disasters on our people, and who are frantically attempting to enforce nuclear catastrophe on the nation again today.

The U.S. imperialists, who began to dream of invading Korea some 100 years ago occupied South Korea, replacing the Japanese imperialists who were defeated in World War II, and turned it into their colonial military base. With the vicious purpose of swallowing all of Korea and, moreover, of conquering Asia and the world, the U.S. imperialists launched an armed aggression against our Republic on 25 June 1950.

The fatherland liberation war was a decisive battle determining whether our people would again become the aggressors' slaves or whether they could defend the sovereignty and independence of the country. The U.S. imperialists were frantically attempting to swallow our young Republic at a breath by mobilizing forces of some 2 million strong, including their vast Army, Navy, and Air Forces, forces of the 15 countries following in their footsteps, and the South Korean puppet Army. With indiscriminate bombings and bombardments, the devilish U.S. imperialist killers destroyed our beautiful fatherland and the people's valuable creations and turned them into ashes. The rascals brutally massacred many of our people by adopting methods of war which were unprecedentedly brutal in the war history of the world.

However, no brutalities committed by the U.S. imperialist beasts could bring to their knees our people and the People's Army which were firmly united around the party and the leader with one mind and one intention. Under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the legendary anti-Japanese hero and ever-victorious iron-willed commander, and with a conviction for a sure victory, our people and the People's Army courageously overcame harsh trials during the war, defeated the U.S. imperialists, the ringleader of the world's reactionaries, and defended the independence of the country and the revolutionary achievements to the end. By waging a heroic struggle, our people and the People's Army protected peace in Asia and the world and brought about the beginning of the downhill slide of the U.S. imperialists after breaking the myth of the U.S. imperialists' mightiness.

Our people's historical victory in the fatherland liberation war was a brilliant victory of the great leader's creative strategy and tactics, his art of outstanding leadership, and the chuche war plan. It was a proud demonstration of the invincible might of our people, who were firmly united around the party and the leader.

Some 30 years have passed since the sound of guns of war ceased on this land.

During this period, our party and the Government of the Republic have made all manner of sincere efforts to turn the armistice into a stable peace and to realize the reunification of the country. In recent years, we advanced a new peace proposal for holding tripartite talks to alleviate tension which has been promoted in the country, to remove the danger of war, and to provide conditions favorable to peace and peaceful reunification. We also announced that we would not conduct large-scale military exercises throughout the northern half of the Republic as of 1 February 1, this year, and that we would not conduct any military exercises during the period when North-South dialogue is being held, and proposed that the United States and the South Korean authorities respond to this.

Because of their just and aboveboard nature, our peace proposals have aroused unanimous support and sympathy among the Koran people in the North and South and the world's peace-loving people. However, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique have answered our sincere peace-loving efforts and initiatives by aggravating the strained situation and by further increasing the danger of war. In particular, they waged the "Team Spirit-86" joint military exercise for northward invasion from February, thus suspending the North-South dialogue all at once and leading the situation of the country to the brink of war.

Proceeding from its aspirations for removing the danger of war prevailing on the Korean peninsula and for easing tension, the KPA Supreme Command recently advanced again the epochal proposal that those who have real power in the armies in the North and South hold talks among persons in military authority with the participation of the DPRK minister of the People's Armed Forces, the commander-in-chief of the UN Forces in South Korea, and the South Korean defense minister.

The United States and the South Korean person in authority have not yet shown an affirmative response to this, making such crooked remarks as calling our peace proposal a progapanda-oriented one and the like.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Because of the U.S. maneuvers for aggression and war, South Korea has been turned into a powder keg filled with nuclear weapons and other lethal weapons, and a very dangerous situation in which a new war may break-out at any moment has been created in our country.

Instead of finding a proper lesson from their defeat in the past Korean war and withdrawing from South Korea, the U.S. imperialists have further strengthened the policy of occupying South Korea and making it a nuclear base with each passing day and have been hellbent on preparations to provoke a new war. The U.S. imperialist warmaniacs proclaimed the Korean peninsula to be a test ground for a showdown of strength and the front line of U.S. strategy, and have continued the maneuvers of bringing in nuclear weapons while openly clamoring that the second Korean war will be precisely a nuclear war. The U.S. imperialists have also dragged countless neutron bombs, known as the weapon of devils, and special nuclear bombs into South Korea, where some 1,000 nuclear weapons have already been stocked. Also, they are even framing a scheme to bring Pershing-II intermediate missiles and cruise missiles there.

The U.S. military circles have held meetings of the Military Commission and annual security consultative meetings with the South Korean puppets every year and have discussed such questions as augmenting the U.S. armed forces occupying South Korea and the puppet armed forces, the question of perfecting a joint operational posture, and of completing preparations for a nuclear war and chemical warfare. From 1985 on, the United States will be handing military equipment worth as much as $8 billion over to the puppets. It has commissioned some 10 poisonous gas companies and is producing a large number of chemical weapons.

In accordance with a newly mapped out strategy for northward invasion, 80 or 90 percent of the U.S. and puppet armed forces have been reorganized into offensive forces, and have been massed near the Military Demarcation Line so that they can begin a northward invasion at any moment. Special units numbering 180,000 have been organized to infiltrate deep into the rear of the northern half of the Republic, and tunnels for northward invasion are under construction at some 180 posts in the area along the Military Demarcation Line.

In recent years the U.S. imperialists have more frequently waged large-scale war exercises, including the "Team Spirit" joint military exercise, thereby extremely straining the situation in the country. This year alone, the "Team Spirit-86" joint military exercise, a test nuclear exercise against us, was conducted for a few months, and various kinds of provocative large-scale war exercise rackets, including "Ttangbol," "Piho," and "Pilsung-Pangpae," have been started in South Korea almost every day.

The situation on the Korean peninsula is further aggravated by the aggressive U.S.-Japanese-South Korean triangular military alliance reaching the stage of completion. At present, the U.S. imperialists and the Japanese reactionaries, who have framed a joint operational plan to throw armed forces of the Japanese Self-Defense Forces into South Korea incase of an emergency on the Korean peninsula, and are cementing it through U.S.-Japanse joint maneuvers, joint military exercises of the U.S. troops and the South Korean puppet Army, and joint exercises of the Japanese Self-Defense Forces and the South Korean puppet Army. The U.S.-Japanese-South Korean triangular military alliance, an aggressive military bloc against our Republic and socialist countries in Asia, has already begun working at a dangerous stage.

The U.S. imperialists and their lackeys, the Chon Tu-hwan ring, are clinging to military provocation rackets aimed at touching off the spark of war in Korea. Various kinds of military provocations, perpetrated against us by wantonly violating the Armistice Agreement, numbered 20,500 odd cases last year and reached some 15,000 cases as of the end of May this year.

U.S. warmaniacs, including the Secretary of Defense and the Secretary of State, have successively crawled into the land of South Korea, where powder reeks strongly, and have undisguisedly raved about still more war exercises for northward invasion while strengthening military assistance to the puppets.

Echoing the reckless war frenzy of the U.S. masters, the Chon Tu-hwan ring has prattled that someone should be punished and annhilated at the initial stage of war while more boisterously arousing deceptive rows about southward invasion.

Playing with fire on a powder keg is dangerous act committed only warmaniacs. Such an act is a vivid proof showing that the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan ring are alert for every possible chance for an armed invasion of the northern half of the Republic.

The only thing left to the U.S. imperialists, who have completed war preparations for northward invasion, is to touch off a spark of war. The observation of public opinion at home and abroad is that with a view to realizing their wild desire for aggression, which was not realized in the 1950s, the U.S. imperialists can easily drive out the Chon Tu-hwan ring, a group of war errand boys, and ignite a war again at any moment.

The situation is reminiscent of the eve of the past 25 June war. Our people and the People's Army are increasingly alert to this. Our people and the People's Army do not want war, but desire peace. However, they will never tolerate the imperialists' indiscriminate irritation and threats toward us.

Today our revolutionary armed forces have grown matchlessly stronger than 36 years ago. Under the tested leadership of the glorious party, the unrivaled People's Army combatranks have grown to be one-a-match-for-100 by powerfully accelerating the cause of imbuing the entire army with the chuche idea. Cherishing loyalty to the great leader and the glorious party as their faith, the men and officiers of the People's Army are overflowing with high resolve to fight to the end for the victory of the chuche cause.

Our poeple are vigorously accelerating the cause of remodeling the whole society on the chuche idea, firmly defending the socialist fatherland with a gun in one had and a hammer and sickle in the other. No one in the world can match this invincible strength of our people and the People's Army whose advancing, upholding the great leader at the forefront of our revolution and following the tested leadership of the dear Comrade Kim Chong-il.

Trying to remove the danger of war prevailing in the country and to achieve peace and peaceful reunification are our people's firm and immovable will. The U.S. imperialists must not miscalculate the sincere efforts and patience of our party and the government of the Republic, trying to solve the Korean question in a peaceful way, as an expression of any weakness.

The United States and the South Korean persons in authority must immediately stop the anachronistic policy of two Koreas and new war provocation maneuvers and turn to affirmately responding to our proposal for talks among persons in military authority without delay. If the U.S. imperialists and the puppet clique turn away from our peace proposal and dare to go to the road of igniting a war of aggression against us, our people and the People's Army will inflict a due punishment on them in the name of chuche Korea.

NODONG SINMUN VIEWS WPK AS HEART OF SOCIETY

[NODONG SINMUN 21 June special article: "The WPK Is the Heart of Our Society"]

[Text] Our socialist society is characterized as a society that continuously advances without slackness and stalemate. This trait is more clearly manifested as the revolution and construction deepen and develop. This is related to the leadership status and role of our party in social life and development.

Reality clearly shows that justness and vitality of the proposition that the party is the heart of the society. Only when this original theory is firmly adhered to and the party's leadership with regard to overall socialist life is enchanced can the sound and rapid development of our society be constantly achieved.

1. Correctly clarifying the status and role of the party in the socialist society is, theoretically and practically, a very important question.

Comrade Kim Chong-il, member of the Polticial Bureau Presidium and secretary of the WPK Central Committee, has noted: The party is the heart of our society and a driving force that remodels the whole society in a revolutionary and communist manner.

The guiding status of the party in the socialist society and its role in social development are graphically expressed in the idea that the party is the heart of the society. The idea vividly reflects the reality of our present society led by the WPK and elucidates the factor strengthening and developing our society.

The essence of the idea that the party is the heart of the society lies in the fact that the party plays a decisive role in helping the socialist society develop while incessantly renewing itself.

Society is like an organ. Just as a living organ maintains its existence through metabolism, society unceasingly absorbs new and advanced things and eliminates old things. Society continuously renews itself. In the socialist society, the work of renewing society is carried out not with nothing in mind but, rather, with a goal in mind. Under unified command and leadership, obsolete legacies are removed in social life and a new ideology, technology, and culture constantly achieve victory. This is the course of development of socialist society. The guiding force organizing and promoting this course is a unified manner is precisely the party -- the heart of society.

The heart of society is a driving force that continuously invigorates the whole society and is a central organ that makes society move with one breath and pulse. Just as the existence and activity of man are inconceivable without the heart, the consolidation and development of the socialist society cannot be taked about without the party. Precisely becuase of the party's leadership, the socialist society advances without slackness and stalemate and all activities in a social life can be vigorously conducted.

The reason that the party can become the heart of society is connected with the party's own function. The party is a political organization that constantly gives the nourishment of the revolution to all members of society. Society is composed of men forged in political, economic, and moral relations. For this reason, all members of society should live in a sound manner and fight in order to ensure that the socialist society moves as an organ. What is, above all, important herein is that the members of society continuously receive the nourishment of the revolution.

Our term nourishment of the revolution means the food of the revolution -- the revolutionary idea of the working class and a communist revolutionary spirit which those living in the socialist society must possess without fail. The food of the revolution is a source that makes it possible to staunchly fight for society, collectives, organizations, and comrades.

Only the party of the working class, which takes responsibility for the fate and political life of the popular masses, is able to give them this food of the revolution. Through its organizations, which spread throughout the society like blook vessels in the body, the party sees to it that the revolutionary idea of the leader and the ideological will of the party constantly permeate among the people and the aspirations and opinions of the people are timely reflected in the party's lines and policies. Also, the party clearly elucidates principled questions arising in the people's pioneering of political life and powerfully accelerates the work of remodeling them into communist revolutionaries.

Without this food of the revolution given by the party, the people of all walks of life in socialist society, including workers, peasants, working intellectuals, and the new and old generations, can neither live nor carry out the revolution. A key enabling the socialist society to move like an organ lies in the fact that the party presents the fighting guideline of struggle to all members of society and the people live and struggle with the guideline as nourishment.

The party is also a guiding organization that operates all organizations and organs of the socialist society in a united manner. There exist countless organizations and organs in society. Many political organizations and organs in the socialist society embrace all members of society. The fact that the socialist society moves vigorously means that these organizations and organs work continuously.

The party of the working class gives fighting guidelines and directions to all organizations and organs in every period and at every stage and grasps and guides their activities in a unified manner. This constant guidance of the party is as precious as life-giving water in enabling the political organizations and organs of society to smoothly fulfill their duties for the revolution and construction. Indeed, there is no political organization and organ of the socialist society which can carry out its own work on a correct track without receiving nourishment from the party. Historical experience shows that when the social organizations and organs fail to receive correct guidance from the party, overall social life is chaotic and the socialist society cannot move smoothly.

In this way, the party always takes the central position in the activities and struggle of all political organizations and organs in the socialist society. No revolutionary organization of the working class can have this status in place of the party.

The party is also a driving force that constantly develops the socialist society to a higher stage. Just as all things and phenomena change and develop, society continues to develop in accordance with its own law. The development can be realized through revolution. For this reason, the political organization leading the revolution holds the central status.

The leadership role of the party as the staff headquarters of the revolution is extraordinarily strengthened in the socialist society. Looking ahead into the distant future of social development in a scientific manner, the party sets forth fighting programs and lines aimed at utlimately consummating the revolution and puts forward, in every period, directions and ways to improve the political, economic, and moral relations of society. Also, it firmly consolidates forces to carry out the grand revolutionary task of remodeling society and powerfully organizes and mobilizes the popular masses.

As the socialist society develops, the political and ideological unity of the whole society is enhanced and an epochal development is achieved in economic work and cultural construction. This is an outcome of the party's leadership role. A socialist society in which the party's leadership role is not guaranteed is, after all, a ship without propulsion. No social progress can be made in this society.

The work of maintaining the original traits of the socialist society and the work of achieving the normal development of society decisively depend on the party's leadership -- a precious truth confirmed by reality.

The idea that the party is the heart of society is an ideological weapon that makes it possible to comprehensively manifest the superiority of the socialist society at present, and a theoretical foundation for mapping out lines and policies on socialist construction.

The ideological and theoretical exploits of our party, which has clearly elucidated mutual relations between the party and society and the great truth on social development through the most condensed proposition, will shine endlessly.

2. Today, the WPK is brilliantly performing its mission and function as the heart of our society.

A great theory is based on and produces great reality. The proposition that the party is the heart of society reflects the history of the emergence and development of our socialist society and its reality. The course of the development of the socialist society in our country is precisely a path along which the role of the party as the heart of society has been constantly strengthened.

Today, our party has climbed to heights from which the complete victory of socialism is seen close at hand. Because the function and role of our party as the heart of society have been extraordinarily strengthened, our society has reached a high developmental stage and has accelerated a great march to realize the communist program to the end.

The rapid development and sound, revolutionary, and solid nature of our socialist society are linked to the leadership of the WPK incessantly supplying the nourishment of the revolution at the center of society. As a result of the party's brilliant performance of its function and role as the heart of society, our society is, above all, being turned into a consolidated society that is firmly united politically and ideologically.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: There has been no such example as in our country where the party trusts the people, the people follow the party, and the party and the people advance with conviction as one along the straight road of victory in the revolution and construction.

As taught by the great leader, a basis of social relations in the socialist system lies in unity and cooperation. For this reason, the level of the development of the socialist society and its consolidated nature are largely manifested by the level of unity achieved by the entire society.

Only the revolutionary party of the working class can firmly unite all members of the socialist society as one. Precisely because of this, the party is placed in such a position as the heart in strengthening and developing social relations.

Since the first period during which the socialist society was formed in our country, our party has solidly realized the united front of the popular masses of all walks of life with the worker-peasant alliance as a basis and has firmly rallied a broad range of the masses around the party, indoctrinating and boldly winning them over to its side. This embodies our party's lofty stand and intention to totally take responsiblity for the fate and future of all members of society and to lead them. As a result, a historic course in which the whole society advances in one direction in unison began in our country, where social and class composition was complicated. This tenor throughout society is still invariably continuing and will continue forever in the future, too.

Today, our party puts forth thoroughly implementing the mass line as an epochal question with regard to the consolidation and development of the socialist system and is concentrating great efforts on implementing the line. Leading the revolution and construction by firmly trusting the popular masses and by giving play to their strength is an inviolable iron rule to our party. Our people are connected with their party through relations of blood and are firmly united with it at the center. Our reality shows that only when there is a great center of society -- a heart -- can solid unity pervasive throughout society be realized.

The unity of our society around the party is the most consolidated and vital one. It is the unity of all people, a unity that embraces not only the class vanguards but also all members constituting society, and a pure unity in which everyone absolutely trusts and follows the party and thinks and acts only in accordance with the will of the party. In no society has there been such an example in which the whole society is united like a large family and struggles for a common ideal. The fact that this political and ideological unity has been realized is a basic factor that enables our socialist society to win one victory after another without being shaken by the maneuvers of any enemy.

In our society in which the party is the heart, all social life is led and developed in a wholesome and revolutionary manner to meet the intrinsic requirement of socialist society.

Socialist society is a society that has been built by negating all preceding obsolete societies. Under the socialist system, obsolete, corrupt, and capitalist things are destroyed, and communist-type things win victories continuously. This is the important content of metabolism in socialist society.

The development of socialism in a wholesome manner implies the thoroughgoing fulfillment of a working class-type requirement -- the intrinsic requirement of socialism.

Having made it clear that the course of developing socialist society is the course of developing those concerned into members of the working class, our party has thoroughly fulfilled the aspirations and demands of the working class in social life. The ideology of the working class has been deeply instilled into members of society by our party, and the culture, morality, and life style of the working class have been disseminated continuously. This is the important role assumed by our party as the heart of socialist society led by the working class.

Today all party members and workers in our society are carrying out their work and are leading their daily lives in a revolutionary manner worthy of the people of a country that is carrying out the revolution and is waging a struggle, assuming and possessing a firm working class-type stand and view. They have prevented non-working class-type elements from infiltrating any sector of social life.

The principle of party guidance has been adhered to in the sector of running the economy to fit the intrinsic nature of the socialist economy. Education that is clearly distinguished by a working class-type nature has been conducted in the education sector. Literary arts have developed into revolutionary literary arts reflecting the aspiration and desire of the working class. This the proud feature of our socialist society today.

The wholesome nature of our society has been clearly reflected in the domain of life sytle. Life style -- the mode of the activities of members of society -- intensively shows the characteristics and features of a society concerned.

Regarding correctly developing a life style that fits the intrinsic nature of our society on the basis of collectivism as the most important link for the wholesome development of socialist society, our party has paid deep attention to this work. As a result, a bourgeois life style that undermines socialism and the obsolete custom that does not fit our people's modern aesthetic sense have been thoroughly rejected and overcome in running state affairs and in leading individual daily life.

The work of maintaining order in socialist-type community life in an orderly manner through a social movement and of setting and generalizing the example of a new communist-type moral life in succession has been carried out vigorously today. This shows that our society is developing in a very wholesome manner. Through such a feature of our society, the people are confidently viewing the appearance of the future socialist and communist society in which the ideology, morality, and life style of the working class will be settled as a whole.

As the result of our party's brilliant assumption of a role as the heart of society, our society has developed into a lively one always overflowing with passion and with an ambitious spirit.

The spirit and work style that dominate a society is an important yardstick showing the features of the society concerned. In a society that continuously brings about innovations and advances, an ambitious spirit and passion prevail in all sectors of society, and all work is carried out in a fresh manner.The more society develops, the more important the problem of spirit becomes within society. If we fail to overcome the phenomena of an easy-going and slack attitude and senility -- phenomena that might be seen in social life with the advance of the revolution as the momentum -- society will not move in a lively manner.

The phenomenon of senility in man's social life results in stagnation and stalemate in developing society. Therefore, the party should always pay special attention to developing a fresh, revolutionary, and fighting spirit in social life. The most important thing in this regard is for the party, the heart of society, to become a lively party that carries out the revolution and struggles.

Early in the 1970's, when the advance movement to imbue society with the chuche idea was launched, our party called for thoroughly overcoming the phenomenon of senility in overall party work and in the activities of party organizations. This is of great significance in basically reforming spirit within the party to meet the new requirement of social development. As the result of the brilliant accomplishment of this task, the spirit of carrying out work in a revolutionary and bold manner with a flourishing fighting will, with a desire for work, and with inexhaustible energy is prevailing in the party today.

The spirit prevailing in society as a whole reflects the spirit that dominates the party. The development of our party into a lively party has served as a decisive factor for making our society continually overflow with a militant spirit and with an upsurging revolutionary atmosphere.

Today our party members and workers are carrying out all work with a firm faith in victory in the revolution and with hope for the future, overflowing with a youthful and ambitious spirit and with passion. The fighting will to courageously cross fiery rivers and to traverse muddy paths without fearing any difficulties whatsoever; the enterprising attitude of continuously meditating, or carrying out practical activities, and of creating new things; and a noble life style overflowing with revolutionary feelings and with romanticism while moderation and discipline are maintained in work -- this is the lively appearance of our party members and workers. Because all party members and workers are living and working in such a revolutionary spirit, economic construction has continuously made rapid progress in our society, science and technology have quickly developed, and new technology and new records have been created everywhere.

As long as our party, a vivacious revolutionary party, remains the heart of society, the appearance of our party, which is full of ambitions, will never change no matter how much time passes.

3. Elucidated in the thesis about the party being the heart of society are the position and role of the party played not only in today's but in the future communist society as well.A communist society is the ideal of mankind. It is also the highest stage of social development. However, this does not mean that social development should stop advancing at this stage.The struggle to educate and rear all members of society and to improve social relations continues even after communism has been built. This work is to be realized through the struggle to create new things after abandoning the old, as in the socialist society. In effect, this means that social assimilation will not only continue without interruption, but rather will be expedited in the future communist society.

Herein lies the historical inevitability that causes the party to exist within the communist society as the heart of society, which enlivens the struggle of the whole society.

The reason why the party remains the heart of society in the future communist society demands that the party be futuristically built accordingly. Only when such a historical task is fully realized will an endlessly bright future unfold for the future of the socialist society.

Our party has now been strengthened and developed as a powerful, mighty revolutionary party capable of performing its functions and role as the heart of society indefinitely.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: In the difficult and complicated course of leading the revolution and construction, our party has been chastened and tested furthermore and has been strengthened and developed as an invincible revolutionary party.

For the party to play its leadership [yongdojok] role befitting its being the heart of socialist and communist society, it should have its might consolidated firmly in the long course of revolutionary practice.

Ours is a party which has led the struggle for socialist construction for dozens of decades without the slightest deviation. It is also a revolutionary party which even today is victoriously advancing the enormous work of remolding nature. In this process, our party has armed itself with scientific revolutionary theories -- theories on social development -- has achieved rich exploits and experiences, and has gained the art of leadership that enables it to easily carry out any task arising in social development.

The might of our party which has been developed more than at any previous time in terms of its ideological and organizational spirit, in terms of its combat capability, and in terms of its leadership is invincible. The might of our party as the heart of the socialist and communist society lies in having established a firm system capable of realizing its leadership over the fields of society as a whole.

The party's leadership over society is preconditioned on a system and order that make its realization possible. The strong organizational spirit of the party is at once the organizational spirit that comes from the party's leadership system.

Social life in a communist society becomes diverse to the extreme and along with it the degree of its organizational work becomes very high. Such a society can be run only by a party which has established an orderly system and which utilizes its leadership without any trouble.

The course in which our party has realized its leadership over society has been a course in which the party's organizational spirit has been strengthened without interruption.

Thanks to the positive struggle by all party members and party organizations, a revolutionary trait of unconditionally and thoroughly carrying out the party's decisions and directives has been firmly established and a revolutionary discipline in which the entire party moves as one has also been established.

Thus, our party's leadership is now reaching the entire party, all the people, and the entire army without any trouble. It is because such a revolutionary trait and order have been established that our party has now become a steel-like party capable of conquering any kind of fortress once it has determined to do so.

The party's leadership system established in our society is the most comprehensive in that it holds in line all fields of the revolution and construction as well as all the localities and guard posts throughout the country. It is also the most solid and highly organized because it is based on the democratic centralization of administrative power.

Its major characteristics lie in the fact that it is based on the high self-awakening of the party members and working people who are determined to realize the socialist and communist cause to the end under the leadership of the party. For this reason, our party's revolutionary work system as such remains unwavering whatever happens. It will display its might in the future communist society.

It is the great pride of our party that it has ensured a strong organizational spirit in its party activities. It is a decisive element that continuously maintains the party as the heart of society.

The immutability of the party's position in our society has been firmly guaranteed thanks to the greatness of the leader [yongdoja] and (?his) tested leadership.

The party's activities designed to organize social life and to achieve social development are ultimately to be organized and led by the wise mind, the leader [yongdoja] of the party.

With his extraordinary resources, outstanding organizational ability, and unusual leading methods, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song is leading our society on a single road of continued renovation and advancement.

Our party center has put forward countless lines and policies that illuminate the prospects for our society's development by embodying the great leader's intentions, while energetically organizing and leading the struggle to implement them.

The militant spirit, the indomitable verve, inexhaustible passion, and ambitions that fill our society today stem from none other than the great traits and spirit worthy of the leader [yongdoja].

The proud reality in our society in which the whole society moves bravely toward a single goal thanks to the the leader [yongdoja] who stirs the party and the party that stirs all the popular masses.

Today our party is now energetically staging a struggle to consummate our party's cause of construction in conformity with the position occupied by a party in a communist society.

The future communist society is one in which the whole society has been imbued with the chuche idea and, therefore, only a party which has been imbued with the chuche idea can become the heart of this society. Proceeding from this, our party has presented imbuing the party with the chuche idea as the key for remolding society in a revolutionary way and for constructing communism.

Thanks to the wise leadership of the party, this cause has been advanced energetically. As a result, our party has been strengthened and developed more as a party that conducts its activity with the chuche idea as its leading principle, as a party in which the unitary ideological system has been firmly established and which is rock-firm united as a whole, as a militant party which, establishing blood ties with the popular masses, is mobilizing them vigorously, and as a perfect and immaculate chuche-type party.

Such a proud and stately appearance of our party contains the inherent nature of guidance ability which will exist in a communist society. It promises a bright future for our society which will advance forever with only one heart.

Through practical experience attained in their lives, our people are firmly convinced of the position and role of the party which will remain immutable, as it was yesterday and which remains unchanged today. It is the firm code of our people's faith that without the existence of the party, neither the existence of our society nor prospects for our society can exist, nor can they hope for their own happiness or prosperity for the generations to come.

We should always hold forever our party in esteem based on such a code of faith. All party members and working people should cherish our party which is leading our destiny as if it were their own hearts, safeguard and defend it feverishly, and think andd struggle only as intended by the party.

This is the primary task to defend our socialist system under any circumstances and to accelerate socialist and communist construction. As long as there is a great heart of society and as long as all the people advance by firmly uniting around it, our socialist society will prosper without interruption.

WARSAW PACT NATIONS ARMS PROPOSAL SUPPORTED

SK211224 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1037 GMT 21 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 22 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN and MINJU CHOSON today hail the new proposal put forward by the Warsaw Treaty nations to reduce armed forces, conventional weapons and nuclear weapons in Europe.

NONDONG SINMUN is a signed commentary titled "New Proposal for Peace" says that it is a constructive initiative to open a new prospect on the road of restricting the arms race and expansion of armament, dispelling tension and danger of a new war and achieving peace security.

The paper continues: Our people warmly support this proposal, regarding it as a significant initiative in removing military confortation between the East and the West and accelerating arms reduction and the process of detente. This proposal is one more clear manifestation of the consistent peace policy of socialist countries to avert a new world war, a thermonuclear war, and guarantee a permanent and durable peace in the world.

Putting forward the proposal, the Warsaw Treaty nations called once again for steps to restrict large military exercise and create a nuclear weapons-free, chemical weapons-free zone on the European continent and reaffirmed their invariable stand for dissolving the Warsaw Teaty and NATO simultaneously.

Such initiatives and proposals are a heavy blow to the war moves of the U.S.-led imperialists who are getting overheated in the nuclear arms race, even bringing forward the adventurous "star wars" programme to militarise the outer space. The U.S. imperialists should lend an ear and actively respond to the peaceful appeal of thee Warsaw Treaty nations, instead of paying lip-service to "peace,""disarmament" and "detente", and show this with concrete steps.

EDITORIALS ASSESS NORTH'S TALKS PROPOSAL

SK201050 [Editorial Report] All six of Seoul's major vernacular newspapers on 19 June carry editorials assessing the North Korean defense minister's 17 June letters to the commander in chief of U.S. forces in Korea and the ROK defense minister proposing three-way military talks. All papers agree that the proposal is a political ploy or propaganda exercise by the North, but assess it from different perspectives.

CHOSON ILBO in its editorial, "The Deceptive Nature of Military Talks," states that the primary goal of the North must be that it wants to give precedence to a "miniature version" of the "so-called tripartite talks" it proposed before and after the Rangoon incident of January 1981. "In this circuitous manner, the North is scheming to carry out its strategy hidden behind the tripartite talks, which is to induce the United States to sign a peace agreement between North Korea and the United Stares and, on the basis of this, to achieve the adoption of a declaration of nonaggression between North and South, and eventually to force the U.S. troops to withdraw by making the military talks participated in by the United States an established fact."

The editorial says that the secondary objective the North is seeking is to blame our side for the suspension of the dialogue "through black propaganda." "Toward the end of August and to the beginning of September, a summit meeting of the nonaligned countries will be held in Zimbabwe, and an international meeting is also scheduled to be held in Pyongyang in early September whose aim is said to be to turn the Korean peninsula into a nuclear free zone. The North must have this in mind. The North is also believed to be pandering to the radical slogans yelled recently by some political forces in Korea."

"No sooner than it proposed the military talks it mounted a large-scale propaganda campaign. Unprecedentedly, the North made public the contents of its proposal for military talks via broadcasting means 2 hours after it had delivered the letter, without giving the opposition any time to scrutinize it, and has repeated its noisy propaganda via broadcasting and press conferences with domestic and foreign correspondents. There is no question as to what it is seeking to achieve. The North is seeking to camouflage the fact that it has already deployed 65 percent of its military forces in forward areas, to blame the South side for having exacerbated military tension by conducting the 'Team Spirit' and other exercises, and to shift responsibility onto the South side should the parties concerned fail to agree on military talks."

CHOSON ILBO says Pyongyang's proposal is neither sincere nor acceptable. "Who among our fellow countrymen will object to arranging an opportunity for easing military tension between the North and South and achieving genuine national harmony? However, both sides should proceed from a national stand and conscience to solve national problems among our fellow countrymen,". It concludes: "What is more, such highly sensitive matters as disarmament cannot be easily solved at working-level talks, which have extremely restricted power to accomplish this. Such matters can be solved only through high-level political and diplomatic talks between North and South that deal with comprehensive issues between the North and South. We have already opened wide the door to such negotiations by putting forward a proposal for North-South summit talks."

HANGKUK ILBO in its editorial entitled "The North's Proposal for Military Talks and What Must Be Guarded Against" states that the North's proposal "is apparently aimed at cloaking such things as military exercises the North has been secretly conducting, its military buildup, war preparations, and provocations and, going one step further, at papering over its responsibility for having heightened tension and having created the danger of a war."

It says that what the North is seeking to achieve behind such a "disguised peace offensive" is to worsen recent unrest in South Korea and to "confuse" South Korean society. It notes that the proposal was put forward in June, the month the Korean war broke out, which "reminds us that the North clung to a disguised peace offensive until a week before it provoked the Korean war," calling on the South to attend negotiations for unification or respond to personnel exchanges between North and South. The editorial concludes by urging the North to respond to our proposal for talks "between the highest authorities from the North and South."

SEOUL SINMUN in its editorial asserts that O Chin-u's proposal "is not worth considering." "Among the agenda items set by the North side, the issue of reducing armaments in particular is a highly political issue that cannot be discussed at working-level military talks. Moreover, the North has not shown any willingness to reach an agreement on any easier and more plausible issues than disarmament in talks conducted in the past between the North and South."

In probing the motives behind the North's proposal, the editorial says that one such reason is the North's need to consolidate the Kim Chong-il system -- "which in fact has succeeded that of Kim Il-song" -- and the need to placate public opinion, which has been growing due to economic difficulties and "which may escalate into a grudge against the inheritance of the Kim Chong-il system from Kim Il-song." The North might have been encouraged by the recent anti-American movement "launched by a handful of radicals."

The editorial concludes: "We oppose the proposal for so-called military talks, which contains impure intentions, because it will not bring about any tangible results. However, we will patiently approach the North-South dialogue for reunification, which we will have to achieve somehow in the future."

TONG-A ILBO in its editorial that the proposal "caught us by surprise." "There must be some hidden reasons why the North, which to date has tried to sit only with the United States in talks on the grounds that the South is not a signatory to the Military Armistice Agreement, has come up with such a proposal." It continues: "The fact that the North, which has not been so eager for such easy talks as the Red Cross talks and the economic talks between North and South, has put forward a proposal for highly complicated military talks can only be interpreted as a propaganda offensive aimed at leading international opinion in its favor."

It concludes: "If North Korea is genuinely concerned about preserving peace on the Korean peninsula, it should make efforts to substantively improve North-South relations rather than proposing such hollow talks as military ones."

CHUNGANG ILBO in its editorial states that "although it has been rejected by our side because of its shopworn content and because the proposal contained in the letter was a trick, its form nevertheless is new, since it is riding on the crest of a dialogue atmosphere." Noting the need to hold military talks when the two sides come nearer to unification through developing relations, it states: "However, it is not the proper time to conduct such talks, because military affairs are ones that can be discussed at the final stage of the settlement of issues related to division." "What cannot be overlooked is that the North has proposed military talks when it is actually beefing up its military forces."

KYONGHAYANG SINMUN, in a long editorial titled "A Deceptive Proposal Aimed at Dividing the National Consensus," says that the North's proposal can only be interpreted as a scheme.

Describing the bitter disappointment felt when the North abruptly suspended all forms of dialogue this year, the editorial states: "It is easy for us to guess why the North suddenly put forward such military talks all of the sudden." Through proposing military talks, the North seeks to place complications into Korean-U.S. relations "by encouraging anti-American and antinuclear assertions." It concludes by stating that Kim Il-song's repeated statement "I would like to wage another fatherland liberation war before I die" does not permit "a moment's relaxation of our alertness."

NORTH SUBMITS ENTRY FOR 1988 OLYMPIC SOCCER

SK240131 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 24 Jun 86 p 7

[Text] North Korea has submitted an entry to the international Football Federation (FIFA) to compete in the regional soccer preliminaries for the 1988 Seoul Olympics, it was learned yesterday.

The May edition of the FIFA News, the official bulletin of the FIFA, revealed the fact, carrying the list of 110 entries for the 1988 Olympics Games soccer tournament.

The FIFA originally announced that North Korea, along with Cuba, failed to send entries as of the April 30 deadline for the regional preliminaries, which will be held from Aug. 1 this year to April 30, 1988. The application deadline has been extended in order to allow more countries to participate in the soccer tournament and North Korea, which has been threatening to boycott the Seoul Olympics, sent its entry only very recently, it weas learned.

North Korea's participation brought to 110 the number of countries to compete in the Seoul Olympics soccer tournament, including the Soviet Union and other Communist countries with the exception of Cuba. Among the 110 countries from six regions of the world, 16 teams will be in the finals. As the host nation, South Korea is automatically qualified in the finals. The draw for the preliminary competition will take place in Mexico City Friday.

OPPOSITIONISTS REMARKS TRIGGER PROTEST BY DJP

[Text] Remarks by an opposition lawmaker on the floor in support of the radical students' ideology yesterday created a new tension, affecting an atmosphere conducive to partisan compromise on constitutional amendment.

Rep. Song Chong-yong of the New Korea Democratic Party alleged that "national unification is far off as long as North Korean Communist dictatorship and South Korea's military dictatorship co-exist."

In a session of the Home Affairs Committee, which became paralyzed, he said, "The national unification will be possible when our North Korean brothers groaning under Communist regime and our people oppressed by the military dictatorship get united."

He asked Home Minister Chong Suk-mo how the minister sees "progressive" students who he said think that democracy has its own defects and Communism has its merits in terms of allotment.

The remarks triggered fierce protests by the ruling Democratic Justice Party lawmakers boycotting the session, demanding Song cancel the remarks and make an open apology.

NDP lawmakers rejected the DJP members' demand, noting that a National Assemblyman has the privilege of exemption from liability for his speech in the Assembly.

However, DJP leaders, taking a serious view of the remarks, took issue with them and decided to hold a special meeting this morning to discuss how to cope with Song's speech.

Rep. Sim Myong-po, spokesman of the party, commented, "The remarks do not represent an individual's ideology, but speak for the ideology of a certain faction of the NDP."

Rep. Song is a core member of the "Tonggyo-dong" faction led by Kim Tae-chung.

The spokesman also said, "Rep. Song encouraged and hailed the claims of left-leaning militant students." "The remarks are not mere criticism of the current government, but they support Communism, totally denying free democracy and capitalism," he argued.

However, NDP members on the Home Affairs Committee denounced such a reaction of the DJP, arguing that the DJP is attempting to find fault with Song's remarks, ignoring lawmaker's privilege of exemption from liability for speech on the floor. In a statement issued late at night, they claimed that the DJP is scheming to gloss over the real picture of the Inchon incident by picking on Song's speeches.

Besides the panel, 10 standing committees met for the third day in row to inquire of concerned government offices about their policy programs.

In the Defense Committee, Defense Minister Yi Ki-paek made clear that the government has no intention to abolish the six-day training course at frontlines for college students. "The training course is not aimed at cultivating students as soldiers, but is to help them understand the actual facts of the national security."

CONTROVERSY NOT TO AFFECT PARTY LEADERS' TALKS

[Text] The sudden controversy over remarks by an opposition lawmaker in a House committee Thursday is not likely to escalate, as both ruling and opposition parties do not want it to jeopardize their leaders meeting slated for today.

The ruling Democratic Justice Party and the main opposition New Korea Democratic Party yesterday expressed hope that the Home Affairs Committee would properly deal with the incident, involving Rep. Song chon-yong.

So, the rival parties are expected to tide themselves over the sudden crisis and settle the long-pending task of organizing a special House committee on constitutional amendment Tuesday, as planned. However, the parties exchanged harsh statements on how to settle the controversy yesterday.

The DJP demanded that Rep. Song make an open apology for his remarks "supporting left-leaning radical students' claims" at the committee session.

In contrast, the NDP, rejecting the DJP's call, said that "an expression of regret would be enough."

What the DJP takes most seriously is the remark that "national unification will be possible when our North Korean brothers groaning under the Communist regime and our people oppressed by the military dictatorship get united," according to a party spokesman.

The DJP held an emergency meeting of its leading officers in the morning to discuss how to cope with the sudden situation. Some members of the party claimed that disciplinary measures should be taken against the NDP lawmaker, who is a member of the Kim Tae-chung faction of the NDP. But, they decided to tackle the matter after watching how the Home Affairs Committee handles the case.

Party spokesman Sim Myong-po said after the meeting, "Party leaders were of the same opinion, that Song's speech is extremely dangerous and shakes free democracy from its roots." "The reason for our serious reaction is that Rep. Song used the parliament as a place for propagandizing an ideology similar to Communism," he said. "If such remarks are made outside the parliament, the National Security Law may be applied to the speaker," he stressed.

The NDP held an emergency meeting of its key post-holders andd empowered the party's assistant chairman of the Home Affairs Committee to take an appropriate measure. The party officers shared the view that the controversy should not affect the operation of the current extra House session or the formation of an ad hoc parliamentary panel on ccontitutional amendment.

Rep. Song, who attended the meeting, told party officers that he intends to express his regret over the remarks and to agree on deletion of the controversial remarks from the committee's minutes. "I had only expressed my belief as a National Assemblyman who has the privilege of exemption from liability for speeches on the floor, he said. "But, I can't make an apology at an open committee session, as demanded by the DJP," he said.

VOPB REPORTS VICTORIES OF PHILIPPINES' NPA

BK191420 (Clandestine) Voice of the People of Burma in Burmese 1200 GMT 19 Jun 86

[Unattributed "article": "The New People's Army of the Philippines Is Winning Greater Victories"]

[Text] The New People's Army [NPA] under the leadership of the Communist Party of the Philippines [CPP] has been winning greater victories year after year. It has also been getting more and more support from the broad masses in its fight against the rulers of the Philippines who represent imperialism, feudal-landlordism, and bureaucratic capitalism.

According to sketchy reports, the NPA fought 220 large- and small-scale battles in 1985 and, in the process, captured a total of (?1,340) assorted weapons. This figure is almost double the 786 weapons seized in 1984. The NPA has also expanded its combat areas in all directions. The number of provinces where battles took place last year was 35 but it has increased to more than 40 this year. The expanded combat area include the electoral zone of the deposed dictator, Marcos. About half of the battles fought involved medium- and large-scale military operations. In these battles, the NPA (?used) superior strength in fighting enemy units (?which were of company or regimental strength).

Today, the NPA has been able to form company strength units in many regions, such as Mindanao and Luzon. Small-scale battles were fought with members of armed propaganda (?teams), regional forces, and militias.

Enemy camps, town halls, and township armories were frequently raided, and most of the captured arms in 1985 came from these armories, which were the major targets of two large-scale battles. It is remarkable that in both these successful operations not a single shot was fired. Another remarkable event this year is the increase in the number of battles fought by the regional forces and their ability to contain enemy units. These forces were also able to carry out sabotage missions aimed at destroying or hindering the enemy's projects and plans which were being implemented by the enterprises and organizations belonging to the dictatorial Marcos government and his cronies. For example, one third of the power pylons for the Bataan nuclear power plant were blown up, thus effectively delaying the plant's start-up operations.

The following are battles in which more than 30 firearms were seized from the enemy:

On 25 March, the (Duplaya air force) academy, some (?2) km away from (Mogolon) was successfully raided and overrun without a single shot. A total of 423 (?rifles) and 2 (?other weapons) were captured in the battle. This is the largest amount of weapons ever captured in a single battle in NPA history.

On 9 February, the NPA [words indistinct] encircled an enemy mercenary unit of 35 men stationed on a municipal highway in a mountainous region of Cagayan Province. The enemy surrendered without any resistance. As a result, 36 rifles and 7 other weapons were captured.

On 16 May, 68 rifles were captured in an attack on a mercenary unit stationed at [words indistinct]. (?Up to the time of this battle), more than 700 rifles, 40 other weapons, and 2 M-60 heavy machineguns were captured by the NPA. Other weapons captured included two mortars, one bazooka, and nine (?M-403) heavy weapons.

The NPA, which is increasingly enjoying the support and encouragement of the people, is bound to win even greater victories in the future.

The interference by imperialists is increasingly being exposed before the people, day by day, and there are difficulties on the political, economic, and social fronts. The Marcos government was overthrown by the massive uprising of the people last February. It is certain that the new Aquino government which is acting out a role on the political stage of the Philippines in accordance with the wishes of U.S. imperialism, will not be able to do anything in the interest of the people. It is bound to face opposition from the people since it will be unable to overcome the difficulties left behind by the Marcos government.

The CPP and the NPA, which are becoming stronger, together with the armed revolution, will be organizing the people who are rising up and will surely attain final victory one day.

BCP POLITICAL REPORT DISCUSSES 'ERRORS' OF PAST

BK151323 (Clandestine) Voice of the People of Burma in Burmese 1200 GMT 15 Jun 86

["Continuatin of the Political Report of the Burma Communist Party Central Committee presented to the Third National Party Congress" -- read by announcer]

[Text] The unity between the Burma Communist Party [BCP] and the Red Flag party was a crucial factor for the victory of the revolution. Hence, the line adopted rejected the leadership role of the party. In other words, the 1955 line, in sum, reflecting the abandoning of the armed revolution, working within the framework of the law, serving the ruling class, and abolishing the party. Despite burying facts beneath wordy phrases, that line turns its back on basic Marxist-Leninist principles and was revisionist in nature.

The consequence of adopting that line was severe setbacks within the party as well as at departments where there was party leadership. It was a great downfall for the party and the revolutionary forces. In 1985, after that line was implemented, the party lost 2,150 members and was left with only 2,000 men. The Kawthulay [Karen] group lost 2,000 men and was left with 5,000 men.

All 5,000 men within the Patriotic Volunteer Organization and the 1,000 men within the Pa-o organization surrendered. More than 1,000 men from the Mon group gave themselves up while all 500 men from the U Seinda [Monk and head Red Flag Communist Group in Rakhine State] group also surrendered. Thus, 11,650 men were lost from within the revolutionary forces.

The party also faced great internal difficulties from political and ideological confusion and these later led to military and organizational difficulties.

C. The Intraparty Revolutionary Line

The situation of the international communist government movement before and after the adoption of this line will be dealt with first.

Neo-revisionism came out into the open at the 20th CPSU Congress of held in February 1956. Neo-revisionism with the Soviet revisionist clique as its center emerged within the international communist movement. A large number of parties internationally deteriorated and regressed into revisionist parties while other parties suffered setbacks from the revisionist trend within them. The CPC, with other genuine Marxist-Leninst parties (?and organizations) resolutely struggled against revisionism. In the process of this great struggle, our party began to see the errors of the 1955 in depth.

In 1966, the proletarian cultural revolution emerged in China, and our party centered carried out the intraparty revolution within the party. Our party center even went beyond duplicating the proletarian Cultural Revolutionary of China and implemented it is such a way as was supposed to be suitable to the conditions in Burma and thereby committed the errors of the intraparty revolutionary line or the line of purge, dismiss, and eliminate.

The Politburo's resolution of 15 December 1967 stated that party construction through the line of purge, dismiss, and eliminate was a policy of cleansing revisionism within the party and building the party on the basis of Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong thought. This, in short, was commonly referred to as the intraparty revolution. In terms of thinking, politics, organization, and style of work, that line was wrong. It was a line which a communist party should never have carried out. The revisionist label was tagged on everything in sight, and violent attacks, purges, dismissals, and killings were carried out under this line.

DEFENSE MINISTER GREETS 35TH CAMBODIAN ARMY DAY

[17 June congratulatory message from LPDR National Defense Minister General Khamtai Siphandon to PRK National Defense Minister Bou Thang on occasion of the 35th anniversary of the Kampuchean People's Revolutionary Armed Forces]

[Text] Respected Comrade Minister: On the occasion of the 35th anniversary of the Kampuchean People's Revolutionary Armed Forces [KPRAF], on behalf of all cadres and combatants in the LPA and in my own name, I would like to extend my warmest salutations and congratulatons to you and, through you, to all cadres and combatants in the entire fraternal KPRAF.

Over the past 35 years, under the leadership of the KPRP, the KPRAF have enhanced the majestic revolutionary tradition of their nation, resolutely carried out the heroic struggle, and worked to incessantly build their own strength. They have, together with the Cambodian people, fulfilled the brilliant historic task of their nation. They have stood shoulder to shoulder with the Vietnamese volunteer forces to defeat colonialism and neocolonialism of the imperialist aggressors and to extricate the country from the genocidal disaster created by the Pol Pol clique -- the faithful lackey of the Beijing reactionary clique.

Over the past 7 years of national defense and national construction, the Cambodian Army and people have scored great victories and achievements in various fields. In particular, they have smashed the dark scheme of the Beijing big-nation expansionist-hegemonists, in collusion with the imperialists and other reactionary forces, thus contributing to winning solid victories in the revival of the life of the Cambodian people, ensuring the (?fulfillment of the tasks of) national defense and national construction, and gradually and steadily restoring peace in Cambodia.

At present, the KPRAF has been rapidly building to become stronger in all fields so as to become strong enough to fulfill all tasks. They have become a reliable sharp tool of the party and state and the Cambodian people, thereby contributing to the cause of safeguarding peace and stability in Indochina, Southeast Asia, and the world.

The LPA and Lao people are very happy and take great pride in the numerous achievements and victories won by th fraternal KPRAF and regard them as our own. In the past as well as at present, the LPA has consistently received support and assistance as well as great encouragement from the Cambodian army and people rendered in the spirit of pure and close comradeship and brotherhood.

On the occasion of the anniversary of this glorious day of the KPRAF, I would like to wholeheartedly extend our profound gratitude and thanks to the fraternal Cambodian party, state, army, and people.

May the special friendship and militant solidarity between the Lao and Cambodian people and armies grow stronger with every passing day.

I wish you, Comrade Minister, good health and new and greater successes in fulfilling your esteemed responsibilities.

PASASON VIEWS STAND AFTER THAI 'ALLEGATION'

["Commentary": "Unchangeable Stand of Lao Toward Thai Allegation" -- KPL headline]

[Text] Vientiane, June 20 (KPL) -- The Thai allegation that units of the Lao army attacked refugee camp in Huai Pong Village, Chiang Kham District, Thai Phayao Province is a groundless accusation concocted by Thai side and aimed at creating new tension along the border of the two countries and through which it is hoped to divert Thai public from the present political and economical hardship, writes PASASON in its commentary today.

On the general relations between the two countries, the commentary says that the Lao people always do their utmost to cherish and develop the long standing relations of goodneighbourliness on the basis of the two communiques signed in 1979 between the Lao and Thai Governments.

The Lao side has never caused troubles for the Thai side. Laos has never killed any Thai citizen, set fire neither on Thai people's house nor any refugee camp in Thai territory. The Lao side always sticks to this just principles. On the contrary, the neighborly relations between the Lao-Thai peoples are always violently disturbed by Thai side.

In its conclusion, the commentary says that if the Thai side should resort to use this allegation as a pretext for creating tension along the Lao-Thai border, the Thai side will have to bear all the consequences of their designs. The Lao PDR and the Lao people always stand firm on the relations of goodneighbourliness between the peoples of the two countries. The Lao side is to carry out the spirit of the Lao-Thai joint communiques signed in 1978 for safeguarding and normalising Lao-Thai relations for peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

REBELS AMBUSH GOVERNMENT CONVOY, 20 CASUALTIES

[Text] Nong Khai -- More than 20 Lao persons are believed killed or wounded last week when Laotian rebels ambushed a government truck convoy on the strategic highways Route No. 13 at the area of Bolikhan District in Laos, just opposite Phonphisai District of this northeastern province, intelligence sources said this morning in a delayed report.

The incident took place in the early hours of Thursday, June 12 when five trucks carrying goods from Vientiane to Pakse in southern Laos arrived at the area of Bolikhan town, when an unidentified number of rebels bombarded the trucks with M79 grenade launchers, and then set the trucks and cargo worth several million baht ablaze, the sources said. The incident lasted only about 10 minutes and the rebels reportedly withdrew.

The source added that Laotian authorities had banned trucks and other vehicles from travelling in that area after the ambush took place to prevent a similar incident while Pathet Lao forces were said to be hunting the rebels. Cargo from Vientiane to the southern part of Laos is temporarily to be shipped along the Mekong River at this moment, the source said.

STATE OF EMERGENCY PROCLAIMED IN PHUKET

Tantalum Plant, Hotel Burned

BK231224 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 1200 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] Today people in Phuket protested at the tantalum plant project. While the protest was in progress the plant was set ablaze, and cars in front of the Merlin Hotel in Phuket were also set on fire.

Minister attached to the Prime Minister's Office Banyat Banthatthan reported to newsmen that he had received reports from tourism police that the protest escalated into a mob [preceding word in English] and the plant was reportedly set ablaze and part of the mob went to the Phuket Merlin Hotel to demand a response from the industry minister, thinking that he was staying at the hotel. Banyat has reported the situation to the prime minister, who probably already received reports from the Interior Ministry and the police.

Province Issues Statement

BK231509 Bangkok Television Service in Thai 1340 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Live phone-in report by television correspondent Duangsamon Tanthawatthana from Phuket Province on today's demonstration against the Thailand Tantalum Plant Project there]

[Text] [Somkiat -- TV News anchorman] Duangsamon, what is the situation there now?

[Duangsamon] The situation has returned to normal now. Phuket Governor Sanong Rotphothong disclosed to the Mass Communications Organization of Thailand that at 2000 [1300 GMT] today, Prime Minister General Prem Tinsulanon declared a state of emergency in Phuket.

The province also issued the first statement. It says: Industry Minister Chiraya Itsarangkun Na Ayutthaya and his party arrived in Phuket today. While the group was heading for the city hall and arriving at the Thao Thepkasatri Monument, the convoy was blocked by a large crowd. The crowd also tried to attack the industry minister. The provincial governor, who was also there, realized that the mob was uncontrollable and the situation was unstable. He consulted with the minister and agreed that it would be too risky to proceed to a meeting with representatives of the various groups of protesters. They therefore invited those groups' representatives to meet them instead and asked them to try to convince the mob to disperse. However, the effort was in vain as some of the people in the mob were persistent and uncontrollable. They attacked and destroyed property belonging to individuals. The provincial authorities therefore had to take measures to control the confusion. The situation has returned to normal in certain areas. There is a request for the people to remain peaceful and not to leave their houses tonight because the authorities concerned will have to carry out their duties and put the situation under control as soon as possible. The people in the province are hereby informed. They should cooperate with the authorities.

Regarding concern over how Minister Chirayu returned to Bangkok, the governor disclosed that he requested a police helicopter from Songkhla to pick up the ministerup at Tambon Khok Kloi, Takua Pa District, Phangnga Province. The minister left for Bangkok at 1600 today.

[Somkiat] He has probably already arrived in Bangkok.

[Duangsamon] I think so.

[Somkiat] The declaration of a state of emergency covers all of Phuket Province, correct?

[Duangsamon] Yes,that is correct.

[Somkiat] How long will it remain in force?

[Duangsamon] The governor explained that the authorities concerned will have to clear up the matter first before the state of emergency can be lifted.

[Somkiat] This means that people are prohibited from leaving home after dark.

[Duangsamon] Yes, that is right.

[Somkiat] The pattern of life goes on normally when the sun rises the next morning then. People can go to the market in the morning.

[Duangsamon] That is right. The Phuket provincial police are investigating suspects now in their custody. Details will be reported later, when they become available.

[Somkiat] We do not know at this time who the leaders or the masterminds of the demonstration are, am I right?

[Duangsamon] An investigation is being conducted.

[Somkiat] What is the condition of the Phuket Merlin Hotel now?

[Duangsamon] The fire has been put out since this afternoon. The police could not give an estimate of the damage at this time. From what I saw, the lower two floors were very badly damaged by fire. The police have cordoned off the street in front of the hotel.

[Somkiat] Any casualties or deaths?

[Duangsamon] The commander of the provincial police Zone 4 told me that there were not injuries or deaths.

[Somkiat] So the police did not use force but used peaceful means in quelling the demonstrators, but some demonstrators used a bit of force. How is the Thai tantalum plant?

[Duangsamon] The fire is still burning. The provincial administration told newsmen that it will try to get the fire under control tonight.

[Somkiat] We hope to hear from you and Sitthichai again for an updated report. In the meantime, take a rest if possible. Thank you.

BANGKOK POST on Incidents

[By Nattaya Chetchotirot and Adison Ongsitrakun in Phuket]

[Text] A state of emergency was declared in Phuket Province last night after protesters torched the tantalum plant site and a firstclass hotel, causing major damage. The 12-billion-baht plant and the Phuket Merlin Hotel were set on fire and angry mobs forced Industry Minister Chiragy Itsrangkun na Ayutthaya to leave the province and return to Bangkok. The branches of three commercial banks were stoned in the violence, which prompted authorities to prepare to deploy Fourth Army troops to take to the streets to restore law and order. Police units and fire trucks were rushed to the site of the tantalum plant late last night to flush out rioters still in the compound.

Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon last night appointed Army Commander-in-Chief Gen Chawalit Yongchaiyut and police chief Governor Sanong Rotphothong and the four senior Police Department officers were appointed by Gen Prem and Interior Minister Gen Sitthi Chirarot to restore peace. Local residents were urged to stay home last night to help the situation to return to normal.

At least 35 suspects were arrested last night after police fired teargas into a mob which had ransacked and set ablaze the Phuket Merlin. Two floors were gutted in the blaze and at least seven vehicles -- four police radio cars, two buses and a motorcycle -- were overturned and burnt. Damage to the hotel was initially put at 35 million baht. The tantalum plant, which was due to start a test run in August and open in October, was extensively damaged and fire crews were battling to contain the fire late last night.

The violence, blamed on a small well-organized group of mostly teenagers, forced Dr Chirayu to fly back to Bangkok. The minister had travelled to the province yesterday with a team of ministry officials to inform about 50,000 local residents of the ministry's decision to suspend the plant's planned operation. Dr Chirayu abruptly switched his morning plan to meet the residents when he was confronted by a group of protesters who jeered and josteled him as he stopped to pay respect to the statue of the Thalang District heroines, Thao Thepkasatri and Thao Sisunthon.

Instead of going to address the estimated 50,000 residents who had waited at the Community Hall since 5 a.m. as scheduled, Dr Chirayu followed the advice of Governor Sanong and went to the Phuket Merlin rather than attempt to drive through the throng to meet the residents' representatives. The minister later moved to Tambon Khok Kroi police station in Takua Thung District of Phang-nga Province before sending a message to the gathering asking the representatives to meet him there to discuss the issue.

While the talks went ahead, the crowd became impatient and began to hurl abuse at the organisers. A group of youngsters, meanwhile, began throwing stones at officials in the Community Hall. The crowd later broke up with about 2,000 angry protesters heading for the Phuket Merlin after being told by a local tambon headman that Dr Chirayu was staying there.

A group of several thousands headed for the tantalum plant to join the crowd which had gathered there since morning. Another 200 protesters went to rally in front of the residence of the Phuket governor to demand a meeting.

Two police officers trying to control the crowd in front of the Phuket Melin were injured when they became the targets of stone-throwing mobs. Governor Sanong and Fourth Region Police Commander Pol Lt-Gen Linphit Satchaphan tried to pursuade the protesters to leave the scene but were also stoned. Policemen appeared reluctant to take tough action against the crowd in front of the hotel, although some reportedly fired their guns into the air to intimidate the mob.

Most of the province's 150-strong police were posted at the Phuket Merlin and a small number were posted at the tantalum plant, about four kilometres away. The rioters reportedly scaled the wall into the compound of the 73-rai plant and soaked buildings with petrol before setting them on fire. The fate of about 60 employees inside the plant at the time of the raid was unkown as reporters attempting to enter the facility were attacked and threatened by the rioters. Reporters' cars were hit and damaged while a number of female reporters were roughly searched and had their belongings and cameras taken away. As the fires erupted, another group of rioters went to the provincial fire station and blocked the exit routes.

At about 6 p.m., a number of rioters commandeered passing trucks to attack local banks with shares in Thailand Tantalum Industry Corporation Ltd, which is the owner of the tantalum plant. The attackers then smashed glass panes in front of the Bangkok Bank, the Siam Commercial Bank and the Laem Thong Bank offices.

The controversy over the plant has grown increasingly emotional amid charges the plant was dangerous and rumours that corruption was involved in the initial approval for the plant. Thailand is the source of 30-40 percent of the world supply of tantalum, a heat resistant metal which is used in the manufacture of jet engines, computer components and weapon warheads. Most of the country's unrefined tantalite ore was supplied to plants in the United States. The new plant was backed by the World Bank. It was constructed with technology from Germany and was expected to allow Thailand to refine its own tantalum and sell it directly to users at higher prices.

Government Issues Statement

[Text] Government statement: On Monday, 23 June 1986, Industry Minister Chirayu Itsarangkun na Ayutthaya and his party -- comprising deans of Mahidon University's schools of public health, human resource and environment, and the director of Chulalongkon University's Institute of Environmental Research -- went to Phuket Province to hear the Phuket people's opinions and follow up on developments concerning the tantalum plant, as requested by 26 representatives of the people in Phuket Province who called on the prime minister at Government House on Friday 23 June 1986 [as heard] to ask the government to close the plant by 2 July 1986. Chirayu Itsarangkun na Ayutthaya thus made the trip to the province at the request of the representatives of the people who oppose the setting up of the plant so as to allow the people in the province to express their views and show the government's concern over the issue.

At Phuket airport and the monument of heroines Thepkasattri and Sisunthon, groups of people demonstrated hostility toward the industry minister's party. The situation was further aggravated when thousands of people attempted to block and hurl stones at the minister's car. However, the industry minister and his party proceeded to meet with the people at a public auditorium as schudled but were unable to get inside the compound as the mobs moved from the monument to the meeting place. After consulations with provincial authorities, it was agreed that representatives of the demonstrators would be invited to meet with the industry minister and provincial governor. The meeting took place at about 1400 hours. The industry minister told them that the government is doing everything it can to solve the problem and give an answer to Phuket's people by 2 July and that the plant has been requested to halt all operations -- ongoing construction, trial operations, and the shipping of chemicals to the province. The plant management has already compiled with the request. Therefore, there is no danger to the people in the province.

While the industry minister and Phuket provincial governor were trying to give their explanation to the people, violence -- such as vandalism and the burning of the plant -- took place and appeared likely to spread to other parts of the province. Consequently, the government declared a state of emergency in the province and appointed officials to control the situation. Officials of all government agencies are not trying to bring the situation back to normal as soon as possible.

The public is hereby informed.

The Prime Minister's Office.

Prem Comments on Disturbances

BK240730 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 0530 GMT 24 Jun 86

[Text] Regarding the disturbance of peace in Phuket Province, Prime Minister General Prem Tinsulanon told newsmen before attending the cabinet meeting this morning at Government House that the government must treat the matter according to the law. He said:

[Begin Prem recording] We never thought that the incident in Phuket would occur, and it should not have happened. In fact, everyone concerned had discussed the matter with understanding. We had always been proud that cooperation based on good reasoning could always been achieved. The Phuket matter was always open to discussion. Chirayu went to Phuket to tell the people about what we could do for them. I outlined this policy to him -- that the desires of Phuket's people, although not really factors for consideration of the industrial project, must be taken into consideration as well. We tried to respond fairly and justly to the desires of all the people so that the hazards that Phuket's people were concerned about would not happen. Chirayu went to Phuket to tell the people about this. I still feel that majority of Phuket's people, including Phuket authorities and other groups, such as the village and tambon chiefs opposed to the project, were ready to listen to Chirayu. We wanted a meeting there to discuss the matter and bring it up for reconsideration to see how we can help. But things did not turn out as we hoped, just the opposite.

I want to reiterate that the majority of the people in Phuket understood the issue. Indeed, the incident already occurred, but I do not think the majority of Phuket people created the problems. There must be a group of people, who they are is now under investigation.

I want to say that I regret that this incident occurred. We did not anticipate it because the Phuket people's opposition to date had been orderly. I even praised them for the way they carried out their opposition -- they would tell us what they did not want -- and we would listen to them to see what we could do to help both sides involved. I even told instructors at Si Nakharin University that the Phuket people were nice because they did not resort to violence when faced with problems, they merely let it be known what they did not want and returned home, which was good. But what happened yesterday was not good. What happened at the beginning at the monument was not good. This is why I say I regret what happened.

The situation can be said to have returned to normal. People have returned to their homes. What we must do next is maintain the sanctity of the law. Those who misbehaved will have to be dealty with to maintain the sanctity of the law. [end recording]

Security Forces Patrol Phuket

[Text] Bangkok, June 24 (AFP) -- Police and soldiers patrolled the usually tranquil resort isle of Phuket on Tuesday, as officials blamed outside agitators for fueling the riots Monday in protest against an intrusion of heavy industry. Calm returned to the famed tourist paradise in southern Thailand where some 800 additional police and 200 soldiers were dispatched, officials said. A state of emergency was proclaimed and an overnight curfew imposed. Two police officers were hurt and 30 demonstrators arrested in the violence which flared throughout the day over the presence of a new plant to extract space-age tantalum ore, authorities said.

An estimated 100,000 people took part in the protest with a section of them breaking off later to set fire to the plant and attack a luxury hotel and the town hall. The visiting minister of industry was jostled and booed. The provincial authorities refused to say when the state of emergency would be lifted and the island removed from army control. Armed forces commander-in-chief Chawalit Yongchaiyut made an on-site inspection on Tuesday.

Interior Minister Sitthi Chirarot said in Bangkok that "certain elements from outside Phuket were partially responsible for the riots" that overwhelmed the 200-strong local police force. Mr. Sitthi gave no details but Bangkok newspapers reported that two of the demonstators arrested had confessed they were paid to create trouble during the mass rally.

The protests were sparked by the arrival of Industry Ministry Chirayu Itsarangkun to investigate ecological arguments against the nearly completed plant for extracting tantalum ore from tin slag. Opponents says the process to extract tantalum, a precious metal used in the aeronautics and armaments industries, employs acids that could harm the environment on the island of 460,000 people. They say that operation of the plant could jeopardise the tourism that is the main source of revenue for Phuket, known for its sandy white beaches, palms and sparkling sea.

Several officials said the violence -- which involved several hundred people, according to some accounts -- appeared to have been organised. Nevertheless, observers said, the size of the protest was unprecedented in Thailand.

Mana Chotham, head of the Phuket Tourist Association, said by telephone that 50 clients were evacuated from one of the major hotels in the town of Phuket while demonstrators were trying to set it ablaze. But he said that foreign tourists, who virtually all stay in the beachside hotels, had not been caught up in the events in the town and near the plant in the island's interior. There was no restriction on the flow of people between Phuket and mainland Thailand. Air links functioned normally. Sources said that Phuket merchants met Tuesday to discuss the possible consequences of the riots, during which at least eight Thai journalists were reportedly assaulted.

EDITORIAL OUTLINES MEDIA DUTIES ON PRESS DAY

[NHAN DAN 21 June editorial: "Glorious Responsibility"]

[Text] Today, 21 June, is Vietnam's Press Day and the 61st anniversary of the NHANH NIEN paper, the first revolutionary paper of our country that was established and operated by President Ho Chi Minh. Our press workers and people should remember, be grateful to, and follow the examples of respected and beloved Uncle Ho, the great leader of our working class and nation, a great Vietnamese press worker, and the great founder and teacher of the revolutionary press in our country.

The birth of proletarian press was closely associated with the founding process of our party and this glorious tradition has been tested and strongly developed through the various stages of the revolutionary struggle. Under the party leadership, the revolutionary press in our country has developed with every passing day and has made definite contributions to the revolutionary cause of our people and to the glorious undertaking of the vanguard press around the world.

Press Day urges our press workers to learn from President Ho Chi Minh's ethics and journalism, develop the fine traditions of the Vietnamese revolutionary press, and surge forward to fulfill the tasks of the new revolutionary stage. The press and other mass information media have assumed an increasing important role, and are the assault forces on the ideological front, designed to make propaganda and to motivate, organize, and educate the people in the struggle to carry out the two strategic tasks of building socialism and firmly defending the socialist fatherland. The press is duty bound to thoroughly understand the party and state policies and lines, be very realistic, and truthfully reflect life along with its achievements, difficulties and contradictions, and the good examples and experiences of various individuals and advanced units.

The press must be alert in citing what is new, progressive, and positive, and be courageous in the struggle against mistakes, backwardness, sluggishness, and all other negative manifestations. The press must direct public opinion, and the intelligence and energy of all the people, into a movement for revolutionary acts to build and defend the country. The press must profoundly analyze all domestic and foreign events and socioeconomic phenomena; build new men and healthy life; promote the working people's collective mastery, and put forth constructive petitions on many social issues.

With their vivid creativity, alertness, and sense of responsibility and with their simple, easy-to-understand, and heartfelt writings, the contingent of press workers help advance society and the revolution. Our press workers must also participate in the daily and hourly struggle against the political, ideological, and psychological warfare conducted by the imperialists, expansionists, and other reactionaries in order to help defend our revolutionary gains and protect the socialist community and all the progressive and peace movements in the world.

The party's character, popularity, militancy, loyalty, and persuasiveness must be the principles of the party press. The press and other mass information media have not fully met the above-mentioned requirements and still have shortcomings. The quality and effectiveness of the press work remains low.

The struggle to implement the party Central Committee's eighth plenum resolution on eliminating the system of bureaucratic centralism and subsidy-based management and shifting to socialist economic accounting and business, and many other important resolutions of the party on accelerating production, practicing thrift, and improving distribution and circulation along with the struggle to fulfill the 1986 socioeconomic plan, the drive of self-critisism and criticism, and the conduct of party congresses at various echelons in preparation for the sixth national party congress constitute the burning issues in the information, propaganda, and educational tasks of the press.

Following respected and beloved Uncle Ho's examples and being well aware of their glorious responsibility, our press workers are forging in the struggle to enhance the quality and effectiveness of their work, score outstanding achievements to greet the sixth national party congress, and make realistic contributions to building socialism and defending the socialist fatherland.

ARROYO CALLS U.S. AID 'RENTAL MONEY' FOR BASES

[Text] Manila, June 24 (AFP) -- U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz will be simply handling over rent for two U.S. bases here, not offering any new aid to the Philippines, when he signs 200 million dollar economic aid package here this week, Philippine officials said. Mr Shultz arrives here later Tuesday and will be signing the 200 million dollar package under the Economic Support Fund (ESF) with Philippine Vice President Salvador Laurel Wednesday, a U.S. spokesman said here.

But "before we react with joy like jumping chimpanzees, we should know that what Secretary Shultz is bringing is rental money for the payment of the two bases," a palace spokesman quoted presidential executive secretary Joker Arroyo as saying. Under a 1983 agreement with the government of deposed President Ferdinand Marcos, Washington pledged to provide 900 million dollars in military and economic aid to Manila from fiscal 1985-89, in return for maintaining the Clark Air Base and Subic Naval Base near Manila.

The U.S. Embassy here said the 200 million dollar package comprised 119.6 million dollars allocated for 1986, plus about 80 million dollars due earlier but not yet discussed. The aid had been delayed as the United States pressured Mr Marcos for economic and military reforms.

The Philippines may receive some new aid this week, however, as European Economic Community Commissioner Claude Cheysson of France is expected to bring an aid offer with him, diplomatic sources here said, although no figures were immediately available. Both Mr Shultz and Mr Cheysson will be in Manila for talks between foreign ministers of the six-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and key developed trading partners. The others are Australia, Canada, Japan, and New Zealand.

COMMUNIST ENVOY DENIES CEASE-FIRE TALKS UNDERWAY

[Text] Manila, June 24 (AFP) -- Top Philippine communists are seeking a coalition government with President Corazon Aquino, but deny that ceasefire negotiations are now underway, the BUSINESS DAY newspaper said here Tuesday. President Corazon Aquino said Friday the talks were underway aimed at a short-term ceasefire and an eventual poltical solution to the 17-year-old communist New People's Army (NPA) rebellion that has claimed thousands of lives. But the daily quoted communist negotiator Satur Ocampo as saying in an interview: "The government has not told us officially who its emissary is. How can the talks be underway? All we know at the moment is that a cabinet minister will serve as emissary."

If the talks went ahead, the insurgents might seek a political settlement in the form of power-sharing with the Aquino government. They would have to have minority representation "because the Aquino government is in place. But for the present, we are looking for some way out of the impasse," the paper quoted top communist leaders as saying.

"President Aquino has already stated that she will not have communists in her government. ...but we believe that if we are able to lay down the basis why it is a necessary solution to the problem, it will be understood in a different light."

The rebels also foresee a "coordinated relationship" between a reformed armed forces and the 16,500-strong NPA, or "integrating it as a group," the daily said.

BUSINESS DAY columnist Ninez Cacho Olivares said she conducted the interview Friday and Saturday somewhere in the Bicol region southeast of Manila. Antonio Zumel and Jose Luneta, reportedly the top two of the communist-led National Democratic Front (NDF), were also present.

Meanwhile, General Fidel Ramos has said violent clashes between the Philippine armed forces and Communist guerrillas have declined but casualties remained high, press reports here said Tuesday. "The first contact has been made and right now, I believe both parties are negotiating about positions, namely safe conduct guarantees and others," Manila newspapers quoted the armed forces chief as saying.

Gen. Ramos reportedly said an average of nine people, equally divided among security troops, the NPA and civilians, were killed daily in the past few weeks. He described the situation as a "temporary semi-lull." The military's current "defensive stance is in line with the reconciliation thrust of President Aquino and we intend to maintain this until she orders otherwise," he added. Military spokesmen could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

(Meanwhile in the central city of Cebu, provincial NDF leaders said they have declared a slowdown on armed operations in line with their "critical support" for the Aquino government. "We have been holding back our horses," Tomas Magtanggol, a communist spokesman said Monday in an interview with the Cebu press. Rafael Flores, an NDF Cebu spokesman, also denied local reports that the Cebu rebels were holding local-level talks towards amnesty and surrender. He confirmed that "liaisons" were being maintained with Cebu Archbishop Richardo Cardinal Vidal, but explained that all negotiations for a ceasefire with the Aquino government were "centralized" on the main island of Luzon. "It is the policy of the NDF not to conduct negotiations on the local level," he added. The powerful Roman Catholic Church has had other local-level talks with provincial NPA commands. Bishop Antonio Fortich is known to be conducting peace talks with rebels in the nearby island of Negros.)

(In another development Tuesday, Australian Foreign Minister Bill Hayden reportedly said his country was closely watching the ceasefire talks between the government and communist guerrillas. The state-run PHILIPPINE NEWS AGENCY (PNA) quoted Mr Hayden as saying in Cebu that Canberra hoped the government will be able to bring the rebels back into the mainstream of Philippine society. Mr Hayden, who arrived in Manila Monday, was in the central Philippines to review the economic situation in the region and to visit Australian aid projects there.)

NPA FORCES SEIZE MILITARY CAMP IN NEGROS

[Text] Bacolod, Philippines, June 20 (AFP) -- At least three people were killed and some 20 injured in clashes Friday after communist rebels seized a military camp at Hinobaan, military officials and eyewitnesses said. All but one of the reported casualties were soldiers. Rebel losses could not be immediately determined.

Military helicopters were seen shuttling between Bacolod and Hinobaan, a mining town located on southern Negros island some 580 kilometers (350 miles) south of Manila.

Military officials said two soldiers and a civilian were killed when a borrowed vehicle they were riding in ran over a land mine placed by the guerillas some 10 kilometers (six miles) from the detachment.

Colonel George Moleta, commander of the detachment seized by the communist New People's Army (NPA) in an early-morning attack, said 80 guerillas took part in the operation, correcting earlier reports that 300 rebels were involved. The takeover itself was bloodless, but clashes followed as reinforcements faced a blocking force put up by the rebels. A radio reporter broadcasting from a military position near the detachment counted at least 20 injured soldiers in live coverage monitored here.

The attack came two days after the NPA issued press statements here warning the military not to stage further operations in southern negros, a hotbed of the 17-year-old insurgency led by the NPA, armed wing of the communist party of the Philippines. The NPA command in the island is currently engaged in peace talks with bacolod Roman Catholic Bishop Antonio Fortich.

It was the first known major NPA attack since Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile confirmed Wednesday that informal talks between government emissaries and CPP representatives were under way in the main island of Luzon to pave the way for ceasefire talks.

Colonel Luis San Andres, the armed forces spokesman, told AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE in Manila they have not received any reports of the attack. President Corazon Aquino's Executive Secretary Joker Arroyo, the chief architect of the ceasefire talks, could not be reached for comment on the attack's impact on the peace talks.

NPA on Negros Clash

[Text] Bacolod, Philippines, June 23 (AFP) -- Communist guerrillas said Monday that an attack on a military camp last week was not meant to wreck ongoing talks with the government. New People's Army (NPA) rebels seized a military camp near the town of Hinobaan on the central island of Negros Friday, the same day President Corazon Aquino confirmed that ceasefire talks were under way between rebel and government emissaries. Two soldiers and a civilian were killed in the ensuing gunbattle for control of the camp, which the guerrillas later abandoned.

But the NPA Negros Command said in press statements received in this central city that the insurgents were "not out to torpedo the ceasefire and peace negotiations being undertaken " They claimed the raid was "a long-due punishment for the heinous crimes against the people" allegedly committed by the army company encamped in the area.

The attack triggered the evacuation to the town of some 4,000 people from outlying districts who feared being caught in the crossfire, Negros Oriental province Governor Daniel Lacson told reporters. Buses plying the Negros Occidental route continued to refuse to enter Hinobaan Monday and asked passengers bound for the town to disembark in Sipalay, some 20 kilometers (12 miles) away, witnesses said.

The military command here said the guerrillas had planted land mines along the road to Hinobaan to deter the advance of troop reinforcements.

FURTHER REPORTAGE ON CLASH OUTSIDE CAMPS

Marcos Supporters Disregarded Warnings

HK230459 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2300 GMT 22 Jun 86

[Text] Police let off smoke bombs and used truncheons and water cannons to disperse 2,000 stone throwing supporters of ousted President Ferdinand Marcos who blocked the road outside Camp Crame and Camp Aguinaldo yesterday [22 Jun]. Witnesses said at least one person suffered gunshot wounds while 3 were injured in the melee.

Marcos supporters began assembling outside Camp Crame and Camp Aguinaldo in the afternoon and disregarded policy warnings to leave the area. Some demonstrators commandeered buses and deflated their tires to block the busy highways. Marcos loyalists have held demonstrations regularly on Sundays to demand his return to the country.

Capcom To Investigate Incident

HK231137 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in Tagalog 1000 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] Many Marcos loyalists were injured when a Capcom [Capital Command] anti-riot squad supported by police twice attempted to disperse demonstations along EDSA [Epifanio De los Santos Avenue] between Camp Aguinaldo and Camp Crame. Police used teargas and truncheons and fired Armalites in dispersing the demonstrators. A radio reporter from DZXL was hit by a bullet from an Armalite while seeking cover behind a military car. Demonstrators retaliated by throwing stones, bottles and Molotov cocktails.

Meanwhile, soldiers guarding Camp Aguinaldo almost had a shoot out with police dispersing the demonstrators. Soldiers allegedly pointed their guns at the police who were pursuing Marcos loyalists demonstrators fleeing into the camp. Colonel Pedro Juachon, camp commander, explained that his men were merely trying to defend the camp.

Meanwhile, Capcom commander Brigadier General Ramon Montano said he would order an immediate investigation of the incident.

Marcos Loyalists on Incident

HK230615 Hong Kong AFP in English 0548 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 23 (AFP) -- Diehard supporters of the former president denounced Monday the violent dispersal of pro-Marcos demonstrators in front of the armed forces headquarters on Sunday. They also demanded the resignation of alleged communists from the cabinet.

Two people suffered minor gunshot wounds and 20 others were injured during the clash that erupted when some 10,000 Marcos loyalists demonstrated in support of Mr Enrile and paramilitary constabulary troops. Twelve people were arrested.

"We will not stop these protests until there will be resignations among these communists," Nemi de Pedro, an official of a pro-Marcos group, told AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE. He labelled the break-up of Sunday's protest as "crude."

He said the loyalists had no quarrel with Mrs Aquino but they considered her "too weak" to run the government.

Further on Enrile Remarks

HK240325 Manila MANILA BULLETIN in Engish 22 Jun 86 pp 1, 13

[Text] Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile advised "Marcos loyalists" yesterday to obey the law in the conduct of their rallies and demonstrations and to help in every way they can to contribute to national stability and calm.

In a meeting with the officers of the Ako'y Pilipino Movement (APM) and their legal advisers Rafael Recto and Fiscal Felizardo Lota at the Manila Intercontinental Hotel, Enrile told the group that he (Enrile) does not want to be drawn into partisan politics.

The defense chief added that he and the military intend to serve as a buffer zone between contending political forces to insure stability in the country.

"If the demonstrators are engaged in a lawful exercise of their rights and they can police their own ranks, the military and the police should stay away from demonstrations," Enrile said.

Enrile also asked the group to write a formal letter regarding their complaints against alleged abuses committed by the military and the police against their members so that his staff at the defense ministry can evaluate the complaints for appropriate action.

MILITARY TO ARREST UNAUTHORIZED DEMONSTRATORS

HK240455 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2300 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] The military vowed yesterday to arrest supporters of former President Ferdinand Marcos who gather for unauthorized rallies. The stiff new policy came 1 day after police fired teargas and bullets to disperse a demonstration by Marcos loyalists in Quezon City. Seven people were treated in hospital for injuries in Sunday's clash, including four who suffered gunshot wounds. Thirteen people were arrested.

The demonstration occurred on the same strip of highway where Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and armed forces chief Geneal Fidel Ramos launched the revolt that ousted Mr Marcos in February.

ANNUAL ASEAN MEETING CONCLUDES

[By Antonio Kamiya]

[Text] Manila, June 24 KYODO -- The Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) Tuesday approved an emergency oil-sharing scheme in a bid aimed at insulating the noncommunist regional bloc from the energy crises.

The agreement came at the end of a two-day conference of the foreign ministers from the six-member group, in which they renewed their call to Vietnam to pull its 140,000 troops out of Kampuchea and seek a political settlement between the warring parties there. ASEAN groups Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand and the Philippines.

In a joint communique issued at the end of the meeting, ASEAN also called on the developed world, particularly its six "dialogue partners" -- Japan, the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the European Community -- to lift restrictive trade measures and stabilize world commodity prices -- major foreign exchange earners for the region. The document also raised the question of trade friction with Japan, saying that the foreign ministers "expressed grave concern" over the trend of declining Japanese investments in ASEAN and the continuing structural imbalance in ASEAN-Japan trade.

This year's conference, the first major diplomatic event in Manila since Corazon Aquino became president last February, however, was aimed at injecting a sense of purpose into the 19-year-old regional organization.

"Our deliberations during the past two days reveal that the ASEAN spirit is alive and well", said Deputy Thai Foreign Minister Arun Phanuphong in his closing remarks Tuesday. Philippine Vice President and Foreign Minister Salvador Laurel also underscored harmony in his closing remarks as chairman of the conference, asserting that the group attained "unanimity in all points" raised during the conference. The upbeat remarks contrasted with the acid comment from Aquino in her keynote speech Monday in which she described ASEAN as a group still mired in "endless discussions on how to get it off the ground."

Aquino's call for greater economic cooperation within the region was materialized in two pacts signed Tuesday -- an umbrella agreement to cooperate in energy and related fields and a scheme to share oil supplies. The oil-sharing plan calls for the three oil producing ASEAN members -- Brunei, Indonesia and Malaysia -- to give top priority in selling petroleum to the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand -- the three oil importers -- in times of shortage, with the oil importers agreeing to buy from the oil-producing partners in times of glut. The two agreements "would ensure that (ASEAN'S) industrial development would remain unhampered by energy shortages," Laurel said.

As in previous years, Kampuchea was taken up extensively in the joint communique with the ASEAN foreign ministers expressing their "deep concern" on Vietnam's occupation of Kampuchea, now in its eighth year. ASEAN called for a comprehensive political settlement in Kampuchea and reiterated its support of an eight-point proposal put forth by the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea in March calling for a phased pullout of Vietnamese forces in a fresh bid to resolve the political impasse.

The proposal "offers a constructive framework for negotiations and addresses all aspects of the Kampuchean problem," the communique said. While Hanoi has already rejected the proposal, Singaporean Foreign Minister S. Dhanabalan said "we are waiting for Vietnam to respond."

The ASEAN foreign ministers reaffirmed their determination to promote a so-called "zone of peace, freedom and neutrality" in Southeast Asia, but admitted that the Kampuchean problem remains an obstacle to the ambitious concept. The concept "cannot be realized until the Kampuchean problem is settled," Indonesian Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja said at a news conference following the meeting.

Turning to economic issues -- the other major topic of discussion in the meeting -- the ASEAN foreign ministers decided that the group should tap its vast potential for regional economic cooperation. On international economic issues, the ASEAN group expressed "grave concern" over accelerating protectionist pressures in the developed countries against their manufactured goods as well as over depressed commodity prices. These topics are expected to be addressed in a series of talks the ASEAN foreign ministers will have with the six dialogue partners over the next two days.

In Tokyo, Foreign Ministry sources said Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe is expected to pledge Tokyo's continuing economic assistance to ASEAN during his talks with his ASEAN opposite numbers. Abe, who is facing crucial parliamentary elections in Japan, will arrive in Manila Wednesday for a brief one-day visit.

Japan is ASEAN's largest trading partner, but two-way trade declined to 31 billion dollars in 1985, down from 36 billion dollars the year before. ASEAN as a whole piled up an 8.9 billion dollar surplus with Japan in 1985, but the black ink came almost exclusively because of Japan's imports of crude and raw materials, and the group wants better access for ASEAN's manufactured and semi-manufactured products to the Japanese market. The share of Japan's overseas investment in ASEAN has also fallen in recent years. The group once absorbed nearly a third of Japan's foreign investment but the amount shrank to a mere 7.7 percent of the 12.2 billion dollars Japan invested overseas in 1985. Diplomatic sources here say the ASEAN foreign ministers are expected to press Japan for more investment during their talks with Abe.

Laurel of the Philippines, S. Dhanabalan of Singapore, and Arun Phanupong, deputy foreign affairs minister of Thailand.

Communique Condemns SRV

[By Miguel Rocha]

[Text] Manila, June 24 (PNA) -- The Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) today condemned Vietnam for its continued occupation of Kampuchea and urged other nations outside the regional bloc to continue pressuring the Soviet-backed Vietnam Government to withdraw its troops from the area.

In a joint communique at the close of the two-day 19th ASEAN foreign ministers meeting here, the regional grouping of six countries declared that Vietnam's military occupation of Kampuchea now on its eight year, poses a grave threat to the peace and stability not only of Southeast Asia but to the whole world. ASEAN urged Vietnam to confront the United Nations - recognized tripartite resistance group called the Coalition Government of Democratic Kampuchea (CGDK) in proximity talks to find a peaceful solution to the Kampuchean problem.

The foreign ministers of Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand, the countries which comprise ASEAN, deplored Vietnam's continued pursuit of a military solution to the Kampuchean problem saying this would only result in unnecessary loss of lives and destruction to property. The ASEAN foreign ministers reiterated their call for a durable political settlement in Kampuchea and in this context, reaffirmed ASEAN's appeal for the independence of Kampuchea and the achievements of national reconciliation in the country.

Vietnam's continued military operation in Kampuchea is causing massive dislocation of the Kampuchean people. The oppressive conditions inside Kampuchea, particularly the practice of compelling Kampuchean civilians to work in the war zones, have caused numerous casualties, the ASEAN ministers said. They also noted Vietnamese incursions into Thai territory where hundreds of thousands of Kampuchean refugees are sheltered in UN-supervised refugee camps.

Despite the absence of military targets along the Thai-Kampuchean border areas, Vietnamese troops continued mounting military operations against civilian camps in the border area, the most recent of which was in May, 1986, which resulted in deaths and casualties among innocent Kampuchean civilians and Thai villagers near the border. Vietnam's recent so-called annual partial withdrawal of its troops from Kampuchea, the ASEAN ministers said, was a "mere rotation intended to mislead the international community, the Kampuchean people and the Vietnamese people themselves."

The foreign ministers reaffirmed their support for the CGDK under the presidency of Samdech Norodom Sihanouk, whose continued leadership of the coalition is vital and crucial in the Kampuchean people's struggle to restore the independent, sovereign, neutral and non-aligned status of their nation.

The ASEAN foreign ministers also backed the CGDK's eight-point proposal for a political settlement to the problem saying the proposal offers a constructive framework for negotiations and addresses all aspects of the Kampuchean problem. Vietnam rejected the proposal leading the ASEAN members to view this as an illustration of continuing inflexibility in its position on the Kampuchean problem.

ABE ARRIVES IN MANILA FOR TALKS

[By Antonio Kamiya]

[Text] Manila, June 25 KYODO -- Japan's Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe flew into Manila Wednesday and immediately entered a series of talks aimed at leaving an imprint of his "creative diplomacy" in Southeast Asia. The short 24-hour trip culminates Abe's three-and-a-half-year career as Japan's top diplomat, and he intends to mark the occasion with an "Abe Doctrine" designed to spell out Tokyo's political and economic commitment to the region. Abe is here to attend a conference which the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) is holding for its "dialogue partners" of developed economies in the Pacific rim plus the European Community.

Abe's tightly packed schedule here Wednesday calls for separate meetings with President Corazon Aquino, her Vice President and Foreign Minister Salvador Laurel, U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz and Malaysian Foreign Minister Ahmad Rithauddeen. Rithauddeen is acting as the ASEAN coordinator with Japan. Six members of the ASEAN group are: Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand.

Abe, who took time out for this whirlwind tour from a busy election campaign in Japan, is expected to set out the "Abe Doctrine" in a speech he will deliver at a meeting with the six ASEAN foreign ministers Thursday before he flies home. The Manila trip is Abe's 39th overseas tour since becoming foreign minister in Novembver 1982, and he plans to use the occasion to highlight his "creative diplomacy" -- a search for a more positive role in Japan's external relations. The ASEAN-Japan meeting is part of a series of talks ASEAN is holding with its dialogue partners following its annual foreign ministerial conference, which ended Tuesday. Japanese diplomatic sources say Abe is expected to pledge continued economic assistance to the region and assistance to promote the flow of technology transfers.

In response to requests from ASEAN countries, the Japanese government is considering relief measures to lessen the growing burden of interest payments on yen-denominated credits as a result of a stronger yen. Abe is expected to face pressure from ASEAN to boost bilateral trade and correct what they feel is Japanese reluctance to buy manufactured and semi-manufactured goods from the region. The ASEAN foreign ministers signaled their displeasure Wednesday structural imbalance in Japan-ASEAN trade. ASEAN piled up nearly 9 billion dollars in trade surplus with Japan last year, but the surplus came exclusively through Japan's oil and raw material imports. The ASEAN members want Japan to buy more manufactured goods as part of their policy to reduce reliance on raw material exports.

DHANABALAN SPEAKS AGAINST CONSENSUS

[Text] Manila, June 23 (AFP) -- Singaport Foreign Minister Suppiah Dhanabalan suggested Monday that Southeast Asian nations should abandon their requirements of absolute consensus for economic decisions. "Innovation is not possible when consensus is based on the lowest common denominator," Mr. Dhanabalan told a meeting of foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) here. "Now that ASEAN has expanded to six members, we need all the more to consider seriously what we may call a 'six minus x principle," Mr. Dhanabalan said in his opening statement.

If some member countries were involved in a particular activity and the interests of other members were not harmed "then those who agree should be allowed to proceed." This would not divide ASEAN, but would be a way of "propelling ASEAN ahead into new heights of cooperation," because "members would then have the option of choosing the timing of their own involvement," he said.

Hitherto, ASEAN, which groups Singapore with the Philippines, Brunei, Indonesia, Thailand and Malaysia, had required full consensus for all decisions. But "bold measures and tough decisions are more likely to be taken if there is greater flexibility and tolerance in ASEAN's system of economic decision-making," Mr. Dhanabalan said.

He said that the high growth rate of ASEAN economies in the past and meant that "we are not particulary concerned with the lack of progress in intra-ASEAN economic cooperation. But current economic problems such as falling commodity prices and increased protectionism by developed countries created the need for more economic cooperation, he said.

At the same time, technological development had meant that "aboundant and relatively cheap labor no longer guarantees competitiveness in the world market." "We should not delude ourselves that the task of increasing economic cooperation will be an easy one, as member-countries have different economic interest," Mr. Dhanabalan said. He called for "a candid dialogue" on the issue.

On the Cambodia problem, Mr. Dhanabalan said that with ASEAN already backing an eight-point plan for a political solution, "I do not... see any need for ASEAN to make new proposals at this ministerial meeting."

EPA REPORTS MINUS GNP GROWTH IN FIRST QUARTER

[Text] Tokyo, June 24 Kyodo -- Dampened by slumping exports, Japan's gross national product (GNP) in the first quarter of 1986 declined 0.5 percent in real terms from the previous quarter for the first minus quarterly GNP growth in 11 years, the Economic Planning Agency (EPA) said in a preliminary report Tuesday. The figure translates into a 2.1 percent fall in annual terms, and is the first minus quarterly figure since the first quarter of 1975, when the GNP showed a 0.8 percent quarterly fall.

However, the annual GNP growth in fiscal 1985 ended last March stood at 4.2 percent in real terms from a year ago, unchanged from the government's earlier forecast. It compared with a 5.0 percent annual rise for the previous year, the agency said. In nominal terms, unadjusted for inflation, the GNP figure in the last fiscal year showed a 5.9 percent annual increase, up 0.2 percent from the government's forecast of 5.7 percent, EPA officials said.

Import prices declined on lower prices of primary goods and the higher value of the yen against the dollar but domestic commodity prices have not yet fully reflected the decline, which explains the 1.7 percent gap in the real and unadjusted figures for GNP growth in fiscal 1985, they said.

Itemwise, exports in the quarter fell a substantial 4.9 percent in real terms from the previous quarter, largely due to slow shipments of automobiles, the officials said. Because of Japan's voluntary export restraint, automobile exports were high in the April-June period but the quota petered out in the last quarter of the fiscal year, they said.

Personal spending rose 0.7 percent from the previous quarter on stabilized commodity prices. Private housing investment increased 2.5 percent. The increase in private capital investment shrank to 0.3 percent from 2.5 percent in the previous quarter and its future trend should be watched carefully, the officials said. Private inventories fell 3.7 percent from the previous quarter, compared with a 4.0 percent rise for the last quarter of 1985, as distributors' stocks which had piled up in the October-December quarter sold well, they said.

"Personal spending and housing investment will continue their upswing in the April-June period and the GNP will not further decline in the next quarter," one official predicted. Japan's GNP in nominal terms stood at 321,065 billion yen in the last fiscal year.

Itemwise, private capital investment scored real growth of 12.6 percent from the previous year, but if the newly privatized Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corp. (NTT) and Japan Tobacco Inc., are excluded, the figure is around 9 percent, the officials said. Private housing investment rose 3.7 percent and private spending advanced 2.7 percent. However, exports in fiscal 1985 only rose 2.2 percent in real terms from a year earlier, down sharply from a 15.8 percent surge for the previous fiscal year.

Of the 4.2 percent real GNP growth rate for fiscal 1985, the domestic sector accounted for 3.5 percent and the external sector 0.7 percent. Japan's dependence on domestic demand rose from fiscal 1984, when domestic demand accounted for 3.7 percent and external demand 1.3 percent, realizing the 5.0 percent real growth in GNP.

SUMITA RULES OUT ANOTHER DISCOUNT RATE CUT

[Text] Nagoya, June 25 KUODO -- Bank of Japan Governor Satoshi Sumita Wednesday ruled out the possibility of making a fourth cut of the year in the official discount rate to perk up the economy following Tuesday's report of an unusual 0.5 percent decline in the country's gross national product in the first three months of 1986 -- the first negative quarterly growth in 11 years. Sumita told reporters during his visit to Nagoya that he does not believe the Japanese economy will continue to deteriorate, judging from the fact that consumer spending and capital investment in plant and equipment by non-manufacturing sector have remained firm.

The central banker said the bank carried out the previous three cuts in the official discount rate in anticipation of the emerging economic slump and that the pump-pricing effects of these lower interest rates will surface from now on. Citing the current relaxed money supply condition, Sumita stressed the need to keep a "lookout" -- meaning for inflation -- in the wake of a recent upsurge in land prices, although the money supply has not yet reached a level of excess liquidity.

Sumita expressed hope that the stable fluctuation of the yen-dollar exchange rate in recent weeks will be maintained. The dollar has remained in a narrow trading range of 166-168 yen in the past few weeks.

STEPS TAKEN TO REDUCE TRADE IMBALANCE WITH PRC

OW210553 Tokyo KYODO in English 0530 GMT 21 Jun 86

[Text] Tokyo, June 21 Kyodo -- China and Japan took two steps toward reducing China's 6 billion dollar trade deficit with Japan in talks held here this week. Sources at the Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI) said Saturday that twin organizations aimed at boosting Chinese exports to Japan have been set up in the two countries.

In the other related move, Japan will set up a "Japan-China Trade Expansion Council" to deal with the problem on a more general basis, the sources said.

The moves were finalized at talks held here Friday between MITI Minister Michio Watanabe and Ji Shia, visiting chairman of the China Council for Promotion of International Trade, they said.

The twin groups, established simultaneously in Tokyo and Beijing, will specifically study joint development of Chinese mineral and agricultural resources, with a view to exporting to Japan. The groups will also consider if China's machinery, textile and other manufacturing industries might offer products better suiting Japanese needs, the MITI sources said.

Eishiro Saito, chairman of the Federation of Economic Organizations (Keidanren), will lead the Japanese importing group, while Ji himself will head the Chinese exporting group, they said.

The groups were set up in response to a request made by Chinese strongman Deng Xiaoping to a visiting Japanese trade delegation last December. Among members of the Japanese group are the heads of some 50 China-related firms, including steelmakers, home electric appliance and nonferrous metal producers, and electric power operations, plus leaders of government corporations and banks, the sources said.

In the other move, Komatsu Chairman Ryoichi Kawai was named to lead the planned Japan-China trade expansion council, which will include over 100 trading houses, transport firms and electric appliance makers, they said. That group will be divided into seven or eight sections, among them textiles and nonferrous metals, for individual consultations on export promotion with Chinese firms, they explained. Kawai led a Japanese trade delegation to China late last month.

More PRC Investments Urged

[Text] Osaka, June 24 KYODO -- A senior Chinese official Tuesday asked Japan to expand its investments in China while stressing that its open-market policy will not change. Jia Shi, head of the China Council for Promotion of International Trade, who is leading a trade mission to Japan, made the request at a meeting with Hosai Hyuga, chairman of the Kansai Economic Federation, and other business leaders in western Japan.

He expressed the strong hope that Japan will increase its imports from China to rectify the bilateral trade imbalance, which was 6 billion dollars in Japan's favor last year. "We want to correct the imbalance through active expansion of trade," Jia said. He promised to make greater efforts to promote exports to Japan by improving the quality of products, establishing a system of stable supply and construction of production bases.

Hyuga said business leaders in western Japan will send a mission to China in September in an effort to help ease the trade imbalance between the two countries.

NAKASONE ON TALKS WITH U.S.; TEXTBOOK ISSUE

OW230515 Tokyo KYODO in English 0510 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] Showa, Yamanashi Pref., June 23 KYODO -- Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone said Monday he plans to hold working-level talks with the U.S. on structural adjustments to the Japanese economy after the July 6 elections of both houses of the Diet. Nakasone, here on a stumping tour for the double elections, indicated that negotiations are now taking place with a view to holding the talks in late July following agreement reached in his meeting with President Ronald Reagan when he visited the U.S. in April.

Nakasone said Japan will suggest cooperation with the U.S. to help cut its trade deficit with Japan, increase its exports and adjust yen-dollar exchange rates. He said Japan will steadily implement its economic structural adjustment based on a report compiled in April by an advisory panel. Nakasone also said he believes the yen's sharp appreciation will have a remarkable effect on Japan's trade surplus between now and the autumn.

On a controversial high school history textbook problem under fire by China and other Asian countries for its accounts of Japan's military activities before and during World War II. Nakasone said the textbook is now undergoing a final review prior to its authorization. The textbook, compiled by a conservative group called the "National Council to Protect Japan," is expected after its review to get international understanding, Nakasone said.

Referring to the expriation of his term as president of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party, Nakasone denied he dissolved the lower house for a general election in a bid to achieve a third two-year term as leader, which is currently banned by party rules.

Questioned about his avowed aim to achieve a "settlement of accounts" in postwar Japanese politics, Nakasone said he means to "overhaul" the nation through various reforms to enable it to advance toward the 21st century.

ASIA SEES MORE STABLE TIES POST-NAKASONE

[Text] Tokyo, June 24 KYODO -- If the Japanese July 6 double parliamentary election brings about an end to the Nakasone era, it could result in a more stable relationship between Japan and the East and Southeast Asian region, according to Asian diplomatic sources here. With Japan now embarking on a more active role internationally, any new leader would have to be active in foreign policy, as Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone has been, they said.

Most countries in Asia complain that Nakasone has failed to meet their expectations. "We feel he considered American affairs more important than problems of the developing world," said a senior diplomat from a member of ASEAN (the Association of Southeast Asian Nations) which groups Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia, Singapore, the Philippines and Brunei.

A new leader, especially if it is Shintaro Abe, the present foreign minister who is well known in Asia, could mean a more balanced, if perhaps quieter approach, according to the diplomat, who asked not to be named. Serving as foreign minister since November 1982, Abe has promoted what he calls "creative diplomacy" and made much of Asian countries. The "Abe Doctrine" which he delivers in Manila at an ASEAN foreign ministers' meeting will elevate his position among them even more. "We feel that this special pronouncement is a move initiated by Abe himself, even though he is following Nakasone's policy of getting Japan to open up," said another ASEAN official.

Though not expected to bring about wonders, the "Abe Doctrine" is an indication that the ASEAN has become an important region to Japan, he explained. Outlining recent Asian dissappointments over Nakasone, the diplomat said that the May Tokyo summit of the seven main industrial democracies brought no concrete measures to help their badly hit economies.

Nakasone, as leader of the only Asian nation in the advanced world, failed to persuade Western leaders at the summmit to find ways to improve price for Asian primary products or to end the protectionist sentiment now prevalent among the rich countries that is affecting their export markets, he said. "Japan was more preoccupied with international terrorism and the Chernobyl incident," he added.

Yet the Japanese prime minister, with his flair for foreign affairs, has taken positive steps to remedy Asian problems. His policy that Japan must open its markets to ease its trade surplus goes beyond vague promises. Under his leadership Asian imports have been given a boost in the form of lower tariffs and there have been more import promotion events such as fairs as well as encouragement by the government for more Japanese investment in ASEAN, say Asian economic officials.

The "Maekawa Report," an advisory panel's plan for restructuring the economy which Nakasone last month adopted as government policy, and which recommended an increase in overseas aid, singling out the ASEAN countries for specific benefits, was also welcomed by Asian officials.

Nakasone's positive approach to foreign policy, say Asian lobbyists, has brought about historic visits to Japan by foreign leaders and corresponding visits overseas by Nakasone and his cabinet ministers. The visit of South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan to Tokyo in 1984, in return for Nakasone's Seoul visit in 1983, was historic becaue it was the first such exchange since World War II, and put relations between the two countries on a firmer footing.

His official visits to India and Pakistan in 1984 were the first made by a Japanese leader in more than 10 years, and opened up for Japan a wider area for personal contacts in Asia, extending beyond its immediate neighbors. His initiative brought a return visit to Japan by Indian Prime Minster Rajiv Ghandhi. Both Japanese and Indian industrialists say this has brought about a better business relationship between the two countries.

Under Nakasone, steps to develop Japan-China relations have also been heightened. Technical, economic and cultural exchanges have been increased between them. "But his efforts have not proved he is a genuine friend," said one Chinese political commentator. Although friendship between the two nations has steadily improved under Nakasone's leadership, his philosophy on political and security matters has awakened suspicions that a revival of militarism in Japan is not far from his mind, the Chinese explained.

The new high school history textbook currently arousing controversy, which has yet to be finally approved by the Education Ministry, has been criticized by China and South Korea as containing distortions of the facts about Japanese military actions against them before the during World War II.

Nakasone's official visit last August to Yasukuni Shrine in Tokyo, which is dedicated to Japanese war dead and at which convicted World War II war criminals are also enshrined, drew such anatagonism from China that he canceled a second planned visit. On the other hand, Abe as foreign minister has particularly stressed conciliation. "When anti-Japan and anti-Nakasone slogans were being shouted by students on the streets of China it was Abe who flew over and met with his Chinese counterpart Wu Xueqian," said the Chinese source.

The ruling Liberal-Democratic Party's foreign policy will not doubt dominate Japan's relations with its Asian neighbors in the future irrespective of whether a new prime minister emerges, say Asian political analysts. But with the recent appreciation of the yen and Japan's growing trade surplus things will have to change. Japan can no longer ignore the importance of playing a role which is fair to every part of the world, they say.

INTERMINISTRY INTELLIGENCE GROUP PLANNED

[Text] Tokyo, Jun 21 KYODO -- The government will establish a new interministry staff of intelligence officers to study military and security development at home and abroad, officials said Saturday. They said the new group will be inaugurated July 1 when the secretariat of the prime minister's office will be reorganized.

The group will bring together intelligence experts from the Foreign Ministry, the National Police Agency, the Public Security Agency and the Defense Agency. It plans to hold a meeting every month and the first session will be held in early July with Deputy Cabinet Secretary Shoichi Fujimori acting as chairman.

The recent rocket attack in Jakarta following the Tokyo summit of Western industrialized nations and ways to cope with such violent actions by radicals will be discussed at the session the officials said. The Jakarta incident was the first such attack by the radical Japanese Red Army in about nine years -- since the hijacking of a Japan Air Lines plane in Dacca, Bangladesh, in September 1977.

The new intelligence organization is designed to eliminate sectional barriers between government ministries in promoting intelligence activities, the officials said. Establishment of an expert staff to cope with emergencies was proposed in a recommendation made by a council to promote administrative reforms last July.

IAEA INSPECTORS CONTAMINATED DURING TOUR

[Text] Tokyo, June 23 KYODO -- Twelve people, including a U.S. inspector of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), were exposed to plutonium, the deadly nuclear material, at a facility of Japan's Power Reactor and Nuclear Fuel Development Corp. Monday morning, a corporation spokesman said. But the spokesman added that the levels of radiation the 12 people received were not high enough to cause any health problems.

The corporation withheld the identities of the American, another inspector from Japan's Science and Technology Agency and 10 Japanese subcontracted workers. The 12 people were exposed to plutonium while sealing cans which contained the nuclear material. They found plutonium leading from one of the stainless steel cans in the storage room of the corporation's plant at Tokaimura, northeast of Tokyo. The can is 10 centimeters tall and five centimeters in diameter.

IAEA experts inspect the facility once every two weeks to prevent plutonium, the major material used in producing nuclear bombs, from being used for military purposes. The accident occurred at 11:30 a.m. and the 12 people were not using masks at the time because they are not normally required to do so in the storage room, the spokesman for the Tokyo-based corporation said.

He said readings of plutonium absorbed by the 12 people reached up to 170 picocusries. But this is much lower than the maximum permissible level of plutonium radiation et by the International Commission on Radiological Protection (ICRP), the spokesman added. Corporation officials said they sealed off the storage room and that plutonium did not leak out of the facility.

The IAEA was founded in 1957 in Vienna as an autonomous intergovernmental agency.

Caused by Damaged Covers

OW250759 Tokyo KYODO in English 0736 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Text] Tokyo, June 25 KYODO -- A plutonium leak which affected 12 people Monday at Tokaimura was found to have been caused by fissures in vinyl covers which sealed a can containing plutonium oxide, the Power Reactor and Nuclear Fuel Development Corporation said Wednesday. The corporation suspects the vinyl covers developed fissures when they were removed for inspection due to effect of heat and radiation emitted by plutonium.

The 12 people including a U.S. inspector sent by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) were exposed to plutonium in the corporations storeroom at Tokaimura, Ibaraki Prefecture. The stainless can containing 2.6 kilograms of plutonium oxide was covered and sealed by three vinyl covers and cracks up to 10 centimeters long were found in two of the covers, which hardended and stuck to the can, the corporation said.

The accident raised the possibility of the corporation's neglect in safety control on plutonium. The corporation said the life of such vinyl covers is five years under its safety standard but the covers in questions have been used for only one and a half years. The corporation will examine all other cans containing plutonium oxide in the storeroom at the Tokaimura plant.

NEW ENVOYS TO HUNGARY, TURKEY NAMED

Mogi, 62, has been ambassador to Panama since March 1982, after serving as embassy minister in Bonn and consul general in Toronto.

Wachi, 60, has been envoy to Hungary since January 1983, after serving as consul general in Karachi and ambassador to Nigeria.

The former ambassador to Turkey, Sugihara, is returning to Tokyo.

KPA PROPOSAL SEEN AS STEP TO SAVE NATION

SK250339 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0930 GMT 24 Jun 86

[Unattributed talk: "A Measure for National Salvation To Remove the Danger of War and Open the Road of Peace and Peaceful Reunification"]

[Text] The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The state of military confrontation between the North and South and the strained situation should be, above all, removed to improve the relations between the North and South of Korea and promote the peaceful reunification of Korea.

As has already been reported, the KPA Supreme Command proposed that talks among persons in military authority involving the DPRK minister of the People's Armed Forces, the commander-in-chief of the UN Forces in South Korea, and the South Koran defense minister, and took the measure of sending letters, containing concrete overtures, to the other side in connection with the proposal.

The DPRK minister of the People's Armed Forces sent a letter, containing the proposal to discontinue military exercises and arms buildup -- a direct cause of the aggravation of tension and the danger of war -- the proposal to reduce military forces and armaments, and the proposal to abide by the Korean Armistice Agreement as demanded by its original text. In addition, it emphasized to both the commander-in-chief of the UN Forces, and the South Korean minister the position of mutual discussions of any questions raised if they help to ease the tension on the Korean peninsula.

Our new proposal of peace has become an epochal nation-saving measure to remove the danger of war from Korea and open the door to peace and peaceful reunification. The reason is, above all, that our proposal of peace is the most reasonable way for realizing alleviation of military tensions at present.

As everyone knows, the armed forces confronting each other over the Military Demarcation Line have reached the highest number since the truce. Mutual distrust and military confrontation caused by this are entering the most serious phase. The U.S. troops in South Korea and the South Korean Army are assuming a higher combat-ready posture than ever before on all fronts along the Military Demarcation Line so that they can launch a war at any moment. A precarious situation, in which the spark of war can be touched off by even a slight accident, is being created in the frontal area where a huge number of armed forces of the North and South confront each other in an acute manner.

War is not a problem of tomorrow, but an imminent danger of today on the Korean peninsula. There is no doubt that, if war breaks out in Korea, it will not only plunge all of Korea into nuclear calamity, but will also drive Asia into a war disaster and destroy world peace.

The strained situation on the Korean peninsula should be eased promptly and war should be averted at any cost. Our people in the North and South should live peacefully and our country should certainly be reunified in a peaceful way. This is the unanimous desire of the Korean people who suffered from immeasurable disaster in the 3-year war and have lived amid the pain of national division and the constant danger of war for 40 years.

Easing the intensely strained situation and removing the danger of war in Korea has become the key question whose solution can no longer be delayed. A measure for alleviation of tension must certainly be adopted in the military field to solve this acute question. To this end, those who have real military power in the North and South should sit at the same table and hold sincere talks. Only then can practical measures to ease the strained situation and remove the danger of war be taken.

Proceeding from this, the KPA Supreme Command set forth a new epochal peace proposal to ease the strained situation in Korea. As clearly recognized through the letters of the DPRK minister of the People's Armed Forces, all questions that we intend to discuss at talks among persons in military authority are directly connected with the causes of aggravating tension and increasing the danger of war in Korea.

Therefore, if such questions are solved through talks among persons in military authority, an epochal phase can be opened in removing the strained situation and the danger of war in Korea. This graphically shows that our new peaceful proposal becomes an important nation-saving measure to ease tension and to remove the danger of war in Korea.

Another reason why our new peaceful initiative becomes an important nation-saving step is that it is an effective way to make it possible to restore the presently suspended North-South dialogue in various areas and turn from the atmosphere of mutual distrust to the road of peace and peaceful reunification.

As shown by historical experience, in an unstable situation ride with the danger of war distrust and hostility cannot be abated, and no advance in North-South dialogue or settlement of the question of reunification can be expected.

We have consistently made all sincere efforts to advance the hard-won North-South dialogue and, this year, decided to step large-scale military exercises and discontinue all military exercises during the period in which dialogue is under way. This was done to create a favorable atmosphere for dialogue and active endeavors were made to implement this policy.

Having laid artificial obstacles in the way of dialogue through shooting incidents and war exercise rackets in the past, however, the United States and the South Korean authorities plunged North-South dialogue again into a serious state of suspension by replying to this policy with "Team Spirit-86," the largest-scale war exercise in history, while vociferously clamoring about the nonexistent threat of southward invasion. This clearly shows that alleviation of military tension is a primary condition for advancing North-South dialogue in a favorable atmosphere and on the basis of mutual trust and peacefully solving the Korean question. Therefore, our peaceful initiative becomes an epochal nation-saving step which makes it possible to remove the danger of war in Korea and begin a favorable phase for solving the problem of peace and peaceful reunification by realizing reduction of military tension.

At present, our peaceful initiative is arousing great support and welcome at home and abroad because it fully reflects the aspirations of the Korean people and the world's progressive people for peace and peaceful reunification and because it is a most reasonable and aboveboard proposal.

The United States and the South Korean side should respond positively to our peaceful proposal and sincerely solve the question of easing tension together with us at the site of talks among persons in military authority.

The world's people are keenly watching what attitude the United States and the South Korean side will take toward our peaceful proposal and, through this opportunity, will clearly test again, whether the United States and the South Korean side want peace or war.

NEED FOR DIALOGUE, REDUCTION OF TENSION STRESSED

[Unattributed talk: "Halting Military Exercises and Military Buildup Is a Precedent Demand for the Alleviation of Tension"]

[Text] As has been reported, the KPA Supreme Command has proposed the holding of talks of military authorities to be participated in by the minister of the People's Armed Forces of the DPRK, the commander in chief of the UN Forces in South Korea, and the minister of national defense of South Korea.

In accordance with the step taken by the KPA Supreme Command, the minister of the People's Armed Forces of the DPRK sent to the opposite side letters which contain the specific content proposed for the talks.

In the letters, our side has proposed the discussion of the question of halting military exercises and military buildup, which are the direct cause of the aggravation of the situation and of the danger of war; the question of reducing troops and armaments; and the question of respecting the Korean Armistice Agreement as demanded by the original agreement.

Discussing all these questions at the talks between military authorities is urgently needed in order to prevent the danger of war and alleviate tension. The proposal to halt military exercises and military buildup alone fully shows this. The urgency of this question of alleviating tension in the country is clearly shown by the historic experience in the past dialogue and contacts between the North and the South.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Under the circumstances in which the North and the South confront one another with the muzzles of their guns directed against each other and the danger of fratricidal war is looming, no North-South dialogue and contact can achieve positive result, and genuine unity and reunification of the nation cannot be achieved.

Various dialogues and contacts have been held in the past between the North and the South. However, no substantial achievement was won. This is attributable to the insincere attitude that the South had adopted toward dialogue and because the U.S. imperialists and the puppets had indulged in maneuvers of confrontation and war.

As has been made known, thanks to our positive and persistent efforts, North-South economic talks were arranged in the fall of 1984, and the contact between the Red Cross organizations of the North and the South was resumed.

Nevertheless, because of the Panmunjom firing incident by the United States and the South and because of the "Team Spirit-85" war exercise commotions, the North-South dialogue which had been arranged with so much effort was suspended for a long period. In addition, the North-South economic talks, Red Cross talks, and preliminary contacts for North-South parliamentary talks held last year through our sincere efforts were all suspended at the beginning of this year because of the large-scale joint military exercise between the U.S. imperialists and the puppets.

In reality, under the circumstances in which provocative war exercise are staged against the opposite side to dialogue by mobilizing huge armed forces and even nuclear weapons, how can dialogue be held?

For successful North-South dialogue and contact, a measure of alleviation is necessary in the military field. Only when tension is eliminated and a measure of alleviation is taken in the military field can dialogue be held in a favorable atmosphere and a clue to peace and reunification be found in which the opposite side in dialogue is continually threatened military, face to face discussions are not suitable and no success can be expected, even if face-to-face contact is realized.

The reason that the question of halting military exercises and military buildup is presented as a priority demand is also because of the tense situation in our country. At present, the situation of our country has been extremely aggravated. Last year alone, the United States introduced new nuclear weapons and chemical weapons into South Korea and stockpiled war material reserves worth nearly $400 million. At the same time, it extensively hurled into South Korea marine combat troops specialized in landing operations and mobile tank units for ensuring the speed of offensive operations.

The operational combat plan of the puppet army and their command system have been reorganized for a war of northward invasion, all puppet armed forces have been strengthened for offensive operations, and 180,000 commandos have been organized. At the same time, 80 to 90 percent of the U.S. and puppet troops have been deployed forward in the areas close to the Military Demarcation Line, and underground tunnels have been dug toward the North in some places. In addition, in South Korea, even following the "Team Spirit-86" war exercise, war exercises such as "Ttangbol" and "Flying Tigey" continued. Recently, a so-called joint naval exercise between the U.S. 7th Fleet and the puppet navy was also staged in the East Sea of Korea.

All these undisguised war maneuvers in South Korea are extremely aggravating to the situation of the country. As a result, in our country, the danger that even a small accidental incident could ignite a new war -- a nuclear war -- is being created. This situation urgently demands that military exercises and military buildup be halted on the Korean peninsula and tension be alleviated there.

The concerned parties who should settle this urgent question are those who hold real military power in the North and the South. If the military authorities in the North and the South get together at the same place and hold sincere discussion from a peace-loving stand, the state of confrontation between the North and the South can be ably eliminated a new prospect for peace and peaceful reunification opened.

The United States and the South Korean authorities should positively respond to the peace initiative which we have put forth this time.

VNS URGES SUPPORT OF KPA TALKS PROPOSAL

SK240247 (Clandestine) Voice of National Salvation in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 20 Jun 86

[Station Commentary]

[Text] Today we are going to talk about the North's proposal for talks among military persons in authority.

As has already been reported, in accordance with the initiative of the KPA Supreme Command, the North's minister of the People's Armed Forces, O Chin-u, on 17 June proposed holding talks between the North and South among military persons in authority and the commander of the United Nations Forces in South Korea to alleviate tension on the Korean peninsula, to end the state of military confrontation, to solidify peace, and to create a good atmosphere for peace talks. Letters were sent to Defense Minister Yi Ki-paek and Commander Livsey.

Minister of the People's Armed Forces O Chin-u noted that [words indistinct] and that this has brought all North-South dialogue to a state of a deadlock, created a tense situation in which a war could again break-out, and caused deep concern among all fellow countrymen and the entire world. He stressed that to remove the imminent danger of war created in such a situation and to provide a new phase for peace and peaceful reunification, it is desirable that the parties discuss and probe the urgent measures and reasonable ways to help ease tension, if not to bring about a fundamental solution to the problem of peace. He proposed holding tripartite talks among military persons in authority, including the North's minister of the People's Armed Forces, the South's minister of National Defense, and the commander-in-chief of the UN Forces in South Korea, to discuss and solve pending problems, such as a halt to military exercises and arms buildup, a reduction of troops and armaments, and an observance of the armistice agreement. In the letter the North also made it clear that the talks can also cover any proposal put forward by the U.S. and South side if they serve to alleviate tension on the Korean peninsula.

This proposal of the North is important as it is designed to probe for realistic steps to alleviate tension, prevent the danger of a new war, and open a new phase for peace and peaceful reunification and the resumption of North-South dialogue. It is a reasonable and persuasive proposal that everyone can accept; no one should have any reason to reject it. In other words, the North's proposal for tripartite talks among military persons in authority is a remarkable proposal which reflects a serious position and sincere attitude to provide a basis for peace and peaceful reunification of the Korean peninsula and to alleviate tension and bring about a breakthrough toward reunification.

It is natural that opinion at home and abroad reacted with enthusiastic sympathy toward the North's letters as soon as their contents were revealed.

As the entire world knows, the problems of the Korean peninsula essentially concern reunification. Bringing an end to the tragedy of division and reunifying the country peacefully is the greatest task and vital interest of the nation and cannot be put off any longer. However, the danger of war in this land blocks the road to reunification. The great precondition for solving the problem of reunification is to alleviate tension, to eliminate the danger of war, and to guarantee lasting peace in our country.

Vast armed forces have been deployed by the North and South along the truce line, and the recurrence of war is an imminent threat. On the Korean peninsula today, a serious problem is more of war and peace than [words indistinct], because the problem of war and peace is directly related to the life-and-death problem of the nation upon which the survival of the people and the fate of the nation depends. Without peace, the survival of the nation cannot be guaranteed, the reunification of the country cannot be realized, and we cannot hope to resume dialogue for reunification.

The most acute problems before us in the grave situation which prevails is alleviating the acute tension and bringing an end to confrontation. Above all, a step to alleviate tension should be contemplated between the North and South in military fields, so that we can find a way to peace and the peaceful reunification of the Korean peninsula and open the bright prospective of dialogue which is now in a state of deadlock. It is for this reason that the North, on 11 January, proposed that large-scale military exercises be called off and that all military exercises be stopped during the entire period of dialogue, and called on the South Korean and U.S. authorities to affirmatively respond.

Under the current tense situation, to prevent the danger of war recurring, the military steps that give vitality to alleviating tension between the North and South and ending confrontation should be urgently considered, even though a complete and comprehensive solution to the issue of peace may be difficult to achieve. Also during circumstances in which MAC is not able to perform its function sufficiently, a practical step should be probed to solve the problems outside its periphery as well.

Therefore, the North's proposal for holding tripartite talks among military persons in authority to discuss and quickly solve the most pressing and urgent problems to prevent war and alleviate tension is a just and peace-pursuing initiative.

Our people and the world's peace-loving masses are closely watching the attitude of the South Korean and U.S. authorities toward the North's initiative. If the United States and the Chon Tu-hwan group really desire peace, peaceful reunification, and realistic progress in alleviating tension on the Korean peninsula, they should affirmatively respond to the North's proposal for talks among military persons in authority without delay.

U.S., SOUTH SCORED FOR 'SLANDERING' INITIATIVE

SK231024 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1008 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 23 (KCNA) -- The United States and the South Korean side are slandering our peace initiative on holding talks between the military authorities, babbling that it is a "propaganda" and "not constructive", far from deeply studying it and giving a positive response to it. A signed commentary of MINJU CHOSON today brands this as a base trick to mislead public opinion at home and abroad.

Noting that if our proposal is realised, it will undoubtedly make a great contribution to easing the tension and removing the confrontation on the Korean peninsula, it says:

But the United States and the South Korean side are speaking ill of the DPRK proposal even before discussing it with us at one table. This is not a stand and attitude to solve the problem.

Whether the United States and the South Korean side respond to our proposal for talks between the military authorities ot not will be a touchstone showing whether they want peace or war in Korea. They must nor carp on our fair proposal for talks between the military authorities but respond to it at an early date.

KIM IL-SONG REUNIFICATION WORK CITED IN ARTICLES

SK231048 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1028 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 23 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN and MINJU CHOSON today dedicated editorial articles to the 13th anniversary of the publication of the historic work of the great leader President Kim Il-song "Let Us Prevent a National Split and Reunify the Country" (June 23 1973).

President Kim Il-song in his work put forward the five-point policy for national reunification as a new nation-saving step to smash the scheme of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges to keep Korea divided permanently and promote the cause of the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

The main content of this policy is to remove military confrontation and lessen tensions between North and South, to realize many-sided cooperation and interchange between North and South, to convene a great national congress comprising representatives of people of all strata, political parties and social organizations in North and South, to institute a North-South confederation under the single nomenclature of Confederal Republic of Koryo, and to enter the United Nations under the single nomenclature -- Confederal Republic of Koryo.

Along with the three principles of national reunification, indpendence, peaceful reunification and great national unity, this policy constitutes a powerful motive force in accelerating our people's cause of national reunification, NODONG SINMUN says, and goes on:

We have made all efforts to realize this policy, but failed to reap desired fruit.

This is directly ascribable to the "two Koreas" plot and confrontation policy of the U.S. imperialists and the group of Chon Tu-hwan who has emerged as a military fascist dictator of South Korea under their patronage.

In recent years our people are exposed to the danger of a new war plus sufferings of division, owing to aggressive and war provocation manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges which have become extremely unscrupulous.

It is a pressing task to remove the acute military confrontation and lessen tension between the North and the South.

Only recently the Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army took an important peace initiative to have talks between the military authorities involving the minister of the People's Armed Forces of the DPRK, the commander-in-chief of the U.S. forces in South Korea and the South Korean defence minister.

Our proposal is to do work helpful to detente even though the fundamental solution of the Korean problem is difficult at present and it is that those who hold real military power meet face to face and find out ways of solving questions as the Military Armistice Commission does not discharge its function and responsibility properly.

As those responsible for the tense situation on the Korean peninsula, the United States and the South Korean authorities must respond to our new peace proposal for detente.

VNS VIEWS KIM IL-SONG WORK, KPA PROPOSAL

SK242241 (Clandestine) Voice of National Salvation in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Special article from the "Feature Program": "Let Us Achieve the Reunification Cause Under the Banner of the Anti-U.S. Struggle for Independence"]

[Text] The date 23 June is a significant day marking the 13th anniversary of the publication by the great President Kim Il-song, the sun of the nation, of the immortal classical work "Let Us Prevent National Division and Reunify the Country." This work was published at the time when the Pak Chong-hui ring, the previous dictator, refused to implement the three principles for national reunification -- independence, peaceful reunification, and great national unity -- clarified through the 4 July North-South Joint Statement, and came up with the policy of the simultaneous entry into the United Nations of the North and South in a bid to legalize its two Koreas plot, thereby creating a new obstacle on the road of national reunification.

In this work, the great leader scientifically analyzed the complicated situation created by the splittist maneuvers of the United States and the South Korean rulers and presented the 5-point policy for national reunification as a new measure for national salvation to prevent division and to promote reunification. Thus, he elucidated a shortcut to reunification.

The great President Kim Il-song has taught: The content of our 5-point policy for national reunification includes the elimination of military confrontation between the North and South, alleviation of tension between them, realization of multilateral collaboration and exchange between the North and South, convocation of a great national conference composed of representatives of the people of all strata, political parties, and public organizations in the North and South, enforcement of a confederal system between the North and South under the single name of the Confederal Republic of Koryo, and the entry of the North and South into the United Nations under the single name of the Confederal Republic of Koryo.

The 5-point policy for national reunification, which clearly elucidated ways to alleviate tension on the Korean peninsula, to eliminate distrust between the North and South, to preserve peace, and to achieve national unity, was an epochal measure for national salvation to remove the barrier of national division and to open the way for national survival by embodying the three principles -- independence, peaceful reunification, and great national unity.

Because of its justness, the 5-point policy for national reunification, which reflected the aspiration of the nation and the demands of the times, won active support not only from our masses but also from the international community. The 5-point policy for national reunification was also a powerful driving force encouraging the patriotic zeal of the brethren and promoting the cause of reunification.

The 5-point policy for national reunification dealt a serious blow to the maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges who were attempting to permanently divide the nation through their proposal of simultaneous entry into the United Nations for the North and South. The 5-point policy also vigorously encouraged our masses' struggle for independence, democracy, and reunification. This was a firm proof of the justness and vitality of the 5-point policy for national reunification.

For our nation, which has lived under the protracted tragedy of national division, there is no more vital demand, nor a more ardent task, than national reunification.

Even after the announcement of this 5-point policy for national reunification, the North, proceeding from this ardent demand of the times, repeatedly advanced numerous patriotic policies for national reunification: These included the new policy to reunify the country by founding a democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo on the condition that the North and South recognize and tolerate each other's ideas and social systems. Since then, the North has made all possible sincere efforts for their realization.

The North, which has consistently maintained the stand of resolving the question of the Korean peninsula peacefully through dialogue and negotiations, also put forward a proposal that tripartite talks be held among the North, the United States, and the South to alleviate tension on the Korean peninsula, to preserve peace there, and to preliminarily arrange the independent and peaceful reunification of the country. In addition to this, the North also put forward a new peace proposal for holding North-South parliamentary talks and for announcing a joint declaration of nonaggression.

In particular, on 9 June, as a new peace initiative to alleviate tension on the Korean peninsula, the North proposed that military authorities' talks be held among the minister of the People's Armed Forces of the North, the commander in chief of the UN Forces in South Korea, and the national defense minister of South Korea.

Such a stand of trying to resolve the national problem proceeds from the patriotic stand to ease the tension prevailing on the Korean peninsula, to achieve reunification peacefully, to eliminate the brethren's sufferings caused by the national division at the earliest possible date, and to build a prosperous reunified fatherland independently and on the basis of our nation's efforts.

Therefore, there is no doubt that if these realistic and reasonable policies for national reunification are realized a new aspect in resolving the reunification question will be opened. However, because of the war maneuvers of the United States and the South Korean rulers and their antireunification policy, the danger of war -- not peace -- is still increasing and national division -- not reunification -- continues on the Korean peninsula.

Declaring South Korea as the frontline of its strategy toward Asia, the United States, which has regarded South Korea as a crucial military strategic point for its domination of Asia, has continuously introduced military equipment, including armed forces and nuclear weapons, and, thus, has turned South Korea into a military fortress and nuclear base, the largest in the Far East. The United States has also aggravated the situation on the Korean peninsula by staging large-scale South Korea-U.S. joint exercises such as the "Team Spirit" exercise annually. Thus, it has created obstacles on the road toward national reunification.

Under the manipulation of the United States, the South Korean rulers, too, have further intensified their fascist rule in this land. Brutally suppressing the patriotic struggle of youths, students, and the masses of all strata who call for independence, democracy, and reunification, the South Korean rulers are today scheming to perpetuate the national division in collusion with foreign forces.

In particular, the Chon Tu-hwan ring has further aggravated the situation by inspiring North-South confrontation through the anticommunist rackets and war exercise rackets for northward invasion while begging for the permanent stationing of the U.S. forces in South Korea and increased military aid from the United States on the pretext of a nonexistent threat of southward invasion.

The increasing confrontation and danger of war on the Korean peninsula and the continuation of national division there result totally from the policy of war of the United States and the Chon Tu-hwan ring and their maneuvers against reunification. Peace and the peaceful reunification of the country can be achieved only by withdrawing the U.S. forces from South Korea; by ending the fascist rule of the Chon Tu-hwan ring, the culprit of the United States; and by achieving independence and democratization of society.

The struggle against the U.S. policy of aggression and its fascist rule in South Korea is being waged among broad sectors of the South Korean youths, students, and people. In particular, the anti-U.S. and antigovernment struggle of our masses is being deepened and further developed organizationally. The struggle of workers for the right to existence is also being strengthened. This is an expression of the firm and resolute will of our masses not to tolerate the colonial fascist rule of the United States and the South Korean rulers and their maneuvers for aggression and national division.

Eliminating the danger of war and confrontation on the Korean peninsula and providing a firm guarantee for peace there is a pressing problem that should be resolved without delay. Only when peace is solidly preserved can a favorable prospect for resolving the reunification question be provided. Therefore, in addition to the withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Korea, in order to preserve peace, the basic factors causing the aggravation of tension and war should be eliminated completely. Misunderstanding and distrust between the North and South should be removed through dialogue and negotiation, not through confrontation and war; and an atmosphere of understanding and trust should be created.

Therefore, the North's peace proposals for tripartite talks, North-South parliamentary talks, and military authorities' talks are aimed precisely at resolving this pressing problem. If the North's peace proposals were realized, the state of tension and confrontation on the Korean peninsula would be removed and a new aspect would be successfully opened on the road of the independent and peaceful reunification.

Those who want peace and peaceful reunification should firmly unite under the banner of the anti-U.S. struggle for independence and join the struggle for the cause of reunification.

YUGOSLAV FOREIGN AFFAIRS SECRETARY SUPPORTS TALKS

SK210425 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0417 GMT 21 Jun 86

[Text] Belgrade June 20 (KCNA) -- We hail the peace initiative taken by the Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army on holding talks between the military authorities to reunify the North and the South of Korea in a peaceful way.

Raif Dizdarevic, federal secretary for foreign affairs of Yugoslavia, said this at a press conference on June 19. Giving answers to questions raised in connection with the peace initiative of the Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army on holding talks between the military authorities, he said that Yugoslavia's stand is to positively estimate the efforts to solve all problems by means of talks.

COMMUNIQUE ON PROBLEMS FACING NONALIGNED MOVEMENT

SK211212 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1000 GMT 21 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 21 (KCNA) -- A joint meeting of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and the Central People's Committee of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea was held on June 20, 1986, with the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, in the chair.

At the meeting President Kim Il-song scientifically analyzed the present international situation and made an important concluding speech on the question of principle arising in developing and strengthening the non-aligned movement.

According to the communique on the joint meeting, it clarified the stand of the DPRK Government on important problems arising in developing and strengthening the Non-Aligned Movement with the 8th Summit Conference of Non-aligned Countries ahead.

The joint meeting pointed out in part:

The U.S.-led imperialists are ceaselessly committing armed intervention, subversion and sabotages against non-aligned and developing countries, and craftily using border issues, the consequence of the colonial rule, and various other complicated problems, to drive wedges between them and create antagonism and confrontation between them and make them fight each other to fish in troubled waters.

It is an urgent demand of our time to fight against imperialism and for global independence.

The peoples of the nonaligned countries and all the progressive people of the world should vigorously wage the struggle against imperialism and for independence in firm unity.

To this end, firstly, an anti-imperialist common front should be formed and the struggle against imperialism intensified throughout the world, secondly, the struggle against imperialism and for sovereignty should be persistently waged in an all-round way in all fields of politics, military, economy, ideology and culture and, thirdly, a struggle should be waged vigorously for the independence of the whole world.

It is a pressing problem facing mankind at present to avert a nuclear war and defend world peace and security.

We consider that the non-aligned countries should pay attention preferentially to realising disarmament, the abolition of nuclear weapons in particular, in the preparations for the 8th Summit Conference of Non-Aligned Countries and thereby make this summit a new occasion in preventing a new world war, a thermonuclear war, and easing the international tension.

In recent years the United States brought forward even the adventurous "star wars" programme and tries to extend the arms race into outer space and to produce binary chemical weapons and deploy them in many parts of the world.

It is the Korean peninsula where there is the greatest danger of nuclear war today.

If nuclear war breaks out in our country, it will easily expand into a global nuclear war, and then the Korean nation and the entire mankind will suffer a nuclear holocaust.

The Non-Aligned Movement should take it as its important duty to prevent a new world war, a thermonuclear war, and defend world peace, and strengthen its activity in every way.

Firstly, it should actively fight to realize the stoppage of the arms race and general and complete disarmament, nuclear disarmament in particular.

The non-aligned countries should give priority to the abolition of nuclear weapons and turn out in the struggle to prevent the production and stockpiling of nuclear weapons and abolish nuclear weapons completely and for good.

The non-aligned countries should play a catalytic role in ensuring that international legal steps are taken for totally prohibiting all forms of tests of nuclear weapons.

They should force the nuclear nations to commit themselves not to threaten the non-nuclear nations and press for an early adoption of steps for stipulating the abolition of nuclear weapons in an international law.

The non-aligned countries should actively support all initiatives to build nuclear-free peace zones. The countries possessing nuclear weapons should respect nuclear free, peace zones, and not deploy nuclear weapons there.

The government of our republic and the Korean people will actively struggle to convert the area of Northeast Asia including the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free, peace zone and create such zones in various parts of the world and expand them, uniting with the peace-loving people of the world.

Positive proposals and initiatives have been put forward to realise a general and complete disarmament. Among them are the proposal to totally abolish nuclear weapons stage by stage by the end of the present century and the proposal to ban arms race in the outer space. They are significant proposals and initiatives in removing the danger of a nuclear war and defending world peace and security.

The non-aligned countries should make all efforts to carry into practice the positive proposals and initiatives to remove the danger of a nuclear war.

Secondly, struggle against the imperialists' policy of military blocs and policy of building military bases should be waged.

The non-aligned countries should strongly demand the withdrawal of agggressive foreign military bases and troops from the territories of other countries and should not offer their territories to big powers as military bases and supply bases.

The imperialists are now trying to form new military blocs in various places including the Asian and Pacific region, maintaining and strengthening the existing military blocs. The non-aligned countries should resolutely oppose the moves of the imperialists to form new military blocs and actively struggle to dissolve all the aggressive military blocs.

If the aggressive military blocs of the imperialists are dissolved, the military bloc of socialist countries will not be necessary any more.

We strongly demand that the United States stop its nuclear war provocation moves in and around South Korea and promptly withdraw its forces, military bases, nuclear weapons and other mass destruction weapons from South Korea.

Thirdly, the anti-war, anti-nuclear peace movement should be energetically waged.

The non-aligned countries should roundly expose and denounce the imperialists' policy of aggression and war and adventurous nuclear war provocation moves and bind them hand and foot in all parts where they have stretched their tentacles. And they should not act as their war servants.

All the non-aligned countries should more powerfully struggle to finally liquidate colonialism and racism and accomplish the cause of national liberation and support and encourage in every way the oppressed peoples in their struggle for national liberation and independence.

To this end, firstly, the common struggle to put an end to the racial system of South Africa should more energetically be waged; secondly, the expansionist aggressive ambition of the Israeli Zionists be smashed; and thirdly, solidarity should be strengthened with the peoples struggling for independence, sovereignty and the building of a new society.

The non-aligned countries should give all forms of support including political, diplomatic, material, financial and military support to the fighting southern African peoples including the South African and Namibian peoples and take positive steps to totally isolate the South African racist regime internationally.

They should regard the struggle of the Palestinian and other Arab peoples as their common cause and actively take a joint action to reject Israel in the diplomatic, economic, military and cultural domains and sea and air transport in accordance with the resolution of the 7th Summit Conference of Non-Aligned Countries.

The United States must stop giving political and diplomatic support and military and economic aid to the Israeli Zionist and take its hands off the Middle East, abandoning its ambition to dominate this region.

South-South cooperation is a noble work of the developing countries to increase the independence of the national economy and achieve a complete economic liberation through close economic and technical cooperation.

In order to free people from backwardness and poverty, famine and diseases and attain an economic independence, the non-aligned and developing countries should conduct brisk cooperation and exchange, starting from urgent problems which are realistically possible.

To this end, firstly, South-South cooperation should be expanded and developed in the food and agricultural domain; secondly, external cooperation and exchange be realised in health services; and thirdly, the work of expanding and developing cooperation and exchange between non-aligned and developing countries be carried into practical action according to the already adopted action programme of economic cooperation.

In realising cooperation in the building of irrigation setups, it will be rational for the non-aligned and developing countries to jointly work out "a 10-year plan of irrigation construction in developing countries" and "a 10-year plan of irrigation construction in Africa" and the like, set up an organ to coordinate cooperation in irrigation construction and form irrigation construction companies of joint venture.

They should also closely cooperate in improving farming methods, in seed selection and production and in agricultural scientific research and actively introduce joint ventures in agriculture.

Medical science should be developed through a proper combination of modern medicine with traditional medicine, and modern remedies with folk remedies and cooperation be strengthened in this field.

It also can be an effective means of cooperation in health services to create pharmaceutical enterprises of joint venture and open and operate joint venture hospitals. The non-aligned and developing countries should make joint efforts to set up a global system of preferential trade as early as possible and mature relevant conditions for discussing South-South cooperation on a high level and taking practical steps.

The non-aligned and developing countries should actively fight to establish a new international economic order in accordance with the joint strategy already mapped out.

To this end, firstly, continued patient efforts are needed to step up negotiations for the establishment of a new international economic order; secondly, efforts should be directed to establishing a fair and stable international financial and monetary system; thirdly, an active struggle should be waged to establish a new trade order.

The non-aligned and developing countries should jointly map out a strategy of negotiation suited to the demand of international economic situation, explore procedures and ways of negotiations and effectively coordinate the policy and stand of negotiations so as to place the position of negotiations still higher. A realistic measure for this is to set up a permanent committee of ministerial level of the non-aligned and other developing countries as recommended by the Foreign Ministers Conference of the Coordinating Committee held in New Delhi.

The non-aligned and developing countries should hold at an early date an international conference on international finance and currency for development to provide an occasion for setting up a new international financial and monetary system. They should prevent the fluctuation of the prices of primary products and increase exports revenue by reorganizing the unfair price system in trade and establishing a fair and profitable price system for the primary products.

The developing countries should not allow the developed countries to use the ordinary preferential system as a means of putting pressure on them but instead should actively struggle against any encroachment on their permanent sovereignty over natural resources. All the non-aligned countries should energetically strive to strengthen and develop the Non-Aligned Movement so that this movement may discharge with credit its heavy duty to time and mankind.

To this end, firstly, they should remain faithfully committed to the idea and principle of the movement which was confirmed at the previous non-aligned summit conferences; secondly, they should uphold and develop the tradition of unity; thirdly, ways for further enhancing the action capacity and effectiveness of the non-aligned movement should be explored through joint efforts.

The non-aligned countries should always stand firm by chajusong in all their activities. They should consistently maintain the basic principle of remaining outside any bloc and resolutely struggle against every attempt to alienate the non-aligned movement from its original principle and purpose.

They should not antagonize or fight each other, falling a prey to imperialists' instigation and deception, but meet their manoeuvres of division and alienation with a strategy of unity.

The members of the Non-Aligned Movement must not resort to force against each other or do act leading controversial issues to a military conflict. [sentence as received] The non-aligned countries should not let the disputes among some non-aligned countries continue indefinitely, but take decisive measures to end them.

They should not support or oppose one side in the disputes between newly-emerging countries but actively help the parties concerned solve the disputes through negotiation on an unbiased stand.

The joint meeting expressed the belief that the 8th Non-Aligned summit Conference will be a conference of historical significance in solving important problems arising in the non-aligned movement at present and further strengthening and developing this movement.

NODONG SINMUN ON EFFORTS IN KEY ECONOMIC SECTORS

[NODONG SINMUN 20 Jun editorial: "Let Us Continuously Effect Innovations in the Preferential Areas of the People's Economy"]

[Text] The mining, metallurgical, and power industries and railway transport are the priority areas of the people's economy.

Only when innovations are effected in these areas, which are responsible for raw materials, fuel, energy, and transport, can all sectors of the people's economy progress actively and a decisive turn be made in attaining the long-range goals of socialist economic construction.

Giving firm priority to the mining, metallurgical, power industries and railway transport over other areas of the people's economy is our party's unchanging principle. This year, in particular, great efforts are being concentrated on these areas.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: This year, in economic construction, while actively waging the struggle to attain the 10 long-range goals of socialist economic construction put forth by the party, preferential efforts should be particularly placed on developing the major industries and railway transport.

Steps have been taken to develop the major industries and railway transport, and the working class and functionaries of these areas, who turned out by wholeheartedly upholding the appeal of the party, have vigorously struggled. As a result, railway transport and power production have reached a high stage, and innovations are being effected in the production of steel, ore, and coal. This invigorates production and construction in many sectors of the people's economy.

However, at present, all sectors of the people's economy have set forth new goals and are raising the furious flames of production. This reality demands that the major industries and the railway sector make even more positive efforts. This is precisely why our party is placing great emphasis on the preferential areas of the people's economy, and has set forth the coal, steel, and power production goals and the railways transport goal, which should be attained as quickly as possible. These are the urgent tasks which should be accomplished without fail by the concerned sectors. When these preferential areas of the people's economy bring the production of coal, steel, and power and railways transport to a stage desired by the party and advance ahead of others by holding banners aloft, new gains will be achieved in overall socialist economic construction.

The goals set forth by the party are high. However, the experience of the railway sector and the power industry, which have almost approached the goals and are continuing to advance vigorously, shows that any task can be accomplished if great efforts are determinedly made. Thus, it is important for the functionaries and working people of these sectors to make efforts with the determination to unconditionally accomplish the tasks assigned by the party, with the belief that they can accomplish the tasks.

The world-famous Nampo Lockgate is being built in a very short period of time. This is not attributable to conditions and experience. The firm faith, lofty loyalty, and unyielding fighting spirit of the construction workers of the lockgate, who possess the spirit of unconditionally fulfilling the order and direction of the party and the leader, have created miracles in the construction of the Nampo Lockgate.

By following the spirit and courage of the construction workers of the Nampo Lockgate, who have performed heroic feats, the coal, steel, and power producers and the railway transport workers should overcome the mounting difficulties and completely accomplish the tasks assigned by the party. To this end, all functionaires and working people of these areas should realize the significance of their missions to advance the preferential areas of the people's economy, and accomplish the given tasks responsibly.

The functionaries and working people should clearly realize that their given tasks are for the purpose of fulfilling the intent of our party to advance the development of the people's economy. By so doing, they should effect ceaseless upsurges and attain the daily, 10-day, monthly, and quarterly targets without fail.

One of the important methods for reaching the goals set forth by the party is to wage an active campaign to dig out hidden potential. In the course of the campaign to dig out hidden potentials of resources being waged in accordance with the appeal of the working class of the Kim Chaek Iron Works, a large amount of hidden potentials are being mobilized and utilized everywhere in the country.

In the campaign to dig out hidden potentials of resources, the major industrial sectors and the railway sector should take the lead. The functionaries and working people of these areas should regard it as their major task for the development of the preferential areas of the people's economy to dig out hidden potentials in materials, resources, and transport. By so doing, they should participate in the campaign with an attitude worthy of masters.

At the same time, in using materials and facilities, the functionaries and working people should always think of ways to conserve and, if necessary, boldly improve and modernize production processes, facilities, and methods. By so doing they should increase production with fewer resources.

Success in production and transport largely depends on the organizational guidance work of the functionaries. At present, innovations are being effected in the area of railway transport. This is importantly linked with the improvement of transport organizational work.

Our party trusts the functionaries of the coal, metallurgical, and power industries and the railway sector, and has assigned them to the important guardposts. The functionaries of these areas should deeply realize the significance and responsibility of their missions for the development of the people's economy and should organize and command production of the people's economy and should organize and command production and transport in a revolutionary manner.

As the heavy and difficult tasks are assigned, the functionaries should make even more positive efforts, rack their brains, and meticulously plan organizational work. The functionaries of the mining, metallurgical and power industries and the railway sector should go into the masses, should work out with them measures to attain the goals set forth by the party, and should fully mobilize hidden potentials and possibilities. By so doing, they should stabilize production in accordance with the authorized capacities with less materials and resources and attain their production targets without fail.

In particular, the functionaries of the complexes in these areas should realize that currently success in production largely depends on their roles. In so doing, they should establish correct contracts and execute them in conformity with the prevailing situation. At the same time, they should make positive efforts to mobilize and utilize raw materials, resources, and facilities in a rational manner.

To continue to effect innovations in the preferential areas of the people's economy, even greater emphasis should be placed on these areas. Reality shows that our party's decision to put priority efforts into developing major industries and railway transport has been entirely correct.

Functionaries of the State Administration Council and the concerned commissions and ministries should know that the rapid development of the major industries and railway transport is presently an crucial need arising from the development of the economy of our country. By so doing they should increase the state investment in the mining, metallurgical, and power industries and the railway sector, and should guarantee the supply work for these areas.

The might of the masses is endless and there is no task which cannot be accomplished by the masses. The question of bringing the production of the major industries and railway transport to a level desired by the party can also be settled only through the efforts of the masses. Party organizations and the members of the three revolutions teams of these areas should fully explain among the party members and working people the significance of the question of bringing production to the level desired by the party and should mobilize their revolutionary zeal. By so doing, they should make all people effect ceaseless innovations with lofty loyalty to the party and the leader and with self-conscious enthusiasm.

Today the efforts of a unit or two are not enough to win success in the struggle to bring the production of coal, steel, and power and railway transport to a level demanded by the party. Only when everyone in the concerned areas, including individual workers and the funcitonaries of the concerned commissions and ministries of the State Administration Council, actively turn out can this task be successfully accomplished.

The party organizations and members of the three revolutions teams of the mining, metallurgical, and power industries and the railway sector should adhere to the task of bringing production and transport to the level set by the party and carry out organizational and political work persistently. In doing this they will bring about new upsurges in socialist economic construction.

'STRONG PROTEST' ON PROVOCATIONS' MADE TO MAC

[Text] Kaesong Jun 25 (KCNA) -- A security officer of our side at a meeting of security officers of the two sides to the Military Armistice Commission held today at Panmunjom lodged a strong protest with the enemy side against its provocations and violations in the joint security area of Panmunjom.

According to the statement of the security officer of our side, at around 8:25 June 21, guards of the U.S. forces and the South Korean puppet Army at the observation post of the enemy side southeast of the conference room shouted at personnel of our post on the opposite side and spoke rude words and made a nasty gesture wantonly insulting their personality. As personnel of our side made no reply to this indecent behaviour, they turned a searchlight twice onto personnel of our side. Similar provocations were committed around 13:49, 20:15 and 22:55 that day.

Such provocations are a grave violation of the points of agreement between the two sides and a reckless act which might aggravate the situation and cause conflicts between the two sides in the joint security area.

Meanwhile, the enemy is bringing into the joint security area more armed personnel than the designated number practically every day.

Since our side proposed to take steps for full security in the joint security area the enemy's provocations and violations have numbered as many as over 220.

The security officer of our side lodged a stern protest with the enemy side against its wanton provocations insulting personnel of our side and against such acts as hampering them in the conduct of their duty and introducing more armed personnel than the disignated number and automatic rifles, and strongly demanded it to punish criminals and take responsible measures so that similar incidents might not occur again.

SK221128 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1107 GMT 22 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 22 (KCNA) -- Kaysone Phomvihan, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Lao People's Revolutionary Party and premier, said when he met the DPRK ambassador to his country on June 19 that Laos firmly supported the just and reasonable proposal of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea that the 24th Olympic Games be cohosted by the North and the South of Korea and the peace initiative of the Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army on holding talks between the military authorities.

The ambassador conveyed regards of Comrade Kim Il-song to Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan. Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan expressed deep thanks for this and asked the ambassador to transmit his warm greetings to Comrade Kim Il-song, the respected leader of the Korean People and general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea. The conversation proceeded in a friendly atmosphere.

JAPAN POST CITED ON SOUTH'S DEBT, OLYMPICS

SK242204 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1500 GMT 24 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 24 (KCNA) -- The Japanese magazine JAPAN POST stressed that the Asian and Olympic Games would lead South Korea to a catastrophic situation, making it impossible to pay foreign debts, which will mean its "national bankruptcy", the magazine noted, and said:

The foreign debt of the South Korean puppet clique amounted to 52,670 million dollars kas of the end of last year. This is the "world's largest" debt which surpasses the "line of danger" by far.

South Korea had suffered a deficit of 480 million dollars in trade in the first five months of this year, not getting rid of chronic deficit, which aggravates its international payments.

For the Asian Games in Seoul, the puppet clique is inducing foreign capital to cover their expenses.

This sharply increases South Korea's foreign debt and makes the burden of its payment heavier.

The message said that Comrade Luo Diekai not only excellently brought up internationalist martyr Comrade Luo Shengjiao and sent him to the Korean front to bring into fuller bloom the blood-sealed friendly relations between the two peoples but also devoted his whole to the struggle for the development and strngthening of the Korea-China friendship.

The Central Committee of the Korea-China Friendship Association sent a message of condolence to the China-Korea Friendship Association. REPLIES TO NORTH REJECT TALLES PROPOSAL

Yi Terms Call 'Unreasonable'

SK250239 Seoul YONHAP in English 0218 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Text] Seoul, June 25 (YONHAP) -- South Korean Defense Minister Yi Ki-paek Tuesday turned down a North Korean proposal for defense ministers conference, and blamed North Korea's "reckless military buildup" for tension and war threats on the Korean peninsula.

In a reply to the letter sent to him by North Korea's Armed Forces Minister O Chin-u on June 17, Yi said that North Korea has dampened the entire nation's aspiration for peaceful unification of the divided country by unilaterally cutting off all existing channels of inter-Korean talks.

"Under the circumstances, it is utterly unreasonable for North Korea to call for a meeting of military authorities of South and North Korea. Neither the South Korean people nor peace-loving people of the world will believe North Korea's sincerity in the proposal," Yi said in the reply.

Yi urged North Korea to immediately respond to Seoul's call for the resumption of inter-Korean economic talks and Red Cross talks for the reunion of dispersed family members in both sides.

Yi said that Seoul's proposed four-point formula concerning the observance of the armistice agreement should first be discussed at the Armistice Commission to ease military tension between South and North Korea. The four points include the demilitarization of the buffer zone, the mutual notification of major military exercises, the mutual issuance of invitations to observe major military exercises and the establishment of a joint monitoring and confirmation system in the joint security areas.

Yi also called upon Pyongyang to "unconditionally" agree to Seoul's proposal for talks of the highest authorities of South and North Korea, if Pyongyang truly wants to ease tension on the peninsula and realize territorial unification peacefully.

Livsey Says MAC Proper Forum

[Text] Seoul, June 24 (YONHAP) -- Gen. William Livesay, commander-in-chief of the United Nations Command (CINCUNC), in response to a recent letter addressed to him from North Korea, has reaffirmed the UNC's longstanding policy that the Military Armistice Commission will handle armistice-related matters while inter-Korean issues should be dealt with through direct South-North dialogue.

Gen. Livesay's reply to the supreme commander of the North Korean People's Army was passed at the regular noon joint duty officers meeting on June 21, according to the press release on Tuesday. The reply noted that the matters raised by North Korea in the letter concern the South-North dialogue and other subjects properly discussed between the two Koreas, according to the press release.

Livsey also noted, "The UNC stands ready to discuss military tension reduction issues and other armistice-related matters." He stressed, "The appropriate venue for such discussion is the Military Armistice Commission, where the UNC has a number of significant tension-reduction proposals on the table."

Livsey informed the North Korean supreme commander in his reply that North Korea's letter had been referred to appropriate Republic of Korea (ROK) Government authorities.

South Korean Defense Minister Yi Ki-paek also earlier received an "unprecendented" letter from his North Korean counterpart, O Chin-u, on Jun 17. O's letter sent through the truce village of Panmunjom, was picked up by South Korean officials there at noon. South Korean Defense Ministry authorities said that through due procedures, they will deliver Yi's reply to North Korea on Tuesday.

CHON URGES SHARPENED SENSE OF NATIONAL SECURITY

[Text] President Chon Tu-wan urged the people yesterday to sharpen their sense of national security in unity to deter war on this peninsula remembering the tragedy of the 1950-53 Korean War. "We know the bitter lesson from the war that the North Korean Communists attempt invasions on us when our society is unstable and national opinons are not united," Chon said at a tea party for exemplary soldiers.

Sixty-six exemplary soldiers and their wives were invited to the Chongwadae party on the eve of the 36th anniversary of the Korean War.

"We are engaged in a war with the North in the areas of the military, ideology, diplomacy, and the economy. Our military has to play a leading role in guiding the public to win over the North Korean Communists in the four-pronged war," Chon emphasized.

Particularly referring to the ideological war, President Chon said that all people should take the anniversary of the Korean War as a good occasion to get a correct perception of the true nature of the Communists.

Attending the party were Defense Minister Yi Ki-paek and the heads of three armed services.

CHONG IL-KWON WARNS OF 'ILL OMEN' FROM NORTH

SK250302 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 25 Jun 86 p 8

[Text] Chong Il-kwon, former National Assembly speaker, said last night that North Korean Communists are feared to trigger a serious provocation at the time of the Asian Games and the Olympics in Seoul.

In a impromptu speech at a gathering of Korean War veterans, he said that the recent peace offensives by North Koreans seem to be an "ill omen" that they might cause a tragedy as they did 36 years ago.

Hundreds of veterans, war correspondents and social and political celebrities gathered at the Ambassador Hotel on the eve of the Korean War anniversary. The meeting was arranged by Kim Pong-ki, former lawmaker and present adviser of the hotel as an event to remember the war.

Among the participants were Labor Minister Cho Chol-kwon; Min Pok-ki, former chief justice; Yi Se-ho, former Army chief of staff; Chang Chang-kuk, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; top comedian Ku Pong-so; actress Hwang Chong-sun; and Paek Tu-chin, former National Assembly speaker.

Chong said that whenever Pyongyang launched peace propaganda offensives in the past, the Communists attacked the south or committed military provocations. He particularly cautioned about the recent overture by the north to hold military talks among South and North Korea and the United States.

The participants talked about their memories of the war and information on what happendend to their comrades in war.

EDITORIAL CAUTIONS YOUTH TO RECALL 1950 INVASION

SK250315 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 25 Jun 86 p 4

[Editorial: "Lessons of Korean War"]

[Text] Today marks the 36th anniversary of the outbreak of the Korean War which raged through the length and width of the Korean peninsula for three years before ending in history's longest armistice. In commemoration of the occasion, public rallies and other events are scheduled in Seoul and other cities across the country as in previous years.

Few nations in the world have continued to commemorate the outbreak of a war annually for nearly four decades in so grim and earnest a manner as Koreans do. Outsiders may find it hard to understand that we have compelling reasons to do so.

Nightmarish and tragic as they may be, we cannot and should not forget our bitter wartime experiences and the precious lessons they taught us. To remember them, and in remembering be prepared for any recurrence of war, is all the more important now as the next two to three years represent a crucial period for the security of the nation.

The people in this Republic, all freedom-loving peoples in the world for that matter, must always bear in mind that Communist North Korea, which triggered the 1950-53 fratricidal war by launching a surprise attack on the totally unprepared South, the capability for invading the South again, without outside help, and is highly likely to do so if and when we ever show signs of weakness, and thereby remove the deterrence to war.

It was the removal of the deterence to war -- the withdrawal of American troops from South Korea in 1949 -- that prompted Kim Il-song, the Communist dictator in Pyongyang, to mount an all-out predawn attack across the 38th parallel the following year, in an attempt to unify the divided nation by force of arms.

Thanks to the swiftness of the United Nations in sending a 16-nation expditionary force to the aid of the beleaguered Republic of Korea, we were able to repel the Communist aggressors who had pushed the southern defenders into the southeastern corner of the peninsula.

When the guns fell silent after the signing of an armistice on July 27, 1953, more than two million people on both sides, including many civilians, were left dead. The fighting also wrought enormous havoc on the country, destroying nearly half of the industrial facilities and almost a third of the houses in the South. In the course of the war, the Communists committed countless atrocities against the people in the South.

Now that more than three decades have passed since the shooting stopped, some people are apt to think that there is no possibility of North Koreans invading the South again. They tend to regard calls for stepped-up security preparedness against the military threat from the North as false alarms aimed at maintaining the ruling group in power. Most startling are slogans shouted lately by some radical student activists that demand the withdrawal of American troops from Korea.

A recent survey of collegians by a Seoul university professor revealed that a great majority of the students see little likelihood of a renewed war on the Korea peninsula on grounds that the North Korea Communists are, after all, fellow Koreans who would not want to kill compatriots again in a fratricidal war, and that unless they are absolutely sure of victory they would avoid a war which would cause them great damage. This trend of thought appears to be growing in the postwar generation of Koreans who now make up about two-thirds of the entire population.

These young people who never experienced the miseries of war and the brutality of the North Korean Communists fail to see the truth that behind the smokescreen of peace gestures, the Pyongyang regime has intensified its offensive military strength in recent years for the obvious purpose of striking South again whenever it sees the decisive moment arrive.

They should realize, however, that what keeps the North from attacking the South again is the high level of defense preparedness on our side, backed by the presence of U.S. troops.

It is incumbent upon the adult generation to make earnest efforts to awaken the young from their illusions about the Pyongyang Communists and the security situation on the peninsula.

U.S. ECONOMIC CONSULTATIVE MEETING CONCLUDES

SK250310 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 25 Jun 86 p 1, 2

[Text] Korea has been assured by the United States that it will continue to receive GSP (Generalized System of Preference) benefits until 1993.

The assurance was provided during the fifth Korea-U.S. Economic Consultative Meeting which closed its two-day sessions yesterday, according to an official at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

He added, however, that the U.S. side urged Seoul to take more positive market-liberalization policy in order to help avoid reductions of GSP benefits to Korea in the future.

Korea has benefited from the U.S. CSP program, designed to exempt customs taxes for certain export goods from developing countries, since 1976. Last year, about 15 percent of the Korean exports to the United States received such a preferential treatment. Recently, there have been moves in the U.S. legislature to "graduate" Korea from the list of GSP beneficiaries.

Briefing reporters on the outcome of the two-day talks, the official also said the meeting has helped foster a favorable atmosphere for realizing Seoul's bid to extend Korean Air's flight right to Chicago.

The Korean delegation "strongly" requested that the United States give serious considerations to such Korean civil aviation concerns, he said.

In return for accepting some of U.S. demands for market opening in Korea, the government will continue to press Washington to accept such an aviation bid the official added. The U.S. party took note of the Korean request and agreed to convene a meeting of aviation officials "in the near future" to discuss the issue.

Both delegations also agreed to bring the negotiations under Section 301 of the U.S. Trade Act to an early conclusion, said the official. A negotiated settlement may be reached by next month on trade issues stemming from U.S. demands for increased access to the Korean market and full protection on intellectual property rights, according to government sources.

The two sides are expected to agree to include three U.S. which firms will be fire insurance companies and the remaining one life insurance company.

Both sides are also said to have ironed out their differences on U.S. demands for the protection of material patent rights, copyrights and other intellectual property rights.

During the annual economic consultative conference, the Korean delegation also requested that the United States increase fishing quota allocations to Korea for 1986. The U.S. side promised to give full consideration to the Korean demand and reciprocally called on Korea to increase its import of U.S. seafood products.

Other highlights of the meeting are as follows:

-- The two sides agreed that the New Round of multilateral trade negotiations should be launched as soon as possible.

-- The Korean side expressed concerns over U.S. moves to freeze imports of Korean textile products.

-- The U.S. side urged the Korean Government to expand the scope of liberalization and further improve its investment climate.

-- The U.S. side requested that Korea hike its imports of coal and examine the prospect of importing LNG (Liquified natural gas) from the United States.

Both delegations also agreed that it is in their common interest to manage trade and other economic issues in a "predictable, efficient and programmed manner."

In addition to regularly scheduled consultations, the two sides agreed to make full use of all available channels of communications and to hold formal or informal meetings as often as both sides deem necessary.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE FORMED TO AMEND CONSTITUTION

[Text] The National Assembly barely managed to establish a special committee to draft an amendment to the Constitution yesterday after many months of tough negotiations between rival parties.

The formation of the panel, the crucial question pending since the opening of the 12th-term Assembly in April last year, was resolved by a unanimous vote on an inter-party resolution.

The resolution gave three months for the panel's activity but it can exist, if necessary, till the end of this year according to the progress of its work.

The panel, named the "Special Constitutional Amendment Committee," is to be composed of 45 or less members. The resolution also provided that the members shall be evenly balanced between the ruling and opposition parties, excluding the panel chairman who is to be a member of the majority party.

However, the rival parties failed to clarify the composition ratio of the members among parties in the resolution. Floor leaders will continue negotiations over the question. They were arguing over whether lawmakers belonging to splinter parties should be given membership of the panel.

The main opposition New Korea Democratic Party opposed the participation of such splinter groups as the 12-member New Conservative Club and the Democratic Korea Party which has three seats in the Assembly. Desspite earlier agreements made by party leaders, the rival parties had difficulties in initiating the joint resolution in the Steering Committee due to the issue of political prisoners who had been arrested in the course of struggling for constitutional amendment. The NDP demanded that the parties present a joint recommendation to the administration for the release of those "political detainees," as a precondition for the panel creation. As the demand was flatly rejected by the DJP, the NDP held various meetings of party members, including a caucus, to finalize its policy on the panel.

Party lawmakers decided to consent to the formation of the panel because "constitutional revision is the call of the people that makes the panel's creation imperative." They also decided "to trust the promise of the ruling camp to make utmost efforts for the release of the prisoners." However, they threatened in a resolution that "without the release of all political prisoners, the House panel will be unable to achieve its mission."

They vowed that the NDP would make continuous efforts for a sweeping release, and party leaders, including President Yi Min-u and floor leader Kim Tong-yong, should vouch for the release.

Before the opening of the plenary session, floor leaders met on four occasions to set concrete terms for the panel's creation, including the drafting of the joint resolution.

Instead of drafting a new resolution, the parties modified drafts separately submitted earlier by the three major parties respectively.

Explaining the joint resolution in the plenary session, Rep. Yi Se-ki, floor leader of the DJP, said, "This resolution is the expression of our wish and the people's desire to open a new political era." "Let's pledge here to make this 12-th term Assembly a georions [as published] historic forum by giving birth to a new constitution embracing the people's will in the coming regular session," he said.

He stressed that the parties should show infinite courage and patience and pool their wisdom in order to produce a "constitutional revision satisfactory to all."

Until the rival parties finally agreed to act on the joint resolution, the plenary session was postponed several times from 2 p.m. The vote was taken at 10:30 p.m.

The House panel is expected to begin full-fledged work next month, as the rival parties have to settle the issue of distributing members among parties.

The rival parties are sure to dispute how to rewrite the basic law with regard to the form of the government.

The DJP, which has yet to bare its idea about the power structure has only expressed its opposition to the direct presidential election formula.

ACTIVISTS RAID NKDP OFFICE, HOLD SIT-IN

SK240106 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 24 Jun 86 p 8

[Text] Five university students and two fired workers have been holding a sit-down rally in the office of No Sung-hwan, a vice president of the New Korea Democratic Party, as of early this morning, demanding the party clarify its position concerning a rumor that the moderates would form a coalition in a "grand compromise."

They raided the unguarded office at around 11 a.m. yesterday, chanting anti-government slogans. Five of them were learned to be members of the unauthorized hardline student organization "Minmintu."

They distributed leaflets titled "Why We Oppose the Conservative Coalition," warning that the main opposition party should stop any attempt to wrest power by riding on the struggle of the populace against the incumbent government.

They demanded the abolition of the constitutional revision committee, projected to be set up at the National Assembly today.

They maintained that instead of the House panel, a constituent assembly representing all the people should be established to hammer out a new constitution oriented to "genuine" democracy and economic equality, among other matters.

Upon entering the office, they closed the door and set up a barricade with desks and chairs, to prevent police from storming in to arrest them.

They began a hunger strike in protest against the party officials' reluctance to arrange a meeting with party President Yi Min-u, and with Kim Yong-sam and Kim Tae-chung, co-chairman of the Council for the Promotion of Democracy.

OFFICIALS ON MEETING WITH U.S. AMBASSADOR

BK231215 Bangkok NAEO NA in Thai Jun 86 pp 1, 8

[Text] Thailand's deputy prime minister and foreign minister informed U.S. Ambassador William Brown of the effect of the Farm Act on relations and suggested that both sides adopt a friendly approach. It's been reported, meanwhile, that Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila will raise the issue of the Farm Act in discussions with the U.S. secretary of state in Manila next week.

"I told the (U.S.) ambassador that there must be some friction in U.S.-Thai relations as we are also trying to protect our national interests, especially when trade protectionism has been affecting our people at the grass-roots level," Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila said in an interview with NAEO NA on 20 June.

The deputy prime minister and foreign minister said this in answer to a question about his opinion on the report by Thai officials that the U.S. ambassador had threatened retaliation if the Thai Government fails to take measures to protect U.S. intellectual property, which is a current problem.

On 18 June, the U.S. ambassador and the ambassadors and charges d'affaires of nine European Economic Community countries and Switzerland called on Deputy Foreign Minister Praphat Limpaphan to present to him a memorandum expressing concern over Thailand's to-be-announced median prices of pharmaceutical products, which might be too low, thus making their investments in this field uneconomic. The memorandum also calls on Thailand to adopt a law to protect trade marks and patents.

According to a report by Thai officials concerning the 18 June meeting, ambassadors and charges d'affaires discussed with Thai authorities ways and means to resolve the problem. However, the U.S. ambassador made a clear-cut demand, saying that Thailand will face several forms of retaliation if it fails to solve the problem immediately.

Air Chief Marshal Sitthi said the Foreign Ministry is facing difficulties after hearing such a report. It must try to protect national interests. The matter also involves Thai laws, and a discussion on this dilemma should be held.

Commenting on the U.S. ambassador's attitude as reported, Air Chief Marshal Sitthi said: "An ambassador can adopt a positive approach to an issue if he wishes. It is easier to deal with problems if the approach is a friendly one. But if it is otherwise, things become difficult to tackle."

U.S. Embassy spokesman Larry Thomas later told NAEO NA that Ambassador Brown met with Thailand's deputy foreign minister on the protection of intellectual property only. The concern over Thailand's median prices of its pharmaceutical products was discussed at a separate session with a group of ambassadors led by the Netherlands ambassador. The matter was mistakenly reported due to the fact that the U.S. Embassy is a large one and the U.S. ambassador was at the meeting.,

The U.S. Embassy spokesman said that the embassy took up the matter because of requests from drug companies. It considers the matter a trade problem rather than one of diplomatic or bilateral relations. He expressed the hope that the problem will be resolved through proper channels according to existing laws and agreements.

The Thai deputy prime minister and foreign minister is scheduled to attend another round of Thai-U.S. talks in Manila on 26 June. He will discuss with U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz the impact of the U.S. Farm Act on Thailand's rice exports. A source told NAEO NA that for the first time he will present to George Shultz figures showing facts about the situation.

Air Chief Marshal Sitthi will again propose to the United States possible steps to help reduce the impact on Thailand. The source added that the meeting is at the request of George Shultz himself, and it is believed Shultz will bring up for discussion with the Thai side the problem of the protection of intellectual property and Thailand's garment exports.

INTERIOR OFFICIAL GIVES LATEST REPORT ON PHUKET

BK241454 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 1300 GMT 24 Jun 86

[Text] Interior Ministry Permanent Secretary Phisan Mulasatsathon said at the military airport this evening, after returning along with the police director general and a team of officials from a trip to Phuket Province, that the situation there had improved and the disturbances had been put down. The authorities are trying their best to restore peace. He believed the state of emergency there can be lifted soon.

He said authorities yesterday arrested over 40 suspects, some of whom have confessed. Authorities charged them with drunkenness, bullying, and theft. Concerning the chargeon creating disturbances, the police director general said this will depend on the result of the investigation.

Asked about the masterminds behind the disturbance, the interior permanent secretary said the authorities are investigating and will try to determine whether individuals, organizations, or the business sector was responsible. He said not only were residents of Phuket involved in the disturbance, but also people from other provinces, including Nakhon Si Thammarat and Phang-nga. He said the people in Phuket now realized that the situation has returned to normal. On the losses at the Tantalum plant, he said no estimate could yet be made. He gave assurances that the plant will not operate at all for the time being.

CHAWALIT BEGINS TO DISMANTLE NORASING FORCE

BK200129 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 20 Jun 86 pp 1, 3

[By The Chongkhadikit]

[Text] Army Commander-in-Chief Gen Chawalit Yongchaiyut has begun efforts to dismantle the Norasing Task Force, the BANGKOK POST was told yesterday. It is understood Gen Chawalit feels that the presence of the task force in the centre of the city creates an atmosphere of apprehension.

The Norasing Task Force was set up immediately after the April 1-3 coup attempt in 1981. The force, whose task is to maintain peace and order in the city and to act as a deterrent against coup attempts, is under the jurisdiction of the Capital Security Command.

Gen Chawalit has expressed his views to Supreme Commander Gen Athit Kamlang-ek, who remains in charge of the Capital Security Command, which includes the task force.

While the function of the task force is to maintain peace and order, Gen Chawalit considered it doubtful that it could act swiftly and effectively in a real emergency.

It has been reportedly agreed with Gen Athit that the task force be reduced on a stage-by-stage basis, with various elements, including the tank corps, returning to their original units.

Gen Chawalit is also said to have plans to restructure the Internal Security Operations Command into a more compact and efficient organisation, but time is needed for careful implementation.

The Army chief is to set about his policy to "turn enemies into friends" in the military by adhering strictly to principles, rules and regulations in appointments and promotions.

He will not eliminate from important and influential posts those officers who were close to Gen Athit and will not place those close to him in positions of stength for personal reasons. However, he will take good care of those who have served him loyally, though not at the cost of proper procedures.

In restoring regular practices, he intends to reunite the army and further develop it into a highly capable and effective professional defence force operating with in the costitution.

Biding his time, he plans to work closely with Gen Athit, whom he succeeded and who will remain supreme commander with overall authority over the forces until his 61st birthday on August 31.

Wherever necessary for achievement of certain objectives in cooperation with Gen Athit and other high-ranking officers, Gen Chawalit will aim for an acceptable compromise. However, if he feels it essential to do so, he will exert his authority and make a hard decision for whose consequences he will accept full responsibility.

Although he rose through the staff line rather than from troop command, Gen Chawalit feels he has learned thoroughly about command decision-making through having been engaged in drawing up strategic, tactical and contigency plans for battle situations to ensure maximum attainment of objectives at minimum cost in lives and material.

The Army chief has ordered that he would not need special escort motocade with flashing lights when he goes out but if security regulations require, a lead car could be provided. He has also reportedly informed all regional commands that after his initial formal visit there should be no more honour guards for him when he makes a call. He would prefer to have the soldiers out on duty, in the field or in operation, or resting when it is their time off.

Gen Chawalit reportedly insits that he retires in two years, five years before he reaches the regular retirement age of 60, because he believes he will have achieved what he desires for the army and because he would like to make way for the upward mobility of promising officers all down the line. Although he has maintained close contacts with all major political parcies, he has declined to discuss the possiblity of his becoming involved in politics after his retirement. For the two-year duration he reportedly wishes to concentrate on working for the army.

Need To Restructure ISOC

BK250149 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 25 Jun 86 p 7

[Text] Army Commander-in-Chief General Chawalit Yongchaiyut yesterday stressed the need for restructuring the intelligence gathering network of the Internal Security Operations Command [ISOC] and to make the best use of limited funds to combat communist activities.

In his first policy statement as the director of communist suppression operations, Gen Chawalit also censured ISOC's Santi Nimit units for engaging in too much entertainment activities and for lacking in playing a more constructive role for the benefit of the people.

Addressing ISOC officials at Chunlachomklao Royal Military Academy yesterday, General Chawalit stressed the need for all ISOC intelligence units to restructure their intelligence network and intelligence gathering efforts to meet changing situations.

The Intelligence Coordinating Centre will control, direct and coordinate the efforts of all intelligence units of ISOC, Army and Capital Security Command for maximum beneift, said Gen Chawalit. Only resourceful and experienced officers should be recruited for intelligence work, and sophisticated equipment must be acquired to increase the efficiency of operation as a whole, he said.

Gen Chawalit said ISOC's role should be limited to coordinating, planning and administering the budget, and its role as the executor of anti-communist activities will be taken over by units directly concerned with suppression.

The government's policy to scale down paramilitary forces and permanent staff at every level of ISOC, from the directorate down to tactical units, would continue to be observed, he said. But Gen Chawalit said on the other hand, efficiency must be improved with emphasis on the urban struggle.

Touching on the activist groups formed by ISOC, namely the O Pho Po [People's Volunteers for Development and Self Defense] and Tho So Po Cho [Volunteer Defense Corps] as part of its mobilization of the people, Gen Chawalit said the groups had been in conflict with one another. To restore unity, he advocated an educational programme to set up a mass group dedicated to the promotion of democratic institutions with His Majesty the King as the head of state.

"The crux of the political offensive means that we have to resort to every means to make our people aware that they are a part of this land, have a part as the real owner of this country. And apart from being the owner of this land, they are also owners of every level of administrative system in this country...," said the Army chief.

To fulfil government policy to defeat the communists with a limited budget, Gen Chawalit said a committee consisting of representatives from all ISOC units should be set up to look into the arrangement and allocation of funds for anticommunist efforts.

Pointing out the wastage problem in all ISOC units, he called on ISOC to be more economical and make maximum use of the equipment provided.

HO CHI MINH CITY DAILY SAID 'OVERLY OPTIMISTIC'

BK211350 Hong Kong AFP in English 1310 GMT 21 Jun 86

[By Laurent Maillard]

[Text] Hanoi, June 21 (AFP) -- The Vietnamese media paints an overly optimistic picture of the country in wooly language which obscures reality, Vietnamese readers and journalists complain. Newspapers should print information "which startles leaders and makes them sweat," one reader suggested in a letter to the editor published in the Ho Chi Minh City newspaper SAIGON GIAI PHONG. Complaints about the Vietnamese media have appeared in the newspaper over the past two months in line with a criticism campaign being carried out around the country. It published further selections Saturday on the occasion of "Vietnamese media day," a celebration of the 61st anniversary of the appearance of the first Vietnamese "revolutionary newspaper' published by Ho Chi Minh.

For the most part, readers praised SAIGON GIAI PHONG for its courage in publishing the often virulent letters to the editor. But readers condemned the Vietnamese press as a whole for lacking the independence and courage to publish negative information about the country's leaders. "The general opinion is that the press only criticizes negative aspects at the lower end of the hierarchy, sparing the upper ranks," one reader said. "Many facts about high-ranking officials are not published at all," the reader continued. Another reader urged the media to provide more statistics in its articles, which he said tended to give too much weight to good news and did not reflect reality most of the time.

A SAIGON GIAI PHONG journalist wrote that there were a "large number of part officials who do not tell the truth." He denounced the "mania of painting everything rosy" which he said afflicted journalists who were fearful of being accused of denigrating the country. He cited several instances in which he was forced to publish information generally military and economic news, which he knew was false. Faced with intimidation and pressure, journalists generally restrict themselves to criticizing "those who urinate in the street or sleep in public parts," he said. Free speech is generally more respected in southern Vietnam, he said. Observers in the capital agreed, noting that the Hanoi press has not followed the example of SAIGON GIAI PHONG in publishing critical letters from readers. Articles on the criticism campaign in Hanoi newspapers have been virtually idential from one day to the next, limited to singling out instances of corruption among lower-rnaking party officials.

NHAN DAN, the official communist party newspaper, began printing critical letters when the campaign began, but their publication ceased abruptly. And while the Ho Chi Minh City newspaper Saturday printed letters criticizing the press, NHAN DAN published an editorial extolling the "glorious mission" of the mass media. The press should "rigorously stress the positive, promote the new-style man and participate in the daily struggle against imperialism," NHAN DAN said. The editorial listed the three duties of a journalist: communication, propaganda and education.

ARROYO: SHULTZ BRINGING 'RENTAL MONEY' NOT AID

[Text] U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz arrived yesterday bearing $200-million as rental money for payment to the Philippine government for the United States Government's use of its two military bases in the country. The $200-million is not being appropriated as US aid to push the Philippine economy under the Aquino government out of the doldrums, but as "rental money which had been budgeted but which the US Government did not disburse for the year 1985-1986," Executive Secretary Joker Arroyo told newsmen. He said, "It (the $200-million) is debt owed by the US Government to the Philippines for the use of their (the US) bases here; and is being released now." Arroyo also underlined that since President Corazon C. Aquino assumed office, the US Government has yet to appropriate a single cent in support of the Aquino administration's effort to rebuild the economy left ravaged by the excesses of the past administration.

Meanwhile, Justino Bernas, executive director of the Economic Support Fund [ESF] secretariat, explalined yesterday that $119 million of the $200-million check handcarried by Shultz to Manila represents money already allocated to the ESF for release early this year but "was withheld by US Congress because it did not want the money to be used by expresident Marcos in the last February's president election."

Bernas claimed that without the ESF funds, the ousted president dipped his fingers into the general fund and passed off the money he got as ESF money, intending to reimburse these with money to be later gotten from US aid.

[Text] Beijing, June 20 (PNA) -- Prospects are bright for an expanded trade ties between China and the Philippines following the three-day visit here early this week of Vice President and Foreign Minister Salvador H. Laurel. Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang assured Laurel here that China was taking steps to help push the Philippines' economy recovery program. Zhao said China had agreed to buy more products from the Philippines that includes fertilizers, copper concentrates, bananas and copper cathodes.

Laurel said China's contracts would about to some 50 million U.S. dollars. He said China had also agreed to review its 20 million U.S. dollar credit line to the Philippines, in addition to another 20 million U.S. dollars in trade facility. China has likewise committed to send an investment mission to the Philippines soon to study possible areas for expansion in trade between the two countries. These include mining, wood and paper pulp. In exchange, Laurel said, the Philippines will buy from China 430,000 metric tons of crude oil at a price favorable to the Philippines. China used to sell crude oil to the Philippines at friendship prices.

During his three-day official visit here, Laurel and Chinese Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian agreed to set up more consular offices in each other's country to facilitate trade exchanges. China will open a consulate soon in Cebu City and the Philippines in Xiamen, one of China's major capitals. Laurel and Wu likewise committed to hold an annual meeting of their Foreign Ministry officials to promote closer bilateral relations between China and the Philippines.

During his stay here, Chinese Chairman Deng Xiaoping assured Laurel that China will not make trouble for you. China's policy towards the Philippines, Deng told Laurel, is non-intervention, non-interference and non-involvement.

Deng also said that China has ceased contacts with the outlawed Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP). He described as purely an internal problem the communist insurgency problem in the Philippines.

RAMOS HOLDS NEWS CONFERENCE AT CAMP AGUINALDO

Reports Decline in Clashes

HK250353 Quezon City BUSINESS DAY in English 24 Jun 86 p 18

[Text] A decline in the number of violent encounters between the Armed Forces and the communist-backed New People's Army (NPA) during the past two months breathes new hope to the ongoing negotiations with the CPP [Communist Party of the Philippines] leadership for a ceasefire. Armed encounters declined considerably during the past two weeks ever since government emissaries started a secret dialog with their counterparts in the CPP hierarchy, New Armed Forces of the Philippines (NAFP) chief of staff, Gen. Fidel Ramos told newsmen yesterday at Camp Aguinaldo.

"The first contact has been made and right now, I believe both parties are negotiating about positions, namely, safe conduct guarantees and others," Ramos said. The chief of staff said as of the first 110 days of the new government, there has been an average on only nine casualties [per day] from encounters between government troops and the communist insurgents.

These are broken down as follows: three military personnel (soldiers, CHDF [Civilian Home Defense Force] and police members), three NPA and three civilians and other government functionaries. "Compared to the same period in 1985, which had an average of 14 casualties per day -- four soldiers, six NPA and four civilians -- the number of casualties has gone down," Ramos said.

Ramos noted that the NAFP has been suffering more casualties than the rebels during the post-revolution period mainly because of the present "active defensive stance" of the military in the countryside. "Our present defensive stance is in line with the reconciliation thrust of President Corazon C. Aquino and we intend to maintain this until she orders otherwise," Ramos said.

The chief of staff reiterated that no informal ceasefire between the military and the NPA as of yet exists. He admitted, however, that the "temporary semi-lull" in hostilities between the two sides is most welcome and can give a boost to the government's ongoing efforts to achieve a halt in the fighting. "We've been encouraging local commanders in the field to take the initiative insofar as reducing violence in the countryside," Ramos said. "The only condition I ask of these field commanders when they take such initiatives is they first get the commitment and support of the people in their respective localities before attempting anything."

Meanwhile, Ramos directed yesterday military and police units in Metro Manila to coordinate their civil disturbance control operations "to insure harmony" during dispersal operations against rallyists. Ramos ordered an immediate joint investigation of the reported violance that erupted in the loyalist rally at EDSA [Epifina de los Santos] fronting Camp Aguinaldo in Quezon City last Sunday. In that rally some troopers, policemen and civilians were reported inured.

Warns Against Coalition

[Text] Armed Forces Chief of Staff General Fidel Ramos yesterdawy said that based on the communists' pattern of revolutionary warfare in Southeast Asia, any coalition entered into by the communists resulted in the collapse of democracy. General Ramos made this statement during a press conference in Camp Aguinaldo yesterday [24 Jun].

He said any coalition entered into by communists where there was no sincere renunciation of violance and terrorism with the armed struggle by them, always resulted in the collapse of the democratic system in those countries. Although he did not mention names, Ramos was obviously referring to Vietnam, Laos, and Kampuchea. He said one must examine the pattern used by the communists to gain power. At the same time, he said the Communist Party of the Philippines is the broader organization which utilizes the National Democratic Front as one of its many front organizations.

Concerning the Civilian Home Defense Force, General Ramos said the military has been given by President Aquino until the early part of July to jutify the retention of the Civilian Home Defense Force [CHDF]. There are about 75,000 CHDF all over the country who directly support the regular armed forces in the fight against communist insurgency. He said the 150,000 strong armed forces cannot do it alone in fighting the rebels scattered all over the country. Ramos said abusive CHDF will have to weeded out. He said about 5 percent of the CHDF forces have been identified as abusive.

Warns of Increased Attacks

HK251042 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in Tagalog 1000 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Excerpt] Speaking at a news conference, Armed Forces Chief of Staff General Fidel Ramos said that communist rebels are expanding their aggression all over the country. He said that it should be noted that the New People's Army has increased and continued attacks against civilians, and government offices and installations in Mindanao, Bicol, Bulacan, and other Provinces. In addition, Ramos mentioned the discovery of a large gravesite where government informants were said to have been buried alive. He said the body count totalled 62. The mass gravesite is situated some 830 kilometers south of Manila.

'SOURCES' CITED ON STATUS OF CPP LEADERSHIP

[By Roy S. De Guzman and Ed Perpena]

[Text] Two top-ranking leaders of the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP), although clipped of broad policy making powers, were never eased out of the party hierarchy. This was revealed to the INQUIRER by senior party sources who, at the same time, denied there were ongoing official talks with the Aquino government.

Contrary to earlier reports, CPP chairman Rodolfo Salas and party secretary-general Rafael Baylosis have neither resigned nor been forcibly made to quit their top posts, sources said. Salas and Baylosis, advocates of the boycott policy cadres who openly criticized the snap election boycott which has been described as "a major tactical blunder."

The two retaind their posts and their seats in the executive committee of the CPP Central Committee, which has been expanded. More seats were added to the previously five-man body, although this was not thoroughly explained by our sources. The new executive committee member are identified with the "moderate" faction which favors negotiations with the government and a review of the war tactics employed by the CPP in its 18-year struggle for state control.

The sweeping powers by which Salas and Baylosis -- recognized CPP military tacticians -- ruled over the party since the arrest of the first crop of leaders almost 10 years ago, were clipped. Also, the new leaders' sentiments "neutralize" the "intransigent" views held by the two CPP hardliners.

The moderate view -- represented by executive committee members Jose "Pepe" Lueneta and Antonio Ma. Zumel, and official CPP emissary Satur Ocampo -- has reportedly gained greater influence in the CPP's ruling circles. "As a result, the CPP is now more open about holding talks with the government representatives," said one of our sources, who requested that he not be named and his position in the rebel movement not be revealed. But he denied government allegations that ceasefire talks between the official representatives from both camps are not underway.

"Messages are received," he said, but so far, no offical meeting between representatives of the CPP and the government have been held. He said, however, that "preparations are being made so as to facilitate the holding of the discussions."

As a matter of policy, no official announcements are made by the CPP regarding its leadership structure and composition. The party source further revealed that even as the demotion, even expulsion, from the CPP of Salas and Baylosis were demanded by a considerable number of underground CPP cadres and fulltime NPA guerrillas, the question of who takes over can only be resolved by a party congress. "That congress would come only in a year's time," he said, as he revealed that plans are afoot for the holding of national party congress soon, the first to be held since the CPP's founding on Dec. 16, 1968.

He also confirmed reports that there is now a thorough review of CPP policies, particularly the Maoist principle of a protracted people's war in the countryside, which through the years has caused the deaths of thousands of civilians and combatants from both the insurgents and government's side.

Meanwhile, the Laguna provincial government could achieve a breakthrough in its effort to open a dialog with Communist guerrillas operating in several Laguna towns. A ceasefire between the New People's Army and the military is also seen as possible even without policy guidelines on truce being issued by both the government and the CPP, said Isidro Hildawa, a member of the Laguna provincial board.

In recent talks with some regular NPA members, Hildawa and Samuel Bueser, another board member, said they were asked to "just shows good faith in dealing with the people" as a pre-condition toward the start of a dialog. They said a certain "Kumander [Commander] Ireneo" had asked them to institute "some concrete changes" to help Laguna farmers. Ireneo was also quoted by the two officials as requiring the government to construct farm-to-market roads.

Immediately after the talks, the provincial board passed a resolution appropriating P300,000 for the construction of a feeder road in Bgy. San Antonio, of this town. Also, the military authorities in Laguna also committed their engineering brigade to help in roads construction.

OCAMPO SAYS CEASE-FIRE TALKS NOT UNDERWAY YET

[Report by Ninez Cacho-Olivares: "Coimmunist Leaders Air Views: Peace Is a 'Theoretical Possibility'"]

[Text] Peace between the government and the insurgents continues to be viewed by responsible representatives of the extreme left as a "theoretical possibility." But is a coalition government, that is to say, joint rule by representatives of workers, peasants, the bourgeoisie, capitalists also a "theoretical possibility?"

If ceasefire negotiations push through, the National Democratic Front (NDF), the umbrella organization of the underground movement and the communists' official negotiator, political settlement, to the insurgents, may ultimately mean the sharing of political power with the present government. [sentence as published]

If the "theoretical possibility" becomes a reality, theirs will have to be a minority representation "because the Aquino government is in place. But for the present, we are looking for some way out of the impasse." This was the view expressed by three top-ranking communist leaders during an interview conducted over the weekend by BUSINESS DAY at a guerrilla camp in the mountain ranges of Bicol.

The projected peace negotiations are looked upon by the officers of the extreme left as a step forward, but only if the talks are held on a national level. Regional talks, the laying down of arms and the surrender of arms to government are out of the question, according to Antonio Zumel, Satur Ocampo and Jose Luneta, who asked to be referred as "responsible officers" of the communist organization. "Peace talks on regional levels are divisive," says Satur Ocampo, the NDF emissary.

Antonio Zumel, a newsman who went underground when martial law was declared and is now an important communist party leader, explains why the communist underground organization won't lay down their arms. "The only defense of the masses are the arms of the NPA. If we lay down our arms, the exploiting class will just come back and regain whatever they might have lost."

And to the extreme left, the gains are manifold. The NDF-CPP [Communist Party of the Philippines] -NPA's minimum program of its "genuine revolutionary land reform program has been implemented. The share of the tenants has been increased. There has been a reduction of land rent and in some areas, "technical confiscation" has been realized as some lands have been taken over by 'people's organizations'."

"Even the NDF program has been adjusted to accommodate landlords who are supportive of the maximum program," Jose "Pepe" Luneta, a high-ranking member of the CPP's central party committee, said.

But Zumel adds that what is more important is for both parties to address the problems of our society. "(President) Cory (Aquino) acknowledges that the root of our problems is structural. She says she wants to address the root of the problem. What we should do is to get together, jointly, with cooperation on both sides, and in good faith address the problems of our society."

Satur Ocampo adds, "We are now looking for a settlement to the problem without the full revolutionary method and program we advocate. It will have to be an accommodation to what government wants and the government accommodating to some of what we want. A cmmon ground should be found. Supposing we agree on the implementation of an aspect of any program that we agree upon or we agree to help implement an aspect of the program the Aquino government offers, there should be a mechanism through which we can join rcommendations."

As for the ceasefire, Jose Luneta looks upon this as one that is mutually agreed upon and means just that -- "Tigil and putukan. Walang patayan," [The firing stops. No killing] and a search for a political solution during that period of negotiations.

Is a peaceful, political solution to the problem possible and are peace talks between the leftist guerrillas and the government under way? The Manila dailies reported Saturday that, according to Mrs Aquino, peace negotiations between emissaries of the government and the NDF-CPP-NPA were already in progress and that proposals for regional ceasefire were under study. But this was denied by communist leaders during the interview last Saturday. Ocampo told BUSINESS DAY that ceasefire talks had not even begun. "The government has not told us officially who its emissary is. How can the talks be under way? All we know at the moment is that a Cabinet minister will serve as emissary."

On the part of the communist organization, however, consultations with the party cadres, the NPA, its militia and the peasant organizations have started. The question of a ceasefire agreement has been tossed to the peasantry through consultative discussions. The issue is thoroughly discussed and free debate is encouraged by party members. Whatever consensus is arrived at is relayed to the party. "At this point, we are still at that preliminary stage," Ocampo told BUSINESS DAY.

At one such consultative meeting BUSINESS DAY was invited to listen in. Party members and sympathizers voiced the opinion that a ceasefire agreement may not be the solution to the problems they face. They also claimed that while government speaks of peace, it nevertheless continued to step up its counterinsurgency operations. The ICHDF (Integrated Civilian Home Defense Forces), as claimed by them, is still intact and fighting between the NPA and the armed forces has not abated. For the peasants present, the general sentiment was that the Aquino government has done nothing in the past four months to alleviate their condition. In that camp, the consensus seemed to be that of ignoring the ceasefire proposal and continuing with armed struggle as a solution to the problems of society.

The AFP (Armed Forces of the Philippines) and the ICHDF are sore points with the armed left and its peasants-sympathizers. How are hostilities between the armed groups expected to vanish?

"Perhaps what is needed is a total reorientation process for the AFP," says Zumel. "But from what we hear, the AFP is being strengthened for counterinsurgency purposes to maintain the present system. That means physically suppressing the New People's Army and all other armed opposition forces."

But from government's view, isn't suppression of all armed opposition forces necessary for the defense and protection of the state?

That, to Zumel, is a matter of interpretation. "Ours is generally referred to as the hidden government. This may be hidden to the state, but to the people out here in the consolidated areas, the government is not hidden. Ours is the actual government."

A CPP official takes a slightly different slant. "We may be jumping much too forward, but I think it (the ceasefire agreement) will ultimately get to a point where part of the military solution to the problem is precisely that -- reorientation of the Armed Forces of the Philippines and maintaining the integrity of the New People's Army and either putting it in a coordinated relationship with the new reformed armed forces or integrating it as a group.

"Of course there has to be a political basis for such an arrangement and that would be in terms of a political settlement that would be arrived at between the Cory government and the NDF, (one) that would partake the character of a coalition government."

The idea, party officials said, has already been floated and reactions have been received. "President Aquino has already stated that she will not have communists in her government, that coalition is not acceptable. These are publicly stated positions. But we believe that if we are able to lay down the basis why it is a necessary solution to the problem, it would be understood in a different light. Reason must prevail and then we can arrive at a negotiated solution."

Luneta says: "We have to go through a process whereby positions are clarified. First, we must establish the sincerity of the parties that want to talk and negotiate. Then, after that has been established, what do we talk about? Here is our program and we want this to be open to the people and we want this, our program, to be considered by the government. The government has its own program. Saan ba puwede tayong magsalubong dyan? [Where can we compromise?] ...but definitely, we are open to the possibility of a ceasefire." He jokingly adds, "We won't ask the AFP to lay down its arms."

Is peace possible? The party officials seem to think it is possible, now that the channels of communications are open. They see certain solutions to the impasse. But these may not be the answers government has in mind, making peace elusive once again.

Can there ever be a meeting of the minds? The government sees insurgency as a problem. But the other side sees it as something else. Zumel stresses: "Insurgency is not the problem. It is the solution."

NDF SPOKESMAN INTERVIEWED ON CEASE-FIRE TALKS

HK200811 Manila PHILIPPINE DAILY INQUIRER in English 18-19 Jun 86 pp 13-14, 13

["Features" column by Rosario A. Garcellano: "Interview with Antonio Zumel: 'Ours Is a Civil and Civilized Movement'"; Part I]

[Text] While researching for her forthcoming book END GAME: THE FALL OF THE MARCOS REGIME, expatriate writer Ninotchka Rosca met with some underground resistance leaders, including Antonio Zumel, spokesperson of the National Democratic Front (NDF), the umbrella coalition of clandestine revolution forces. Being old colleagues in the press, the two discussed many things, including the ceasefire talks. Realizing the immediate significance of this portion of the interview, Rosca asked for and was granted permission to release it to PHILIPPINE NEWS AND FEATURES.

On Zumel, Rosca reports: "Antomel (old nickname conferred on Zumel by media people) looked no different from the last time we met -- 1972. Still very much an El Greco figure, lean and ascetic. Still chain smoking, though conscious of it now. Once or twice, he slipped into the old media lingo, saying mahal (dear) which, because it dated both of us, was rather mortifying. However, his grasp of the intricacies of politics and of the national situation has deepened. One could sense in Antomel a profound identification with that amorphous collective called the people, the masses. It was obvious he felt the terrible burden of responsibility -- perhaps, a sense of the historicity of his pronouncements -- at this critical juncture of national developments. Sometimes, when speaking of how complex the problems were, both facing nation and the underground movement, he'd make a delicate gesture of restlessness, as though groping for -- well, maybe readier solutions. (Or then again, maybe for a gun.")

Ninotchka Rosca (NR): What will be the NDF's role in the ceasefire talks?

Antonio Zumel (AZ): This is one issue to be discussed. In the beginning, the Cory government did not specify what body it wanted to deal with. Then, later, Cory herself said she wanted to talk to the Communist Party of the Philippines' (CPP) top leaders, or there won't be any talks. But we in the NDF -- we're the ones prepared to face the government panel. The CPP, on the other hand, is prepared to execute a document to the effect that the NDF will represent them and the New People's Army (NPA). Whatever agreement will be reached with the NDF panel will be binding on the CPP-NPA.

NR: But (former newsman and political prisoner) Satur Ocampo has been named....

AZ: We will have to communicate with the government on this. True, the movement committed Satur to the ceasefire negotiations but as part of the NDF panel. Perhaps Cory wanted to include this (breakthrough) among her hundred-days achievement, so she made the announcement. But there was some misrepresentation -- whether waittingly or unwittingly, we don't know.

NR: That Satur will represent the CPP?

AZ: Yes, not the NDF. We're not yet in the panel negotiations proper, we still have a lot to discuss. Technical matters, mostly, relating to the logistics of the actual panel talks.

NR: So the "rebel" negotiating panel will be NDF?

AZ: You see, even though the CPP is big and its army large, both are still only a portion of the national democratic movement. Now, the NDF represents all, including sectoral organizations...

NR: If the government refuses to accept the NDF panel?

AZ: That, too, will have to be discussed. I understand they're thinking of variations like the NDF-CPP or CPP-NPA-NDF...

NR: If the NDF is not directly involved...

AZ: The other NDF affiliates won't feel bound by the agreement. That's a factor to consider.

NR: On the other hand, meeting with you would be granting NDF a belligerent status.

AZ: Again, that's one factor to consider. I understand that Tony Tupas's group is raising the view that while the CPP is simply a political party, the NDF is a proto-government.

NR: Why make a distinction between NDF and CPP when, according to your detractors, you are Party-dominated, anyway?

AZ: I was one of those who first served in the NDF's Prep-Com (preparatory commission) so I know a little of its history. I was present during is conceptualization in 1972.

NR: I thought the NDF Prep-Com was set up in April 1973.

AZ: That's the start of its official history. But there were initial meetings even before martial law, when it seemed there was no basis even for such an organization. Voltaire was with us.

NR: Enrique Voltaire Garcia II (past chairman of the University of the Philippines Student Council and delegate to the 1971 Constitutional Convention)?

AZ: Yes, I say this now in recognition of his contributions to the national democratic movement, which should be acknowledged. He was not a Party member but nobody can beggar his defense of the national and democratic interests of our people.

Anyway, in those first meetings, the Front was to be a gathering of patriotic and revolutionary classes and organizations. It was conceived to be the center of different organizations which -- so long as they were opposed to foreign and domestic exploitation and were for the defense of the national and democratic interests of our people. The NDF was to function as their alliance.

In '73-'74, we issued our 10-point program without elaboration. Later, the points were elaborated upon. In the last few years, those 10 points became 12, with some elaboration, because of the changing situation and because of suggestions from our friends. The draft has been everywhere, even to the U.S. We're that open to criticism and suggestion.

NR: It's been said that the program is simply a rehash of Mao Zedon's own program.

AZ: Our starting point was the requirements of our local situation then we had copies of the programs of different liberation movements. Latin American, Vietnam's NLF (National Liberation Front).... Some ideas came from these but the basis was still our anlysis of our own society. The 1984-1985 program will again be revised. Not substantially but in response to suggestions from allies and friends. This will be the first order of the day at the NDF congress.

NR: Wasn't that supposed to be in June last year?

AZ: No. Not yet. But all the mass organizations under the NDF are already in place. Among the oldest is the Christians for National Liberation. We have the Kabataang Makabayan [National Youth] the health workers -- doctors, nurses, dentists, a rather large group, the Kaguma [expansion unknown] of the teachers, then our peasant and workers organizations. We also have an organization for members of the bureaucracy and another for nationalist businessmen. Then, the minorities [as published] The Cordillera People's Democratic Front is an affiliate.

Over the years, we have not been lacking in perseverance when it comes to establishing relations with the MNLF (Moro National Liberation Front). Although there are no relations between our and their higher councils, in Mindanao, there is de factor alliance between commanders of both sides. We offered to set up a still broader coalition where the NDF will only be a body within and with which the MNLF could relate. Then, there are other relatively small socialist groups...

NR: The charge is that the NDF is only the CPP in alliance with itself. I understand this is the reason for the reluctance of, say, the Coalition of Marxist-Leninist Groups (MLG) to join the NDF.

AZ: Not true. We have many non-Marxist groups which join because they agree with our program. All member organizations have independence and initiative; all plans are discussed democratically. You mentioned the MLG. We presented our program to some friends there for comment. They said it was fine, it was correct, it was a good program. But they said they would just relate with us, without joining. That's okay. As long as today and in the future, we will be helping each other. Organizations like this are progressive and revolutionary.

Now, our member organizations implement the national democratic program. The CPP does so, with the NPA. But we also encourage the formation of other armed groups. The CPP and the NPA also offer their assistance toward this end. The NDF does not have weapons to spare but we're ready to train such forces in our guerrilla zones.

NR: Is this a policy -- encouraging all groups to form their own armies?

AZ: We not only encourage this; we're ready to help. I envision a future when we will have a national revolutionary army, of which the NPA can serve as the core. All the military forces of progressive and revolutionary organizations can be integrated into this. Then, whatever we can win over from the Armed Forces of the Philippines -- I have no doubt this will happen. The truth is that some in the AFP are with the movement -- the result of Victor Corpuz's and Crispin Tagamolila's example. Over the last 13 years, we've had defections from the AFP -- sergeants, soldiers, who became NPA guerrillas.

NR: With the ceasefire negotiations, your bottom line demands are....

AZ: Dismantling of the Civilian Home Defense Force (CHDF), dismantling of private armies, withdrawal of military encampments and outposts from our territories back to the military barracks.

NR: I thought that has been rejected.

AZ: We haven't talked.

NR: How do you expect the CHDF to be disbanded when it was set up by Gen. Fidel V. Ramos himself?

AZ: The CHDF's track record is terrible. Lumpen elements in the barrio were recruited into the CHDF. You pay such a person P200; you give him authority and a gun... And he's the village thug. So he uses his gun to extort and oppress others. The CHDF record is not defensible. Cory herself in her Davao speech said she'd ask Ramos to explain why the CHDF should be retained. And (former Sen. Jose) Diokno's human rights commission has recommended the disbandment of the CHDF.

Of course, this question stems from a larger one: Has Cory consolidated her control over the AFP? Will they bind themselves to the agreement that will come out of the negotiations?

We guarantee that whatever our panel binds itself to will be binding on our forces to the lowest level.

NR: I heard that Ramos and (Defense Minister) Enrile want to talk to Commander Bilog (alleged to be Rodolfo Sales, purportedly CPP chairman).

AZ: We say that the ceasefire question is a political problem, not a military one. We will not talk to the AFP; we will negotiate with the Cory government. Cory herself has excluded Enrile and Ramos. But it is not improbable that they will have an officer sit in when it comes to military technical matters. In which case, we will have a military cadre with us -- either from our Military Commission or General Staff.

NR: What do you expect personally? Is a ceasefire really possible?

AZ: Instead of a full-fledged ceasefire, we can have a standstill. So long as their soldiers don't enter barrios, neither will we go to the towns looking for trouble. You stay there, we'll stay here. We don't raid municipal halls and military camps. Now, a true ceasefire will mean delineating territorial boundaries and a monitoring of violations.

NR: Do your communication facilities have the capacity to do this?

Az: That's one objective problem we have to overcome. When the mayor of Gonzaga (Cagayan province) was punished by comrades, Enrile raised such a fuss you'd think this person was a saint. But the details of this man's record -- which had to come from the Cagayan comrades -- to show that his punishment was just and correct reached us late. It took a long time to get here. So monitoring will be a problem. The NDF panel delegation will have to have such reports almost immediately.

NR: How long -- if ever -- do you expect such an agreement to last?

AZ: We should place in a larger context Cory's call for lasting peace, principled peace, enduring peace. You ask what is a meaningful ceasefire? It means removing the root causes for the people's taking up arms against government. Feudalism is still the biggest domestic issue. Majority of our people are tied to feudal and semi-feudal exploitation. If this problem is not addressed, there will be no peace in this country. Unjust structures will remain. Even though the probability is very, very small that Cory's government will turn away from foreign domination and implement genuine land reform, still we're ready to try. If we can convince them. If they can accept our proposed solutions (to our social problems), then the fighting will stop. If we can resolve our society's basic problems in this manner, why bother shooting at anyone?

On the other hand, Cory's own class interests operate. If you remember the PDP-LABAN land reform position, it revolved around technological aid, marketing assistance -- nothing on land distribution.

I do not doubt Cory's sincerity, but will her reactionary colleagues allow the process of land reform to push through?

NR: If she insists on it?

AZ: If she allies herself with the people aha! We will support her and all of us, hand in hand, can confront these reactionary forces. If she wants a meaningful peace, sooner or later, she will have to meet these problems head-on. But here are the factors to be considered: the AFP, US imperialism, American big business here, reactionaries like Jobo Fernandez and Jimmy Ongpin who wish the Philippines not only within the spirit but the letter even of International Monetary Fund-World Bank impositions. These oppose even the smallest of democratic measures coming from Cory and the progressive bloc in her government. It is not improbable that if Cory proceeds with championing the people's interests, these forces within and without government will move to destabilize her thoroughly.

NR: What about seemingly independent initiatives of church groups -- like Sr. Gemma in Samar?

AZ: I understand that Sr. Gemma's order is a conservative one; it was never politically active until last February -- unlike other orders whose members joined the parliament of the streets way, way back. That we all desire peace is fine -- but Sr. Gemma's group's approach to the problem of armed struggle was simplistic. Our society's problems are complex. Yet they offered no solutions. All they wanted was for the comrades to lay down their arms.

Now, they entered the guerilla zone, saying they came in peace. Our comrades were polite -- ours is a civil and civilized movement. So, they received the visitors well and listened. Then, they told her: "Ceasefire, sister, is being discussed by our movement and the government right now. First of all, laying down arms is not part of the discussion. --"

NR: Is this an absolute?

AZ: Absolute. What, surrender? (laughs). We have historic experience of the ruling class' bad faith when dealing with people like us. If we lay down our arms, what will happen? The landlords will return with their private armies and take back what has been won under our revolutionary land reform program. Lay down arms -- never, not even at the moment of liberation itself, because we have to protect the gains of our revolution, paid for with so much hardship, so many lives.

NR: And from the AR [Armed Forces of the Philippines], what do you expect?

AZ: They may not really be interested in a ceasefire. All throughout the time Cory was uttering sweet words of reconciliation, the AFP was hitting us relentlessly. Enrile himself said all's fair in war. The irony was that all the time they were hitting us -- they're still attacking us -- they were and are coddling Marcos loyalists, treating warlords like Dimaporo and Singson with kid gloves. You can see here the direction of their main blow -- it was against us.

We greatly fear that, based on their past moves, (the military) will either block or sabotage these (ceasefire) efforts. Perhaps, even before we discuss the possibility of discussing, our people should be aware of the fact that here (in the AFP), we have possible obstacles, serious obstacles.

Despite this, we will talk with the government. Don't however, lose sight of efforts within and outside the AFP to derail these talks, of attempts by forces like the U.S., for instance, which are only interested in crushing our movement.

NR: Are you going to be in the panel?

AZ: I don't know. Should I be? What do you think?

NR: Ulp....

AZ: I can't imagine how it will be after 14 years underground, 14 years in the guerrilla zones. Aside from your concerns in the negotiations, there will be invitations to speak here, speak there you have to meet the press to apprise them of the situation. We may see each other at....

NR: ...the Press Club!

AZ: It will take some adjustment.

NR: I'll bet you a Black Label though the NDF panel will be all-male.

AZ: Done! you're going to lose!

CPP TO MAKE CORDILLERAS MAIN GUERRILLA BASE

HK240307 Manila THE NEW PHILIPPINES DAILY EXPRESS in English 23 Jun 86 pp 1, 3

[Text] Tuguegarao, Cagayan -- A senior military officer Friday said communist rebels are planning to convert the huge Cordillera ranges into a guerrilla base. Brig. Gen. Manuel Ribo, Cagayan Valley Regional unified commander, said Mountain Province is being eyed by the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) as the main guerrilla base of operation by the New People's Army (NPA), its military arm.

He said the guerrilla base will be under the centralized leadership of the Northern Luzon Commission (NLC) of the CPP to promote the so-called people's war against the government. According to Ribo, NLC has been organized into three supra-provincial committees. The first supra-provincial committee is composed of Cagayan, sub-province of Apayao and Ilocaos Norte; second comprises the provinces of Abra, Kalinga subprovince and Mountain Province and the third is composed of Ifugao, Quirino and Nueva Vizcaya.

During his briefing at the regional peace and order council in Tuguegarao presided over by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, General Ribao said the NLC envisions in two years time to link all CPP-NPA provincial zones in Ilocos and Cagayan Valley regions. These are Cagayan, Ilocos Norte, Abra, Isabela, Nueva Vizczya, Kalinga, Mountain Province and Ilocos Sur.

Ribo said if the organization will push through, these areas will serve as bases for NPA guerillas to launch company size to undersize battalion attacks. Ribo also said the rebels are planning to establish guerilia encampments in Sierra Madre mountain.

He said the CPP/NPA selected the Cordillera and Sierra Madre ranges for economic reason, considering that these areas are where the lucrative wood industries owned by logging operators are located. The NPA imposes a "progressive tax" on logging firms in Cagayan by as much as P50,000 each tractor, P15,000 per truck and P5,000 for each chainsaw owned by loggers. Enrile said he will ask President Aquino to cancel all logging operations in Cagayan to stop "tong" collections by rebels.

MAGNO SAYS NPA BEHIND TROUBLE IN LANAO DEL SUR

[Text] Rebels disguised as Ali Dimaporo's men are responsible for violence and trouble in Lanao del Sur, says Major General Jose Magno, Southern Command chief. According to Magno, NPA rebels disguised as members of Dimaporo's Barracuda army. He added that some 60 so-called Barracuda men who attacked some barangays in the province were actually rebels. They were able to seize some 10 (rifles) during the attack.

AQUINO WANTS DETAINEE ISSUE RESOLVED

HK200759 Quezon City Radyo ng Bayan in Tagalog 0400 GMT 20 Jun 86

[Text] All military cases filed against some civilians will now be transferred to civilian courts. This was the order given by President Corazon Aquino following her meeting with representatives of human rights groups. The groups said that some 650 political prisoners are still languishing in different military camps nationwide. Present at the meeting was Armed Forces of the Philippines Chief of Staff General Fidel Ramos.

The president's spokesman reaffirmed that the president wants the issue resolved. At present there is still no exact figure of all political detainees arrested during the time of former President Marcos. Nonetheless, President Aquino has already released 563 political detainees.

Presidential aide Rene Saguisag said the government is determined to free all political prisoners on the condition that it is proven that they are indeed political prisoners. Meanwhile, Justice Minister Neptali Gonzales said his ministry continues its efforts to study the cases of said prisoners still in detention, adding that they would like to find out exactly what kind of assistance is needed. He also stated that justice is being dispensed accordingly in the country today.

On the other hand, Ramos said that, like all other countries, violence also takes place in the Philippines.

AQUINO DEFERS PROMOTION OF SEVEN GENERALS

[By Jose De Vera]

[Text] President Aquino appeared to have struck a discordant note in her relationship with the military organization for her failure to act on promotions recommended by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, Armed Forces chief of staff. The President had deferred the promotion to he two-star rank of seven of eight brigadier generals recommended by Enrile and Ramos to fill up the table of organization (TO) of the armed forces.

Those left out were Brig. Gen. Salvador Mison, AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] vice chief of staff whose TO position calls for a lieutenant general but whose promotion was recommended only to two-star rank; Brig. Gen. Rodolfo Caniezo, commanding general of the Army; Brig. Gen. Ramon J. Farolan, Air Force Chief: Brig. Gen. Renato S. de Villa, chief of Constabulary and integrated National Police [INP]; Commodore Serapio Martillano, Flag Officer in Command of the Navy; and two others who were not identified. Sources said, however, that the two were the AFP deputy chief of staff and the commanding general of the Capital Regional Command.

Under the set-up, the AFP vice chief of staff is second in command to the chief of staff, followed by the AFPO deputy chief of staff. The commanding generals of the Army, PC [PHILIPPINE Constabulary]-INP, PAF [Philippine Air Force], and PN [Philippine Navy] come next, in that order.

Southcom is a subordinate command which is now headed by a two-star general as a result of Magno's promotion. How can the AFP vice chief of staff, whose rank is now lower than that of the Southcom commander, give orders to one who is higher than him in rank, the sources asked?

ABE ON 'CREATIVE PARTNERSHIP' WITH ASEAN

[By Antonio Kamiya]

[Text] Manila, June 26 KYODO -- Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe Thursday vowed to keep closer political and economic ties with Southeast Asia to establish a "creative partnership" with the region. Outlining Japan's basic policy approach in what is dubbed as the "Abe Doctrine," Abe also sought to allay any fear among Asian nations that Japan may turn itself into a major military power. "The first pillar of Japan's Asian policy is Japan's contribution as a country committed to peace," Abe said in assuring the ASEAN countries of Japan's non-military intention.

"It is Japan's basic, consistent policy stance and the firm determination of the Japanese people to observe the lessons of history and never again become a military power," Abe declared in a keynote speech at a meeting with the foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). "Therefore, Japan will continue to reject a military role for itself in Asia," he said.

The meeting is part of a series of talks the foreign ministers of Indonesia, Malaysia, Thailand, the Philippines, Singapore and Brunei are holding with the developed nations on the Pacific rim and the European Community following their two-day annual ministerial conference, which ended here Tuesday.

Abe sought to underline Japan's identity as part of Asia despite its alliance with the United States and close association with other economic powers in the West. "As an Asian, I take personal pride" in the economic strides made by the developing nations in the region, Abe said. Abe argued that ASEAN is facing "a historical turning point" in economic development and Japan wants to "strengthen the creative partnership between Japan and ASEAN." That partnership, Abe said, will be manifested through closer dialogue with ASEAN nations and stepped-up economic aid from Japan.

Abe said Japan plans to strengthen facilities for language education, expand exchange programs for the youth and promote area studies and better appreciation of each other's cultures as part of "heart-to-heart exchange for the establishment of mutual trust."

On economic assistance, Abe pledged to give ASEAN top priority in Japan's official aid program and shift the focus of assistance from project aid to technical cooperation and financial assistance. Addressing the issue of falling commodity prices -- a topic of primary concern for primary industry exporters in the region, Abe promised to help the ASEAN nations diversify their export structure by diversifying the product range of exports. He said he anticipates more Japanese investment to the region as a result of the sharp appreciation of the yen, which tends to prompt Japanese manufacturers to shift production overseas. "Now is the time, when Asia is facing a difficult, uncharted course, that ASEAN and Japan should strengthen their creative partnership and muster their wisdom to realize the peace and prosperity in Asia," Abe said.

The "Abe doctrine" culminates Abe's three-and-a-half-year career as Japan's top diplomat and an emerging shift of emphasis of Japanese policy toward Asia. While Japan is seeking to play a more positive political and economic role in Asian affairs, ASEAN diplomats say they are not sure whether the Japanese feelings are reciprocated.

They point out that Japanese business tends to put their investments in the developed world and Japan has ignored ASEAN interests in market opening measures.

These two points were raised in the joint commuique the ASEAN foreign ministers issued Tuesday at the end of their ministerial conference, in which they expressed "grave concern" over the structural imbalance in Japan-ASEAN trade. ASEAN as a whole enjoys a trade surplus with Japan, which totalled nearly 9 billion dollars last year, but the surplus came exclusively through Japan's oil and raw material imports. ASEAN wants Japan to buy more manufactured goods. Abe was also reminded of the ASEAN position in a series of bilateral talks he had with his ASEAN counterparts since his arrival here Wednesday.

The ASEAN foreign ministers complain that the Tokyo summit of the seven indistrialized nations last month had not adequately addressed the concerns of the ASEAN and therefore dampened ASEAN's enthusiasm on the proposed new round of multilateral trade negotiations, which Japan has pushed vigorously. "It is difficult for us in ASEAN not to share the cynical view of other developing countries that the outcome of the new rounds would not substantially relieve the economic plight of the Third World countries," Philippine Foreign Minister Salvador Laurel said in an address at a plenary session of the ASEAN post-ministerial conference with ists "dialogue partners." The dialogue partners also include the United States, Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Holds Talks With Schultz, Others

[Excerpts] Manila, June 25 KYODO -- Japan and the United States agreed Wednesday to throw their financial support behind the new government of President Corazon Aquino, hoping that an improvement in the Philippines' economic health will give greater political stability to the region. The agreement came during a meeting here between Japan's Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe and U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz. The two are here to attend a meeting Thursday with foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN).

The Abe-Shultz meeting also provided an opportunity for the two to review bilateral economic relations and exchange views on East-West relations and the regional situation in Asia, Japanese officials said. They agreed that the United States and Japan should consult each other on ways to promote economic aid to the Philippines, indicating that the two countries may sponsor joint aid ventures in the Philippines, Japanese officials said. Prosperity in the Philippines is important to the stability of the whole region, Abe told Shultz, and Shultz expressed his agreement, the officials said.

On bilateral economic relations, Abe and Shultz agreed to hold a working-level meeting on July 22-23 in San Francisco to lay the groundwork for talks on reform of Japan's economic structure. The two also agreed that the two countries should start "as early as possible" another round of trade talks to facilitate access of U.S. transport products to the Japanese market, Japanese officials said.

On U.S.-Soviet ties, Shultz said President Ronald Reagan still hopes to hold a second summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev this year, adding that he will be meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze when he goes to New York this fall for the United Nations General Assembly meeting.

Touching on international terrorism, Abe and Shultz also agreed that the seven main industrial democracies should hold a follow-up meeting on the issue after their declaration at the Tokyo summit in May to strengthen antiterrorism cooperation. On Kampuchea, Abe and Shultz expressed their support for ASEAN efforts to end military conflict and seek a political settlement there. The meeting with Shultz, held at the Philippine Plaza Hotel, was the last of a spate of bilateral talks Abe began after his arrival in Manila Wednesday afternoon.

In a meeting with Aquino, Abe extended an invitation for the Philippine president to make a state visit to Japan. Aquino accepted the invitation, saying she would visit both the United States and Japan within this year. Abe also pledged to speed up the disbursement of Japan's economic aid to the Philippines, Japanese officials said.

Abe followed up the Aquino meeting with a separate session with her foreign minister, Salvador Laurel, in which Laurel urged Japan to improve market access for three major Philippine export products -- coconut oil, timber and garments. Abe promised to study the matter in the new round of multilateral trade talks, they said.

Bilateral economic ties also dominated another meeting between Abe and Malaysian Foreign Minister Ahmad Rithauddeen, who expressed concern about the decline of Japanese investment in his country and called for relief measures to lessen the burden of yen-denominated debts as a result of the stronger yen, the officials said. While conceding that the appreciation of the yen was the result of market forces, Rithauddeen told Abe that Malaysia has to pay nearly 50 percent more for yen-denominated credit as a result of the yen's upsurge. Abe avoided any immediate commitment, saying that Japan will study the matter and noting that the Japanese economy has also been hit by the yen's upsurge. Rithauddeen urged Japan to maintain the flow of its foreign investment in Malaysia, and assured Abe that Malaysia is trying to improve the investment environment to attract more foreign investors.

HAYDEN PROPOSES KHMER ROUGE LEADERS BE TRIED

[Text] Manila, June 26 (AFP) -- Australian Foreign Minister Bill Hayden Thursday proposed the creation of a tribunal to try Pol Pot and other leaders of the Khmer Rouge in order to pave the way for Cambodian reconciliation and talks with Vietnam. Mr Hayden made the proposal at the opening of dialogues between foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and their developed allies, who uniformly railed against trade protectionism and pressed for an end to the Vietnamese occupation of Cambodia.

In his opening statement, Mr. Hayden spoke of "the possibility of establishing some sort of tribunal to determine once and for all the culpability of the Pol Pot leadership," Mr Hayden said. Pol Pot and other Khmer Rouge leaders, whom Mr. Hayden called "mass murderers" and impediments to a solution of the Cambodian problem, are believed to have been responsible for the deaths of hundreds of thousands of Cambodians when they ruled the country from 1975 until being driven out by Vietnamese forces in January 1979. "This would allow the rank and file of the Khmer Rouge to have some hope of participating in a committee of national reconciliation," Mr Hayden said.

On trade protectionism, a central topic of joint and bilateral meetings Thursday and Friday, the developed countries pledged in [an] opening statement to open up their markets and held out hope for ASEAN in the forthcoming new round of multilateral trade negotiations. ASEAN groups the Philippines, Indonesia, Malayasia, Thailand, Singapore and Brunei. Their dialogue partners are the United States, Japan, the European Economic Commity (EEC), Australia, New Zealand and Canada.

Philippine Vice President and Foreign Minister Salvador Laurel, speaking as chairman of this week's ASEAN foreign ministers meeting, reiterated in his opening statement the regional group's support for an eight-point proposal fo the Cambodian resistance. It calls for a two-stage Vietnamese withdrawal, creation of a coalition government including the Hanoi-installed Heng Samrin regime, and free elections for a new government. He urge ASEAN's allies to show "the political will to bring about a more liberalized and fair international trade regime."

U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz vowed that the U.S. administration would continue to oppose congressional pressures for protection but asked ASEAN in turn to remove trade barriers, adopt policies attractive to U.S. investments, and protect U.S. intellectual property rights. He said ending protectionism was a "two-way street" and noted that ASEAN's overall trade surplus with the United States rose 4.3 percent in 1985, for a total of 241 percent since 1982. He said their position in dealing with Congress would be strengthened by the reduction of trade barriers in ASEAN.

Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe said in his statement that negotiations on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) should be held as scheduled in September since "should there be any delay in launching the negotiations, it would result in a great loss to the ASEAN countries and their dialogue partners as well."

Prime Minister and Foreign Minister David Lange of New Zealand proposed that the trade negotiations to end the "inequitable treatment accorded to agriculture," a cornerstone of the economies of his country and ASEAN. [sentence as received]

EEC head of delegation Willem Van Eekelen said that apart from agricultural products, the trade negotiations must address products of fishing and services. "We realize the urgent need to raise the EEC's competitiveness" in agriculture and the main solution is to rely on the community's vast internal market expanded by the inclusion of Spain and Portugal, he said.

In his statement, Canadian Secretary of State for External Affairs Joe Clark held out the prospect of increased Western aid to Vietnam if it withdraws its forces from Cambodia. "Perhaps, as part of the search for peaceful cooperation, the prospect of significant foreign aid in return for withdrawal from Cambodia could facilitate a breakthrough," he said. On economic issues, he stressed Japan's huge trade surplus was contributing to trade pressures but welcomed Tokyo's moves to correct imbalances with its allies.

ROUNDTABLE TALK ON KPA SUPREME COMMAND PROPOSAL

SK250530 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0840 GMT 24 Jun 86

[Roundtable talk, "A Just Proposal to Prevent the Danger of War and to Defend Peace," with the participation of Yu Ho-chun, director of Secretariat of the DFRF Central Committee; Chon Kum-chol, director of Secretariat of the CPRF Central Committee; KPA Major Generals Yi Nung-hun and Kim Se-kwan; KPA Senior Colonel Kim Tok-hyon; and Station Commentator Kim Yong-nam]

[Text] [Moderator] In our roundtable talk today, we will discuss the KPA Supreme Command's peace proposal, which has caused great repercussions at home and abroad. KPA Major General Yi Nung-hun, would you please tell us first about the basic contents of the peace proposal put forward by the Supreme Command?

[Yi Nung-hun] They key points of our Supreme Command's peace proposal consist of holding talks between military persons in authority including the minister of the People's Armed Forces of the DPRK and the commander in chief of the United Nations Force in South Korea and the South Korean defense minister, those who hold real power in the military of the North and South, in order to alleviate tension and to bring an end to the state of military confrontation.

In this connection, the Supreme Command has taken the step of sending a letter containing specific proposals to each of these individual on the other side. Accordingly, our country's minister of the People's Armed Forces has sent the other side a letter containing specific contents to be discussed at the talks, including such businesslike matters as the date to initiate the talks, the site of talks, and matters concerning preliminary contacts.

[Unidentified speaker] The Supreme Command's new proposal for peace talks is a very important proposal put forward to alleviate tension in the country. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Our people do not want war, and desire to avoid a fratricidal war by all means and to reunify the country peacefully.

We have proposed that the talks by the military persons in authority discuss a halt to military exercises and arms buildup, the reduction of troops and armaments, and observance of the Korean Armistice Agreement as required by the original contents of the agreement. This shows once again the great interest of the government of our republic in alleviating tension of the country, preventing the danger of war, and defending peace, as well as its sincere efforts toward this.

[Unidentified speaker] Bringing and end to the acute tension in our country and preventing war is the most urgent problem facing the international political situation. As you know, the situation on the Korean peninsula is aggravated continuously so much that a war could break out at any time. The United States and the South Korean authorities have deployed their armed forces in the forward area along the border [kyongkyeson], increased their mobility, built up nuclear combat capabilities, and massively increased their command forces. New offensive military equipment, including nuclear weapons, have been continuously introduced into and deployed in South Korea, and maneuvers to disptach mobile U.S. armed forces from the U.S. mainland and the Pacific region to the Korean front are being waged continuously.

Meanwhile, the United States and the South Korean persons in authority are continuously waging adventurous war exercises against us, intentionally leading the situation to the brink of war. Such military moves that are taking place in South Korea today show that the threat of war on the Korean peninsula is evolving into an immediate, rather than long range problem.

If a war were to break out in Korea, it would be an all-out war, a three-dimensional war without distinction between the front and the rear, and it is certain that it would spread to a nuclear war. It is also common knowledge today that a war would spread across the border of Korea into a global war.

This situation demands that we should urgently take all steps we can to remove the danger of war in Korea and to defend peace. Therefore, our proposal for holding talks of military persons in authority is an expression of our ardent desire to be faithful to our national duty for the Korean people and to the cause of peace in Asia and the world.

[Moderator] Our peace initiative is expected to make an important contribution to resuming the North-South dialogue, currently in a state of suspension [chungdan sangtaee innun], and making progress in the dialogue. Secretariat Director Chon Kum-chol, would you please tell us about this?

Howver, the hard-won North-South dialogue had to be suspended because of the war maneuvers and military provocations of the United States and the South Korean persons in authority.

[Unidentified speaker] For instance, as we all know well, there was the Panmunjom shooting incident perpetrated by the United States and the South Korean side in November 1984. The next year, 1985, they conducted the "Team Spirit-85" joint military exercise.

[Moderator] We can say that those were the direct cause of the suspension of the dialogue, can't we?

[Unidentified speaker] You are right. Precisely because of such war maneuvers and armed provocations, the dialogue, which had continued smoothly, overnight fell into the stage of suspension and the situation has now reached a very gloomy stage where it is difficult to foresee the future of dialogue. The historic experience in the North-South contacts and dialogue shows that dialogue can progress successfully only when military tension is alleviated and a peaceful atmosphere is created.

[Unidentified speaker] That is correct. This time, we have proposed the holding of talks between military authorities to seek practical measures for the prevention of the danger of war and the alleviation of tension. One of the objectives of this proposal is, I think, to create a favorable atmosphere for dialogue.

[Unidentified speaker] Yes. Indeed, the stop which the KPA Supreme Command has taken this time is, I think, of great significance in preserving peace on the Korean peninsula, in creating an atmosphere of dialogue and negotiation, and in opening a new aspect for the peaceful reunification of the fatherland. The Supreme Command's proposal for talks between the military authorities in the North and the South has again showed the invariable peace-loving stand maintained by our party and the government of the republic. Our proposal for talks between military authorities is, so to speak, an unprecedented one for talks between those who hold real military powers, the first of its kind in the history of the 36 year division.

[Unidentified speaker] True, it is certainly the first in history.

[Unidentified speaker] Yes. From the beginning, to eliminate the danger of war on the Korean peninsula and to basically settle the question of preserving peace, a peace agreement should be concluded between us and the United States and a declaration of nonagression should be adopted between us and South Korea.

[Unidentified speaker] You are right. However, under the present circumstances in which the United States and the South Korean authorities have not responded to our proposal for tripartite talks, it is difficult to immediately settle the basic question concerning peace on the Korean peninsula. In addition, despite the existence of the Armistice Commisssion, the contents of the Armistice Agreement are not properly respected. Under these circumstances, even this commission cannot settle the question of preserving the peace on the Korean peninsula.

[Unidentified speaker] You are right.

[Unidentified speaker] At the same time, we also proposed the holding of North-South parliamentary talks even before the holding of tripartite talks. However, no substantial progress has been made in this either. Thus, tripartite talks have not been realized, parliamentary talks have not been realized, and the function of the Armistice Commission is not properly realized. Under these circumstances, how can a measure be taken for the alleviation of tension? The way is precisely to hold talks between the military authorities in the North and the South and take military measures. We can say that this is, at present, the most realistic way to settle questions.

[Unidentified speaker] Yes, under the present circumstances, I think that there is no other way out than a gathering, at some place, or our minister of the People's Armed Forces, the commander in chief of the U.N. Forces in South Korea, and the minister of national defense of South Korea.

[Unidentified speaker] That's correct. They are the ones who command the armed forces confronting one another. At the same time, in the military field, they are those holding real military power, who are directly responsible for the alleviation of tension on the Korean peninsula.

[Unidentified speaker] We can say that they have the duty to alleviate tension. Therefore, to take a practical measure for the alleviation of tension between the North and the South, those who hold real military powers in the North and the South should sit face to face. If they hold sincere discussion by sitting face to face and by adopting a peace-loving stand, various practical military measures can be taken.

[Unidentified speaker] Of course, there is no doubt about that.

[Unidentified speaker] In that respect, our Supreme Command's proposal for talks between military authorities is a most rational proposal in full conformity with the actual condition of the Korean peninsula.

[Unidentified speaker] I agree. We can say that the proposal which we have put forth this time is a fair and just one that, because of its generosity, can be accepted by anyone. In putting forth the new proposal this time, we have made no unilateral assertions. As we all know, with regard to the questions to be discussed at the talks, in addition to the questions which we have put forth, we made it clear that we are ready to discuss questions presented by the opposite side as long as they contribute to the alleviation of tension on the Korean peninsula. Thus, we have expressed our flexible and generous stand. Therefore, if the United States and the South Korean side truly desire the alleviation of tension in our country and are interested in dialogue and reunification, I think they should have no reason or excuse for not accepting our new proposal.

[Unidentified speaker] You are absolutely right. Historically, the United States and the South Korean authorities have accepted none of our repeated proposals for peace and the alleviation of tension, not to mention of our proposal for the reunification of the fatherland. Instead, under the facade of southward invasion, they have continued to aggravate the situation. However, because our proposal for discussions between military authroities is a method by which tension can be alleviated through face to face meetings of key officials in the North and the South, the threat of southward invasion cannot be used as an excuse.

[Unidentified speaker] It can be said that they now have no excuse whatsoever.

[Unidentified speaker] Meanwhile, in South Korea at present, the youths, students, and people are demanding the U.S. withdrawal of nuclear weapons. At the same time, they are also strongly demanding the withdrawal of the U.S. troops from South Korea. What does this mean? This means that, in our country, the danger of war is not produced by the threat from the North but by the U.S. occupation of South Korea and its war policy.

[Unidentified speaker] Our Supreme Command's peace initiative has once again clearly shown, through practical example, that our party and the government of the republic desire not war but peace, and are making all sincere efforts for peace.

[Unidentified speaker] Settling questions in a peaceful way through dialogue and negotiation is the unchanging stand and policy of our party and the government of the republic. Instead of raving about the threat of southward invasion, which does not actually exist and which no one believes, the United States and the South Korean side should respond to our proposal for talks between military authorities in compliance with the demand of the era.

[Unidentified speaker] You are right. The attitude toward our new peace initiative is, I think, a touchstone that will show whether peace, dialogue, and reunification of Korea are truly desired or not. In the past, whenever chances were given, the United States and the South Korean authorities talked about the alleviation of tension and the North-South dialogue. If what they say is true, I think they should have no reason for not accepting our new peace initiative.

[Unidentified speaker] That is correct. Today, our people and the peace-loving peoples of the world are keenly watching what attitude the United States and the South Korean authorities adopt toward our peace proposal.

[Unidentified speaker] As in the past, our party and the Government of the Republic will continue to make all efforts to settle the question of the peace and reunification of the country though dialogue and negotiation, and make all sincere efforts to realize the talks between the military authorities in the North and the South in accordance with the Supreme Command's peace initiative.

[Moderator] I wish you even greater succeess in your work to successfully implement the Supreme Command's new peace proposal and to accelerate the peaceful reunification of the country. We will now end our roundtable talk here. Thank you.

[All speakers] Tnank you.

RALLIES HELD TO MARK KOREAN WAR ANNIVERSARY

Sinchon 23 June

SK252200 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0800 GMT 24 Jun 86

[Excerpts] A workers rally to expose and denounce the war provocation maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique and their bestial brutality on the occasion of the 25 June Anti-Imperialist Struggle Day was held in Sinchon on 23 June.

Ho Chong-suk, secretary of the WPK Central Committee, and responsible functionaries of central and local party and power organizations, administrative and economic organizations, and social groups, including Kim Pong-chu, Pak Su-tong, and Yu Ho-chun, attended the meeting together with workers.

The meeting began with the playing of the national anthem.

Kim Pong-chu, chairman of the GFTUK Central Committee, spoke at the meeting.

[Begin Kim Pong-chu recording] Today, we are marking the 25 June Anti-Imperialist Struggle Day amid a solemn environment in which all workers thooughout the country are vigorously accelerating socialist construction while upholding the party's leadership with loyalty, and in which the flames of the anti-U.S. and antifascist struggle for indpendence and democracy are burning more violently than ever among the South Korean people. On the occasion of this day, with endless curses and burning enmity against the U.S. imperialists, the Korean people's archenemy, we have gathered in Sinchon,the land of indignation, in order to expose to the world and denounce the crimes that the rascals have committed against our people..

The history of the U.S. imperialists' aggression against Korea, which has lasted for some 100 years, is a history of the crime of flagrantly violating sovereignty and independence in Korea; a history of plundering natural resources in our country; and a history of brigandish human massacre involving the brutal murder of the Korean people.

The U.S. imperialist aggressors, who had endlessly committed armed aggression against Korea since the middle of the last century, occupied the southern part of our fatherland after the liberation, enforced the destiny of colonial slavery on the South Korean people, and were accelerating war preparations with the ambition of swallowing all of Korea. At last, on 25 June, they provoked a war of aggression against our people.

While indulging in the wild dream of destroying our young Republic in its infancy, the U.S. imperialist aggressors submerged the whole area of the northern part of the Republic in a sea of fire by mobilizing large-scale forces of some 2 million men and numerous war devices. The devilish U.S. imperialist killers dropped 450,000 bombs and cannonballs on Pyongyang alone, and showered, within a year, peaceful cities and agricultural villages with some 15 million rounds of napalm, some 500 million rounds of (?ammunition), and more than 450,000 rocket bombs, thus destroying 8,700 production facilities and 370,000 chongbo of farmland. The large-scale brutal massacre of the Korean people was the most shameful crime that the U.S. imperialists committed during the Korean War. We are vividly remembering the brutal slaughter of men committed by the devilish U.S. imperialist killers here at Sinchon.

The U.S. imperialist vampires, who had been trained with the idea of abhoring people, and with inate character of cannibals, burned some 1,600 patriots and pregnant women and some 300 children to death by detaining them in the air-raid shelter at the country People's Committee and soaking them with gasoline, and murdered some 2,000 residents by throwing them into reservoirs and water ponds alive.

The U.S. imperialist jackals, human butchers more brutal than beasts, killed at random an average of 900 innocent residents every day during the period when they were occupying Sinchon county by killing model workers by tearing them apart, murdering those who donated rice by dragging them like animals, and killing the chairman of the Women's League by nailing her in the forehead.

The murderous U.S. imperialist ring earlier unhesitatingly committed such hair-raising murderous acts, unknown in the history of warfare, wherever it imprinted its aggressive steps. By basely discarding publicly recognized international agreements, it has also committed the unpardonable criminal act of wantonly using bacterial and noxious gas bombs.

The subversive, murderous, and barbarous acts committed by the U.S. imperialist aggressors in this land during the past fatherland liberation were felonious crimes that could not ever be erased. Because of the bestial and barbarous crimes committed by the rascals, the misfortunes and sufferings of our people are immeasurable.

Indeed, the U.S. imperialist aggressors are the barbarians of the 20th century, the most atrocious murderous ring, and the arch enemy with whom we cannot live under the same sky.

Availing myself of this occasion of censuring the crimes committed by the U.S. imperialists and on behalf of hundreds of thousands of our parents and brothers who fell, harboring enmity against the yankee aggressors, I bitterly denounce the piratical, murderous, and barbarous acts committed by the U.S. imperialists in our fatherland, reflecting the voices of curse and surging indignation of all workers throughout the country. [shouts]

No matter what lethal weapons and what barbarous method the U.S. imperialists may have used, they have failed to reduce the Korean people to submission and to fulfill their dirty, wild, and aggressive desire.

Under the wise leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, victorious and iron-willed commander and great military strategist, our people and the People's Army defeated the U.S. imperialist aggressors and achieved historic victory in the fatherland liberation war by rising as one and by struggling unyieldingly.

The brilliant victory attained by our people in the fatherland liberation war clearly demonstrated to the world that the Korean people firmly united around the party and the leader are victorious and invincible and that no force can reduce to submission the people who have risen to protect national unity and sovereignty under the anti-imperialist banner of independence.

By beating and defeating the U.S. imperialist aggressors, our people have safeguarded the socialist fatherland and the revolutionary gains and have gloriously defended peace in Asia and the world. The U.S. imperialists, who boasted of being the most powerful nation in the world, were beaten miserably and began to traverse the road of decline.

Although it has been more than 30 years since the U.S. imperialists signed the letter of surrender after being degraded into the pitiful status of defeat, the rascals are still clinging to an attempt to concoct two Koreas and to engage in war maneuvers by nestling in South Korea.

Having designated the Korean peninsula as the front line of U.S. strategy, the U.S. imperialist war maniacs have continuously committed military provocations against our Republic, have manuevered to make war preparations and have turned South Korea into a nuclear forward base designed to invade the northern half of the Republic and the Asian continent. [end recording]

The speaker said that instead of naturally drawing a lesson from their disgraceful defeat suffered by the U.S. imperialists in the Korean war, they have greatly increased the military capabilities of the U.S. forces in South Korea and of the puppet armed forces and have daily kicked up war exercise rackets. He then said that because of such maneuvers to provoke a new war, the dangerous situation has developed to such an extent that a war might be touched off at any moment. The speaker said further that the United States and the South Korean authorities should affirmatively respond to the new proposal of the KPA Supreme Command for preventing the danger of war and for easing tension in Korea. In conclusion, the speaker said that instead of recklessly running amok, running counter to the trend of the time, the U.S. imperialists should immediately withdraw from South Korea, taking along with them their lethal weapons.

Pyongyang 25 June

[Text] Pyongyang June 25 (KCNA) -- The United States must draw a lesson from its shameful defeat in the Korean war, stop seeking an adventurous war and go home before they are ousted from South Korea by the struggle of the South Korean people, declared So Yun-sok, member of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea, chief secretary of the Pyongyang Municipal Party Committee and chairman of the Pyongyang Municipal People's Committee, in his speech at a Pyongyang, mass rally which was held at the Kim Il-song Square on June 25, day of struggle against U.S. imperialism.

He vehemently denounced the U.S. imperialists and their stooge, the South Korean puppet clique, for having imposed immeasurable sufferings and misfortunes upon our people in the past three-year war and running wild today to impose the scourge of a nuclear and chemical war upon our nation.

Owing to the reckless policy of war pursued by the U.S. imperialists and their stooges, tension is being daily heightened and the danger of a nuclear war increasing on the Korean peninsula, and this has created a very grave situation which may touch off a war by any accidental incident on the Military Demarcation Line where the two sides are in acute confrontation with each other, he noted, and said. The Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army advanced a new proposal to have talks between the military authorities proceeding from the stand to ease the prevailing heightened tension and remove the confrontation on the Korean peninsula. But the United States and the South Korean authorities have not shown any sincerity toward this important peace initiative.

The U.S. forces' occupation of South Korea is the main obstacle to peace on the korean peninsula and its peaceful reunificationm and the root cause of tension and war, he said, and stressed: The U.S. forces occupying South Korea and nuclear weapons must be withdrawn unconditionally and immediately and U.S. interference in the internal affairs of Korea be brought to an end as early as possible.

The speaker warmly supported and welcomed the June 23 goverment statement of the DPRK on withdrawing nuclear weapons from South Korea and creating a nuclear-free, peace zone on the Korean peninsula and extended heartfelt compatriotic support and encouragement of the South Korean people of all walks of life and students who are fighting unyieldingly for the for the independence and democratization of South Korean society under the uplifted banner of anti-U.S., anti-fascist struggle.

Then, representatives of various circles spoke at the rally. After the speeches, more than 100,000 Pyongyang citizens held a demonstration.

Atttending the mass rally were Members of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee Pak Song-chol, Kim Hwan, Kim Yong-nam and O Kuk-yol and other cadres.

NODONG SINMUN and other papers here today editorially stress that peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification are a demand of the times and the U.S. forces must immediately withdraw from South Korea.

TRADE UNION CHAIRMEN ENDORSE PEACE PROPOSAL

SK160504 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0424 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 26 (KCNA) -- Kim Pong-chu, chairman of the Central Committee of the General Federation of Trade Unions of Korea, and Pak Su-tong, chairman of the Central Committee of the Union of Agricultural Working People of Korea, issued press statements Wednesday supporting the peace proposal of the Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army to hold talks of military authorities. They declared that the entire working class and agricultural working people fully supported and hailed the new peace proposal.

Kim Pong-chu said the stand of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean rulers slandering and opposing the DPRK's peace proposal was quite surprising. He strongly demanded that they should no longer pursue confrontation and war contradictory to the purpose and desire of the Korean nation and the world people but accept the DPRK's peace proposal and come out to the talks of military authorities.

Pak Su-tong said our agricultural working people earnestly hoped that the talks of military authorities would be convened as soon as possible so that they could be engaged in farming in peaceful and stable circumstances and a new phase be opened for a peaceful reunification of the country.

The United States and the South Korean authorities should discard their irresponsible attitude of negating dialogue and respond to our just peace proposal before it is too late, he urged.

TASS ANALYSIS SUPPORTS PEACE INITIATIVE

SK260606 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0442 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 26 (KCNA) -- TASS June 23 in a news analyst's article headlined "Korean Peninsula into Nuclear-Free Zone" supported the statement of the government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea to establish a nuclear-free, peace zone on the Korean peninsula.

It said the peace proposal of the DPRK Government is an important new contribution to the struggle to narrow the extent of nuclear war preparations in the Asian-Pacific region. Like the peaceful proposal of the Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army to the United States and the South Korean side to have talks of military authorities for the relaxation of tensions and removal of the danger of war on the Korean peninsula, the statement proves that the DPRK Government is taking a prudent and responsible attitude towards the guarantee of peace and security in the Far East and the Asian-Pacific region as a whole, it emphasized.

PRC SPOKESMAN SUPPORTS PEACE INITIATIVE

[Text] Beijing June 25 (KCNA) -- Ma Yuzhen, spokesman of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of China, at a news briefing on June 25 expressed support to the peaceful initiative laid down in the statement of the government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea to turn the Korean peninsula into a nuclear-free, peace zone.

The spokesman said: The initiative of the Korean Government, we consider, reflects the sincere desire of the Korean people for the relaxation of tension on the Korean peninsula and realisation of a durable peace there and accords with the fundamental interests of the entire Korean people.

We have consistently held that the United States should withdraw all its troops and military equipment including nuclear weapons from South Korea.

We hope the U.S. Government and the South Korean authorities will sincerely consider the peaceful initiative of the Korean Government to ease the tension on the Korean peninsula.

FURTHER ON MEETING BETWEEN DJP, NKDP LEADERS

[Text] Rival political parties agreed yesterday to form a special constitutional committee in the National Assembly on Tuesday, the last day of the current 20-day extraordinary session.

The agreement was reached in a meeting between No Tae-u, chairman of the ruling Democratic Justice Party, and Yi Min-u, president of the main opposition New Korea Democratic Party. It was reaffirmed in a subsequent meeting between No and Yi Man-sop, president of the minor opposition Korea National Party.

In their exclusive meeting, the DJP chairman and the NKDP president agreed that ruling and opposition parties would jointly initiate a resolution in a plenary Assembly session Tuesday, calling for the formation of the committee.

No and Yi separately briefed reporters on the result of their two-hour luncheon meeting, which was held in the Assembly restaurant. They shared the view that rival parties should do their best to solve the issue involving "detainees" in a satisfactory manner.

In connection with the detainee issue, the NKDP president demanded that:

-- Those wanted by police for alleged political reasons be dropped from the ongoing manhunt.
-- Those under interrogation be granted a suspension of indictment.
-- Those awaiting trials be granted a dropping of charges.
-- Those serving terms be granted amnesty.
-- Students arrested on account of their demand for constitutional revision be reinstated in their respective schools.

In response, No said the ruling party will consult with the government for a settlement of the issue involving those under interrogation or serving terms. "We, however, cannot intervene in court proceedings. We hope that by trying to create conditions for clemency for those standing trial, a good result will come out," he said.

In reply to Yi's demand for the termination of the manhunts, No said a good result may come out, if interrogation is completed as soon as possible.

The main opposition party leader urged the ruling party to honor a previous bipartisan agreement on amnesty and restoration of civil rights for Kim Tae-chung and others. Kim is under a suspended 20-year prison term for sedition stemming from the 1980 Kwangju incident.

At the end of their month-long negotiations over the opening of the incumbent Assembly in April last year, the DJP and the NKDP agreed to make common efforts for the issue.

The ruling party leader responded by saying, "The intensification of political strifes and the behavior of those concerned have made it difficult to consider leniency for them." No also said major political parties should cooperate to prevent "useless political strifes" from impeding possible clemency for them. He further asked Yi to call for their self-restraint.

No made it clear that those implicated in espionage activities cannot be released.

As Yi urged the ruling party to present its constitutional reform bill at the earliest possible date, No said it is desirable for rival parties to produce their own versions to achieve a grand compromise.

Referring to controversial remarks made by Rep. Son Chon-yong of the NKDP Thursday, he said political common sense should have prevented him from making such statements. No asserted that there cannot be rival parties in fighting pro-Communist elements attempting to destroy liberal democracy and the free economic system. He said, "I understand Rep. Song is prepared to apologize (for the remarks). If he seriously repents his mistake, the issue will be smoothly resolved at the Home Affairs Committee."

The opposition lawmaker exasperated the ruling party Thursday by saying national unification is far off, if the Communist dictatorship in the north and the military dictatorship in the south co-exist.

NKDP president Yi insisted on the withdrawal of the indictment of opposition lawmakers connected with the floor violence of last December. Seven NKDP lawmakers were indicted for the violence they perpetrated in a protest against the ruling DJP's unilateral action on a budget bill.

DJP chairman No said efforts are being made to that end.

Yi told No that the opposition NKDP is planning to apply for the bail of Rev. Mun Ik-hwan, who was recently indicted for "sedition" during the May 3 Inchon incident.

The DJP chairman replied, Let's wait and see."

Talking with reporters after his meeting with the NKDP leader, No said he and Yi agreed to make common efforts to ensure the smooth operation of the forthcoming constitutional committee.

Yi, on the other hand, said the opposition NKDP will delay the appointment of members for the committee, if the government and the ruling party do not show sincerity in fulfilling his agreements with No.

Meanwhile the floor leaders of rival parties will meet tomorrow to iron out differences over the formation of the committee, which will work out a revision bill to the basic law. The current Constitution, which was adopted in 1980 during martial law conditions, provides for indirect presidential election.

The opposition NKDP and KNP have long demanded the basic law be revised to clear the way for the adoption of a direct presidential election system.

At present, the ruling DJP adamantly opposes the direct presidential election system. DJP chairman No said, "As long as we (the DJP) have backed off from our intention to safeguard the current Consititution, the opposition should reciprocate by dropping its demand for direct presidential election."

TWO KIMS SAID DISSATISFIED WITH NO-YI MEETING

[From the "Out and About" column: "2 Kims Dissatisfied"]

[Text] After talks with DJP chairman No Tae-u, NKDP president Yi Min-u met with the "two Kims" at a Seoul hotel yesterday, but both of them seemed quite dissatisfied with the outcome of Yi's negotiation with No.

After a two-hour meeting, Kim Tae-chung left the hotel without saying anything and the NKDP adviser Kim Yong-sam only said, "We will meet again Monday at the CPD [Council for Promotion of Democracy] office."

Though pressed by the reporters to say more, Kim managed to slip away from them. Yi said that during the meeting there was a question raised as to "how much effort the ruling party will make for the release of the detainees."

The three previously said that overall release of the "political detainees" is the precondition for the formation of a special Assembly committee for constitutional revision.

An opposition party source said that Kim Tae-chung, who strongly demands the release of the detainees, expressed dissatisfaction that Yi "threw away" the opposition precondition "too readily."

RIVAL NKDP FACTIONS ASSESS YI MEETING WITH NO

SK240109 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 24 Jun 86 p 4

[From the "Press Pocket" Column]

[Text] Rival factions in the main opposition New Korea Democratic Party yesterday made different assessments on the results of NDP president Yi Min-u's talks with Democratic Justice Party chairman No Tae-u.

The Tonggyo-dong faction, led by Kim Tae-chung, expressed strong dissatisfaction over Yi's "lukewarm negotiating attitude" with regard to the release of those who were arrested for the "democratization" campaign.

In an Executive Council meeting vice NDP president Yang Sun-chik said, "I have no illusion about No's verbal promise to release political prisoners in his talks with Yi."

Yand and two other vice presidents -- Yi Chung-chae and No Sung-hwan -- maintained that Yi should have had the promise embodied in a document, such as a joint announcement. They strongly urged floor leader Kim Tong-yong to ask the Democratic Justice Party to jointly recommend that the administration release all political prisoners.

However, the Sangdo-dong, faction led by Kim Yong-sam, had a flexible attitude, that the DJP should be given time to prove its sincerity.

Meanwhile, Yi Chol-sung and Sin To-hwan, who lead nonmainstreamers, criticized the party leaders for making unilateral decisions kon party affairs without consulting with them in advance.

EDITORIAL TERMS LEADERS ACCORD 'ENCOURAGING'

SK220125 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 22 Jun 86 p 4

"[Editorial: "No-Yi Accord"]

[Text] Certainly, it was encouraging that the leaders of the nation's three major political parties agreed yesterday to set up a special parliamentary committee Tuesday to work out an amendment to the Constitution.

The panel's establishment will undoubtedly mark the first grand procedural step forward in the cause of "grand compromise" that is so precious at the moment to hammer out a solution to the issue of consitutional revision which has placed great strain upon the nation's political theater.

As such, we have been anxious to see the National Assembly form the ad hoc committee under any circumstances before it ends its current special session Tuesday. Otherwise, it would have been necessary to wait at least three months, until the opening of a regular session in September. Little time is left for the nation to carry out the constitutional procedures required to adopt a new basic law in time for a peaceful transfer of power in February 1988.

It was heartening to learn that No Tae-u, chairman of the ruling Democratic Justice Party, agreed with Yi Min-u, president of the New Korea Democratic Party, in their tete-a-tete to see to it that the projected committee be operated well. A similar accord was reached in another tete-a-tete No held with Yi Man-sop, president of the Korea National Party.

At this moment, we are only eager to see that no hitch be allowed to scuttle the precious momentum provided by the three party leaders. There remain many problems to be solved, such as how to form and name the committee. Still, the great cause must be put before dickering over less important issues.

Noteworthy are the remarks made by No that the ruling party will do its best to create an environment favorable to the release of those detainees who the opposition camp alleges were arrested for political reasons. This should be accepted as an expression of genuine sincerity on the part of the ruling camp, since the matter is ultimately up to the judiciary branch.

Regrettably, however, we cannot help being concerned about some recalcitrant oppositionists who are still inclined to make the release of all "political prisoners" and other unreasonable issues preconditions to establishing the ad hoc parliamentary panel. Should they continue to entertain such demands, they would be unable to avoid criticism for being only intent upon pursuing their partisan interests, catering to some radical activists who even deny our country's liberal democracy itself. It is the rule of party politics that once a decision is made through pertinent channels, party members are obliged to follow it. This rule needs to be applied to the NKDP. This means that politicians must join together to safeguard our country against the dangers facing us by keeping our politics on a right and stable track.

PROGRESS VIEWED IN COMMITTEE FORMATION

[Editorial: "Political Task Ahead"]

[Text] Based on the weekend reaffirmation by the government and opposition party leaders of their earlier agreement to launch a special parliamentary committee on constitutional amendment, the National Assembly is expected to adopt a resolution to that effect today at the close of its current 20-day extraordinary session.

Though there undeniably exists much apprehension about the future course of undertaking the constitutional revision in time for a democratic and peaceful change of government power in February 1988 when the incumbent President's tenure expires, the progress made in the bipartisan move to inaugurate the parliamentary panel is something that should be lauded for its facilitating the nation's political development.

The progress seems all the more outstanding as, until several months ago, the political theater had been struck on a protracted debate over whether or not an amendment was necessary for the existing Constitution of the Fifth Republic, effected in October 1980.

Such a background -- and, moreover, the relatively short time left for tackling the immense and intricate task of rewriting the basic law -- calls for bona fide dedication, with a keen snese of responsibility and far-reaching political insights, by all political actors to meet the national call for democratization, transcending partisan interests.

But then, one cannot help but be concerned about problems pending the actual formation of the Assembly committee, not to speak of the divisiveness and precariousness that will likely prevail over the forthcoming debate on the constitutional question.

On hand is the tricky issue related to the release of "political detainess," which has thus far hindered the committee's establishment, in spite of the initial accord reached by the rival party leaders last month on the panel.

The lingering issue forced Rep. Yi Min-u, president of the main opposition New Korea Democratic Party, to voice reservations to Rep. No Tae-u, chairman of the ruling Democratic Justice party, on the committee formation at their latest meeting over the past weekend.

The opposition leader, obviously fettered by intraparty hardliners and dissidents, said that the appointment of his party's members to the committee, essential for the panel's activation, would be dependent on the government camp's "sincerity" in dealing with the question of detainees, disclosing a reserved stand that is feared to have bearings on the future committee function as well.

The opposition forces are once again urged to be realistic and flexible enough to make the best of the recent bipartisan breakthrough to serve the greater cause of national interests, by exhibiting moderation and making compromise when needed.

On the one hand, the government camp is advised to further devise a resilient approach for the sake of renewed national reconciliation, thus creating a favorable climate for attaining a successful constitutional amendment.

DETAILS OF COMMITTEE FORMATION REPORTED

[From the "Press Pocket" Column]

[Text] The labor for giving birth to a special House committee for constitutional amendment was very long yesterday.

At 6:50 a.m., Rep. Kim Tong-yong, whip of the main opposition New Korea Democratic Party, had his first round of contact with ruling Democratic Justice Party counterpart Yi Se-ki at the Manhattan Hotel near the National Assembly.

Kim reiterated his earlier demand for a joint recommendation to the administration for the release of all "political prisoners." He told Yi, "If the initiation of the joint recommendation is not possible, another kind of document should be made to contain (DJP) Chairman No Tai-u's promise to free the political detainees.

But he only met an outright rejection from Yi who said, "We cannot interfere with the court through any type of form."

Kim reported the results of his contact to the party's Executive Council which was in session.

During the council meeting, Vice President Yi Chung-chae argued, "Why does it encroach upon the judicial right to release those who are under police investigation?"

Senior council member Kim Chae-kwang criticized NDP president, Yi Min-u, shouting, "Once the party decided that the release of all political prisoners is a precondition for the creation of the House panel. Why didn't you say it clearly during the meeting with No?" He said, "You should personally bear responsibility for your agreement to form the House committee."

They decided to delay a party caucus which was scheduled for 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in order to give floor leader Kim time for a second contact with DJP whip Yi.

The rival party whips had their second-round talks at 10:50 a.m. at Yi's office. After the meeting, Yi Se-ki told reporters, "We were like two tape recorders repeating the same assertions."

After lunch, NDP leaders held a second gathering to discuss countermeasures. The Tonggyo-dong faction led by Kim Tae-chung maintained that the establishment of the special committee would need to be reconsidered if the DJP rejected the NDP's demand.

On the other hand, the Sangdo-dong faction led by Kim Yong-sam argued that the NDP should struggle for the release of political detainees after the formation of the panel.

Meanwhile, Vice President Choe Yong-u of the Sangdo-dong faction met privately with another Vice President Yang Sun-chik of the Tonggyo-dong faction for about 40 minutes.

While the NDP had meetings at various levels to discuss matters relating to the creation of the ad hoc committee, the DJP was in a relatively calm atmosphere.

At 2:40 p.m., the NDP held a party caucus in which Vice President Kim Su-han reported that party leaders gave party president Yi Min-u, six vice presidents and floor leader Kim freedom to exercise their discretion on what to do about the panel. After the caucus, NDP whip Kim met DJP counterpart Yi again at 4:30 p.m. to discuss concrete matters on the committee composition.

The floor leader of the minor opposition Korea National Party, Kim Yong-chae, also attended the talks.

DJP REITERATES OPPOSITION TO DIRECT ELECTION

SK240053 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 24 Jun 86 p 1

[Text] The ruling Democratic Justice Party made it clear yesterday that it opposes direct election of the president, persistently demanded by the opposition camp. Party chairman No Tae-u said that the election of the president through popular vote would cause extreme social confusion. He made the remarks in a weekly meeting of leading party officials.

The DJP's firm stance is sure to touch off fierce disputes between the ruling and opposition parties in the special House committee to draft an amendment, which is to be inaugurated today.

The main opposition New Korea Democratic Party seeks to re-introduce the direct presidential election system as its foremost goal in rewriting the Constitution.

The DJP plans to instruct its lawmakers "to make intensive publicity of the drawbacks of the direct presidential election formula among their constituents," according to party spokesman Sim Myong-po. The instruction will be handed down to the party members in a caucus to be held tomorrow morning at the party's Central Political Training Institute.

No said, "All party members are requested to exert themselves to helping the people understand correctly the ill effects of the direct election formula." The party lawmakers were also told to explain to the electorate that "there are many democratic systems in electing the president other than direct election."

Party spokesman Sim explained that the method of electing the president has nothing to do with the form of the government. "We should make a choice among the presidential system, the parliamentary cabinet system and others," he said.

OPPOSITION LEADERS RESPOND TO NO ON ELECTIONS

[Text] Opposition leaders Kim Tae-chung and Kim Yong-sam yesterday denounced Democratic Justice Party Chairman No Tae-u's remarks opposing the direct presidential election system. After their weekly meeting at Kim Yong-sam's home, the two demanded that the ruling party bare its real intention as to constitutional amendments.

No had told a meeting of party officers Monday that direct presidential elections will be "reinous to the nation."

Kim Yong-sam, a permanent advisor of the New Korea Democratic Party, recalled that No had repeatedly committed himself to rewriting the Constitution "on a blank paper," without any preconceptions.

In the meeting, which was also attended by NDP floor leader Kim Tong-yong, the two leaders agreed that the NDP should make every effort for the release of political detainees. They were learned to have agreed on forming a special House panel on constitutional amendment with the DJP yesterday, the closing day of the extra House session.

DJP LAWMAKERS RECOMMEND PRESIDENTIAL SYSTEM

[Text] Two lawmakers of the ruling Democratic Justice Party suggested yesterday that the presidential system be adopted in the projected new Constitution while none of the four debaters in a party caucus supported the parliamentary cabinet system.

Rep. Yi Yong-hun said that the presidential system is desirable for the nation in light of the present situation confronting North Korea.

In addition, the people are accustomed to the presidential system rather than the cabinet system, he claimed. After pointing out merits and demerits of the two systems, Yi said that the DJP should adopt any government system wanted by the people. Some people suspect that the DJP has been seized with defeatism, Yi said.

In order to take initiative in revising the basic law, the party's decision on the issue should be made in a democratic way through open debate among lawmakers, he said. He went on to say, "We, ordinary lawmakers, should not follow any decision that is made by a few officers only."

Rep. Yun Kil-chung said, "The majority of people want reform of government under stability. In particular, intellectuals have demanded a change in the authoritarian form of government."

KIM YONG-SAM MAKES POSITIVE ASSESSMENT OF PANEL

SK260034 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 26 Jun 86 p 4

[From the "Press Pocket" column]

[Text] Kim Yong-sam, co-chairman of the Council for the Promotion of Democracy, yesterday made a positive assessment about the creation of a special House panel to work on constitutional revision.

In a meeting of the steering committee of the council at the CPD headquarters, Kim said, "The creation of the committee has considerable significance. It is a promise at home and abroad of common efforts for democratization."

He also noted, "There were some unsatisfactory points concerning the release of political prisoners, but the establishment of the panel was very important."

Kim tried to appease the Tonggyo-dong faction, led by Kim Tae-chung, which had assumed a reluctant attitude toward the committee formation, by saying, "There will be opportunities to deal with the amnesty and political reinstatement of Mr. Kim Tai-chung when the committee starts its business."

Kim Tai-chung did not make any comment on the formation of the special parliamentary panel. Instead, he instructed Yang Sun-chik, a vice president of the New Korea Democratic Party, to explain the process of the bipartisan negotiations to create the panel to the steering committee members.

Yang said, "There are many unsatisfactory things because it is the right order of things to release the political detainees first and discuss democratization afterwards."

'EVILS' OF DIRECT PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION CITED

SK260038 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 26 Jun 86 p 4

[From the "Press Pocket Column"]

[Text] The ruling Democratic Justice Party has listed "12 evils" of the direct presidential election system demanded by the opposition camp.

The long catalog was handed down to party lawmakers in a caucus yesterday so that they can publicize them for their constituents during the House recess.

The party also provided the lawmakers with a "theory" with which they are supposed to counter the opposition camp's advocacy of the election of the president through popular vote.

The direct election method, according to the DJP:

-- Accelerates dictatorship, as it features confrontation between individuals.
-- Is apt to strengthen the powers of the president who, as head of state and head of the cabinet, is already powerful.
-- Makes the president a dictator under the nation's political culture featuring authoritarianism and the patriarchal system.
-- Makes candidates become charismatic in the course of their electioneering, as they are invented as heroes only for the sake of their election, and makes the successful candidates something like an emperor, such as Syngman Rhee, Marcos, De Gaulle and Sukarno.

-- Enables the president to hold absolute authority on the excuse of a security crisis.
-- Causes a state of internal disturbance during the election campaign, due to overheated competition to seize power, and makes it impossible to maintain order at stumping rallies.
-- Brings about a split in national consensus, a waste of national energy and an administration vacuum.
-- Touches off severe localism and "over issues" of election pledges, designed only to gain public support.

-- Gives rise to serious aftereffects of the election, due to allegations about election rigging and disputes over legitimacy.
-- Impedes the progress of the parliament and political parties.
-- Makes worse the sense of alienation of the loser's forces, as the winner's side monopolizes major government posts.
-- Hampers the real development of democratic politics, as the electioneering is focused on disclosures and agitation instead of policy confrontation.

JOINT EFFORTS PLEDGED TO DEAL WITH TRADE ISSUES

SK241218 Seoul YONHAP in English 0837 GMT 24 Jun 86

[Text] Seoul, June 24 (YONHAP) -- South Korea and the United States Tuesday agreed to seek solutions to their bilateral trade and other economic issues in the predictable, effecient and programmed manner.

Explaining the outcome of the fifth Bilateral Economic Consultations, a foreign ministry source said that both sides agreed to make joint efforts to prevent two-way trade issues from developing into political issues in both countries.

Both sides also agreed to make full use of "all available channels of communications" and to hold regularly scheduled formal or informal meetings "as often as both sides deem necessary" to reach early solutions to their trade issues, according to a joint press release issued at the end of the two-day Seoul meeting.

The Korean delegation requested that the U.S. Administration take note of "various difficulties" Korea is facing and give continued favorable consideration to Korea in the application of criteia for the renewed GSP (Generalized System of Preferences)

The U.S. side expressed its view that, to prevent the U.S. government from reduction of GSP benefits to Korea in the future, "Korea should take more positive market liberalization policy," according to the 14-point press release.

In connection with this, a foreign ministry source said that the U.S. side pledged to make efforts to extend the U.S. GSP application to Korea until after 1993.

While the Korean delegation expressed its concern about protectionist sentiment in the United States, the U.S. side explained the background of current legislative actions in Congress on international trade and reaffirmed the U.S. Administration's strong position against protectionist legislation. The U.S. side expressed its hope that the Korean Government will continue its trade liberation policy, according to the joint press release.

The two sides also agreed to continue their common efforts to bring the negotiations under section 301 of the U.S. Trade Act of 1974 to "an early conclusion."

On Korea's request that the Korean Air Line (KAL) be granted rights to extend its flights to Chicago, the two sides said that "they expect their aviation officials to meet in the near future to discuss concerns of each side," according to the press release.

U.S. PRESSURE FOR REVALUATION OF WON SCORED

SK240106 Seoul CHUNGANG ILBO in Korean 20 Jun 86 p 2

[Editorial: "Pressure Demanding Upward Revaluation of the Won"]

[Text] It has been reported that some economic sector circles in the United States have urged countries who have trade surpluses with the U.S. to revaluate their currencies. Although this demand has been limited to some manufacturers in the United States which have lagged behind in trade competition, we cannot ignore it because we have been harrassed by a series of U.S. offensives in trade and by protectionist pressures.

According to foreign news reports, such pressure demanding the revaluation of currencies can be interpreted in the same way as trying to include the developing industrial countries in the G-5 Group which is chiefly composed of the advanced industrial countries. This demand reflects American-type egoism calling for operating the international currency system to meet U.S. interests. The hidden intention of extensively utilizing tyhe G-5 group proceeds not from the intention of stabilizing the international currency system and of expanding trade through the use of this group but from that of reducing deep-rooted trade deficits through the use of this group.

Of course, we do not believe that the U.S. Administration will accept the simple and unjustifiable demand raised by some business circles in the United States.

Just as they did previously, the G-5 group of advanced industrial countries should more extensively discuss and coordinate comprehensive issues toward developing the world economy and toward stabilizing trade. This group should not be operated in the interest of a certain country alone.
program.

Such a demand by some business circles in the United States reflects the irrational idea of compensating for failure in market competition by having the administration exercise influence. We cannot accept this demand.

Although we have stayed in the black to some degree in trade with the United States, black figures in this regard are very small in comparison with the scale of U.S. trade and with U.S. trade deficit, and rank very low among those countries that have kept in the black in trade with the United States. The scale of the black figures of our country in 1985 in this regard lagged very far behind Brazil, Mexico, Taiwan, and Hong Kong. Nevertheless, U.S. businss circles have demanded pressure on our country and Taiwan to upwardly revalue our currencies and include them in the G-5 group. This is by no means pleasant.

Because of the short supply of domestic resources, the value of the Won has always been overestimated the past 20 years and more. There has been almost no time when the Won was judged less than its real value. The value of the Won has been maintained close to the market price in recent years due to steady efforts to maintain the trend of actuality despite concern over inflation in the country. Because the Won floats in close conjunction with dollar and because the maintenance of the market price in exchange rates is an important factor guaranteeing export incomes that are indispensable in repaying foreign debts, the former is not left in the hands of the free market like the currencies of advanced countries. This situation does not differ from those of the newly emerging industrial and developing countries.

Another important factor is that our country should be distinguished from Taiwan, which has annually recorded black figures amounting to millions of dollars in trade, and that the former owes $45 billion in foreign debts.

Accordingly, the external value of the Won should not be determined by a coutry that stays in the black in trade, especially by the influence of the United States. Issues concerning the value of the Won should be handled carefully by comprehensively taking into consideration the currency, international payments, and the prices of goods in the country.

KANGTOAP PADEVOAT URGES BUILDING ARMY POLITICALLY

BK250446 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1200 GMT 23 Jun 86

[KANGTOAP PADEVOAT editorial: "Strive to Build the KPRAF Firmly in Political Field"]

[Text] An army is an armed force that is well-organized and has power and solid strength. To successfully build an army, it is imperative to strive so that each commander, each soldier, and each unit fight skillfully. To whom do all these armed forces belong? Who leads them? Who are they fighting? Who and what are they defending? And what policy are they pursuing? These are most important questions that must be dealt with first; otherwise, the situation exists in which the better they fight, the worse danger they represent to the people and nation.

Our army is the armed forces of the patriotic people and is led by the KPRP. We fight for revolutionary ideals and goals -- that is independence, freedom, and socialism. Our people have been liberated and have become the masters of their own country and destiny. With arms tightly grasped in our hands, we are always ready to face any obstacle, fight, shed our blood, and sacrifice for the defense of our people, our party, the revolutionary power, fatherland, and peace. We must be ready to mete out the most serious and harsh punishment to Cambodian reactionary groups that have obstinately served imperialist forces and international reactionaries who have tried to destroy our people's peaceful life by claiming to help liberate our Cambodia. We must aim our guns at the war-mongering imperialist clique, the hegemonist-expansionist clique, and the international reactionaries who have arduously attempted to invade our territory. We must criticize and oppose all forms of deceit, exploitation, oppression, and all bad and unhealthy phenomena. At the same time, we support and personally set a good example in building a revolutionary lifestyle to achieve good and noble civilization.

We, the Armed Forces of the party and people, must strictly respect and abide by the party's leading lines, all state laws and policies, and the army discipline. We wholeheartedly love and respect the people. We regard the people as our own parents, brothers, sisters, and relatives. Our Army must be genuinely democratic and strictly abide by our discipline. Cadres and party members must set a good example so that the upper and lower echelons unite and resolutely strive to fulfill all tasks. In particular, we must ceaselessly strive to preserve and strengthen our relations, solidarity, and militant alliance with Vietnam and Laos. At the same time, we must make every effort to enhance our sense of mastery to ensure the successful implementation of our national defense tasks by ourselves. We must strengthen our solidarity and all-round cooperation with the socialist community with the Soviet Union as its bulwark. We must unite with and support revolutionary movements around the world.

Our Army has developed and is developing rapidly beyond our expectation. It has become more modern and is armed with more modern weapons. Its political stand, combat spirit, and sense of responsibility towards its tasks, and organizational discipline have been increasingly enhanced and strengthened. All our basic political issues form the source of the combat strength of the revolutionary Armed Forces. Therefore, our entire Army must strive to build the political foundation in order to increase its combat strength to successfully carry out all tasks for our fatherland and the people.

BOU THANG ARTICLE IN VPA JOURNAL CITED

BK240729 Phnom Penh SPK in French 0422 GMT 23 Jun 86

The great victories of the Cambodian people and their armed forces in 1985 have left the enemy faced with inevitable total defeat, but by their aggressive and reactionary nature the Chinese expansionist-hegemonists, their lackeys, and other forces of reaction have not given up their designs against the Cambodian revolution.

They still nurture the ambition of reviving the reactionary Cambodians, feeding them and pitting them against the Cambodian revolution in order finally to reverse the situation in their favor. But following the heavy losses in the dry season, the reactionary Cambodians have suffered more losses during the rainy season. How can they realize their bosses' dream if they have found it so difficult to survive? The Beijing expansionists, in collusion with U.S. imperialism and the ultrarightist elements among the Thai authorities, while intensifying diplomatic maneuvers, are seeking to distort the correct and good-willed policy of the Indochinese countries.

These countries wish to have a zone of peace, stability, cooperation, and friendship in Southeast Asia. The Beijing expansionists cling to the so-called "Cambodian problem" and pressure the United Nations into adopting erroneous resolutions on Cambodia in order to force the people of this country to accept absurd solutions dictated by them. But how can they gain through diplomatic maneuvers something they have not been able to seize on the battlefield after 6 years of frantic maneuverings against the Cambodian revolution?

The situation in Cambodia is irreversible and is developing in the following trend: The enemy is beaten in the main and now goes from defeat to defeat toward total collapse; the Cambodian revolution has won and is winning more brilliant victories with each passing day, for the revolutionary cause of Cambodia shines with justice and bears an increasingly blinding radiance with the passing of time.

The Cambodian revolution enjoys the leadership of the KPRP, a Marxist-Leninist party completely loyal to the interests of the Cambodian nation and working people. This party holds aloft true patriotism and proletarian internationalism, practices a just political and military line, and follows a correct operational orientation, especially in the wake of the Fifth KPRP Congress resolutions.

The PRK has won the confidence of the people who built it in their capacity as masters. The new regime depends heavily on the force of the 7 million Cambodians who manage as the masters the whole of the territory -- from the borders to the interior of the country, in the countryside as well as in urban centers, on the ground, at sea, and in the air -- and is linked with fraternal Vietnam and Laos.

The Cambodian revolution enjoys solid support: The Cambodian-Vietnamese union and alliance and the special alliance among the three Indochinese countries, the solidarity and aid of the USSR and other fraternal socialist countries, and the support of progressive mankind.

The position and force of the Cambodian revolution became supreme following the great victories in 1985 and grow increasingly.

The Cambodian revolution derives a particularly powerful new strength from the correct resolutions of the Fifth KPRP Congress and the success of this Fifth Congress marks a new victory of strategic significance of the Cambodian revolution. The revolutionary and scientific resolutions of the Fifth Congress will continue to enlighten the Cambodian people's advance toward greater victories in their national defense and reconstruction tasks and toward the total implementation of the strategic objectives of the Cambodian revolution. Since that congress, the forces of the Cambodian revolution have shown a vigorous development and the Cambodian people are going to bring into full play their right to mastery of the country and of their own destiny within the framework of the strategic alliance of the three Indochinese countries.

These days, the Cambodian people are entering a new struggle to accomplish the heavy tasks defined by the Fifth Congress. The Cambodian people are filled with ardor and pride in the face of the great victories won last year. More than ever, they are confident of their strength made up of 7 million people in close alliance with fraternal Vietnam and Laos. The Cambodian people are perfectly aware that in order to win the successes of 1985 -- the victory of the dry-season operations and several others, like the success of the Fifth Congress -- the Cambodian people and the Vietnamese volunteers had to endure many sacrifices, difficulties, tests, and trials. The successes of 1985 have offered to the Cambodian people another very timely opportunity and a very advantageous strategic situation. It is the historic mission of the whole party, the whole people, and the whole army of Cambodia to seize this good opportunity, to work toward the three objectives set by the Fifth Congress, to mobilize to the fullest efforts of the whole people and the whole country and closely coordinate them with those of the Vietnamese volunteers, to intensify the all-round defensive position, to deal the enemy more stinging blows, to build the revolutionary forces, to consolidate the Cambodian-Vietnamese alliance, and to bring upon the Cambodian revolution new developments.

THAI 'FABRICATION' ON BORDER CROSSING REBUFFED

[Unattributed Commentary: "Fabricate Stories To Look for Confrontation"]

[Text] The Thai authorities recently fabricated a story about Lao troops crossing the border into Thailand and fighting with a Thai border defense unit based about 5 kilometers from the Ban Kaeng Muang school in Thali District, Loei Province. The Thai side also accused the Lao force of burning down the school. The Thai authorities also cooked up a story that Laos and Vietnam have been supporting a Thai revolutionary movement by supplying weapons and propaganda documents and that they found some weapons and such documents hidden by a group of Thai people in a forested area in Phon Phisai District, Nong Khai Province. This groundless accusation was publicized by BAN MUANG and NAEO NA newspapers on 31 May and by the BANGKOK POST on 2 June in Bangkok.

This is not the first time the ultrarightist military group in Thailand has blamed and slandered the LPDR. Early this year, the Thai ultrarightists also accused Laos of attacking Thai troops at a village in Ubon Ratchathani Province. These stories are untrue and were fabricated by those making a living through deceiving other people.

Past experience shows that each story they cook up is intended to conceal vicious things they themselves have done in an effort to seek confrontation with Laos and other Indochinese countries. The story against Laos was fabricated by the Thai ultrarightist group while a campaign was being launched to slander Vietnam following the shelling of a Cambodian refugee camp in Thailand. General Athit Kamlang-ek himself made the observation while inspecting the incident that there was no proof that the artillery shells belonged to Vietnam.

After keeping quiet for months, they then cooked up this present story, the fabrication of the story against Laos by the Thai ultrarightist military group took place at a time while the political situation in Thailand was complicated and chaotic. For example, there were rumors about a coup in Bangkok while another rumor on the abduction of Genreal Prem Tinsulanon was spreading, as a result of which offices of various newspapers in Bangkok had to serve as information centers from where the people sought further information about the confused situation.

To lessen the confusion, the Thai ultrarightist military group, therefore, cooked up a story accusing Laos of crossing the border into Thai territory. All this is to turn the attention of the Thai people as well as of world public away from the very complicated and chaotic situation in Thailand at present. The fabrication of the story against Laos by the Thai ultrarightist military group coincides with the U.S. plan to set up a war reserve stockpile in Thailand. It also coincides with the acts of the ultrarightists in Thailand, together with the big-nation expansionists and hegemonists, who are striving to consolidate and equip the Cambodian reactionary forces, as well as sheltering and fostering the exiled Lao reactionaries in Thai territory to create disturbances and to sabotage and subvert the Lao revolution and the revolution of the Cambodian people. This shows that the Thai ultrarightist group wants only a confrontation, and not negotiations and thet they have pursued Beijing's policy by carrying out hostile acts against the three Indochinese countries. They have used Thai territory to serve the strategies of the U.S. imperialists and the Beijing reactioaries in the hope of spilling the blood of the Lao and other Indochinese people, weakening the Lao cause, sabotaging the revolutions of the three Indochinese people, creating a tense situation, and spoiling an atmosphere of peace and security in the region. Such acts are contrary to the aspirations of the Thai people and other people in this part of the world.

The Lao people -- who have just been freed from a protracted war which lasted for 3 decades -- deeply appreciate the value of peace. They desire peacetime in order to build the country and improve their living condition. The Lao people have always wanted Lao-Thai relations become relations of friendship and good-neighborly cooperation. Therefore, there is no reason for Laos to begin an argument or to be at odds with its neighbor. All acts having ill effects on the relations between the two countries have stemmed from the Thai side.

The LPDR has pursued a foreign policy of peace, independence, cooperation, and socialism. The LPDR has, on many occasions, proposed that the Thai side hold talks with the Lao side in order to discuss together means to achieve mutual understanding with a view to normalizing Lao-Thai relations in friendship and cooperation. But, the creative and well-intentioned proposals of the Lao side have been ignored by the Thai side. The confrontationist policy of the Thai ultrarightist group does not conform with the true situation and their allegation against Laos cannot deceive public opinion in Thailand.

THAI SIDE BLAMED FOR ATTACK ON LAO REFUGEES

BK200539 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 1200 GMT 19 Jun 86

[Station undated editorial: "The Thai Side Must be Held Responsible for the Ban Huai Pong Incident"]

[Text] Dear listeners, on 17 June, Thai authorities alleged that a group of armed men slaughtered refugees at Ban Huai Pong Village in Phayao Province some 830 km north of Bangkok. Earlier on 3 June, Thai authorities also alleged that a unit of armed men attacked a Thai troop unit at Ban Ton Muang village. Earlier, they alleged that a group of men entered Thailand to destroy a school at Ban Keng Muang village, Thali District, Loei Province. On 6 June, they accused Lao soldiers of attacking Ban Huai (?Khun) village. The Thai authorities made those allegations against the Lao Armed Forces by fabricating false stories and accusing other people of committing them.

As everyone is fully aware, the frequent conflicts along the Lao-Thai border in recent years have been solely created by the Thai side, not the Lao side. But every time border tension flares up, the Thai side always blames the Lao side for causing it. Even though the Lao side sometimes has clear-cut proof of such an incident, the Thai side always makes a lame excuse for its wrong-doing. The Thai side's allegation against Laos in the case of the Ban Huai Poing village attack is nothing but a pure accusation against Laos.

An AFP report from Bangkok noted that the attack on Lao refugees at Ban Huai Poing village in Thai territory might have been the work of tribal groups living in Thailand. The report more or less conforms to reality because there are many problems among many tribal groups in northern Thailand whose relationship is still based on the principle of tribal fiefdom. Traditional conflicts of influence among the various tribal groups in this region frequently crop up. Certain groups of people in this region still earn their living by staging robberies and stealing. The 93d Division of the Chiang Kai-shek remnants are actively operating in this region.

Exiled Lao expatriates sponsored and supported by the Thai ultrarightists and Maoist Thai elements are continuing to carry out movements in this area. Clashes between these groups occasionally occur, especially among the exiled Lao elements. As a result, cases of robbery, stealing, burning down people's houses, plundering, smuggling of contraband goods, and swindling have frequently been noted in this region.

Massacres among various tribal groups stemming from rivalry and conflicts of interest, and the swindling in trade transactions which lead to killings are a normal phenomenon in Thai society. An AFP report from Bangkok on 18 June quoted a Western diplomat as saying that attack on the Lao refugees at Ban Guai (?Khun) village actually took place but it was not clear whether it was the work of Lao soldiers or traders. Public opinion in general pointed out that the attack might have been carried out by Thai nationals and that since the incident took place near the Thai-Lao border, the Thai authorities blamed the Lao side as it has frequently done in the past.

It is obvious that since early June the successive allegations against Laos made by the Thai ultrarightist authorities have been simultaneously made with the Thai side's rejection of the Lao side's reasonable proposals to hold negotiations to normalize and improve the deteriorating relations between Laos and Thailand. To justify the Thai side's rejection of the Lao side's proposals for negotiations, the Thai ultrarightists always make numerous groundless allegations against Laos to cover up their insincerity to settle the Lao-Thai problems and to discredit any calls by the Thai people to normalize Thai-Lao relations as soon as possible. Therefore, there is no doubt that the allegation made by Thailand against Laos in the case of the Ban Huai Pong village's attack, which, in fact, was created by the Thai side itself, is but an act of thief crying "stop thief". This is because the Thai people and progressive people throughout the world fully know that every time a tense situation crops up along the Mekong River and the Lao-Thai border, its cause is always engineered by the Thai side.

The pretext for the Thai side to send its armed forces to seize the three Lao villages in Sayaboury Province, thus causing the brotherly relations between the two countries to deteriorate seriously, was also solely created by the Thai side. The Lao side has never done anything to provoke the Thai side.

There is no reason whatsoever for the Lao side to send soldiers to attack Thai territory which is several times larger than Laos when it has taken the intiative to propose to the Thai side that it assign officials of their Foreign Ministry to hold negotiations with Laos aimed at lessening tension between the two countries. Thus, blaming the Lao side for the Ban Huai Pong incident is nothing but an accusation against Laos and indicates the Thai side's intention to tarnish the image of the LPDR so as to create more tension in Lao-Thai relations and create a pretext for procrastinating negotiations between the two sides.

In his meeting with Thai Ambassador Chaiya Chindawong in Vientiane on 18 June, LPDR deputy Foreign Affairs Minister Souban Salitthilat solemnly denied the groundless allegation made by the Thai side against Laos in connection with the An Huai Poing incident and pointed out that should the Thai side use the incident as a pretext to create tension along the border, it would be held solely responsible for all serious consequences.

SAMAN VI-GNAKET ADDRESSES EDUCATIONAL MEETING

[Text] On the morning of 24 June, Saman Vi-gnaket, secretary of the LPRP Central Committee and head of the party Central Committee's Organizational Board, addressed the annual educational conference for 1986. The conference is being attended by 174 educational cadres from various ministries, departments, schools, and provinces throughout the country.

He praised past achievements by teachers and educational cadres, which constitute an important contribution to the revolutionary cause, particularly the cultural revolution centered in educational work. Then he once again stressed the attention that the party Central Committee and the government are devoting to implementing and improving policies toward teachers and educational cadres. This is to firmly develop a higher-quality education and to contribute actively to building new, socialist men, thus promptly meeting the requirements of the developing revolution in our country and enabling everyone to fulfill jointly two strategic tasks -- defending the country and building socialism.

At the same time, he pointed to the immediate direction needed in educational work. He called on all teachers and educational cadres to train attentively and temper themselves to possess a high level of political knowledge, adopt a correct class attitude, be competent in their specialities, and make themselves teachers of the new system, thus deserving the title given by the party: Teachers are the true men of the party.

SRV, KHMER ROUGE FORCES CLASH NEAR BORDER

[Text] Aranyaprathet -- Eighteen Vietnamese artillery shells landed on Thai soil this morning during a fierce engagement between Khmer Rouge soldiers and a Vietnamese force inside Kampuchea, about 40 kilometres south of this border district, a field source reported. The source described it as the heaviest clash since the May 30 Vietnamese shelling of a refugee camp at Site 8 in which a large number of Khmer civilians were killed.

A 50-strong Khmer Rouge force from the 320th Division launched an attack on a Vietnamese 519th Division position at the Angkor Bal Pass, about two kilometres from Ban Khao Saraphi on the Thai border, at about 8 a.m. A heavy clash ensued and Hanoi troops retaliated with 105mm and 130mm artillery pieces and 107mm ground-to-ground rockets. As a result, 18 artillery shells landed on corn fields on Thai soil, but inflicted no casualties. Some of them landed about two kilometres deep inside Thai territory.

The Thai military closely observed the fighting from an L-19 reconnaissance aircraft, the source said. Casualties on both sides were not yet known as fighting was still going on at press time.

Earlier on Tuesday morning, a combined Thai Border Patrol Police and Marine force clashed with Vietnamese intruders on the Banthat Range near Ban Thasen, about 14 kilometres East of Trat provincial town. Two BPP men and four Marines were wounded by Vietnamese 105mm artillery fire during the clash. They had been admitted to Trat Hospital. Both sides were still confronting each other on the border, the source reported.

OFFICIAL ON USSR JOINT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PLAN

BK201208 Bangkok NAEO NA in Thai 18 Jun 86 p 3

[Text] Thailand has rejected establishing a Thai-Soviet Chamber of Commerce during a meeting between a Soviet delegation led by Deputy Minister of Foreign Trade Yevgeniy Bavrin and Thai Deputy Foreign Minister Praphat Limpraphan on 17 June. Praphat informed newsmen after the meeting that the Soviet side had again brought up the proposal to establish a chamber of commerce during the meeting; but he explained that current trade practices between the two countries are already good and there have been no problems. In particular, the Soviet side can trade freely with the Thai private sector. In any event, both sides discussed ways to further expand bilateral trade, especially now that the Soviet Union is developing Siberia and people who settled there will want to buy more Thai products. The Soviet side also proposed three-party trade involving Thailand, the Soviet Union, and a third country, which the Thai side agreed to consider.

The Soviet minister invited Thailand to participate in an international trade fair to be held in Moscow next year. The Soviet Union will organize a trade exhibition in Bangkok in October this year in accordance with the trade agreement signed by the two countries 15 years ago.

PAPER VIEWS USSR ACTIVITY, 'ECONOMIC OFFENSIVE'

BK221254 Bangkok XIN ZHONG YUANG RIBAO in Chinese 19 Jun 86 p 9

["Special article" by Jin Buhuan: "The USSR's Big Economic Offensive"]

[Text] Since the beginning of this month, the USSR has launched an unprecedented economic offensive in Thailand. One after another, Soviet delegations and experts have come to Thailand for official and nongovernmental visits.

During its visit to Thailand last week, a Soviet parliamentarian delegation said that the USSR is willing to send technical personnel to help Thailand construct a power plant. Thailand can send its agricultural products in exchange.

A Japanese magazine exposed a Soviet scheme of infiltration which was to provide low interest loans to farmers. According to the report, the USSR has already injected $100 million through Singapore and Hong Kong in the past 3 months. Besides using trade and loans as bait, the USSR also sent 30 "experts" here recently to survey agricultural markets in the north and northeast.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Trade Minister Yevgeniy Bavrin launched his offensive as soon as he arrived last Sunday night. He said that in order to increase foreign trade income, Thailand should send trade missions and hold commercial exhibitions in the USSR. The USSR is willing to help Thailand on this matter.

Bavrin came here to attend an ESCAP meeting. According to one source, Thailand may sign a trade agreement with the USSR on 18 June. The trade volume between the two countries totalled $1 billion [figure as published] during the period of 1981 to 1985, double that of 1976 to 1980.

The USSR will hold its biggest trade exhibition ever in Bangkok from 16 October to 2 November. 29 trade organizations from the USSR will participate in the exhibition.

Thailand has not yet officially sent any trade missions to Moscow. Thus, the Soviet deputy foreign trade minister said that in order to strengthen the Thai-Soviet bilateral trade relations, it is necessary for Thailand to send trade missions to Moscow.

On Monday the Soviet deputy foreign trade minister told reporters that his country has decided to set up a Thai-Soviet Chamber of Commerce in Thailand because the bilateral trade volume has expanded markedly during recent years. Commerce Minister Surat responded to the Soviet "suggestion," saying that Thailand and the USSR, for their mutual benefit, have agreed in principle to organize trade exhibitions in Bangkok and Moscow as a means to strengthen bilateral trade relations. He said that Thailand has approved the USSR's organizing trade exhibitions in Bangkok. The USSR is interested in Thai garments.

Surat said that the Soviet deputy foreign trade minister informed him of two major trade goals -- one is to expand bilateral trade through barter trade and the other is the setting up of a Thai-Soviet Chamber of Commerce in Bangkok. The commerce minister said that Thailand has no objection to the latter point, and will support it. However, the USSR will have to discuss it with the businessmen here itself.

He said that Thailand will explore more markets for agricultural products and that political ideologies should not affect bilateral trade relations. He stressed that Thailand could not be overly dependent on certain countries.

A team of Soviet academics and journalists arrived here on Monday, and were scheduled to hold discussions with Thai academics and journalists. The three journalists of the delegation were invited by the Press Association of Thailand. They are Victor Vasilyevich Skopenko, rector of Kiev State University and member of the Ukrainian Supreme Soviet; Evgeniy Vasilyevich Kobelev, member of Journalist Union of the Soviet Union and vice president of the Soviet-Thai Friendship Society in Moscow; and Vasily Sergeyevich Churmanteev, radio and television announcer in Moscow.

The delegates were scheduled to have a meeting with members of the Foreign Correspondents' Club of Thailand at the Dusit Thani Hotel on Tuesday [17 June] and to pay a courtesy call on Minister Attached to the Prime Minister's Office Chan Manutham and to visit Thammasat University on Wednesday. The Press Association of Thailand was to meet with them later in the afternoon. In addition, they were also to meet with academics of Chulalongkon University.

Soviet activities come in many forms; this year they will provide 60 scholarships to Thai students.

FOREIGN MINISTRY PROTESTS TO UN ON LAO INCURSION

BK181512 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 1200 GMT 18 Jun 86

[Text] The Foreign Ministry announced today that on 17 June the government instructed the Thai permanent representative to the United Nations in New York to lodge a protest note with the UN secretary general over the Lao Armed Forces' violation of Thai sovereignty and territorial integrity. The protest note reads:

On 14 June 1986 at around 2120, about 40 armed LPDR troops crossed the Thai-Lao border and launched a cruel attack on the temporary shelter of 142 illegal Lao immigrants at Ban Huai Pong, Chiang Kham District of Phayao Province, about 10 km inside Thailand. As a result, 35 Lao --- 6 men, 11 women, and 18 children -- were killed instantly. Moreover, 14 Lao were seriously wounded and another 4 injured. The armed intruders set the shelter ablaze before retreating. However, 89 Lao were able to flee the danger. The wounded are under the care and protection of the Thai authorities.

As Laos knows the location of this shelter well, its armed attack on Lao waiting to be transferred to an appropriate refugee center must have been planned in advance. This brutal, cold-blooded, inhuman act is aimed at blocking Lao refugees from oppression in Laos. The criminal act of Lao forces against innocent Lao people also constitutes a serious violation of Thailand's sovereignty and territorial integrity and a violation of international law and the principles of the UN Charter, as well as fundamental human rights.

The Thai Government strongly condemns the hostile act committed by the Lao forces. It calls on the LPDR Government to refrain from such military operations. The LPDR must take full responsibility for ensuing consequences.

The Thai Government reiterates that it has a legitimate right to take all kinds of action in defending Thailand's sovereignty and territorial integrity and the lives and property of people of all nationalities in Thailand. The Thai Government calls upon the international community to take note of the incident and condemn the brutal and criminal act.

The Foreign Ministry has instructed the Thai permanent representative to the United Nations in Geneva to inform the Human Rights Commission on the incident.

Lao Envoy Summoned

BK190612 Hong Kong AFP in English 0608 GMT 19 Jun 86

[Text] Bangkok, June 19 (AFP) The Thai Foreign Ministry Thursday summoned the Laotian ambassador to protest the massacre of 35 Laotian illegal immigrants in northern Thai village. In Vientiane a senior official denied that Laos was responsible for the murders.

Thep Thewakun, the Thai ministry's Political Affairs director, protested to Ambassador Khamphan Simmalavong against "Laotian soldiers who had violated Thai sovereignty up to 10 kms (six miles) and brutally murdered Laotians who had fled from Laos and live in Thailand," a ministry spokesman said. The Foreign Ministry announced Wednesday that it would be protesting the June 14 incident through the United Nations.

In Vientiane, Deputy Foreign Minister Souban Salitthilat Thursday called Thai charges a "complete invention." Speaking to AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE by telephone, Mr Souban said: "We have not provoked the Thais. It is the Thais who provoke us (with their accusations)."

He said he had called in the Thai ambassador in Vientiane to reject Bangkok's assertions that Laotian troops had carried out the massacre. Saying he had "no information" as to who did the killing, Mr Souban charged Thailand with using the impact of the incident to "turn tension among Thai people over economic problems against Laos." "If the Thais use this pretext to increase tension, the Thais will be responsible (for the consequences)," Mr Souban said.

The slaugher in Huai Pong in the northern border province of Phayao, 690 kms (415 miles) north of here is but the latest cause of Laotian-Thai friction. Thai army officials said Tuesday that about 40 heavily-armed Laotian soldiers marched seven kilometers (four miles) into Thai territory to attack the settlement, which is about five kms (three miles) from the border.

Authorities reported that survivors told them that Laotian soldiers, after surrounding the undefended settlement opened fire with assault rifles and rocket propelled grenades before looting the village and setting it ablaze. Those killed included 18 children, army officials said.

It was almost certain a massacre had occurred in Huai Pong, although it was not clear if Laotian soldiers or traders were involved, a Western diplomat here said.

FOREIGN MINISTRY CITED ON RELATIONS WITH LAOS

BK251219 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 0530 GMT 24 Jun 86

["Article": "Thai-Lao Relations Can Be Improved"]

[Text] Good morning, listeners: the Thai Government has been making utmost efforts to achieve good relations with Laos despite the fact that Laos adopts political ideology different from Thailand. Concerning border disputes between Thailand and Laos, the Thai Government has been trying to resort to peaceful negotiations to solve the problems. Including the issue of the three border villages in Uttaradit Province. In contrast, Laos has frequently issued propaganda attacks on Thailand. Even so Thailand has continued to contact Laos for talks, but its has not received a favorable response. On 7 June 1986, KPL organized a press conference during which Thailand was accused over the issue of the three villages. It also released a document on Thai-Lao relations over the past 10 years. In reply, the Thai Foreign Ministry has made the following points:

1. Laos proposed that the Thai and Lao Foreign Ministries name their respective officials for talks over the issue. Laos said this is a new and constructive approach. How can it be either constructive or sincere since, along with the proposal, Laos made slanderous accusations against Thailand over the three villages which have already ceased to be a political issue between the two countries, thus damaging the good climate of relations. The revival of the issue by Laos seems to reflect that Laos is being used as a tool by another country to serve the latter's interests -- as has already happened in the past -- and create rift between the Thai and Lao people who are like brothers.

2. Over the past 10 months, Thailand has noted with satisfaction the Lao people's friendly attitude toward Thailand. The Thai Government, meanwhile, has been trying to expand cooperation with Laos in all regards. Laos' requests have been taken into consideration based on a spirit of friendship. To cite an example, Thailand gave permission to Laos to take back its airplane flown in by Lao defecting pilots in Udon Thani Province in July 1984. The Thai Government agreed to handle all the costs to fly the plane back. Anyway, Laos failed to take it back. Thailand even agreed to Laos' request for an additional supply of aviation fuel. What is more important is the proposal made by Thailand that a meeting at the local level be held under the agreement between the two countries on setting up of the Thai-Lao border committee. In March 1986, the foreign minister also invited Lao senior officials for a discussion on topics for development of relations between the two countries. However, Laos rejected it.

3. Thailand calls on Laos not to become a tool of ill-intentioned foreigners and to refrain from propaganda attacks on Thailand. Instead, the Lao Government should sincerely cooperate with Thailand in efforts to improve bilateral relations and to promote brotherly contacts and meetings between the peoples and officials of both countries along the two banks of the Mekong River in keeping with what the Thai Government has been trying to achieve out of its sincerity.

4. Thailand calls upon the brotherly Lao people to try to persuade their leadership not to become the tool of foreigners who are only trying to destroy the good relations between Thailand and Laos, so that we can coexist peacefully and brotherly.

Dear listerners, you see that the Thai Government has been trying hard to achieve friendly relations with Laos. It has proposed to Laos for talks based on sincerity in order to restore friendship.

Thailand does not want Laos to become a tool of foreigners. It wants to see cooperation between Thailand and Laos in national development which will benefit the welfare for their respective peoples and to achieve peace for the region. Thailand is always ready to establish peaceful relations with Laos. Is Laos ready for that?

PRASONG ON CLANDESTINE LAO BROADCAST IN FRANCE

BK211229 Bangkok THAI RAT in Thai 21 Jun 86 pp 3, 2

[Text] Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri, secretary general of the National Security Council, told reporters at Government House yesterday [20 June] that Laos' attempt to revive the dispute over the three border villages was believed to have aimed at diverting world attention from the Cambodian problem to the Thai-Lao border.

Squadron Leader Prasong said: Regarding Laos, our embassy in France earlier reported that a clandestine radio station broadcasting in the Lao language was set up in that country to propagate news against Thailand about the three border villages and to instigate Lao residents there into believing that the 17 northeastern provinces of Thailand belong to Laos. The Thai Foreign Ministry later sent a letter to the French government inquiring about it and was informed that the station had been closed and some people were arrested and would be prosecuted. Prasong said he believed the clandestine station was set up by Lao officials to conduct propaganda aimed at Lao refugees in France.

4TH ARMY COMMANDER VETOES ARREST OF RIOT LEADERS

[Text] Phuket -- Fourth Army commander Lt-Gen Wanchai Chitchamnong yesterday vetoed police plans to arrest suspected leaders of Monday's tantalum plant riot. Lt-Gen Wanchai, who chairs a committee to restore order to the resort, rejected the proposal from regional police commissioner Lt-Gen Linphit Satchaphan. Sources at the meeting said Lt-Gen Wanchai feared the arrests of suspects on a police blacklist could spark more violence. Local feeling was still running high after the incident, in which the Phuket Merlin Hotel was also struck by arsonists and looters.

Lt-Gen Wanchai also vetoed a police plan to set up night checkpoints because they could make visitors feel the resort remained volatile. The Fourth Army commander ordered the withdrawal for the same reason of Hua Hin-based paramilitary police units which had been guarding banks at the resort. Some of the 43 riot suspects were reportedly released yesterday while investigations against those still in detention were speeded up.

Lt-Gen Wanchai assigned his chief of staff for civilian affirs, Col Banchon Chawansinlapa, to invite the protest leaders to talks to seek their cooperation in improving the province's image. Participants at the meeting decided to urge residents to help clear up the mess and join a procession to ease the atmosphere.

Lt-Gen Wanchai later appealed to election candidates to suspend campaign rallies. Political gatherings have not been affected by the state of emergency declared after the violence, and Lt-Gen Wanchai said he will lift the imposition before Sunday.

Meanwhile Police Chief Gen Narong Mahanon said yesterday the masterminds behind the violence will be arrested soon. Gen Narong called a meeting yesterday attended by Fourth Region Provincial Police Commissioner Pol Lt-Gen Linphit Satchaphan, his deputy Pol Maj-Gen Suthep Chanthana, Special Branch chief Pol Maj-Gen Kasem Saengmit and Assistant Police Chief Pol Lt-Gen Phao Sarasin to assess investigations. Gen Narong said he had told local police to act against suspects because they had broken the law and had damaged the national reputation.

Interior Ministry Permanent Secretary Phisan Munlasatsathon said the state of emergency will not affect the general elections. Mr Phisan said preparations and campaigns by candidates would not be affected as a curfew and ban on political gatherings have not been imposed in the province.

The official said the violence was over but the state of emergency had not been lifted yet because officials wanted to make sure there were no more eruptions.

-- The Industry Ministry yesterday set up a team headed by inspector-general Dr Chakkrit Buranasamrit to assess the damage to the tantalum plant.

Minister Chirayu Itsarangkun na Ayutthaya said yesterday he had received a letter from the company expressing appreciation for the ministry's efforts to resolve the problem with fairness. The management, he said, pledged to continue cooperating with the Government. Dr Chirayu said that even though the plant was burned down, he would continue efforts to determine if it would have caused environmental problems. He also said he had received death threats.

CHAWALIT REJECTS FUND MISUSE ALLEGATION

[Text] Army Commander-in-Chief Gen Chawalit Yongchaiyut yesterday rejected an allegation that the military secret fund had been used to destabilise the Government and manipulate the election. Gen Chawalit said the disbursement of the fund was not "secret" and it was impossible for senior officers to secretly use the money at their own discretion.

"The secret fund is like other type of government budget. The only difference is that its disbursement does not have to follow the usual official payment procedure and the purpose of the expenditure is not disclosed," Gen Chawalit said.

The statement came after the Democrat Party said an important military figure had misappropriated sums from the fund.

Gen Chawalit has ordered Army units concerned to issue a statement to clarify the matter.

Democrat deputy leader Chuan Likphai said on Friday the senior officer had used the fund to pay a group of MPs to block the passage of a government-sponsored financial decree, which brought about the May 1 dissolution of Parliament.

Supreme Commander Gen Athit Kamlang-ek told the BANGKOK POST the allegation was groundless and irresponsible and was aimed at attracting support in the election. The allegation, he said, was damaging to the military institution and the country. "If the military really dumped money to back the defeat of the decree, the draft would have not been beaten by only a small margin of votes," he said.

Gen Athit said voters should think carefully before supporting a party which used such tactics to campaign. "I think no other political parties have done anything like this," said Gen Athit, expressing doubts that MPs would sell themselves in that way.

Challenging the accusers to name the officer in question, Gen Athit said he had never messed about with the secret fund. "The content of the allegation is unseen and there's completely no truth in it," Gen Athit said.

PREM TARGET OF CRITICISM AT RALLIES

BK230854 Bangkok BANGKOK WORLD in English 23 Jun 86 p 3

[Text] Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon became a target of attacks at political rallies in Bangkok yesterday as campaigns began to heat up for next month's election. Politicians in the South were also reported not to be by Gen Prem's side during functions in the South.

In the City, candidates of the People's Party (Ratsadon) criticised the premier for failing to improve the economic situation and the Democrats appeared to be no longer on his beside, the report said. The People's Party campaign was seen in contradictory to a belief that it favoured Gen Prem as the next prime minister. In a rally in Bang Kapi yesterday, the party attacked the failure of economic development under the administration of Gen Prem.

The party's secretary general, Gen Mana Rattanakoset said, "He (Gen Prem) and his Finance Minister (Sommai) should be responsible for the economy's bad shape and he (Gen Prem) shouldn't remain in the post after this election."

The report said other key men of the party, including Deputy Party Leader Dr Niphon Sasithon also criticised the Prime Minister for being unable to improve the economic situation.

It was observed that Gen Prem became a target of attack apparently on grounds that candidates allegedly believed he (Gen Prem) was unpopular in Bangkok.

Democrat candidate Khanin Bunsuwan last week said party members in Bangkok reportedly felt awkward to hear some of the party's candidates in the South speak in favour of Gen Prem. Believing in Gen Prem's popularity in the South, an earlier report said that the Democrats appeared to accompany the premier during his tour to the region last week. "His popularity (Gen Prems) in Bangkok was at a low and such acts could affect our candidates in Bangkok," Khanin was quoted as having said.

After this notice, the report said the Democrats in the South were absent from any of Gen Prem's functions.

The Democrats held a rally in Ratburana, Thonburi yesterday and reaffirmed potential supporters that the party had never planned for Gen Prem to head the next Government.

"It (choice of Prime Ministership) would be the matter of the future to be discussed on circumstances," the Democrats said at the rally. Deputy leader Gen Han Linanon also pledged that the party would amend the Constitution to allow only an MP as an eligible person for the top post.

CANDIDATE KILLED; POLICE SET UP AD HOC UNIT

[Excerpt] The police department has blacklisted more than 100 hired gunmen and arrest warrants were issued to about 20 of them. It has also formed a task force to crack down on them during the run-up to the election. Meanwile, Chat Thai candidate Chire Mangkhalarangsi was gunned down in Ratchaburi Tuesday night and the provincial police chief theorized that the slaying may be linked to the July 27 general election.

Assistant Police Director General Pol Lt Gen Sawaeng Thirasawat said that police authorities will do their best to ensure security for politicians although none had requested police protection so far. The blacklist of the hired gunmen, he said, was prepared as a result of Interior Minister Sitthi Chirarot's instruction for the police department to keep a close watch on them.

The objective is to ward off possible violence during the run-up to the nationwide election, according to the senior police official. He said that police security will be specially tight at the sites where two rival political parties canvass side by side.

The department has set up a "gunmen suppression unit" to deep close surveillance on persons suspected to be gunmen hired by politicans, he said. He added that the suspects would be immediately detained if they were found to have committed crimes previously.

Candidates Seek Police Protection

[Excerpt] At least five election candidates have sought police protection during their campaigns. A police source said yesterday that Pongphon Adireksan, the son of former Chat Thai leader maj-Cen Praman, had asked for protection. A similar request had also come from Wiraphon Adireksan, who is helping his brother campaign under the Chat Thai banner in Saraburi.

The other Chat Thai members who have sought protection include Saraburi candidate Banuat Wongprayun, and Loei candidates Thongchai Nikonsuk and Somut Satchaphong. Ngoen Bunsupha, a Ratsadon candidate for Saraburi, has also sought protection. The source said the candidates want at least two policemen to escort them on their campaigns.

HANOI REJECTS PRC CLAIMS ON BORDER SITUATION

BK251206 Hanoi International Service in English 1000 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Feature: "Events and Opinions"]

[Text] In recent days, some members of the Beijing leadership have claimed that they desire the improvement of relations with Vietnam and that the situation along the Sino-Vietnamese border is calm. A spokesman for the Chinese Foreign Ministry, Ma Yuzhen, on 11 June denied the Chinese artillery shelling on Quyet Tien Basic General School in Quan Ba District, Ha Tuyen Province, 10 km deep inside Vietnamese territory, on the International Children's Day -- 1 June -- saying that it is a fabrication and an ill-intentioned slander. What is the truth? Here is our opinion:

The fact is that the situation along the Sino-Vietnamese border became more tense in May and June due to continued Chinese armed provocations. More seriously still, on 1 June Chinese troops fired artillery shells at Quyet Tien Basic General School in Quan Ba District, Ha Tuyen Province, while the pupils were camping there. Chinese shelling killed two pupils and wounded five others and teacher Luu Thinh Phy. Mr Luu Thinh Phu said: At 1500 on 1 June, while the children were singing the national anthem and the Young Pioneer Brigade's song, beginning the meeting in celebration of the International Children's Day, Chinese troops fired artillery shells on the pupils. The first shell exploded only 50 meters from them. Hardly had I ordered to pupils to lie down when a second shell hit a place not far away, and a third explosion was heard. A shrapnel of Chinese shell stabbed at my back, and I fell unconscious immediately.

Two weeks after this shelling, Chinese troops committed another crime against the Vietnamese pupils by floating mines along Vietnam's rivers. Chinese mines injured Nguyen Ngoc Bien, 22, in Tan Loc Village in Hanoi's outlying district of Tu Liem, when he went fishing on the Red River. Bien lost his left leg, and his right leg and left hand were badly injured. Another victim was Dinh Thi Hong, 40. Hong was injured on 17 June when she was collecting drifting firewoods on the Red River, and the two victims are being given treatment at the Vietnam-GDR Friendship Hostpital.

In May alone, Chinese troops fired 70,000 artillery and mortar rounds on Vietnamese territories, causing heavy losses to the Vietnamese people in the border region, especially in Vi Xuyen District, Ha Tuyen Province.

These crimes further expose the Beijing leadership's hyprocrisy and prove that it is them who have sabotaged the traditional friendship between the two peoples of Vietam and China.

[Report on 24 June opening meeting of 11th session of 7th SRV National Assembly in Hanoi]

[Excerpt] Dear Friends: The 11th session of the 7th SRV National Assembly opened this morning, 24 June, at the Vietnam-USSR Friendship Workers Palace in the capital, Hanoi, under the chairmanship of National Assembly Chairman Nguyen Huu Tho.

Attending were National Assembly deputies from 40 provinces, municipalities, and special zones across the country. Comrade Truong Chinh, member of the CPV Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the Council of State, and Comrade Pham Van Dong, member of the Political Bureau and chairman of the Council of Ministers, were among the attendees. Also present were a large number of representatives of the diplomatic corps and international organizations present in Hanoi, and domestic and foreign newsmen and reporters from news agencies and radio and television stations.

The meeting began at 0900 [0200 GMT] sharp. Chairman Nguyen Huu Tho made the opening speech at the start of the 11th session of the 7th National Assembly. After extending greetings to the National Assembly deputies present and warmly welcoming the comrades and friends of the diplomatic corps attending the 24 June meeting, he said:

[Begin Nguyen Huu Tho recording] At this session, the National Assembly will hear the Council of Minister's draft committee report on the draft law on marriage and family, as amended after study and incorporation of ideas contributed by comrade National Assembly deputies and various echelons and sectors.

The National Assembly will hear a Council of Ministers report and discuss the implementation of the state budget during the first 6 months of the year, the implementation of the resolution of the eighth plenum of the CPV Central Committee on prices, wages, and money, as well as urgent measures for the continued implementation of that resolution in the coming period. The National Assembly will make observations on the work of the Supreme People's Court and the Supreme People's Organ of Control. It will hear the foreign minister report on the world situation and on foreign relations of our party and state. This session will also discuss and decide on a number of other important issues.

Comrade National Assembly deputies -- thoroughly grasping the resolution of the 8th plenum of the CPV Central Committee, resolutions No 28 and 31 of the Political Bureau, and the conclusion of the 10th plenum of the CPV Central Committee on prices, wages, and money -- let us, National Assembly deputies, uphold criticism and self-criticism, accomplish this session's agenda as well as possible, contribute together with the entire party and people to renovating the economic management mechanism, abolish bureaucratic centralism and the government subsidy system, switch vigorously to socialist economic accounting and business transactions, promote production, practice thrift, carry out the 1986 state plan successfully, and prepare for the sixth national party congress practically. With that in mind, I hereby declare the 11th session of the 7th National Assembly open. [applause] [end recording]

Following Chairman Nguyen Huu Tho's opening speech, Comrade Nguyen Thi Dinh, entrusted by the Council of Ministers, read a report on the new draft law on marriage and family. The report highlighted the great impact of the marriage law promulgated in 1959 and voluntarily implemented by the people for a long period. Many of the regulations have gradually become fine habits in family life. That marriage law has contributed to emancipating women and establishing equal rights between men and women in family and society. The report also pointed out that in view of developments in society, the promulgation of a new law on marriage and family has become an objective necessity to accelerate socialist construction throughout the country.

The new draft law on marriage and family was formulated after 2 years of investigations and surveys on marriage and family life in 13 provinces. Agencies and mass organizations at the central and local levels were repeatedly asked to contribute their views. All the opinions contributed by agencies and mass organizations were carefully studied and selectively incorporated. The draft law was amended accordingly, then submitted to the Council of State. The perfected draft is now being presented to the National Assembly.

CHAPTER TASKS IN CRITICISM DRIVE OUTLINED

BK241334 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2330 GMT 23 Jun 86

[QUAN DOI NHAN DAN editorial: "Responsibility of Party Chapters in the Criticism and Self-Criticism Drive"]

[Text] Upholding the combat spirit in carrying out party chapter activities is a very important task in educating and forging party members to maintain revolutionary ethics firmly and to satisfactorily develop their leadership role along with their vanguard and exemplary characteristics.

The party chapter is directly responsible for managing, educating, and training party members through its leadership role and performance of tasks. Only by enhancing its strength and regularly conducting self-criticism and criticism can a party chapter ensure its internal unity and help party members develop their progress, overcome shortcomings, and satisfactorily fulfill all tasks. Realities prove that only the party chapter -- an organ directly responsible for managing all party members' activities -- has the necessary conditions to review, follow up on, and appraise party members' performance correctly, thereby helping them improve most satisfactorily and concretely. Whenever the party chapter effectively enhances the combat spirit in carrying out party activities and satisfactorily conducts self-criticism, it will be able to firmly maintain the party organization's leadership role, while party members can strengthen their vanguard and exemplary duties. On the other hand, wherever the party chapter neglects its management task, especially the criticism and self-criticism drive, the quality of party members will be diminished, the people's love for and trust of them will be reduced, and the party organization's prestige will be affected.

The criticism and self-criticism drive is being conducted comprehensively at all base echelons throughout the party as well as the Army. The majority of basic party organizations scrupulously conducted this criticism drive, pointing out strengths and shortcomings and designing effective measures to overcome difficulties. However, many party organizations have conducted their criticism drive negligently and carelessly, thereby failing to meet set requirements and necessitating a repetition of this task. The main causes of this shortcoming are weak party chapters that have not been able to develop their role and responsibility, to convince party members of their duty to conduct self-criticism and to take decisive measures to accelerate a satisfactory criticism drive.

Experience from this criticism drive indicates that a party chapter that cannot enhance its combat spirit makes a poor showing in criticism and self-criticism despite enthusiasm from the people and concrete supervision from the higher echelons in the drive. This fact is more significant for party chapters with leading party cadres and members who have authority, but have shown their poor quality and severe shortcomings to the local people. Many party chapters have shown such negative phenomena as rightism and negligence over shortcomings of party members, especially leading party cadres with high authority. This shortcoming will diminish the leadership role of the party chapter and encourage party cadres and members with authority to gradually neglect the party's principle and discipline, ignore the significance of the party chapter, and contend that their role in the party chapter's activities is merely to provide supervision and ideas. This shortcoming must be promptly eliminated in political activity.

The role and responsibility of each party chapter must be clearly manifested in this criticism drive. We must clearly show the strengths and shortcomings of each party member, ensuring that no party member with shortcomings has not been criticized and helped by the party chapter, regardless of his function and position.

In conducting self-criticism and criticism to point out the mistakes and shortcomings of party members and chapters, the important thing is to clearly point out the causes of these mistakes and shortcomings, arrive at satisfactory conclusions, and set forth remedial measures.

Party members deemed unqualified must be resolutely disciplined by the party chapters. If the party members' shortcomings are not serious enough for disciplinary action, the party chapters must discuss specific measures to help party members correct themselves and progress. Negligent criticism and paltry action to remind party members of their shortcomings will yield no results after the criticism has been completed.

We should also overcome the situation of some party chapters conducting criticism as a mere formality because they do not have any serious problems and their members do not present any notorious shortcomings. In these party chapters, criticism should be focused on the revolutionary zeal, self-awareness, sense of responsibility, productivity, and work performance of party members to point out their weaknesses.

We should struggle in this criticism drive to enable every unit and party organization to reach the ultimate goal of creating actual improvement the leadership and sense of responsibility of all party members.

Scrupulously and resolutely conducting self-criticism and criticism in each party chapter is the most important condition for ensuring success in this drive and for creating favorable conditions for the current party congresses at all echelons and the coming sixth national party congress to be fine successes.

DEFENSE EXPERT DIBB COMMENTS ON ANZUS, INDONESIA

[Text] The author of a government commission review of Australia's future defense needs, Mr Paul Dibb, says the ANZUS defense alliance needs to be enhanced. Mr Dibb, speaking at the National Press Club in Canberra, said the treaty, which links the United States, Australia, and New Zealand, was vital for the technological advantages it gives Australia in the region.

The report states the only credible threat to Australia in the next 10 years would be a small scale attack from or through Indonesia or the Pacific Islands. Today, Mr Dibb said his review did not focus on any particular country as a threat. He accepted the views of Indonesia's foreign minister, Dr Mokhtar, that that country would act as a protective buffer to Australia's northern areas.

Mr Dibb also stressed the importance of the ANZUS alliance, saying it should not only remain but be enhanced. He said the presence on Australian soil of American-Australian joint facilities and the port visits of the U.S. warships contributed to a nuclear deterrence.

BEAZLEY COMMENTS ON UPGRADING RESERVES

BK180235 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0130 GMT 18 Jun 86

[Text] The government is to upgrade the nation's defense reserve forces. The federal defense minister, Mr Beazley, said in Brisbane it was time the reserve forces were seen as a vital part in the country's defense. A recently released Dibb report, he said, outlined the enormity of Australia's defense needs, including that of more manpower. Mr Beazley said he hoped to attract another 5,000 recruits for the reserve forces within the next 2 years through the provision of new equipment, possibility of better pay, and the knowledge that the reserve forces will play a major role in the defense of Australia. The minister also plans to implement a policy to further integrate the reserves with the regular forces. In this way, he said, he hoped to create a crack reserve force capable of being deployed at any time for any purpose.

NEW ZEALAND

LANGE OFFERS TO QUIT IF NUCLEAR STANCE ACCEPTED

HK190211 Auckland THE NEW ZEALAND HERALD in English 10 Jun 86 p 1

[By NEW ZEALAND PRESS ASSOCIATION and Staff Correspondent]

[Text] London — The Prime Minister, Mr Lange, appeared yesterday to offer to quit office if the United States could accept New Zealand's anti-nuclear stance in his absence. "If it means they think they could live with the situation with me gone, well I'll go — quite simple," Mr Lange said in a BBC television interview.

Mr Lange stuck firmly to New Zealand's policy of refusing visits from nuclear warships. "New Zealand is not going to have nuclear weapons." But he said there was not going to be an "all up" dispute with the Americans.

"We'll settle down. the ANZUS pact will not be aborted. "We will continue on and we'll sort it through without anyone seeming to lose a great deal of prestige."

Mr Lange said later that he stood by his offer to step aside. "If the price of having an anti-nuclear policy in New Zealand understood and in place was that I should not be adjudicating or holding office, that is the step I would be prepared to take."

Mr Lange said he had repeated the offer to the British Prime Minister, Mrs Thatcher. "The fact is that what was said very simply was this: 'If it be me that you are concerned with, then me will go,'" he said. Mrs Thatcher had replied that that was for him to consider.

Mr Lange said he still had some objectives he wanted to achieve as Prime Minister and he did not expect to have to leave office. But he would make that sacrifice if it were required in the interests of the anti-nuclear policy.

Mr Lange said it appeared overseas that the anti-nuclear policy was unduly attributed to him personally. "Sometimes people say that it is me who is the crusader for all this," he said. "I am trying to tell them that it is not."

Pessimistic About Solution

HK231208 Hong Kong AFP in English 1155 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] Wellington, June 23 (AFP) -- New Zealand sees little prospect of an agreement with the United States on the Labour government's anti-nuclear policies, Prime Minister David Lange said Monday. Speaking at a press conference, Mr Lange said although he would meet with U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz during the ASEAN foreign ministers meeting in Manila later this week, "there does not seem to be great scope for settlement there."

The New Zealand leader also accused the United States of displaying little goodwill to help settle the impasse caused by New Zealand's ban on port access for nuclear-capable warships. "I think it is possible to find an acceptable formula (for the clauses of the anti-nuclear law New Zealand intends passing)," said Mr Lange. "That requires goodwill. New Zealand has had that and tendered it in abundance," he said, adding, "the United States will not negotiate on that issue with us." "My own belief is that it will not be possible now to negotiate a form which will be acceptable to the United States," Mr Lange said.

Mr Lange said he would be meeting with Mr Shultz, "expressing again the earnestness with which the New Zealand Government approaches this matter, and generally conveying to him our commitment to the principles of regional collective security."

Mr Lange said while it might still be possible to find a "form of words acceptable to the British" for the crucial clauses of the anti-nuclear legislation so as not to disturb the British "neither-confirm-nor-deny" policy on nuclear weapons carriage, the same formula would "not be acceptable to the United States." "There is not the same disposition to find the accommodation," among U.S. leaders, he said.

The comments were seen by observers as signalling an end to the search for accommodation with the United States unless Mr. Shultz offers some movement during or after the Manila talks.

O'FLYNN DISCUSSES SELF-RELIANT MILITARY

HK190213 Auckland THE NEW ZEALAND HERALD in English 10 Jun 86 p 3

[Text] An expanding, more self-reliant military armed with Belgian-made guns was pictured yesterday by the Minister of Defence, Mr O'Flynn. His speech to the annual conference of the Returned Service Association -- in effect the major Government speech on defence each year -- stressed greater military co-operation with Australia now that the United States has "withdrawn co-operation."

It also revealed that the number of soldiers in the country has increased by almost 10 percent in the past year, while the staffing situation at the Devonport naval base has "stabilised." All the armed services lost hundreds of people in 1984-85 in an exodus attributed party to morale problems arising from the cut in joint exercises with the United States.

Mr O'Flynn said the armed forces received a 15.5 percent pay rise from last November 10, in line with the general state services adjustment.

However, a further increase to allow for special factors in the military was only now being considered. In the meantime, the number of people in the Army had already risen by 476 to 5819 during the past year.

"Staff levels at the dockyard have at least stabilised," Mr O'Flynn said. "The last round of pay negotiations, coupled with recruitment of skilled tradesmen from the United Kingdom, should help to rebuild the workforce there. I have been there twice in the last two weeks, as well as having a large meeting in the Beehive of workers, union representatives and so on, and I think we are now at least in a reasonably satisfactory state as far as the workforce is concerned."

He said that the Government would buy 1,000 Belgian-made 5.56mm calibre "Minimi" light support guns for $8,316,000 to replace Second World War vintage bren guns. The first batch of 200 guns is expected to be delivered before the end of the year.

Mr O'Flynn said he had also approved spending $3 million for minesweeping equipment. This includes scanners to be fitted to the Navy volunteer reserve craft in the four main centres, and remote-controlled "submersible vehicles" to inspect mines once they have been found. A contract for this equipment has not yet been let, but the scanners are expected to be fitted within 18 months.

Mr O'Flynn said the refurbishment of HMNZS Wellington at the Devonport dockyard was nearing completion, with only tuning and testing of the various systems still required before the vessel could undergo sea trials.

As already announced, the Government would buy a $27.7 million tanker for the Navy "almost identical in size and capability" to the one recommended for Australia in the recent report by a defence expert, Mr Paul Dibb. A three-year, $140 million update of the Air Force Skyhawks was under way, and the sixth Orion aircraft bought last year was now operational.

For the Army, the Government approved spending $21 million for 24 howitzer artillery guns, and was also buying 610 machines which taught soldiers to "keep your head down" by simulating the effects of various weapons

"In short, we are no longer paying lip-service to independence of our forces while remaining dependent on others before they can operate, as in the situation where there were only two days' ammunition and no ability to operate independently," said Mr O'Flynn, referring to the situation when the Government was elected.

Yet New Zealand wished to maintain alliances with friendly countries. "We are having no difficulty doing so with Australia. We wish we could do the same with the United States, but it has withdrawn all or practically all cooperation with us." Mr O'Flynn welcomed Mr Dibb's recommendation that Australia and New Zealand should develop joint military planning. He noted that Mr Dibb found Australia "one of the most secure countries in the world" and faced "no identifiable direct military threat."

"The implication must be that New Zealand is even more secure and invasion even less conceivable. We are islands in the Pacific with like-minded neighbours. We are not faced by any hostile military force for thousands of miles.

"I do not say this situation is free from potential threats, but they are at most threats of low-level harassment of the kind that Mr Dibb speaks of in regard to northern Australia. They, too, are less likely than for Australia."

Yet Mr O'Flynn pointed to New Zealand's continued participation in the Sinai peace-keeping force and in military exercises and disaster relief in the Pacific to show that this country was prepared to play its part overseas.

"In the past year our South Pacific neighbours, all but one of them anyway, have shown themselves overwhelmingly in favour of a higher defence profile in the region by New Zealand," he said. "We have responded."

PEREZ DE CUELLAR TO ARBITRATE WITH FRANCE

[By Ray Lilley]

[Text] Wellington, June 19 (AFP) -- France and New Zealand have agreed to let U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar arbitrate their dispute over the French sinking of the Greenpeace ship Rainbow Warrior, officials said Thursday. A statement issued simultaneously in Wellington and Paris said that both sides would put their case to Mr Perez de Cuellar to sort out the aftermath of last July's bombing in Auckland harbour in which one crewman died.

New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange told a hastily-called news conference Thursday that a final ruling on the affair would be "done rapidly, perhaps in a matter of three or four weeks."

He also said France had advised officials of the General agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) that "it has withdrawn restrictions on New Zealand imports, which was a precondition for New Zealand embarking on this process" of arbitration. Two French agents are serving 10-year sentences in New Zealand for the sinking of the flagship of the Greenpeace ecology movement, which was set to spearhead a new protest against French nuclear testing in the Pacific.

Mr Lange said the issues before Mr Perez de Cuellar "range from the demands made from time to time by both sides, including the question of an apology, reparations (for New Zealand) and of the two agents."

Asked whether Wellington would abide by a ruling which decreed the two agents be set free, Mr Lange said: "New Zealand submits to the Secretary General and submits in a way which is binding." "It is a matter for the adjudication. This government will be judged on the outcome of that," he told reporters in the North Island city of Hamilton, where he was attending a meeting.

The statement issued by France and New Zealand said that the arbitration agreement resulted from Dutch Prime Minister Ruud Lubbers' proposal at the Hague during a recent visit by Mr Lange. It said Mr Perez de Cuellar agreed to make his ruling "in the very near future," and both sides were confident it would be "equitable and principled." Mr Lange said New Zealand had been careful and measured in the preparation of its submissions to the U.N. chief. He said that when the process was complete it would be "competent for people to judge the role of the government in the matter."

But the opposition National Party quickly denounced the decision to put the fate of the two French agents to arbitration, saying that Mr Lange had "caved in, in a craven and cowardly fashion" to French trade threats.

Foreign affairs spokesman Sir Robert Muldoon said the decision "is appalling and flies in the face of every assurance that the prime minister has given" about not freeing the pair. "The agents are criminals who pleaded guilty and were sentenced for a serious crime and now the prime minister has given way the effect of New Zealand law," Sir Robert said.

VANUATU

USSR SEEKS FISHING RIGHTS, SHORE PRIVILEGES

LD252313 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 1900 GMT 24 Jun 86

[Text] It has been announced in Vanuatu that a high-level Soviet delegation has sought fishing rights, shore privileges and airline landing rights in the Pacific island nation. A joint Vanuatu-Soviet communique issued in Vila says a three-man Soviet delegation which left on Sunday had requested Soviet access to tuna-fishing in Vanuatu's economic zone of 450,000 sq km. The communique did not mention any licensing fees for fishing rights. It said the government would consider the Soviet offer and there would be another meeting at a convenient time and place.

The communique said the Soviet Union's draft communique [as heard] for a fishing agreement contained a proposal for access to Vanuatu's ports for rest and refreshment of crews of Soviet fishing vessels. The draft also contained provision for refuelling and repair of ships and what was described as replacement of crews by (?charter) Aeroflot flights. Aeroflot is the national airline of the Soviet Union.

[Text] United States Secretary of State George Shultz said that aside from the $200 million granted by his country, efforts are being made for the early release of the remaining $350 million promised by President Reagan as a demonstration of support for the Aquino administration. The whole $550 million to be granted by the U.S. this year is part of the $900 million rental payment for use of the two military bases until 1991. The financial aid will be used to spur the local economy.

AQUINO, ABE DISCUSS JAPANESE ECONOMIC AID

[Text] Manila, June 25 KYODO -- Philippine President Corazon Aquino said Wednesday she plans to visit the United States and Japan before the end of this year. Aquino revealed her travel plan in response to an invitation from Japan's Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe in a meeting at the Malacanang Palace in Manila, Japanese officials said. Details of the trip will be arranged through diplomatic channels.

Abe, here to attend a series of talks with foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), also pledged to speed up the disbursement of Japan's economic aid to the Philippines, Japanese officials said. There is 16.4 billion yen outstanding in the 49.5 billion yen loan package which Japan pledged to the Philippines late last year, and the Philippine Government has expressed hopes of switching the outstanding sum from low-priority projects to more effective commodity aid. Abe promised to dispatch a government mission to the Philippines in July to consult with Manila on how to use the money. In addition, Abe also promised to send another government mission to the Philippines to discuss next year's aid program as soon as Manila has decided on its aid needs, Japanese officials said.

The meeting between the two leaders started off with a pledge from Abe to help the Philippines in getting its economy back on its feet and to further strengthen bilateral ties, Japanese officials said. Aquino responded by saying that she appreciated Japan's experience of economic reconstruction in the early post-World War II years and that she would like to use the Japanese experience as a point of reference in her effort to put the Philippine economy in order, Japanese officials said.

Abe extended the invitation to Aquino on behalf of Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone. Aquino told Abe that she has also received an invitation to visit the United States, and American sources say she might go there before the U.S. Congress goes into recess. Aquino said she would like to discuss Japan's economic aid during her upcoming Japan trip, which she said she was looking forward to with pleasure, Japanese officials said.

Abe followed up the Aquino meeting with a separate session with her foreign minister, Salvador Laurel, in which Laurel urged Japan to improve market access for three major Philippine export products -- coconut oil, timber and garments.

Specifically, Laurel asked Japan to change its current tariff law on garment imports, by levying a duty only on the value-added element of the product and removing the duty on textiles bought from Japan and used in such garments, Japanese officials said. Abe promised to study the matter in the new round of multilateral trade talks, they said.

LAUREL, MALAYSIA'S RITHAUDDEEN

BK251455 Kuala Lumpur BERNAMA in English 1431 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 25 (OANA-BERNAMA) -- Malaysia and the Philippines have agreed to further intensify bilateral co-operation particularly in the field of trade, Malaysian Foreign Minister Tengku Ahmad Rithaudden said Wednesday. Malaysia is interested to import sugar on a long term contract basis from the Philippines, he told BERNAMA after calling on Vice President and Foreign Minister Salvador Laurel, here. He said the move would help overcome trade imbalance between the two countries which was now very much in Malaysia's favour. Malaysia is the number three largest trading partner with the Philippines after the United States and Japan.

Tengku Rithauddeen said Malaysia was prepared to study the Philippine proposal to enter into countertrade arrangement with Malaysia. "The subject will be further discussed by senior officials of the two countries," he added.

Tengku Rithauddeen said Laurel had reiterated the desire of the new government to promote much closer relations with the Philippines' immediate neighbours, particularly ASEAN member countries.

AQUINO NAMES MITRA, DIOKNO TO CEASE-FIRE

HK260954 Hong Kong AFP in English 0950 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 26 (AFP) -- Philippine President Corazon Aquino Thursday disclosed that Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra and human rights lawyer Jose Diokno are her emissaries to ceasefire talks with communist insurgents. Mrs Aquino told a news conference after meeting the two negotiators that she was still hopeful the talks would succeed despite recent hardline statements by the communists.

Both Mr Mitra and Mr Diokno were jailed by Mrs Aquino's deposed predecessor, Ferdinand Marcos, who imposed martial law in 1972. Mr Diokno, a former senator, now heads a presidential committee looking into human rights violations during the Marcos regime.

Mrs Aquino said she met with Mr Diokno, Mr Mitra, Armed Forces Chief of Staff Fidel Ramos and Defence Minister Juan Ponce Enrile before the news conference. Asked what instructions she gave to her emissaries, she said: "I think in order to have fruitful negotiations, it is better that I do not say anything at this moment." "We did talk over some points," she said.

Mrs Aquino said the negotiators themselves will imform the press about the progress of the talks. "We don't have specific dates of when the talks will begin," Mrs Aquino said. Chief communist negotiator Satur Ocampo was earlier reported to have said the talks had not begun.

Asked about certain statements by Mr Enrile expressing cynicism about the success of the talks, Mrs. Aquino said: "We both realized that there are some people who will never cooperate with the government." But she said she will still exert all efforts to reach a "meaningful dialogue" with the communists "if only to avoid loss of lives." "My main aim is to first of all avoid any more loss of lives and exert all efforts to achieve peace," Mrs Aquino said.

Earlier she had warned that her government would use a reformed and reinvigorated military to crush hardline elements within the Communist Party of the Philippines and its 16,500-strong New People's Army who refuse to heed her peace overture.

Among recent statements from the communists was a demand to be included in a government coalition. Mrs Aquino rejected that demand when she pledged during the presidential campaign that she would never appoint communists to her government.

RAMOS SAYS INSURGENCY 'MUCH WORSE' THAN PRE-1972

HK260510 Manila THE NEW PHILIPPINES DAILY EXPRESS in English 25 Jun 86 p 3

[By A.F. Soriano]

[Text] Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, Armed Forces chief of staff, said yesterday that despite government efforts to talk peace with the Communist Party of the Philippines, the New People's Army has stepped up atrocities against civilians, the military and even government offices and civilian installations. He said the insurgency situation today has become much worse than that before the imposition of martial law in the 1972.

Because of this, Ramos told a press conference that the AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] was conducting a two-day social seminar workshop on peace and order for Cabinet ministers, governors, private sector leaders and key officials of the military on July 2 and 3. He said Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile has agreed to the holding of the seminar to motivate national and local officials and other sectoral leaders for a better atmosphere of "peace and order" in the country.

Ramos said the seminar will attempt to reduce the level of violance in the communities through a candid discussion of issues affecting the country's peace and order. Among the more important issues to be discussed during the seminar are the ceasefire talks, general reconciliation, and rehabilitation, Ramos said. The AFP chief said he hopes the 147 participants could come up with a national strategy for improving peace and order conditions in the rural and urban areas.

Ramos said the military would listen to the views of regional leaders on how best the current ceasefire talks could be pursued with 1977 ceasefire formula negotiated with the Moro National Liberation Front serving as a program model. Ramos pointed out that ceasefire talks are now in the first stage which calls for the establishment of contacts between the two parties. This, he said, is a procedural matter but the substantial part of the talks would have to be decided by national leadership. "We are not making any pronouncements on the substance of the talks but rather we are leaving this to the civilian authorities," Ramos said.

On the proposed abolition of the Civilian Home Defense Forces [CHDF] which several local and national officials have been clamoring for, Ramos said President Aquino has given the military two months to justify its existence.

He said the fate of the 57,000-strong CHDF would depend on how best they could implement a three-level approach to make it a more effective partner of the military in the counter-insurgency drive namely.

-- Weeding out abusive, unqualified and ineffective CHDFs whose number is about five percent of the total;
-- Study of each town or province to determine quotas or possibly reduce the total program;
-- Improvement of the quality of the CHDF through continuous training.

Ramos said military authorities are weighing the pros and cons of proposals on the CHDF program, at the same time seeking the views and comments of the civilian sector to get an accurate opinion in the 12 regions. However, Ramos indicated he was against the abolition of the CHDF. He pointed out for instance, that the AFP does not have enough manpower and that among Southeast Asian countries, the Philippines has one of the smallest armed forces in terms of population and land area. The AFP has 150,000 men.

AQUINO SPEECH MARKS NAVY FOUNDING ANNIVERSARY

HK230524 Hong Kong AFP in English 0507 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 23 (AFP) -- President Corazon Aquino moved Monday to eliminate discrimination in the Philippine Armed Forces between "loyalists" of her deposed predecessor and those who helped install her in power. "I hereby strike the pejorative connotation of the word 'loyalist' from the lexicon of the armed forces," Mrs. Aquino said in a speech to naval officers and men to mark the 88th anniversary of the Philippine Navy.

Military sources say there have been reports of discrimination in the armed forces against troops loyal to deposed President Ferdinand Marcos. Some of them have reportedly deserted. Reformist troops led by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and General Fidel Ramos staged a mutiny last February that installed Mrs. Aquino as the rightful winner of the presidential election three weeks earlier.

"You and I and all in the armed forces are all loyalists and all rebels -- loyal to the democratic republic and rebels against any who will subvert it," Mrs Aquino said.

She said U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz, due to make a second visit to Manila on Tuesday, had told her that "you take care of your marines and they will take care of you." She made the statement amid rumors of another military coup led by Mr. Enrile, allegedly due to differences in opinion on the ceasefire talks with Communist New People's Army guerrillas. The government has dismissed the rumors.

Radio Reports on Speech

HK240447 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2300 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] President Aquino yesterday [23 Jun] called on the armed forces to work with the people. She made the call during her speech at the 88th anniversary foundation of the Philippine Navy. More on this from FEBC correspondent Al Dubar:

[Begin recording] President Corazon Aquino today called on the men in uniform to keep alive the new spirit of cooperation and trust between the armed forces and the people as this is the key to national recovery. The president made this statement in her speech at the 88th anniversary foundation of the Philippine Navy at its headquarters on Roxas Avenue.

Mrs Aquino told the navy officers and men that she has asked the men in uniform to participate in national reconstruction, employ their energy and skills in maintaining and upgrading the infrastructure of the countryside and other public facilities. She said that this new orientation of the armed forces requires no machinery or expense, only the spirit that propelled the February revolution in bringing back democracy. She said maintaining the rapport with the civilian population would enable the military personnel to inspire respect rather than fear and produce rather destroy.

The occasion provided the chief executive the opportunity to speak before another major service of the armed forces. She has spoken before to the Air Force. She reiterated the call for better treatment of soldiers, including better training in the fields [words indistinct].

She called for an end to labels within the military, stressing that everybody is now both a loyalist and a rebel, loyal to the democratic republic and rebel against anybody who seeks to subvert it.

The President was accorded a 21-gun salute on her arrival. A demonstration of the navy's capabilities followed her speech. On the same occasion, outstanding employees, officers, and men were awarded for acts of courage and gallantry in action. [end recording]

'DISCONTENTMENT' WITHIN MILITARY VIEWED

HK241529 Manila THE MANILA EVENING POST in English 23 Jun 86 pp 1, 6

[By Ed Malay]

[Text] Major service commanders of the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) will meet this week to try to solve "irritants" threatening to divide the military. A very reliable military source told THE MANILA EVENING POST that "discontentment within the AFP ranks persists despite earlier claims that factionalism in the military has already been eliminated."

There are four major services commands in the AFP -- the Philippine Army, Philippine Air Force, Philippine Constabulary [PC], and the Philippine Navy. The Philippine Marines command is attached to the Philippine Navy.

Many junior officers and enlisted men are beefing on alleged discriminatory acts taken against military units known to be loyal to former President Marcos. The source said some of these units have been disarmed and were ordered to attend seminars for reorientation, while some were reassigned to combat areas.

Part of the military demoralization, the source pointed out, is blamed on the severe lack of supplies and equipment, especially for combat units in the field and for the delay in the payment of salaries of military personnel. Amid this situation, the military has to survive by what is available for them, aggravated by moves within the national government to effect cuts in the defense and military budget and to reduce the number of armed forces personnel.

Compared to the previous administration of the deposed chief of state which placed great emphasis on the strength of the military, the AFP under the present government ranks low in the order of priorities, it was said.

Of the four major service commands, the source said, the bulk of those attached to the Philippine Army and most of the Constabulary units in the field and majority of the Philippine Marines are known to be still loyal to the previous government. He stressed that many of the officers who took over the major military units do not earn the respect of the junior officers and enlisted men, adding that some good officers in the AFP are under house arrest and detention if not mothballed in some low positions.

The source said the number of loyalist forces who went on absence without official leave (AWOL) and who were reported to have abandoned their posts after the new government took over could reach 40,000. He said these forces are in Northern Luzon, Central Luzon, Western and Central Visayas, Northern and Central Mindanao.

The first sign of disunity in the AFP cropped up yesterday when the security force at Camp Aguinaldo figured in a near-clash with PC troopers and policemen who were dispersing the rally staged by the Marcos loyalist group on Epifanio de Los Santos Avenue (EDSA) in Quezon City. In addition to the renegade military personnel, known political warlords throughout the country, the source said are known to have in their employ more than 50,000 fully armed men.

It will be recalled that Canieso was appointed to the present post by Armed Forces of the Philippine Chief of Staff General Fidel Ramos after the February revolution.

ENRILE MAY SEEK PRESIDENCY IN NEXT ELECTION

HK260922 Hong Kong AFP in English 0908 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 26 (AFP) -- Philippine Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile may seek the presidency in the next election, his spokesman said Thursday. Mr. Enrile, who led a revolt in February against former president Ferdinand Marcos under whom he had served for 15 years, said Wednesday he would consider running for president "if the nation should be in a difficult condition," spokesman Eduardo Pangilinan said. "If some people keep provoking me, I might just put my bet on the table," the 63-year-old minister reportedly told a business club, but did not elaborate.

Mr Pangilinan would not say if his boss would run against President Corazon Aquino, who has said she will only serve for one term. The length of that term is to be set by a 48-man panel currently drafting a new constitution.

The controversial defense chief has been openly critical of some of Mrs Aquino's policies, notably the wholesale sacking of pro-Marcos provincial and municipal officials, and the peace talks with communist insurgents. Last week he was at the center of persistent rumors of an imminent military coup, which he and Mrs Aquino dismissed as part of a misinformation campaign mounted by Mr Marcos from his exile in Hawaii.

COLUMNIST EXAMINES VARIOUS SCENARIOS

["Bottom Line" column by Gabe Manalac: "A Strange Formula"]

[Text] There is more than meets the eye to all those reports about a coup d'etat, despite the denials. What I am not sure of is whether it is Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile doing the ousting, or is being ousted. As a case study, the situation is a political scientist's delight, but I am afraid that its real consequences can be very damaging for the country, particularly because the anti-Enrile civilian government faction may become unwitting tools of the legasl and illegal left in this big-time game of power politics.

That is not to say that Enrile's experience in power politics is danger-free. I am merely inclined to believe that the newcomers in power politics may lack the perspective and ability to prevent a bloodless transition. Of course, there is always the possibility of blood and violence in power shifts, but the more experienced will be wary of that because blood makes people act irrationally. And that can be dangerous all around, even for the most experienced.

What then might be the possible scenarios should a coup, or ouster, come to pass? I think there are four such possibilities.

1. The oust-Enrile faction, believing that people power will back them up, will succeed in removing the defense minister from the Cabinet while at the same time retaining Chief of Staff Fideal Ramos at the helm of the military. The effect will be a split in military leadership with Enrile sympathizers posing a real threat to Ramos. This demoralized army will be exactly what the NPA ordered, and even the triumphant anti-Enrile faction's power will then be bery tentative at best.

I do not think this is a probable scenario for the simple reason that Ramos, in all likelihood, will align himself with Enrile. Both know that they are strong togther. Besides, they have already shared a moment in history and comrades-in-arms have a loyalty to one another that is difficult to neutralize.

2. The second possibility is that Enrile will win over his civilian adversaries and will establish a military leadership, without Ramos. This can be a very bloody eventuality because the NPA will surely take advantage of such a situation. The NPA will likely ride on President Aquino's popularity to mount a massive armed campaign against the army. That may be more successful than we anticpate because the army, without Ramos, will also be split and may lack the resolve to meet the NPA head on.

Again, I do not think this is a probable scenario for the same reason that Enrile and Ramos are not likely to be on separate sides. Both know only too well the consequences of a split between them and will not risk military weakness against a revitalized NPA.

3. The third scenario is a military takeover by both Enrile and Ramos. This is indeed a real possibility. But this is also fraught with bloody danger as in the first two options for the same reason that the NPA will probably mobilize pro-Aquino people power to challenge Enrile and Ramos.

Aside from the army, Enrile and Ramos may have the support of Marcos loyalists, private armies such as that of Ali Dimaporo, and even the MNLF. But the NPA can precipitate a civil war if it succeeds in identifying itself with President Aquino, and it may certainly succeed in doing so.

4. The fourth possibility, and one which is hoped for, is that President Aquino will even now take the initiative away from her inexperienced adventurers and forge a new alliance that will shift more power to both Enrile and Ramos. After all, if the political tyros in government insist on testing Enrile's mettle, their own personal loss will be bloodless, but the consequences for the people will certainly not be as harmless and President Aquino amy no longer will have any choice but to prevent that.

Whether it is to her liking or not, Mrs. Aquino's own people may have now unwittingly forced her into the only practical way of defusing a potentially bloody situation, partially of their own making, in which the NPA, Marcos loyalists, the MNLF, and private warlords will be the winners.

It will be truly ironic that in having to make up for the irresponsible adventurism into power politics of her trusted aides, President Aquino may yet have to lock arms with a military leadership that she never trusted.

Strangely, that may yet be the formula for national recovery.

LANGE, SHULTZ DISCUSS NUCLEAR ISSUE IN MANILA

HK271106 Hong Kong AFP in English 1046 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 27 (AFP) -- The United States and New Zealand must "part company" as military allies because of Wellington's ban on port visits by nuclear-powered or -armed ships, U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz said Friday.

Mr Shultz said after meeting New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange that New Zealand, which may vote the government-imposed ban into law in August, cannot see its way clear to dropping the ban, "so we part company as friends, but we part company."

Mr Shultz told reporters that while New Zealand is a friend, it can no longer be considered an ally of the United States. The United States had ceased giving New Zealand military information and would now no longer give it the economic assistance and trade preference due to an "ally rather than just friend," a senior U.S. official said.

But Mr Shultz stressed that the ANZUS treaty, which joins Australia, New Zealand and the United States, would not be abrogated. "New Zealand takes itself out of the treaty structure but the treaty structure doesn't change." "Perhaps at some future time things will change in New Zealand and then the treaty structure will be there," he added.

U.S. policy is to neither confirm nor deny the nuclear status of its warships, but New Zealand has demanded that such status be indicated to stop nuclear visits, otherwise all ships are banned.

Mr Shultz and Mr Lange met Friday for the first time since September 1985, during a gathering here of foreign ministers from the non-communist association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and its six major trading partners. Mr Lange, who is also New Zealand Foreign Minister, told a separate press conference that New Zealand would not withdraw from ANZUS because it still had "lots of common interests" with the United States. He said ANZUS was never meant to be a "security guarantee."

"The ANZUS treaty provided that in attack or case of attack the signatories would consult," he said. He added that the United States and New Zealand had not had a military relationship since February 26, 1985. On that date the United States virtually suspended defense ties with New Zealand after Wellington refused to permit the destroyer Buchanan to pay a scheduled visit unless Washington affirmed that it did not carry nuclear weapons.

"What is left of ANZUS is what was already there," Mr Lange said.

Mr Shultz had told reporters here Wednesday that if New Zealand passed planned legislation in August banning nuclear ships from its waters this would be an effective withdrawal from the ANZUS defense alliance.

A senior U.S. official said: "We've maintained the facade of an alliance for a long time. If they can't meet our conditions, there is no value in maintaining the facade." He said the ANZUS meeting in San Francisco on August 11 and 12 had already been slimmed down to include only Australia and the United States.

Mr Shultz said after meeting Mr Lange Friday: "We discussed the nuclear ship visit problem and our policy and New Zealand's policy and I am afraid that we were not able to resolve that issue," he added.

Mr Lange told reporters after the meeting that "we have come to review the two policies and the Secretary has said that the views at this stage are not reconcilable." "The New Zealand policy is not to have any nuclear weapons in New Zealand," he added.

Australian Foreign Minister Bill Hayden told AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE after meeting with Mr Lange that the ANZUS treaty "stays in pLace as the Americans have declared." "We've maintained for two years a bilateral relationship with the United States, and a bilateral one with New Zealand. We'll continue to function as we have in the last two years," he said. "We don't see in operational terms, in practical terms any change on the last couple of years."

An arrangement has been reached that if the New Zealand law goes through, President Ronald Reagan and Prime Minister Bob Hawke will exchange letters affirming that the United States and Australia will keep the ANZUS treaty alive, the sources added.

SITTHI-SHULTZ TO DISCUSS FARM ACT, OTHER ISSUES

[Text] At today's meeting in Manila between the six ASEAN member-countries and industrialized countries, Thailand will emphasize the problem of the current economic slump and trade protectionism by industrialized countries. Following is the statement by Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila about today's meeting in the Philippines.

[Begin Sitthi recording] I hope that we will achieve good results in this meeting between the two groups of six countries, as Australia and New Zealand, for example, are on our side. The meeting between the two groups of six will discuss only cooperation between countres in the Pacific region. Later on I will meet Mr Shultz. The six ASEAN members will hold talks with its dialogue partner -- the United States. I will meet Mr Shultz individually to discuss bilateral relations. I will raise the problem of the Farm Act as well as other problems related to Thailand. I have received Reagan's letter replying to the letter of our prime minister. He pledged to do his best to help Thailand. However, he said he is bound by several legal provisions.

I have checked with our ministry and learned today that our top-grade rice is greatly affected by the Farm Act. We have lost about 2,500 million baht or 34 percent of the market. [end recording]

NUCLEAR POWER ACCORD REACHED WITH U.S.

OW260419 Tokyo KYODO in English 0304 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Washington, June 25 KYODO -- Japan and the United States have reached accord on revision of a bilateral nuclear power agreement, a Japanese negotiator said here Wednesday. The two nations have been talking since August 1983 about revision of the 1968 Japan-U.S. nuclear power agreement, which called for the U.S. to provide Japan with the technology and nuclear fuel for utilization of nuclear power.

Yoshifumi Matsuda, director general for Scientific and Technological Affairs at the Foreign Ministry in Tokyo, told a new conference that the two nations have "reached broad agreement" in the negotiations.

Japanese sources said Japan agreed to a U.S. demand for reinforced restrictions on the American-supplied technology and nuclear fuel in return for U.S. agreement on simplified procedures for prior accord necessary for reprocessing of spent nuclear fuel and transportation of plutonium.

Under the existing agreement, Japan cannot reprocess spent nuclear fuel or transport plutonium without the prior consent of the United States. The U.S. proposed that the clause on prior agreement should also cover the storage of plutonium and enriched uranium and nuclear fuel.

The sources said under the broad accord reached in the Washington negotiations, Japan accepted the U.S. proposal, and the American side agreed to a formula of "comprehensive agreement" that will simplify the steps Japan is obliged to take to win prior U.S. agreement concerning reprocessing of fuel and transportation of plutonium. Officials said Japan did not make any promises outside the framework of the existing law.

MITI URGES CURBS ON CAR EXPORTS TO EUROPE

[Text] Tokyo, June 26 KYODO -- The Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI) has asked Japanese automakers to sharply curb their exports to European Community (EC) nations lest European automakers file a complaint on alleged "dumping" of Japanese cars in the European market. MITI wants the growth of EC-bound car exports this year to be limited to about 10 percent, MITI sources said Thursday.

Japanese automakers began to step up exports to the Common Market late last year to offset a drop in earnings from exports to the United States resulting from the sharp appreciation of the yen against the U.S. dollar. Japan's car exports to the EC totaled about 558,000 units in the first five months of this year, up 36 percent from the like period of the previous year. This is already equal to about 60 percent of last year's total.

About one-third of exports to the EC go to West Germany which does not impose restrictions on car imports. In April, Mitsubishi Motors Corp. boosted exports to West Germany 5.5-fold compared with a year before. Nissan Motor Co. also showed a 4.4-fold increase.

Past consultations with the EC resulted in an understanding that an increase of not more than 10 percent may be interpreted as being "orderly," the sources said. The EC strongly complained about the steep rise in Japan's car exports at bilateral talks on economic issues, held in Tokyo in March this year. MITI immediately asked automakers to exercise prudence. But car sales to the Common Market soared 87 percent in April from a year before, and 57 percent in May.

There is concern that car exports will heighten tension between Japan and th EEC, which has been caused by EC makers' "dumping" complaints, filed with the EC Commission in the past year or so regarding four Japanese products, including copying machines. Toyota Motor Corp., Japan's top automaker, said, however, that the sharp increase in January through May occurred in terms of shipment from Japan. Dealers' inventory in Europe have increased substantially, making it unlikely that the annual growth rate will exceed 30 percent, it said.

Auto industry sources said Japan's share in the EC car market rose by only 1 percentage point to 12.9 percent in the January-April period of this year, because overall car sales in the common market rose 9 percent in the period from a year before. Japanese automakers have marked up their cars in Europe several times since the turn of the year. Annual growth, therefore, may be limited to about 10-20 percent, they said.

HIGH-LEVEL CONSULTATIONS WITH EC TO OPEN 9 JULY

OW261227 Tokyo KYODO in English 1114 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Tokyo, June 26 KYODO -- Japan and the European Community (EC) will hold periodic high-level consultations on trade, economic cooperation and other matters of mutual concern in Brussels on July 9, Japanese officials said Thursday.

The meeting is held biannually with major attention focused on the EC's persistant call for reducing its trade deficit with Japan, which has remained at some 10 billion dollars a year in the past two years.

The EC side has urged Japan to open its market wider to foreign products, particularly a cut in import duties and liquor excise tax on whiskey, wine and other alcoholic beverages.

The consultations will be attended on the Japanese side by Reishi Teshima, deputy foreign minister, and other officials from relevant ministries and agencies, and on the EC side by Leslie Fielding, director general for External Relations of the EC Commission, among others, the officials said.

USSR ACCUSES JAPAN OF ILLEGAL FISHING OPERATIONS

OW271153 Tokyo KYODO in English 1132 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Sapporo, June 27 KYODO -- The Soviet Union has notified Japan of alleged illegal operation by five Japanese medium-sized salmon fishing boats in Soviet no-fishing waters, the Fishery Agency said Friday. The agency has ordered the five boats to return to Kushiro Harbor in Hokkaido for questioning by local fishery officials on the Soviet allegation. The boats are expected to arrive at the harbor around next Monday.

The Soviet Union notified the agency through the Foreign Ministry that Soviet aircraft took the numbers on the hulls of the Japanese boats engaged in illegal operations in Soviet no-fishing waters in the Northern Pacific last Saturday. The agency did not identify the fishing boats on grounds that the Soviet allegation was unilateral and the facts have yet to be established.

The agency is worried about the case at the present time, when Japan's fishing operations in the Northern Pacific face a crisis in stiff Japan-Soviet fishery negotiations. About 200 Japanese salmon fishing boats, mostly from Hokkaido, left port on June 1, one month later than usual, for this year's fishing season ending July 31.

SHULTZ OPPOSITION TO NUCLEAR-FREE ZONE ASSAILED

[NODONG SINMUN 27 June commentary: "Shultz's Challenge"]

[Text] Creating a nuclear-free and peace zone in the Asian and Pacific region which is facing a growing nuclear menace, including the Korean peninsula which is at present in the thick of the danger of a nuclear war, has emerged as a pressing demand of the times which cannot be delayed anymore.

Reflecting such a demand, a few days ago, the Government of our Republic, in a statement, put forward a new proposal for creating a nuclear-free zone and peace zone on the Korean peninsula.

Because of its fairness and justness, this new peace proposal of ours is widely supported and sympathized with by the world community.

Nevertheless the U.S. imperialists, who have to date dabbled that a nuclear war should never be allowed to break out in the world and that the reduction of nuclear armaments should be realized at an early date, are now foremost in opposition to the creation of a nuclear-free zone.

For example, U.S. Secretary of State Shultz, saying in a press conference held in Singapore that nuclear weapons are an important element in the U.S. imperialists' strategy toward Asia and that U.S. possession of nuclear forces [haengmuryok] serves as a very important force in stabilizing the region, babbled to the effect that creating a nuclear-free zone in the Asia and Pacific region is wrong.

If the creation of a nuclear-free zone is wrong, is the act of straining the situation, of increasing the danger of a nuclear war, and of making the people feel uneasy by deploying nuclear weapons right?

Shultz's remarks amount to admitting that the U.S. imperialists will continue to hold the Asia and Pacific region, South Korea in particular, which is most important in terms of strategy, as a nuclear forward base and that they will ignite the tinderbox of a nuclear war on the Korean peninsula.

By saying this, Shultz wickedly challenged our people who have been consistently making every sincere effort for peace in Korea, and the progressive people of Asia and the world who are unanimously calling for peace in Korea.

It is widely known that the U.S. imperialists have chosen South Korea as the source of a nuclear war in executing their world strategy and have deployed some 1,000 nuclear weapons of various kinds. While not concealing their intentions to provoke a nuclear war in Korea, bellicose U.S. imperialist generals and strategists have frequently conducted various forms of military exercises in South Korea and in areas surrounding it simulating a real nuclear war.

Because of this, the situation on the Korean peninsula has been exacerbated to the extreme and has reached a very grave situation to the point where the flames of war can be ignited by any accidental element.

If a war breaks out in Korea, it will at once become a nuclear war and it will easily spread to Asia and the world. If this happens, mankind will suffer an irrevocable nuclear holocaust.

By openly oppposing the creation of a nuclear-free zone, Shultz has exposed his desire for such a situation to occur in Asia and in the world.

The U.S. imperialists are the ringleaders of an aggressive war. Their lip-service to so-called peace and arms reduction is nothing but a mask to conceal their aggressive nature.

If the U.S. imperialists genuinely oppose the outbreak of a nuclear war and hope for peace, they should pay attention to the voices of our people and the people of this region calling for the turning of the Asia and Pacific region, including the Korean peninsula, into a nuclear-free and peace zone, and remove U.S. troops and nuclear weapons from South Korea.

MASS RALLIES DENOUNCE 'WAR PROVOCATION MOVES'

SK270552 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0434 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 27 (KCNA) -- Loud voices bitterly denouncing the nuclear war provocation moves of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique rang out of the mass rallies and demonstrations held in Kaesong municipality and Wonsan, Pyongsong, Chongjin and other provincial seats over June 24-26 on the occasion of the June 25 day of struggle against U.S. imperialism.

Representatives of various circles spoke at the mass rallies attended by tens of thousands of working people and students.

Pointing out that the U.S. imperialist aggressors, who suffered an ignominious defeat in the Korean war, are staging military exercises with increasing frenzy to start a nuclear war, while massively reinforcing their aggression forces in South Korea, the speakers said tensions are heightening and the danger of a nuclear war is growing daily on the Korean peninsula today.

If the United States and the South Korean side truly want detente, dialogue and peace, they said, they should respond favorably to our reasonable proposal for talks of military authorities. Should they dare provoke another war, turning a deaf ear to our peace proposal, they will never escape a thousand-fold revenge, the speakers warned.

They demanded that the U.S. imperialist aggressors go back to their den from South Korea, taking along their death tools, and the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique stop suppressing patriotic people and students and promptly discontinue their teacheries against the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

After the mass rallies the crowds started demonstrations, chanting slogans denouncing the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique.

ECONOMICS TALKS HEAD COMMENTS ON MILITARY TALKS

SK270548 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0440 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 27 (KCNA) -- Yi Song-nok, head of the North side's delegation to the North-South economic talks, published a press statement Thursday.

He said the new peace proposal of the Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army to hold talks of military authorities shows a most reasonable way to channel the acute tensions created on the Korean peninsula to detente and peace, and demanded that the United States and the South Korean side affirmatively respond to it.

If our new peace proposal is realized, very favorable circumstances will be created especially for the dialogue between the North and the South, he stated, and further said: If the United States and the South Korean authorities are truly interested in peace in Korea and dialogue, they will have no ground to refuse to respond to the proposed talks of military authorities.

But, now the United States and the South Korean authorities are opposing our new peace proposal, coming out with untenable excuses and far-fetched assertions that do not stand to reason. This only shows their true color as double-dealers.

Our delegation to economic talks demands that the United States and the South Korean side should not evade the talks of military authorities under unreasonable pretexts, talking about the military armistice commission and the like, but earnestly approach the proposal.

SKNDF STATEMENT SUPPORTS KPA TALKS PROPOSAL

SK260202 (Clandestine) Voice of National Salvation in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 24 Jun 86

[Text] The South Korean National Democratic Front [SKNDF] Central Committee issued a statement on 23 June in connection with the 36th anniversary of the war of northward invasion waged by the U.S. imperialists which instigated traitor Syngman Rhee to conquer the entire Korean peninsula and to wage aggressive war against the Asian continent. Following is the statement of the SKNDF Central Committee:

The U.S. imperialists waged an all-out attack against the North 36 years ago, instigating the Syngman Rhee ring to conquer the entire Korean peninsula and to wage aggressive war against the Asian continent. By waging a savage war of aggression unparallelled in the history of mankind, the U.S. imperialists drove our fellow countrymen into unprecedentedly harsh misfortune and tragedy and turned our fatherland to ruin. However, the U.S. imperialists eventually suffered a severe and humiliating defeat from the heroic resistance of our masses of the North and South, who had launched a just war of liberation, and had to sign a surrender document at the place where they started the war.

Instead of finding a lesson in this aggressive war, which humbled its haughtiness and pride, the United States continues its presence in South Korea, frenziedly perpetuating colonial fascist rule and perpetuating new war provocation maneuvers. They have turned South Korea into a military bridgehead for aggression against the North and the Asian continent, and by massively building up aggressive armed forces which include nuclear weapons, they have turned this land into a large army barracks full of guns and bayonets and the largest nuclear attack base in the Far East, where nuclear weapons are more densely deployed than anywhere else in the world.

Under the pretext of a nonexistent threat of southward invasion, the United States and the Chon Tu-hwan ring are frenziedly making noise about nuclear war in this land today. Because of the aggravating daily U.S. maneuvers of aggression and war, the state of confrontation between the North and South is worsened, and our nation presently experiences a most critical situation in which it could be engulfed in the ruinous calamity of a nuclear war.

In South Korea, war is not just anticipated for tomorrow, but is a reality for today. Under such circumstances, the SKNDF Central Committee, as noted below, firmly agrees with the will of the masses with a view toward preventing the increasing danger of nuclear war and defending peace on the Korean peninsula.

1. The state of military tension should be brought to an end and the danger of war should be urgently [siguphi] eliminated on the Korean peninsula.

Alleviating military tension and eliminating the danger of war are an essential precondition for peace and peaceful reunification of the Korean peninsula. Under the present situation, in which the vast aggressive U.S. Armed Forces are concentrated along the truce line and in which military provocations are continuously waged, we cannot extricate ourselves from the ruinous danger of war nor can we expect peace and peaceful reunification.

We acknowledge that the North's recent proposal made by the KPA Supreme Command for talks among military persons in authority, including the North's minister of the People's Armed Forces with the commander-in-chief of the UN Forces in South Korea and the South Korean defense minister, is a timely and realistic peace initiative to alleviate tension on the Korean peninsula, remove the danger of war, and provide an advantageous condition for peaceful reunification. The South Korean and U.S. military persons in authority should not turn away the North's proposal without inquiring into the truth of the matter and pursuing the road of aggravating tension and provoking war, but should accept it with sincerity and turn to the road of alleviating tension and peace.

1. The Korean peninsula should become a nonnuclear peace zone.

If war is ignited in South Korea, which has been turned into a large-scale nuclear war powder magazine, it is destined to be a global thermonuclear war. Today, during an urgent situation in which the United States accelerates the preparations for a nuclear war more than ever before, should this situation go unchecked, our fellow countrymen will have to suffer from a cruel nuclear calamity of a scale they never dreamt during the Korean War and our country will be completely devastated.

Our masses do not want the nuclear umbrella of the United States. They demand that nuclear weapons be withdrawn from South Korea. The U.S. nuclear weapons, which our masses reject by all means, should be withdrawn completely and unconditionally, and the Korean peninsula should be turned to be a nuclear free peace zone.

1. The U.S. military occupation, the source of the misfortune of the South Korean people and the war on Korean peninsula, should be brought to an end.

The U.S. forces in South Korea, by nature, are not forces of liberation, but the forces of aggression; not a war-deterrent, but an ever-present source of war. The basis for trampling down sovereignty and peace in South Korea and increasing the danger of nuclear war is the occupation of South Korea by the U.S. forces of aggression. As long as the U.S. aggressors occupy this land by force of arms, national independence and freedom in South Korea cannot be realized, nor can the source of war be eliminated.

The U.S. colonial military rule should be liquidated, and the U.S. Army and its aggressive armed forces should be withdrawn.

1. We should prevent war by a pan-national anti-U.S. struggle to realize independence, democracy, and peaceful reunification.

Independence, democracy, peace, and peaceful reunification cannot come about automatically without struggle. When we wage a stubborn anti-U.S. struggle for national salvation under the slogan of independence, we can prevent the danger of war, defend peace, and achieve independence, democracy, and peaceful reunification. The patriotic masses of all strata should raise the banner of anti-U.S., antiwar, and antinuclear struggle and wage a daring pan-national sacred struggle for national salvation against the U.S. imperialist colonial rule and nuclear war provocation maneuvers

Our SKNDF, together with the patriotic masses of all strategy, will continue a vigorous struggle under the sacred banner of anti-U.S. struggle for independence, to bring an end to the U.S. colonial fascist rule, to realize the independence and democracy of society, to prevent war, and to achieve lasting peace and peaceful reunification.

[Signed] The SKNDF Central Committee, 23 June 1986, Seoul .

U.S. 'IMPERIALISM' SCORED ON KOREAN WAR ANNIVERSARY

SK261320 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0208 GMT 25 Jun 86

[NODNG SINMUN 25 June editoria': "Peace and Peaceful Reunification Are the Demand of the Times -- the U.S. Troops Must Immediately Withdraw From South Korea"]

[Text] Today, our people, together with the world's peace-loving people, mark the anti-U.S. imperialist day. On the occasion of this day, we condemn the U.S. imperialists, who inflicted immeasurably heavy national disasters on our people in the past and are still occupying South Korea, and who are bent on the policy of aggression and war. We are steadying our resolve to defend the socialist fatherland from the aggression of the U.S. imperialists, safeguard peace, and acheive the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

On this date 36 years ago, the U.S. imperialists, who began spreading tentacles of aggression into our country from the middle of the past century, perpetrated a surprise armed invasion against the northern half of the republic by instigating the Syngman Rhee puppet clique and embarked upon the road of undisguished armed intervention.

The 3-year fatherland liberation war to defend the independence of the country and the sovereignty of the nation from the armed invasion by the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys was a grim ordeal to defend our fatherland and people and an arduous fight to decide the fate of the nation.

In order to speedily attain their purpose of aggression, the U.S. imperialist aggressors mobilized forces of 15 countries following them, the puppet armed forces, and a tremendous amount of military equipment and restored to all means and methods, including indiscriminate bombardment and barbarous murder operations.

However, the U.S imperialists were not able to bring our people to their knees. Under the wise and tested leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, an ever-victorious iron-willed commander and great militay strategist, our people and the People's Army defeated and annihilated the armed invaders by displaying matchless bravery and mass heroism and achieved a historic victory in the fatherland liberation war. Our people's historic victory in the fatherland liberation war was a brilliant victory of the great leader Comrade Kim II-song's chuche-oriented military idea, strategy, tactics, and outstanding commanding art and an outcome brought about by the invincible might of our people united as one around the party.

By attaining the historic victory in the fatherland liberation war, our people defended the independence of the fatherland and national sovereignty, safeguarded peace in Asia and the world, began the U.S. imperialists' decay, and opened a worldwide era of a new upsurge in the struggle for national liberation and the anti-imperialist and anti-U.S. struggle. Our people's historic victory in the fatherland liberation war dealt a heavy blow to the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression and war and opened a new vista for the independent and peaceful settlement of the Korean question.

Since the war, our party and the government of the republic have consistently repeated sincere efforts to change the truce into durable peace and accomplish the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland. We have repeatedly set forth such reasonable and realistic proposals and concrete methods for a peaceful solution to the Korean question such as calling for the withdrawal of the U.S. troops from South Korea, for the reduction of the armed forces in the North and South, for the realization of economic and cultural collaboration and the exchange of personnel to restore the ruptured national bonds, and for the North-South enforcement of a confederal system with the existing systems intact. Also, we have knocked on the door of dialogue with the United States on many occasions with a view to finding ways to ease tension on the Korean peninsula and preserve and consolidate peace. The past 30-odd years, from the stop of the war cannonade in Korea up to the present, have been consistent with the earnest and sincere efforts that our party and the Government of the Republic have repeated to turn the truce into a durable peace, improve and develop the North-South relations, and pioneer a peaceful phase in resolving the reunification question.

Because of the U.S. imperialists' continuous policy of occupation and splittist maneuvers, however, our long-cherished historic desire for peace and peaceful reunification has not yet been realized. Instead of finding a proper lesson from their shameful defeat in the Korean war and withdrawing, the U.S. imperialists have continuously used South Korea as a colonial and military base and have unceasingly intensified maneuvers for aggression and war against the Republic.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Having proclaimed the Korean peninsula to be their forward defense area, the U.S. imperialists are drastically augmenting armed forces of aggression in South Korea and accelerating the modernization of the South Korean puppet army.

At present, some 40,000 U.S. troops equipped with modern murderous weapons and a puppet army nearly 1 million strong assume a constant posture for mobilization in South Korea. Not content with this, the U.S. imperialists are newly arming the U.S. troops occupying South Korea with 180 kinds of new combat equipment items and are trying to transfer lethal weapons and military equipment worth $8 billion to the puppet army from 1985 to 1989.

In accordance with a newly mapped out quick-combat-quick-conclusion operational plan, the overall armed forces have been reorganized recently into offensive-type forces, their mobility capabilities have been rapidly increased, nuclear combat power has been further streugthened, and armed commando forces numbering 180,000 have been newly organized and formed in South Korea. At present, 80 or 90 percent of the puppet armed forces along with the U.S. imperialist aggression forces, have been deployed forward in the frontal area near the Military Demarcation Line and are assuming a combat posture to perpetrate attack operations for northward invasion at any moment.

Having deployed various kinds of nuclear weapons, numbering some 1,000, and their delivery means in South Korea, the U.S. imperialists have framed a plan for nuclear war to conduct a preemptive nuclear attack against us, saying that the second Korean will be precisely a nuclear war.

Also, the U.S. imperialists are placing the armed forces and equipment deployed in the U.S. mainland, Asia, and the Pacific in the posture of mobilization so that they can be thrown into the Korean front at any time. The "Team Spirit-86" joint military exercise, which was waged in South Korea from February through April, was a preliminary war and test nuclear war aimed at completing this posture of war preparations.

The U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets are now further leading the situation to the brink of war. It is said that new-type military equipment, including missiles, rocket guns, tanks, armored cars, F-16 fighter-bombers, and offensive-type helicopters, as well as new units, will be additionally deployed and even new binary chemical weapons will be deployed in South Korea. U.S. naval armed forces will be constantly stationed in the waters near the Korean peninsula. This can only be an open threat to our people and a development of the situation that leads the state of affairs in our country to a ultra-strained critical state [wigi ilpalui choginjangsangtae].

What is more dangerous is that, with a view to establishing the U.S.-Japanese system of joint nuclear attack operations against our Republic, the U.S. imperialists have recently conducted frequent joint exercises of the U.S. and Japanese armies, air forces, and navies and are trying to inveigle armed forces of the Japanese Self-Defense Forces into U.S.-South Korean joint military exercises. This shows that the triangular military alliance among the United States, Japan, and South Korea is virtually working at a practical stage.

Also, in accordance with the demands of the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression and war, the South Korean puppets have made South Korean society extremely militarized and fascistized, and have harshly suppressed the people, blocking their demands for democratization with bayonets.

The U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique are trying to justify their war policy and maneuvers for fascistization under the slogan of the so-called threat of southward invasion from the North.

With the support of the U.S. imperialists, the Chon Tu-hwan ring is heatedly bent on conspiratorial political propaganda running counter to the easing of tension and reunification, babbling about the nonexistent threat of southward invasion and armed provocations. With due alertness, we must cope with the fact that the puppets, bent on treachery and division by discarding dialogue between the North and South and following the U.S. imperialists' policy of two Koreas, and who are leading the situation to the brink of war by kicking up large-scale war exercise rackets in collusion with foreign forces, are, to the contrary, conducting the propaganda of intrigue that an armed southward invasion by the North is imminent. The puppets' dins of intrigue follow the demands of the policy of dangerous anticommunist confrontation -- the policy of hindering the peaceful reunification of the country by deliberately aggravating the North-South relations and of seeking a war through northward invasion.

Because of the war provocation maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys, the danger of war is not a danger of tomorrow, but a realistic danger of today.

Preventing the danger of a nuclear war and preserving peace in Korea are life-or-death questions related to the fate of the nation and acute questions whose solution is awaited. Korea should be made a nuclear-free and peace zone with no nuclear weapons and bases in order to remove the danger of nuclear war.

On 23 June, the DPRK Government issued a statement containing a new peace proposal to create a nuclear free and peace zone in Korea. Prior to this, the KPA Supreme Command proposed the holding of talks among persons in military authority involving the DPRK minister of the People's Armed Forces, the commander in chief of the UN Forces in South Korea, and the South Korean defense minister in order to prevent the danger of war and ease tension.

As new important initiatives proceeding from an earnest desire to be faithful to the national duty assigned before the Korean people and the cause of peace in Asia and the world, these proposals of ours fully reflect the sincere efforts and peace-loving stand of our party and the government of the republic to ease tension and consolidate peace in Korea.

The United States and the South Korean persons in authority should cease moving on the road of heightening tension while raving about the nonexistent threat of southward invasion, but instead move to the road of practically solving the question with us by turning out to accept the peace initiatives of the DPRK Government and the KPA Supreme Command. The attitude they take toward our peace proposal will be a touchstone deciding whether or not they want peace and the easing of tension in Korea.

Having recognized through their experience in life and struggle that, unless they force the U.S. troops to withdraw from South Korea and eradicate their colonial and fascist rule, they cannot realize national sovereignty, democracy, peace, and the independent and peaceful reunification of the country, the South Korean people, suffering from the disaster of colonial domination and barbarous military and fascist rule of the U.S. imperialists, are resolutely turning to the anti-U.S. struggle for independence. The anti-U.S. struggle for independence of the South Korean youths, students, and people is a righteous partriotic struggle reflecting the inevitable demands of the development of the South Korean society and a just struggle conforming to the tenor of the current times seeking independence.

The U.S. imperialists should be aware that the policy of occupying South Korea forever under the deceptive slogan of the nonexistent threat of southward invasion no longer works, stop the policy of colonial enslavement and fascistization toward South Korea, and withdraw all armed forces of aggression, including the U.S. troops and nuclear weapons, from South Korea without delay.

The South Korean persons in authority should acknowledge the tenor of the times; immediately discard the foolish war adventurism of trying to attack us in collusion with foreign forces; stop the suppression of the South Korean youths, students, and people aspiring for independence, democracy, and reunification; and step down from power.

Only through the struggle against the maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys for aggression, war, and the perpetuation of national division can peace in and peaceful reunification of Korea be realized.

The South Korean masses of all walks of life, including workers, peasants, youths, students, and intellectuals, should more vigorously stage the struggle to force the U.S. troops to withdraw from South Korea, to check and frustrate the maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys for arms buildup and the provocation of nuclear war, and to put an end to the colonial and fascist rule, holding higher the anti-U.S. banner of independence and the antifascist banner of democratization.

The situation that has been created today demands that the revolutionary forces in the northern half of the republic firmly consolidate and effect a new upsurge in socialist construction. The party members and workers should effect a new revolutionary upsurge in socialist construction by thoroughly implementing the line of the three revolutions -- ideological, technological, and cultural -- while upholding the militant tasks assigned by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his New Year's address along with the decisions of the 11th plenary session of the sixth party Central Committee and, thus, more firmly consolidate our revolutionary base politically, economically, and militarily. The people and the men and officers of the People's Army should further increase revolutionary alertness to cope with the new reckless war provocation maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys and always defend the socialist fatherland and the revolutionary gains as an impregnable fortress, assumming a vigilant and mobilized posture.

Preventing the danger of nuclear war on the Korean peninsula is not only an urgent question related to the fate of the Korean people, but is also an important question to defend world peace. We express our firm belief that the governments and peoples of many countries in the world that treasure peace and justice will expose and denounce the new war provocation maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys, further increase the voices demanding the withdrawal of the U.S. troops from South Korea, and continue to extend firm solidarity to our people's just struggle for peace and reunification in Korea.

With the active support and encouragment of the world's progresive people, our people will resolutely check and frustrate the maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys for the provocation of a new war and national division, preserve and consolidate peace in Korea, and certainly accomplish the historic cause of national reunification. The just cause of our people, advancing under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the guidance of the glorious party center, is ever-victorious and invincible.

PRESS CONFERENCE HELD AT SOVIET EMBASSY ON SALT

[Text] Pyongyang June 27 (KCNA) -- A press conference with reporters of Korea and other countries was held at the Soviet Embassy in Pyongyang on June 26 on the stand of the Soviet Union toward the scheme of the United States to wreck the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT) system. Boris Morozov, charge d'affaires ad interim of the Soviet Embassy, spoke at the press conference. Recalling the U.S. President's declaration on May 27 that the United States refuses to observe the 1972 tentative agreement and documents of the 1979 Soviet-U.S. treaty on the limitation of attack strategic arms, he said the scheme of the United States to destroy the SALT affects the prospect of the Soviet-U.S. summit.

If the United States surpass the set level of armament or violate provisions of the treaties, the Soviet Union will promptly discharge its duty and take necessary practical steps, he said, and continued: The Soviet Union will in the future carry through to the end its initiatives conforming to the vital interest of the Soviet people and all peoples of the world and will never allow U.S. superiority in nuclear missiles.

Recollecting that the government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea issued a statement some time ago on establishing a nuclear-free, peace zone on the Korean peninsula, he noted this new peace proposal enjoys active support of the world people.

CHON CRITICIZES NORTH AT DINNER FOR LEE KUAN YEW

[Text] President Chon Tu-hwan said yesterday that the Republic of Korea has continued to take the initiative in promoting an inter-Korean dialogue in the unchanging belief that the alleviation of tensions and the restoration of trust between South and North Korea are prerequisites to the stability of Northeast Asia and the peaceful unification of the peninsula.

In his speech at a dinner at Chongwadae for Singaporean Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew, the President said: "As a result, we held multilateral talks with the north last year."

"Since the turn of the year, however, North Korea has suspended the dialogue by using the excuse of the joint Korea-U.S. military training exercise which has been held every year for defense purposes," he added.

"Moreover, while turning a deaf ear to a direct dialogue with us, such as the summit meeting which we proposed, the north has recently called for a three-way military meeting among South Korea, the United States and North Korea," said Chon.

He said: "This is in direct breach of the principle that the Korean question should be resolved by the parties directly involved. Nevertheless, we will continue to strive with perserverance and sincerity to resume the dialogue and make progress."

In reply, Singaporean Prime Minister Lee said the Republic of Korea has made tremendous progress since his last visit in 1979. He noted that Seoul will host the 10th Asian Game this September and then the 1988 Olympics. "Many contingents from countries with different political systems will converge in Seoul for these two festivals of sports," Lee said.

"They will become two landmarks in the transformation of Korea from the devastation after the war of the 1950s to the industrial society she will surely become before the end of the century," he added.

"With success and international acclaim come heavier international responsibilities, and the industrial nations expect Korea to live up to her obligations as a major trading nation," said the prime minister.

He said: "I am therefore happy that your government plans to liberalize imports. This is an important and most necessary response to the protectionist measures planned by the U.S. Congress aimed at countries like Korea which persistently score trade surpluses against the United States."

CHON URGES NORTH TO PARTICIPATE IN OLYMPICS

SK270332 Seoul YONHAP in English 0252 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Seoul, June 27 (YONHAP) -- South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan Friday urged North Korea to participate in the 1986 Asian Games, as well as the 1988 Olympics, both set for Seoul, to promote the "national reconciliation" of the two Koreas, which have been divided since after the end of World War II.

In a message sent to the overseas chapters of the Advisory Council for Peaceful Unification Policy (ACPUP), Chon said that South Korea will warmly welcome North Korean participants and will guarantee their maximum personal safety and convenience. "Rather than remaining an orphan in the international community by boycotting the Asian Games and the Olympics, I hope that the North will willingly participate in the two human peace festivals to demonstrate national reconciliation to every corner of the world," he said.

The overseas chapters of the ACPUP plans to hold 13 regional meetings until July 16. The first such meeting was held Friday in Los Angeles.

Chon also appealed to North Korea to show sincerity in "cultivating the precious bid of inter-Korean dialogue planted last year by the two sides."

If North Korea miscalculates the situation in South Korea and launches an armed provocation, such act would only result in self-destruction, he warned.

Chon accused Pyongyang of using the inter-Korean dialogue as a "disguised peace offensive" such as its recent proposal that the military leaders of the two Koreas and the United States meet.

He pointed out that Pyongyang has not shown any response to Seoul's longstanding proposal for a meeting between the highest authorities of the two Koreas. "Nobody will deny that exchanges and cooperation, rather severance; dialogue, rather than violence; and reconciliation, rather than confrontation are the right ways and the short cut to the reunification of the two countries, which lived as one nation through the long history," Chon said. He said that reunification is Korea's own problem that its resolution could not and should not depend upon any others.

CHON ADDRESS AT CEREMONY FOR F-16 FIGHTERS

SK270757 Seoul YONHAP in English 0746 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Seoul, June 27 (YONHAP) -- President Chon Tu-hwan said Friday that the introduction of F-16 fighters has greatly strengthened the Korean Air Force, enablihg it to absolutely deter any hostile activities on the part of North Korea. "The strength of our Air Force has been greatly reinforced with the introduction of F-16 fighters, following the deployment of Phantom and Korean-made Jekong fighters," Chon said.

"As a result, our Air Force will necessarily beat the enemy back in the early stage of provocation whenever it launches surprise attacks and will heavily punish it for its ill-devised attempts," the president warned.

Chon made these and other remarks in a christening ceremony for an unspecified number of newly introduced F-16 fighters at an Air Force base. In the ceremony, the U.S.-made jet fighters were dubbed "Pilsung Boramae" (Victorious Hawk).

Chon also said that it is a most urgent task for Korea to strengthen its security in order to deter war on the Korean peninsula. "For that reason, I feel safe with the people that our Air Force has highly advanced and mighty Pilsung Boramae fighters," the president said.

Also attending the christening ceremony were Prime Minister No Sin-yong, National Assembly Speaker Yi Chae-hyong, Chief Justice Kim Yong-chol, Defense Minister Yi Ki-paek, Air Force Chief of Staff Kim In-ki and other military and civilian figures.

The F-16 fighter, nicknamed "Fighting Falcon," was developed by the General Dynamics Corp. of the United States and is considered to be excellent in maneuverability and striking power.

CULTURE MINISTER ON ANTI-U.S. SENTIMENT

SK260912 Seoul YONHAP in English 0839 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Seoul, June 26 (YONHAP) -- The South Korean Government said Thursday that anti-Americanism if "far from being a widespread public sentiment" in Korea. "It is merely the result of the political machinations of a small hard core of radicals who are attempting to create a general atmosphere favorable to a leftist revolution," said Culture and Information Minister Yi Won-hong.

In a speech delivered at a meeting of the American Chamber of Commerce, Yi said that the ultimate purpose of the growing student radicalism is to establish "a so-called democracy of masses founded on neo-Marxism and totally repudiating liberal democracy and capitalism."

"As has already been verified, the radical fringe has adopted struggle tactics designed to arouse anti-American sentiments among the people with the goal of toppling the present government," he said.

Recalling a raid on the chamber's office last November by several radical students, Yi, in his capacity as the Culture and Information minister also serves as a major government spokesman, said that their anti-Americanism has developed into "xenophobic chauvinism."

Yi said that the Korean people were shocked and worried by the manifestation of anti-Americanism in this country, even though only a handful of radical leftist students were involved in the break-in.

He said that the students shouted, "out with U.S. imperialism" and "down with facism" during their occupation of the chamber office.

Yi contended that Koreans have resolutely rejected the demands of the radicals and denounced their revolutionary ideology and actions.

Sharp friction has begun to plague every segment of Korean society as an "inevitable" results of its industrialization, Yi said. "We have frequently witnessed the legal and illegal struggles of some political groups to promote partisan or factional interests in the name of 'democratization," he added.

He went on to say that there are two categories of demands for democratization in Korea. One is the demand for "genuine and substantive" democratization and the other is the demand for "phony" democracy being raised by student radicals and some hard-line political activist groups, the Culture and Information minister said. "True democratization must be accomplished in a fashion and at a pace not threatening our security, prosperity and stability," he continued. "This is the unwavering policy of democratization that has been pursued since the birth of the Fifth Republic," he said.

RALLIES COMMEMORATE KOREAN WAR ANNIVERSARY

SK260028 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 26 Jun 86 p 8

[Text] The nation observed the 36th anniversary of the Korean War yesterday with anti-Communist rallies and memorial services across the country.

In Seoul, a massive anti-Communist rally was held at the Hyochang Park with the attendance of an estimated 800,000 people. The participants included members of the Korean Veterans Association and the Korea Anti-Communist League and students.

During the rally, the participants adopted a five-point resolution in which they pledged to play the leading role in the efforts to prevent another southward aggression by North Korea.

Similar rallies, though smaller in scale, took place in 194 provincial areas nationwide.

Meanwhile, a memorial service for the war dead was held at a Buddhist temple in the central frontline with about 80,000 in attendance, including diplomats from 16 countries which came to the aid of the Republic of Korea during the war, Buddhist priests and soldiers from the Army's "Seungjin" Unit.

In Taejon, a monument was unveiled in memory of about 1,300 civilians who were killed by Communist invaders during the war. The five-meter-high memorial tower was constructed at a cost of 290 million won.

PARTIES LAUNCH PUBLICITY WARS ON ELECTION SYSTEM

[Text] With the formation of a house panel to work on constitutional amendment, rival parties started vigorous publicity wars yesterday to get the support of the electorate for their respective positions on changing the form of government.

The ruling Democratic Justice Party launched its publicity campaign opposing the direct presidential election system, demanded by opposition parties.

In a caucus held at the party's Central Political Training Center in Karak-dong, eastern Seoul, the DJP instructed its lawmakers to make their constituents fully understand potential ills of the direct election of the president by popular vote.

The DJP alleged in a pamphlet distributed to the lawmakers that the presidential government system based on election by popular vote tends to foster dictatorship in an authoritarian political culture. It also said that presidential election campaigns may bring about social disorder, thus leading to a temporary state of civil conflict.

The DJP lawmakers discussed the basic party position on the direction of constitutional revision in connection with the formation of the special House committee to work on amendment.

Party chairman No Tae-u said in an address, "Our party will have to do its best to attain constitutional amendment based on an agreement with the opposition parties in the special House panel."

He asserted, however, that "we should reflect on ourselves for having failed to block the allegation that the direct presidential election formula is the only way to democratization of the nation."

The New Korea Democratic Party, on the other hand, sharply attacked the DJP for rejecting the main opposition party's formula without presenting its own choice of government form.

NDP president Yi Min-u said that it is against political morals for the DJP to find fault with the other party's plan without proposing its own idea on constitutional amendment.

He went on, "public opinion desiring the direct presidential election system will never change in a day despite the DJP's hasty attempts to change it."

In the DJP caucus, No pointed out that the party has not made sufficient efforts to help people understand the differences between the current Constitution and the Yusin system under the late president Pak Chong-hui. "We will be able to relieve the people of the sentimental and demagogic slogans of the opposition forces only if we put into practice our will to democratization based on such self-reflections," he added.

Secretary-General Chong Sun-tok also asserted that party members should block attempts to deny the legitimacy of the current basic law in the course of debates on constitutional revision.

Rep. Yi Chi-ho, assistant chairman of the party's special committee on the Constitution, reported five basic principles for the revision of the charter. He said that the DJP is aiming at preventing dictatorship through deconcentration of political power while invigorating the parliament and party politics.

The four other principles are: the succession to national legitimacy, expansion of basic rights for the people, accomplishment of social justice through fair distribution of wealth, and maintenance of national security and preparation for national unification.

KIM YONG-SAM PLEDGES 'STEPPED-UP' EFFORT

SK270059 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 27 Jun 86 p 4

[From the "Press Pocket" column]

[Text] KONGJU, Chungchong-namdo -- The "Democratic Alpine Club," composed of the followers of Kim Yong-sam, pledged stepped-up efforts to realize direct presidential election through constitutional amendment in a rally on Mt. Kyeryong, near here, yesterday.

The event was held in celebration of the fifth anniversary of the club. Kim Yong-sam formed the fraternal club shortly after the new government of the "Fifth Republic" banned political activities of the hardcore members of the former ruling and main opposition parties in 1981.

Some 3,000 members, including about 40 MDP lawmakers, attended the anniversary ceremony to demonstrate the unity of the so-called "Sangdo-dong faction."

Kim, who holds the title of adviser in the club (the chairman is Yi Min-u, president of the NDP), recalled that he started climbing with only eight members, under police surveillance, in 1981.

Eighty buses, 73 sedans and 22 "Bongo" vans carried the members of the club to the mountain from 75 branches of the club across the nation.

Yi said in an address, "The democratization of the nation has been recognized by the ruling camp as the consensus of the people, but problems begin from now on."

"We should get united without selfish motives in order not to bring misfortune to ourselves again" he said.

"Now is the time when all of us should exert our courage we have developed through climbing and demonstrate our strong comradeship," he stressed.

"Even after we realize democracy on this soil in the near future, I will continue to climb mountains with my fellows as an ordinary member of this club," he said.

Kim said that nobody can reject the whole people's ardent wish for democracy and the winds of democratization. "I expect that you, members of this club, will struggle (for democratization) in total unity and with firm beliefs."

Then, he used the ceremony as an occasion to denounce the ruling camp's opposition to the direct presidential election system. He claimed, "The Democratic Justice Party should stop the 'march of fools.'" "If they don't, the people will never tolerate them," he insisted.

While the Sangdo-dong faction was holding the ceremony, its rival, the "Tonggyo-dong" faction, led by Kim Tae-chung, held a meeting of its lawmakers at its office in Seoul. Twenty-one lawmakers attended it.

Many members contended that the special House committee to draft an amendment was created without the complete solution of the issue of political prisoners' release.

Kim said, "We have to be much concerned about the release issue. The creation of the House panel itself was not difficult and what is more important is how it will be operated," he said.

The Tonggyo-dong faction had checked the Sangdo-dong faction's efforts to form the panel by demanding that partisan recommendation for the prisoners' release be presented to the administration as a precondition for the panel establishment.

DJP PLANS RESTRUCTURING OF PARTY NETWORK

[Text] The Democratic Justice Party plans to revamp its organizational network in apparent preparation for a possible general election next year. To that end, the ruling DJP intends to admit a total of 1,350 people to its Central Committee by the end of this year.

The new committee members will be recruited from among young and influential people in each of the 92 electoral districts throughout the country, party sources said.

The government party is also considering shaking up its leadership system sooner or later to effectively prepare for interparty negotiations for constitutional reform. Depending on the contents of constitutional revision, there is a solid possibility that the National Assembly elelction will be held some time in 1987.

A number of lawmakers of the DJP Wednesday asserted their party should reinforce its system if the second half of President Chon Tu-hwan's term. They also said the party should resolve the issue involving the selection of President Chon's successor at the earliest possible date. Political sources said DJP chairman No Tae-u indicated his willingness to review the demand. Previous news reports said the ruling party would reshuffle its lineup some time after the Assembly wound up its special session Tuesday.

The majority party should determine the main thrusts of the proposed constitutional revision as soon as possible, some party lawmakers said. They said the ruling party could publicize is position on constitutional rewriting effectively when it has determined its position on the issue. The DJP plans to consolidate its unity by holding various kinds of rallies.

The party is scheduled to hole a summertime training session in mid-July with the attendance of some 11,000 members. The session is expected to provide the party with an occasion to demonstrate the coalescence of its 1.5 million members, party sources said. The mass training session will be followed by similar meetings in each of the 92 electoral districts.

In the meantime, the ruling party is stepping up its publicity activities to inform the electorate of its performance. The chairman of the 92 constitutencies are touring their respective electoral districts to brief the people on the achievements of the ruling party. They are planning to take advantage of the current assembly recess to mend fences in their electoral areas. The ruling party will finish filling vacant positions in local chapters by the end of July, party sources said.

STUDENTS' SUMMER 'RURAL SERVICE' BANNED

SK140011 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 14 Jun 86 p 8

[Text] The Ministry of Educaton yesterday instructed universities and colleges across the country to keep students from launching unauthorized "rural service" activities during the coming summer vacation. In a directive, the ministry also asked the schools to block student activists from holding campus meetings with political or other impure motives, or related to indoctrination during the recess. The ministry gave the directive during the opening-day session of a meeting of student affairs officials from 111 colleges and universities across the nation at the Sorak Park Hotel along the east coast of Kangwon-do.

Minister Son Chae-sok also attended the three-day meeting organized to discuss student activism and other campus issues.

The government and schools have oppposed students' rural service missions during their vacations in fear that they might take advantage of the sessions to politically indoctrinate innocent rural youths. During the last summer vacation, some college students were turned away by villagers for trying to "spoil rural youths with leftist or other dangerous ideas."

Student meetings on campus during the summer vacation is another issue causing friction between schools and students. At yesterday's opening-day session, the ministry delivered the guidelines for schools in dealing with campus issues during the fall semester.

MPRP CENTRAL COMMITTEE APPEAL TO VOTERS

OW081229 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in Russian 1335 GMT 7 Jun 86

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 7 Jun (MONTSAME) -- The MPRP Central Committee has urged all citizens who on 22 June this year will vote for MPR People's Great Hural deputies to turn election day into a day of monolithic unity of the party and people, a day of socialist democracy.

The MPRP Central Committee appeal to voters, published in UNEN today, says the present election to the supreme organ of MPR state power will be held at a time when the working people, and all the Mongolian nation, have begun implementing the historic 19th MPRP Congress decisions, which they have welcomed warmly.

Successful fulfillment of the decisions of the supreme forum of Mongolian Communists and the eighth 5-year period plan, says the appeal, will signify another important step in socialist construction in the MPR.

The MPRP Central Committee says that by voting for the candidates nominated to be MPR People's Great Hural deputies, each voter will cast his vote for successful realization of the decisions of the party forum, the social-economic tasks of the new 5-year plan period.

The document discusses the great achievements of the Mongolian nation in implementing the seventh 5-year period plans. The MPRP Central Committee notes with satisfaction the steady development and strengthening of fraternal friendship and close cooperation between the MPR and Soviet Union and other countries of the socialist community.

The document says that Comrades J. Batmonh and M.S. Gorbachev's meetings and the long-term program for development of economic and scientific-technical cooperation between the MPR and USSR up to the year 2000, signed last year, open a new stage in the strengthening of fraternal friendship between the two parties and nations of our two countries, and in the development of close cooperation.

The primary task facing mankind is the defense of peace, removing the threat of nuclear war, the appeal says. The MPRP Central Committee emphasizes that the Soviet program of peace and elimination of nuclear weapons, and the other peaceful initiatives of the Soviet Union demonstrate the most correct and reliable way to save mankind from nuclear suicide.

BATMONH ADDRESSES VOTERS ON ACHIEVEMENTS

OW230611 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in Russian 1824 GMT 19 Jun 86

[Report on a speech by Jambyn Batmonh, general secretary of the MPRP Central Committee and chairman of the People's Great Hural Presidium at meeting with voters of the 46th electoral district concerning election of deputies to the supreme organ of state power]

[Text] [Passage indistinct] Jambyn Batmonh, general secretary of the MPRP Central Committee, chairman of the People's Great Hural, Presidium spoke today at a meeting with voters of the 46th electoral district concerning elections to the 11th MPR People's Great Hural.

He noted that all the preparations for the current elections to the MPR People's Great Hural [words indistinct] period when [words indistinct] meet with worthy labor successes [words indistinct] in an atmosphere of high political activity and with great labor enthusiasm undertake the implementation of [words indistinct] of the congress.

The supreme forum of Mongolian Communists, said Comrade J. Batmonh, has established that during the period after the elections to the 10th MPR People's Great Hural, our people, under the leadership of their party, fulfilled the tasks planned in the Seventh 5-Year Period in the areas of development of the national economy, culture, science, and in socialist construction.

All our successes and achievements, emphasized Comrade J. Batmonh, are due to the fact that the working people of the country, closely rallied around their beloved party, toiled with conviction, inspiration, and persistence in order to consistantly implement the course outlined by the MPRP. Our successes are the result of the multifaceted work being done by party and state organs, and public organizations. They are the result of international friendship and comprehensive cooperation between our country and fraternal socialist countries, primarily the generous and disinterested aid and support of the Soviet Union, the great friend of the Mongolian people.

Fraternal friendship and comprehensive cooperation with the Soviet Union and other socialist community countries are an important factor for intensifying the country's economic and social development, said Comrade J. Batmonh.

Touching on international issues, J. Batmonh said that we cannot fail to be alarmed by the continued worsening world situation, which is the fault of the U.S. Administration and its main allies. Their actions, especially the latest ones, once again show to the world public that Washington is persistently seeking to realize its position-of-strength policy, the "star wars" plan, and escalate the arms race.

The United States not only does not strive for achieving mutually acceptable agreements in the field of the prohibition of nuclear weapons, but also undermines existing international agreements and treaties in this field. This is attested to by the White House's unilateral refusal to observe its commitments on strategic weapons limitations. Through this, the United States intends to realize, unhindered, its military programs to wreck strategic parity and gain military superiority.

The United States, with the approval of the NATO military organs, has started the production of a second generation of chemical weapons -- binary weapons. This undermines international efforts to ban and eliminate the above-mentioned type of mass annihilation weapons.

These actions by the U.S. Administration and its allies are fraught with serious consequences for international security and peace in the world.

Under the conditions of growing international tension [words indistinct] struggle of the people for preserving and consolidating peace, curbing the nuclear and chemical arms race, reducing and completely eliminating arsenals, [words indistinct] and universal disarmament. This is precisely the aim of [words indistinct] socialist community countries [words indistinct] the CPSU Congress and the congresses of other workers' parties.

The results of the Budapest conference of the Political Consultative Committee of Warsaw Pact member-states serves as a striking [words indistinct] fully agrees with the appraisal and conclusions contained in the documents concerning the current international situation in Europe and the world in general, it supports the constructive proposals of the fraternal socialist countries [words indistinct] the program for reducing armed forces and conventional weapons which Warsaw Pact states addressed to NATO member-states and all European countries.

The measures envisaged in the program for radically reducing the armed forces and conventional arms as well as general purpose nuclear tactical-operational weapons, the practical measures including the creation of [words indistinct] commission, open the way for lowering the level of military confrontation in Europe and consolidating peace and security on the European continent. Sincerely interested in removing the military threat and improving the international situation, the socialist countries express their readiness to immediately discuss [words indistinct] at a special forum of European states, the United States, and Canada.

The MPR considers, said the speaker, that the significance of the new peace proposals of the Warsaw Pact states is not limited to the framework of two military-political blocs or European affairs. The example of the process started in Europe could be followed in other regions, including Asia. The proposal for reducing conventional arms supplements and develops the comprehensive Soviet nuclear disarmament program of 15 January this year, and its realization could lead mankind to a world without weapons, without nuclear weapons, and a secure future.

The MPR stands for the reduction of conventional weapons -- and the complete and universal destruction of nuclear and other types of mass annihilation weapons. The great power of nuclear energy placed in the service of civilization by the genius of the human mind must be used exclusively for peaceful purposes. In this connection, our country supports the idea of convening an authoritative international conference to study [words indistinct] peace and international security.

The MPR pays considerable attention to the problems of the Asia-Pacific region. In accordance with the provisions of the 19th congress of our party [word indistinct] broad dialogue between the countries of this vast region, with the participation of all the peace-loving states of Asia and the Pacific, in order to jointly search for ways and means to ensure lasting peace and security and strengthen confidence and coOperation among the states in this party of the world, said Comrade J. Batmonh.

NAMSRAY MEETS VOTERS, SPEAKS TO FRIENDSHIP GROUP

OW180419 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in Russian 1330 GMT 14 Jun 86

[From the 14 June Press Review]

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 14 Jun (MONTSAME) -- Newspapers report on the meeting of T. Namsray, member of the Politburo and Secretary of the MPRP Central Committee, and other candidate deputies to the MPR People's Great Hural of the 11th Convocation, with voters of their electorates.

UNEN carries a detailed account of the regular plenum of the Mongolian-Soviet Friendship Association Central Council, which took place yesterday, at which a report was delivered by T. Namsray, member of the Politburo and secretary of the MPRP Central Committee and chairman of the Mongolian-Soviet Friendship Association Central Council.

NAMSRAY INTERVIEWED ON ELECTION, WORLD SITUATION

OW260857 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in Russian 1336 GMT 21 Jun 86

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 21 Jun (MONTSAME) -- The MPR preelection campaign is drawing to an end. Tomorrow, the voters will cast their votes for the best representatives of the working people -- Mongolia's envoys to the highest organ of state power, said T. Namsray, member of the Politburo and secretary of the MPRP Central Committee to a MONTSAME correspondent. He heads the Central Commission for Elections to the People's Great Hural of the 11th Convocation.

T. Namsray underscores that 35 years have elapsed since a socialist democratic electoral system was introduced in the MPR, based on the universal, equal, and direct electoral right and secret ballot. Elections to state organs are a clear demonstration of the growth of political consciousness and socialist activity in the working people, the inviolable unity of the party and the people. They always confirm the undivided support of the Mongolian people for the policies of the MPRP and the people's state.

The present elections to the highest representative organ of the state power will take place in the noted period following the 19th MPRP Congress and on the eve of the national holiday -- the 65th anniversary of the Mongolian People's Revolution -- the chairman of the central electoral commission noted.

Comrade T. Namsray said: All the political and organizational measures of the preelection campaign are being realized by the people themselves. More than 12,000 workers, livestock breeders, farmers, and representatives of the intelligentsia are working in the regional and district electoral commissions. Thousands of agitators and lecturers are working in agitation centers, which have been opened throughout the country. The voters at the preelection meetings gave instructions to candidate deputies from the communist and nonparty bloc.

T. Namsray dwelt on the international situation and stressed that the MPR Government and the Mongolian people wholly and fully support the consistent peace-loving course and the will of great Lenin's party. Whereas, in the capitalist world, the rights of the working people are being infringed, especially the right to a peaceful life, the Soviet Union and other countries of the socialist community are putting forward broad-scale initiatives and proposals directed at the achievement of a system of measures to strengthen peace and security, he said.

SPK VIEWS THAI STAND ON REFUGEE PROBLEM

BK270500 Phnom Penh SPK in English 1136 GMT 26 Jun 86

["Benefit" -- SPK headline]

[Text] Phnom Penh SPK June 26 -- By raising a hue and cry recently about the "Kampuchean refugee problem" the Thai authorities have again tried to make use of it for their own benefit and attempted to undermine the sovereignty of the People's Republic of Kampuchea and to aggravate tension along the Kampuchean-Thai border.

On June 14, the Thai authorities expressed their "deep concern" about this issue, saying that Thailand had not intention to provide the refugees with permanent shelters and that after December this year those who were denied the settlement by third countries would be moved to border encampments.

It is clear that the Thai authorities have blown up the number of Kampuchean refugees to over one million in a hope to get more and more profits from international aid. They have not been satisfied with small U.S. aid and thought that "a danger" at the Thai border, which in fact does not exist should be created to get more aid.

It is known that Thailand, the Polpotists and other Khmer reactionaries have pocketed 75 percent of the international aid and relief and only 25 percent went to the refugees. Many people have thought that the Thai Army took about one-fourth of the food that should have been distributed to the Khmer refugees.

Moreover, Thailand's wicked design is to use Kampuchean refugee camps established on Thai territory to rally and maintain the Khmer reactionary forces for long-term sabotage activities against Kampuchea. Mass media in many Western countries noted that Thailand's policy on Kampuchean refugees has "a political motivation".

It is, therefore, easy to understand why the Thai authorities have always turned down all proposals made by the Kampuchean revolutionary authorities on the question of Kampuchean refugees and humanitarian aid.

Over the past years, the Kampuchean side has time and again proposed that the Red Cross of Kampuchea and that of Thailand would study together or through an intermediary their respective proposals concerning the humanitarian aspect of the issue concerning the Kampuchean refugees along the Kampuchean-Thai border on the basis of mutual respect for each others independence, sovereignty and security. But even this reasonal proposal has been ignored by the Thai side. The Thai authorities must not cling to their inhuman policy of using the Kampuchean refugees to further their dark designs.

MESSAGES MARK CGDK FOUNDING ANNIVERSARY

BK210140 (Clandestine) Voice of National Army of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodia 2315 GMT 20 Jun 86

["Message from Democratic Kampuchean Vice President Khieu Samphan to Democratic Kampuchean President Samdech Norodom Sihanouk"]

[Text] Respectfully to Samdech Norodom Sihanouk, president of Democratic Kampuchea:

Dear Samdech: Our CGDK will be 4 years old on 22 June. The great national union around our CGDK -- with your highness as the president -- has developed its great strength vigorously to fight the Vietnamese aggressors. The whole world has seen more clearly that our CGDK is the sole legitimate and legal government of our Cambodian people and nation. The world has seen clearly how our Cambodian people and nation has united closely around the CGDK, with your highness as its president, and have struggled successfully against the Vietnamese aggressors. Our fraternal Cambodian soldiers, militamen, village and commune guerrillas and administrators, and our compatriots who have been forced to serve the Vietnamese war of aggression have united closely and actively joined in our national struggle under the CGDK leadership against the Vietnamese aggressors. This is why the 200,000 Vietnamese soldiers have failed to attack us. Meanwhile, we have been able to attack them deep inside the country, particularly around Tonle Sap Lake, Phnom Penh, and in various important provinces. We have repeatedly attacked them in these provincial towns and Vietnamese strategic places, inflicting heavy losses on them in manpower and material.

Thanks to this favorable situation, our friends around the world have enthusiastically and joyfully supported our CGDK and are increasingly confident in our victory. Our friends have been particularly overjoyed to see that our three CGDK factions have jointly put forth an 8-point peace proposal for a political settlement of the Cambodian problem. Our friends around the world are happy to see that through this 8-point peace proposal, our three CGDK factions have reached unanimous views on various significant basic issues related to our current struggle and to the future of our country after the Vietnamese aggressors are compelled to withdraw from Cambodia. Our friends are very happy about this because this unanimous view constitutes the basis for our three CGDK factions to unite forever both in the current struggle against the Vietnamese aggressors and in the national defense and construction of the future.

The 8-point peace proposal declared by your highness on 17 March 1986 and signed solemnly before the whole world by our three CGDK factions has now become our national constitution. Cambodia's future form has become apparent how -- that is, it will be a Cambodia that has no foreign bases on its soil, that is an independent, neutral, and nonaligned state, and that professes national unity and national reconciliation among all Cambodian nationals with your highness as president of a liberal democratic regime. Our entire nation both inside and outside the country is uniting and moving toward this goal. We pledge to make every effort to turn this national constitution into a concrete practice according to the deep aspiration of every Cambodian national.

The great national union, unity among the three patriotic forces within the CGDK with your highness as its president, and the powerful and constant support given us by the majority of the world's countries constitute a powerful strength of the CGDK's 8-point peace proposal. This strength has plunged the Vietnamese into a desperate situation. Although the Vietnamese have continued to carry on their deceitful diplomatic maneuvers, with the strength of the CGDK's 8-point peace proposal they will certainly be compelled to join in settling the Cambodian problem through political means.

At present, the Vietnamese aggressors are facing a total impasse on the battlefield of aggression against Cambodia and in Vietnam. The Vietnamese economy is collapsing and the Vietnamese people are seriously suffering. Moreover, the Hanoi authorities have become extremely isolated in the international arena. In such a situation, the strength of our great national union and world's support for our CGDK's 8-point peace proposal can fully win over the Hanoi authorities' obstinacy.

It is with this firm confidence that on this solemn occasion of the 4th anniversary of the CGDK, I would like to extend, on behalf of all cadres and male and female combatants of all sectors as well as in my own name, warmest greetings and best wishes to your highness. May you enjoy good health and victories in your noble patriotic mission in your capacity as president of Democratic Kampuchea.

On this occasion of the 50th birthday of Madam Monique, all our people who have met your highness and madam when you visited them would like to extend best wishes to your highness and madam.

Please, your highness, accept my highest and most respected salutations.

[Dated] Democratic Kampuchea, 19 June 1986

Son Sann Message

BK221035 (Clandestine) Voice of the Khmer in Cambodian 0500 GMT 22 Jun 86

[22 June Message form CGDK Prime Minister Son Sann in France to Cambodian Clergy and People on 4th Anniversary of CGDK -- read by announcer (Li Bundara)]

[Text] Greetings to revered clergy and beloved compatriots and combatants: Today we are celebrating the 4th anniversary of the setting up of the CGDK. Over the past 4 years our coalition government has gone through every obstacle and scored political, diplomatic, and military successes on the battlefield. Our CGDK has led the struggle against Vietnam's aggression to recover independence and sovereignt; for the fatherland to show the world the courage and resolute determination of the Cambodian nation, which refuses to live under foreign domination.

The character of our CGDK during the past 4 years is evidence showing that the enemy's propaganda predicting that this coalition government would not last 6 months is completely wrong. Compatriots, please remember that the Vietnamese aggressors have attempted to swallow Kampuchea Kraom for 100 years. Now Vietnam has plans to annex our entire territory in only 10 years.

As the prime minister of the CGDK, I have noted with satisfaction the development of national resistance forces, which are growing, and this has bogged the Vietnamese aggressors down deeper and deeper in their colonialist, imperialist, and expansionist war in Cambodia. I would like to tell you all on the CGDK's 4th anniversary that during my current mission in European countries, the following political and diplomatic results have been achieved:

1. The European Community Council has welcomed and supported our CGDK's 8-point peace proposal. Therefore, we appeal to all our combatants and compatriots to contribute by uniting, maintaining order, and adhering to strict discipline to combine with international pressure -- economic, political, and diplomatic -- on Vietnam. As Cambodians, we have the duty to put military pressure vigorously throughout the country to force Vietnam to accept the CGDK's 8-point peace proposal and take part in negotiations to resolve the Cambodian issue and restore peace, independence, neutrality, freedom, sovereignty, territorial integrity, and happiness and prosperity to our beloved Cambodia.

2. On the diplomatic front, in the international arena, people have clearly stated that the 8-point propossal is well founded and in accordance with the real aspiration of the Cambodian people, that is, to genuinely resolve the Cambodian issue. This has led many freedom-, peace-, and justice-loving countries to support the proposal. Currently, there are more than 40 countries which have provided their support to it.

3. The Vietnamese are currently facing increasing difficulties because the nationalists have infiltrated and carried out military activities deeper and deeper inside Cambodia. Furthermore, many of our compatriots in the interior have welcomed and wholeheartedly supported us like brothers born from the same mother.

4. As for Heng Samrin soldiers, they have awakened and revolted against the Vietnamese aggressors. This has created confusion. These soldiers have daily joined our nationalists.

5. Economically, Vietnam is facing increasingly serious difficulties because the Western countries, which love peace and justice, have put stronger pressure on Vietnam by cutting off all kinds of assistance as long as Vietnam stubbornly refuses to withdraw its forces from Cambodia and does not change its attitude by continuing its war in Cambodia. The KPNLF, with myself as head, solemnly declares that it will continue to respect the statement setting up the CGDK dated 22 June 1982 in Kuala Lumpur and will strive to safeguard the CGDK. This 4th anniversary will bring us hope in the struggle to successfully liberate the nation and fatherland from the Vietnamese aggressors and to recover glory, peace, independence, neutrality, sovereignty, and territorial integrity for the country if all of us are determined to strictly adhere to discipline and unite to struggle against the Vietnamese enemies and bandits.

Finally, I pray to the Triple Jewels and angels to look after all of you, clergy, combatants, and compatriots. May you enjoy all good things.

[Dated] France, 22 June 1986

[Signed] Son Sann Prime Minister of the CGDK

Prince Rannarit Message

BK260918 (Clandestine) Voice of the Khmer in Cambodian 0500 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Message to the nation by Prince Norodom Rannarit, personal representative of Samdech Norodom Sihanouk for Cambodia and Asia and commander in chief of the Sihanoukist National Army -- recorded; date not given]

[Text] First of all, in my capacity as the son of our Samdech Euv [Sihanouk's popular appellation] and his representatives, I would like to take this opportunity extend to extend to all beloved elders and brothers the warmest greetings and affectionate feelings of our Samdech Euv, who is now residing abroad to carry out the mission of counterattacking the Vietnamese enemy on the international stage. Although he is far away from his children, he never forgets the difficult lives of all of you who are presently living in the enemy-controlled region in particular and who are suffering from the oppression of the Vietnamese communist aggressors.

I take this opportunity to inform all elders and brothers who have been providing moral and material support in terms of rice and food to our combatants, especially to the nationalist combatants, combatants of the Sihanoukist National Army who are fulfilling their mission toward the nation in the interior of the country, that we are very grateful, extremely thankful.

If our country can be revived again, we will never forget the great kindness that all our elders and brothers have shown to our combatants in the national liberation struggle of all Khmer. We will never be able to continue the struggle if our combatants do not enjoy the support of our fraternal people in the interior. Therefore, the entire Khmer nation will never forget this kindness.

I would like to add that I have received reports from the interior that many of our people inside the country miss our Samdech Euv very much. They are praying for the day our Samdach Euv will return to help rescue them from the yoke of the Vietnamese communist aggressors. Let me tell you that prayers alone are not enough. All people who believe that only our Samdech Euv can liberate our country and rebuild it into a modern state like others in the world must accord effective support to our army. Those in the Heng Samrin army, in the Heng Samrin government, in the Heng Samrin administration, if they are patriotic and have the opportunity, are asked to please help provide information or even secretly supply material to the patriotic fighters, especially the nationalists. Only by doing this will all of us be able to liberate our beloved country from the claws of the Vietnamese enemy aggressors and together under the royal leadership of Samdech Norodom Sihanouk known to all of us as Samdech Euv -- because he was the father of national independence, giving Cambodia freedom, prosperity, and glory -- can we unite as a single body in building our country again, advancing it from the current hell on earth toward a state of development, prosperity, freedom, and territorial integrity.

Speaking of territorial integrity, with our permission allow me to address our patriots inside the country. Le me tell you that in December 1985 the government of Mr Heng Samrin signed a border treaty with the SRV Government. In this treaty, the Cambodian frontier has been moved from the east to the west on a very large scale. This means that not only has a group of so-called Cambodian patriots in Phnom Penh sold the great national interest to foreigners but has also given a large chunk of Cambodian territory to Vietnam.

In conclusion, in my capacity as the representative of Samdech Norodom Sihanouk, I would like to extend best wishes to all elders, brothers, and people. May the souls of all royal ancesters and may the gods protector of Cambodia bless all of you. May you encounter only success in your great mission to liberate the country. Thank you.

COMMITTEE SET UP TO PROBE UNREST IN PHUKET

BK260942 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 0530 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Interior Minister General Sitthi Chirarot told reporters during an interview at the Interior Ministry this morning that the Government -- the Interior Ministry and police department -- has already set up a committee to investigate the unrest in Phuket Province. The officials appointed will speed up their fact-finding assignment. He said that the government can now identify some of the people who were behind the incident. There were people from different groups involved in the mishap, including those who have suffered political setbacks and who harbor ill intentions toward the country.

Asked if the opposition to the cable car project on Doi Suthep mountain in Chiang Mai Province will lead to an incident like that in Phuket Province, the interior minister said that the Chiang Mai provincial administration has kept the people well informed of that project, the people understand it better. He added that nobody should ever try to create any conflict over this issue.

Asked if the declaration of the state of emergency will have any impact on the campaigns of general election candidates in Phuket Province, the interior minister said he did not think so, adding that the committee will advise the government when the state of emergency should be lifted.

[Text] The following is the text of the controversial circular, dated June 19, allegedly issued by Phuket Governor Sanong Rotphothong:

"To representatives of merchants and vendors at Phuket municipality market

"This circular refers to the trip by the 26-member team of the Phuket Coordination Committee Against Pollution to submit a public consensus of opinion to ask the Government to close down the tantalum plant unconditionally and ask for a reply on July 2, 1986.

"The Prime Minister has fully acknowledged the matter with understanding and sympathy for the people of Phuket. Therefore, he has assigned the Industry Minister to take urgent action. Now a neutral committee has been set up to receive once more the people's opinions to be forwarded to the Government for consideration.

"This neutral committee intends to fly to Phuket on Monday, Jun 23 at 8 a.m. to hear a public debate and inquiries from protesters or the general public from 9 a.m. at the Phuket Community Hall.

"In staging the debate there will be no limit to the right and freedom of speech. Express your opinion in a straightforward and honest way. The debate is for the people of Phuket to voice their concern, fear and suspicions towards the tantalum plant.

"If it is your wish, you can invite other people who are interested in the issue to listen to the debate. This will be of direct benefits for the people of Phuket.

"Since you are considered by the province to have the ideal and have joined the movement, you are invited to attend the gathering at the above-mentioned time and place.

"Looking forward to your usual cooperation. Thank you."

Key Suspects To Be Arrested

BK260929 Bangkok BANGKOK WORLD in English 26 Jun 86 p 1

[Text] Interior Minister Sitthi Chirarot this morning maintained -- against Fourth Army Region Commander Lt Gen Wanchai Chitchammong's view -- that suspected leaders of Monday's tantalum riot in Phuket should be arrested.

"If there were offences against the law, the suspected offenders must be arrested. How could we know who were the wrongdoers and what was really behind the incident without making arrests and conducting interrogations?" Gen Sitthi asked.

Gen Sitthi was commenting on Lt-Gen Wanchai's rejection yesterday of Provincial Police Bureau 4 Commissioner Pol Lt-Gen Linphit Satchaphan's proposal to arrest key suspects behind the riot. Lt-Gen Wanchai reportedly feared that the move might spark more violence.

In Phuket, Muang District police chief inspector Pol Lt-Col Thawat Butsan this morning said Police Chief Gen Narong Mahanon had given instructions to deny bail to all 47 suspects already arrested since Monday

Pol Lt-Col Thawat said the interrogations of these suspects were expected to be completed by tomorrow.

Thirty-three have been charged with arson, 13 with destroying others' property and one with damaging state property, he noted.

Provincial council and municipality council members will also be summoned to questioning in connection with the riot, he said.

In Bangkok, the interior minister further came out in defence of Phuket governor Sanong Rotphthong who has come under fierce criticism for his distribution of a circular inviting residents opposed to the tantalum plant to join a debate at the Community Hall on Monday.

Gen Sitthi said the governor purely intended to invite protesters to listen to explanations in order to promote a good understanding.

The governor was previously in contact with Industry Minister Chirayu Itsarangkun na Ayutthaya who learned many things from him about the situation on the island resort, he said.

Meanwhile, Gen Sitthi refused to comment on a statement by the Social Action Party's Khon Kaen candidate Phong Sarasin that the issue was political rather than environmental.

Phong, who is the chairman of the Thailand Tantalum Industry Corp, said in Khon Kaen yesterday that Sanong was directly responsible for allowing the situation to go out of control.

Gen Sitthi said the state of emergency imposed on the island would have no effect on political campaigning since public gatherings were not prohibited and a curfew was not imposed.

POST INTERVIEWS ATHIT ON POLITICS, FUTURE

BK260351 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 26 Jun 86 p 6

["Supreme Commander General Athit Kamlang-ek last week spoke to Editor The Chongkhadikit about his conditions for participation in the next government, life after retirement, his successor General Chawalit Yongchaiyut, the Norasingh task force and the capital security force." -- BANGKOK POST subslug]

[Text] General Athit Kamlang-ek will only take part in the government to be formed after the July 27 general elections "if I am needed and if I feel that I have the knowledge and ability," he told the BANGKOK POST in an exclusive interview.

Meanwhile, when he retires on August 31, he plans to take a rest, visit his son and daughter in the United States, consider invitations for him to visit military chiefs in the ASEAN and other Asian countries, write his memoirs, and visit parts of Thailand and historical sites he had not seen previously.

"Whether I take part in the post-election government or not depends on whether I am needed or not. If I am asked to join the government, I would have to consider whether I have the knowledge and ability to be of use to the nation. "If I am told that I will be useful, I still have to consider the matter once more. But so far no one has invited me to join, so I cannot say anything.

"I can only speak about what I intend to do personally. I cannot speak about the future, whether the people would want me or whether I would be invited to participate in the government. I cannot make an estimate of my own usefulness to the country. I have to understand myself to know how far I can do what has to be done."

Asked for his view on General Chawalit Yongchaiyut, the new Army Commander-in-Chief, Gen Athit said: "There is nothing between us. My successor is my former subordinate. He had worked with me for a long time, from a member of the army staff through deputy chief of staff to chief of staff.

"We have worked closely together. Before any promotions or appointments can be made, screening has to take place from the lower levels and then consideration has to be given by the deputy chief of staff and then the chief of staff before the recommendations reach the commander-in-chief.

"Chiu (Big Chiu, nickname of Gen Chawalit) knows the policies of the army. When I turned over my duties to him, he will carry them out since we had cooperated closely.

"Chiu is a good man. I had prepared to let him take over. If he had not been promoted already, he would be promoted later. There is nobody else.

"I don't see any problem between him and me as Supreme Commander. But it is good to have a lighter burden now and be able to have some rest."

Regarding the Norasingh task force, which comes under him as national peacekeeper, Gen Athit said that he was considering the matter of reducing the force stage by stage with Gen Chawalit who has suggested a reduction.

"When the situation improves, we can do something about reducing the force which at present may be required to help deal with international terrorism. We have to take preventive actions against acts of terrorism.

"We may have to to something about the presence of the tanks in the city, though. Whatever is unnecessary we should do away with, but we should do things stage by stage. But we keep in close consultation with each other on this and other matters."

Gen Athit had taken Gen Chawalit as chief of staff with him on visits to the border areas "so that he will know as much as possible," Gen Athit said.

Asked what he would really like to do when he retires, Gen Athit said: "First and foremost, I would like to serve my country as a good citizen."

Gen Athit would like to travel both domestically and overseas. He had not visited all parts of the country and would espcecially wish to see ancient and historical sites.

"I would like to study these matters and see how our valuable heritage can be preserved for future generations.

"I have been to many places to carry out my duties but I have not been able to study local affairs closely enough for proper understanding. To move around needs industry but sometimes I may feel somewhat lazy and would like to take it easy sometimes." He burst out into light laughter.

After his retirement on August 31, Gen Athit will "first take a rest and visit my children, then I should consider what is to be done for the good of the country -- that is, if I am wanted."

However, "if I am not needed, I will have to take up some hobby or other," he added with a laugh.

Asked what he would really like to do, he said: "I would like to go around and visit strange places and look at antiquities."

If he has time, he will write his memoirs, "not really a biography but reports of places I have been, people I have met, things I have learned and situations I have experienced."

He recalled that he had written a report of his month-long tour with the National Defence College. He would like to see how matters had changed in 10 years since then and find out why they had changed or had not changed.

"Whenever I travel abroad I always wish to see the agriculture of the countries I visit and learn about the commerce and the economy. There are differences in the various countries, some of them basic, some concerned with material matters and some linked to relationships with other nations.

"In five years when I visited those countries again I would look out for any changes from the past. All this is benefical to me personally."

The only sport in which Gen Athit is still engaged is badminton. "I don't know when I will be too old to carry on the game. I can still see the shuttlecock without having to wear spectacles."

Gen Athit would like to visit his daughter who recently gave birth to a grandchild for him in Hawaii where she is studying. His son is in the Royal Thai Embassy in Washington, D.C.

Gen Athit said that the capital security force "has been assisting in emergencies and in charities like those for slums and a music concert for crippled children and has been concerned with work for masses."

He described his work in this field as social welfare.

"In one or two months, I will be turning over the capital security force to Chiu who has asked me to continue to take charge for the time being since he has so much to do in taking over his new capacity. This work is not directly concerned with official duties but is mainly concerned with the people.

"The work depends chiefly on public donations, not on the official budget, and on volunteer activity. That is why we have to slowly reduce the force, stage by stage, or else we have to change the status and dismantle it if is unncessary."

Gen Athit reassured that political stability would prevail during the remaining period of his term before his retirement on August 31.

"Nothing will happen during my remaining period in the position (of supreme commander)," he said.

Commenting that all parties were trying to foster unity within the country, Gen Athit said that there should not, therefore, be any more problems. "I have no problems, so others should not have any problem, either," Gen Athit said.

Commenting on his recent removal from the post of the Army chief, Gen Athit said that change was normal and "natural".

"I have three more months left, then I will have to go," Gen Athit said, commenting on his upcoming retirement.

Asked to comment on who should be the next prime minister, Gen Athit said that he no longer paid an interest to the issue.

"The decision depends on the MPs as stipulated in the Constitution...I have no opinion on the matter," he said.

Gen Athit said that the political situation in the country was peaceful and in order and there was nothing to be worried about.

INTERIOR MINISTER WARNS GUNMEN AGAINST MOVEMENT

BK200136 Bangkok THE NATION in English 20 Jun 86 p 3

[Text] Interior Minister Sitthi Chirarot yesterday sternly warned hired gunmen against crossing provincial borders, saying that they would otherwise meet with harsh police actions.

The warning was made in the light of speculations that hired gunmen may operate away from their provinces to cover up their assignements related to the July 27 general election. It also includes a measure restricting inter-province travels by hired gunmen. Police had earlier blacklisted more than 100 hired gunmen and set up a task force to keep them under close surveillance. Arrest warrants were also issued on about 20 hired gunmen.

Sitthi said that the clampdown would take effect simultaneously throughout the country to ward off possible violence before the nationwide polls.

Sitti said the authorities would consider requests of some politicians for police protection on a case-by-case basis and added that priority would be given to those most vulnerable to assassination attempts.

He said it would be impossible to provide protection to all the 3,810 candidates at the same time because the department was under-staffed. However, police would do their best to ensure the safety of candidates during the upcoming election, he added.

The interior minister also warned canvassers of candidates in the upcoming poll to work quietly.

He said they should avoid exposing themselves as easy targets for their opponents.

Four persons said to be canvassers of candidates in the July 27 polls were killed during the past week. In the latest incident, Khun Supasoet, a strong vote-getter for Chat Thai candidate in Rat Buri, Chira Mangkhlarangsi, was shot dead in his house Tuesday night.

Meanwhile, Chodok Wirathamphunsawat, deputy director general of the Local Administration Department, said yesterday that the situation along the Thai-Kampuchean border would not affect the polls in border provinces. He had just wound up an inspection tour of the northeastern and eastern provinces.

He said provincial authorities had decided to move some polling stations in frontier villages away from the border to avoid possible spill-overs of the fighting across the frontier.

He added that special police task force would be assigned to these polling stations to ensure the safety of voters.

Pol Col Sangwian Sukkho, superintendent of Chanthaburi provincial police, said measures had been taken to prevent violence in this eastern seaboard province before and after the general election.

A rapid deployment police unit would stand by at the provincial police headquarters in order to provide backup for local police at trouble spots.

CHAWALIT CLARIFIED ARMY SECRET FUND SPENDING

BK260858 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 0000 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text of 25 June, Thai Army statement on spending of "secret fund"]

[Text] Since it has been stated in the press that the army has spent secret funds inappropriately, the army would like to clarify this as follows:

The army's secret fund is part of the budget set up as a secret fund with the approval of the parliament, and the cabinet has approved the fund's use by the service in the Defense Ministry in a manner that is secret and not subject to review for matters that affect national security. The army has spent the secret fund within the standards and regulations set up by the Finance and Defense Ministries. OFFICIAL REVIEWS CPM, SEPARATIST ACTIVITIES

[Text] Captain Charan Patthamasang, an official of the Thai-Malaysian Border Office, reported that, over the past month, activities of southern separatists remained at the same level as in the previous month. They ambushed a truck in muang District, Yala Province, and extorted protection money and food supplies in Yarang and Khok Pho Districts, Pattani Province; Waeng and Ra-ngae Districts, Narathiwat Province; and Bannang Sata District, Yala Province.

With regard to the activities of the CPM [Communist Party of Malaya] bandits, the authorities launched suppression operations against CPM guerrillas in Yaha, Thanto, and Betong Districts of Yala Province with seven reported clashes. Authorities were hit by an explosion once and by harassing fire from CPM guerillas twice. One official was killed and seven wounded. Authorities meanwhile captured seven CPM camps and a number of mines and explosive devices. Activities of the old and new factions of the CPM guerillas are similar. They recruit for food supplies, weapons, and ammunition and conduct propaganda campaigns. They intimidate people and extort protection fees. They also concentrate on gathering information on the activities of the government authorities. In conclusion, the activities of both the southern separatist movement and CPM guerrillas during the period under review did not pose a threat to the government authorities in charge of suppression operations on the Thai-Malaysian border.

HANOI CONDEMNS PRC SHELLING, FLOATING MINES

BK261028 Hanoi International Service in English 1000 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Since [the] beginning of this month, Beijing has committed more crimes against the Vietnamese people. On 1 June, Chinese troops opened fire at the summer camp of pupils of Quyet Tien Basic General School in Quan Ba District, Ha Tuyen Province. Chinese shelling killed two pupils on the spot, wounded five others and a teacher, and caused heavy losses to the local people.

China even floated mines along the river downstream to Vietnam. In the 5 days ending 17 June, two injuries were reported in the Hanoi area caused by mines floated by China downstream the Red River. The victims were Nguyen Ngoc Bien, 22, and Dinh Thi Hong, 14, dwellers of Hanoi's suburban district of Tu Liem. They are now under treatment at the Vietnam-GDR hospital.

Early in May, Chinese troops fired 70,000 artillery and mortar rounds on the Vietnamese territory, causing heavy losses to the local people.

HANOI SCORES ASEAN'S MANILA JOINT COMMUNIQUE

BK251556 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1430 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Station commentary: "The Negative Aspects Regarding the Cambodian Issue in the Manila Joint Communique"]

[Text] The foreign minister's conference ASEAN was held on 23-24 June 1986 in Manila, the capital of the Philippines. A joint communique was issued dealing with many issues, incuding one that is most worthy of attention and comment -- the Cambodian issue.

The Manila joint communique states that Vietnam does not really want to seek negotiated settlement to the conflict in Cambodia and that Vietnam's proposals for a settlement of the conflict, which has lasted for 8 years now, do not contribute at all to a trilateral settlement of the Cambodian issue. The communique urges Vietnam to reconsider its rejection of the so-called CGDK'S 8-point proposal. It also cooks up and then condemns what it calls Vietnam's shellings of refugee camps inside Thai territory and Vietnamese troops' cross-border incursions into Thailand. What is more, ASEAN falsely claims that Vietnam has forced Cambodian civilians to work in combat zones and has changed Cambodia's population by constantly increasing the number of Vietnamese settlers in that country.

All these allegations in the Manila joint communique are indeed sheer slanders and fabrications.

The plain fact is that Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos have put forward many important proposals for a very realistic political solution to the Cambodian issue and even for an overall solution for Southeast Asia. A typical example is the 5-point proposal set forth in the joint communique of the 10th and 11th conferences of foreign ministers of the three Indochinese countries and reaffirmed at the 12th conference on 24 January 1986. These proposals contain absolutely no coercive elements. Moreover, in practive Vietnam has unilaterally conducted five partial withdrawals of its Army volunteers from Cambodia and has declared that the troop withdrawal will be completed in 1990.

The ASEAN foreign ministers have all seen the validity of the proposals as well as the actual deeds of Vietnam. In fact, the proposals of the three Indochinese countries -- with their realistic contents -- have served as a basis for the dialogues held between representatives of the Indochinese and ASEAN countries. They have been welcomed by responsible persons in the world who are concerned about finding a solution to the Cambodian issue and the issue of peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

Meanwhile, what have China and ASEAN been doing, and what significant contributions have they made? The negative stand and attitude taken by China and ASEAN, as reflected in their various proposals, consists, in reality, of doing away with the PRK, restoring the genocidal Pol Pot regime, and imposing irrational and absurd conditions on Vietnam. The 8-point proposal purportedly advanced by the CGDK on 17 March is, in fact, a product of China; and it again contains extremely absurd, unacceptable demands. Even the Indonesian newspaper JAKARTA POST on 21 March 1968 commented that the 8-point proposal is an effort by the CGDK to gain at the conference table what it has lost on the battlefield and that this proposal is unrealistic because the Heng Samrin government already claims to control Cambodian territory in practice.

Therefore, by touching on the Cambodian issue, the Manila joint communique is disappointing. It has not contributed anything to promoting the trend toward dialogue and detente in Southeast Asia. Certainly, China and those advocating confrontation and tension in Southeast Asia will be happy and satisfied with what the Manila joint communique has said about the Cambodian issue.

However, it is also necessary to note that not all the points regarding the Cambodian issue in the Manila joint communique reflect the thinking of all ASEAN foreign ministers. It has been reported that the views expressed by those outside the conference have indicated a lack of unanimity including disagreement on the return of Pol Pot to Cambodia.

There are the extremist forces that still adamantly maintain that the Cambodian issue is an obstacle to peace and stability in Southeast Asia or even claim that Cambodia is the cause of instability among the countries in the region. This view is no longer convincing. In reality, the political difficulties experienced by the Philippines and Thailand, visible to everyone, have stemmed totally from their own internal situations and not from Cambodia.

By comparing reality with the stands and viewpoints of the two groups -- the Indochinese and ASEAN countries -- on resolving the Cambodian issue, people can see more clearly who really wants a realistic political solution to the Cambodian issue and an overall solution for the Southeast Asian region and who has goodwill and who does not.

People regret what has been said about the Cambodian issue in the Manila joint communique. It not only fails to contribute anything but also creates an unhealthy atmosphere that further complicates the trend toward dialogue between the two groups.

NHAN DAN Commentary

OW260947 Hanoi VNA in English 0722 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Hanoi VNA June 26 -- NHAN DAN in a commentary today says that the Manila communique is merely a repeat of a shopworn allegation.

The paper rejects the communique's allegation charging Vietnam and the other Indochinese countries with being "intransigent in the Kampuchean issue". The paper also condemns the Manila communique for praising the so-called "eight-point proposal" masterminded by China which is actually aimed at paving the way for the Polpotists to come back to Kampuchea. To back that proposal is to back a genocidal clique who are guilty of bloody crimes against the Kampuchean people and who are continuing to serve as a henchman of the imperialist and expansionist forces.

The paper says that the resolution of the Seventh Summit of the Non-Aligned Countries on leaving vacant the Kampuchean seat pending a solution to the Kampuchean issue is a correct resolution, stemming from the practical situation and embodying an objective consideration of the Kampuchean issue within the framework of Southeast Asia.

The paper goes on:

"It is a pity that some ASEAN countries for failing to see that the expansionists and hegemonists, not Vietnam, are the threat to them and to Southeast Asia as a whole have lent a hand to the expansionists and hegemonists and imperialists. They are contradicting themselves. However, all allegations, distortions and pressures against the three Indochinese countries are not the right way to achieve an acceptable solution to the Kampuchean issue, but can only delay a solution". "Only through dialogues and genuine, not professed, goodwill based on a correct assessment of realities and on good sense can a solution be found to the Kampuchean issue, which will meet the aspiration and interests of all nations in the region, and help turn Southeast Asia into a region of peace, stability and cooperation," NHAN DAN says in conclusion.

EAST, WEST DIPLOMATS CITE CHANGES IN LEADERSHIP

[Text] Hanoi, June 26 (AFP) -- Vietnamese Party Chief Le Duan, retained his post but lost most of his power during a recent top-level party conference, foreign diplomats here say. Health reasons were cited for the move, but analysts noted that Le Duan's leadership had been contested recently in a conflict between veteran leaders and would-be reformers within the party.

The foreign diplomats, from both the Eastern bloc and the West, quoted several Vietnamese leaders as saying that State Council Chairman Truong Chinh, the Politburo number two, would be managing party affairs until the party congress scheduled for the end of the year. The analysts said the pro-reform group appeared to have scored several points at the plenum, held May 19 to June 6. The most dramatic was the dismissal of To Huu, as first deputy premier in charge of economic affairs.

To Huu, who had been considered a possible successor to Prime Minister Pham Van Dong, was a staunch opponent of the country's program of reforms. Despite the apparent successes of the pro-reform group, it looked unlikely that further major personnel changes would take place before the party congress later in the year.

Although the prime minister and the chairman of the State Council must be appointed by National Assembly, which began its summer session on Tuesday, several top officials told foreign reporters that the replacement of veteran leaders would have to wait for a time. Change looks certain, analysts say, but the reason for the delay is unclear.

Some diplomatic sources said the plenum had settled on the qualifications to be sought in the successors to Le Duan, Truong Chinh and Pham Van Dong and had drawn up a short-list of possible candidates. But they put off the final selection until the next plenum, expected to be held in November just before the party congress, the sources said. They held that the delay may have been motivated by difficulties in achieving a consensus or by a desire to consult regional congresses this summer.

Another possibility, other sources said, was that most of the new leaders had been chosen but the party preferred to make the announcement at the congress because of the historic stature of the individuals involved.

That decision was apparently made at the last minute during a special leadership meeting just before the national assembly convened, sources said.

NHAN DAN ON PROGRESS OF CRITICISM DRIVE

BK261202 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 24 Jun 86

[NHAN DAN 25 June editorial: "Scrupulously Conduct Self-Criticism and Positively Correct Shortcomings"]

[Text] The self-criticism and criticism drive is being conducted by the various party committee echelons, sectors, and basic party organizations. Many district, provincial, and municipal committees, departments, sectors, and party organizations in the army and the security forces have basically completed this drive at the leadership level. After assessing efforts and strong points and analyzing and criticizing errors and negative phenomena, a number of localities have taken the initial steps to correct or prevent shortcomings. This is a great endeavor that reflects the scrupulous implementation of the party Central Committee Secretariat's directive by the various echelons and sectors. It also testifies to the correctness of the party's policy to conduct the self-criticism and criticism drive in two phases, with the on-going phase one being focused on three subjects -- quality, style of leadership, and the cadre policy -- and of its operational guideline that leading cadres must play an exemplary role and seek the opinions of lower echelons and that party cadres and the masses must conduct self-criticism under close guidance from the higher echelons.

Party cadres and members, the masses, longstanding cadres, and retired cadres welcome the party's decision to organize the self-criticism and criticism drive. This important political activity sets a pattern for conducting self-criticism and criticism within the party on a regular basis; strengthens the close bond between the party and the people; helps party committee echelons and the various sectors clearly recognize their own strong points and weaknesses, enhance their sense of responsibility, strengthen unity and singlemindedness, and evaluate cadres more correctly. It creates favorable conditions for personnel work at the forthcoming congresses at various levels and for consolidating leadership organs at all echelons.

The initial results of self-criticism and criticism are uneven and poor. The number of sectors and party committee echelons that have satisfactorily made self-criticism and corrected their own errors and shortcomings still remains small. Many units have conducted criticism in an unscrupulous manner; they want to dwell only on achievements and dare not face the truth squarely. They avoid talking about shortcomings, make only superficial criticism, and fail to take specific corrective measures. After the criticism drive, a number of units continue to experience internal disunity or show signs of subtle persecution against the persons who have made criticism. Some units have spent too much time holding meetings, thus adversely affecting the carrying out of pressing tasks concerning production, market management, and the stabilization of the people's life and still failing to achieve good results in making self-criticism and criticism.

All echelons and sectors must grasp even more firmly the requirements, contents, and methods for conducting self-criticism and criticism; learn from the experience gained by units that have conducted this drive satisfactorily; overcome shortcomings and deficiencies; provide good guidance; and complete at an early date the conduct of self-criticism and criticism at the precinct or district level and at the various basic party organizations. Guidance must be focused on key areas and lagging units, especially those belonging to economic sectors such as enterprises and corporations, public organs and units such as trade stores, tax offices, public security organs, and hospitals, and organs and units whose function is to serve the people's life.

The various departments and ministries at the central level and party committee echelons at the provincial, municipal, and precinct or district levels must provide guidance and assign cadres to directly help the basic party organizations conduct self-criticism and criticism. Based on the functions and duties as well as on the actual conditions of each type of basic unit, efforts must be made to analyze deeply a number of problems about quality instead of making only a general assessment as has been done at the higher echelons, with attention given to serious problems such as wheeling and dealing, theft, graft, and oppression of the masses. Self-criticism and criticism must be made succinctly and accurately so as to avoid prolonged meetings that may slacken or delay efforts to carry out pressing immediate tasks involving production, distribution and circulation, care for the people's life, and the consolidation of national defense and security.

An important factor in the success of the self-criticism and criticism drive is that all echelons, sectors, and basic units must strictly set forth plans and measures for correcting shortcomings. Through realistic, practical, and clear-cut actions, we must correct a number of shortcomings that can be redressed immediately and deal immediately with serious shortcomings; and all this should be circulated internally through the posting of bulletins at public organs or announced publicly through the press for the people to know. This corrective effort must be made under the supervision of the people, society, and higher echelons.

The entire party is duty-bound to satisfactorily conduct phase one of self-criticism and prepare to embark on phase two so as to ensure realistic results for the self-criticism and criticism drive and generate a positive momentum throughout the society for fulfilling the country's tasks and scoring outstanding achievements to welcome the Sixth Party Congress.

NHAN DAN ON CORRECTING SHORTCOMINGS

[26 June NHAN DAN editorial: "Control the Correction of Shortcomings During and After Self-Criticism and Criticism"]

[Text] It is an important requirement for various echelons, sectors, and grass roots-level party organizations to take steps to remedy shortcomings following the conduct of self-criticism. Such steps should not be stopped at the porch of conference rooms or on planning paper. Instead, they should be translated into concrete and practical work. Anything which we can correct immediately, we must do it right away. Anything which we cannot correct immediately, we must set a time frame for the completion of the correction.

Those localities credited with satisfactorily conducting self-criticism and criticism and positively correcting their shortcomings have completed a number of specific tasks such as putting an immediate end to any offer of gifts bearing the character of favor buying or bribes giving, to wasteful gala parties and corruption, to any distribution of import goods -- bearing the character of special privileges -- among the privileged at cheap prices, to all exploitive trade businesses, and to the practice of building houses and occuping houses and land in a way against the standards and the law, hiring personnel against principles, arresting and detaining persons at will, and persecuting the masses. A number of localities have quickly tried those cases involving people with serious shortcomings. These people have been disciplined by the party and prosecuted by law.

This stringent method has been acclaimed and supported by party cadres and members as well as by the masses and has thereby generated a new source of confidence and a new momentum to implement existing socioeconomic, national defense, and security tasks, strengthen party building, and consolidate the administration and mass organizations.

Remedying errors and shortcomings is a way for party organizations and party members to demonstrate their loyalty to the party and their sense of responsibility toward the revolutionary masses. It is also regarded as a guage to measure the results of self-criticism and criticism. It is necessary to pay specific attention to controlling the correction of errors and shortcomings if we are to correctly evaluate the actual results of self-criticism and criticism, commend those organizations and individuals for making cricitism in an exemplary, earnest, and stern manner. If necessary, we must also deal appropriately with those organizations and individuals who have refused to correct their shortcomings or have given vindictive treatment to people criticizing them. We must strive to detect difficulties and problems in order to come up with corrective measures.

We should not carry out control generally, but we should base ourselves on the results of self-criticism and criticism made by each locality to choose the most important and urgent points for control. We must carry out control both during and after the self-criticism drive over both the decisions and the implementation of decisions on the correction of shortcomings by party committee echelons and sectors.

Higher echelons must control lower echelons in correcting their shortcomings, must pay attention to important points and must arrive at clear-cut conclusions over those errors committed by party organizations and party members which were detected by the masses.

What is important is that responsible control organizations, especially the party committee echelons concerned, must work out a control program and plan and must clearly determine the key points for control. In the period ahead, all provincial party committees and those municipal, special zone, and provincial party committees under the direct jurisdiction of the central government, on the basis of evaluating the results of, and the difficulties encountered in the self-criticism and criticism drive, must quickly single out a number of localities with major shortcomings and errors where correction is being confronted with difficulties. This is in order to quickly examine them while inspecting the implementation of urgent tasks regarding production, distribution, circulation, the stabilizing of the people's lives, and the intesifying of national defense and security.

The leading comrades of various echelons and sectors must meet and have talks with party members and the masses in the localities where control work is being carried out in order to seek understanding of their views on the correction of shortcomings by party organizations and party members.

Control work is one of the party's essential leadership functions. It is an important component in the whole party building task and also a vital task of various party committee echelons and of the many control commissions and organs of the party.

It is necessary to satisfactorily control the correction of shortcomings during the after the self-criticism and criticism drive, making it possible for this important political drive to produce good results and to create favorable conditions for holding the party congresses at all levels and to create favorable conditions for holding the party congresses at all levels and the Sixth National CPV Congress.

AQUINO HOLDS SEPARATE TALKS WITH SHULTZ, ABE

HK261543 Manilia THE NEW PHILIPPINES DAILY EXPRESS in English 26 Jun 86 pp 1, 7

[Text] President Aquino was assured yesterday by Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe of 16 billion yen ($97 million) worth of loans, while U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz told her he would try to persuade foreign creditors of the Philippines to liberalize terms of payment to give the country a breathing spell. The President met with Abe and members of his delegation for 40 minutes at the Malacanang guest house and Shultz for more than two hours over an informal lunch at her residence on Arlegui St.

Deputy Presidential Spokesperson Alice C. Villadolid said the Japanese delegation expressed great interest in the Philippines and said that many Japanese are enthusiastic about the Aquino government's effort at rebuilding the country. Mrs Aquino expressed her appreciation for the Japanese sentiments, saying: "We have always considered Japan as our friend and we are happy that Japan supports our efforts at recovery." The President also expressed the hope that the Philippines would follow the example of Japan in rebuilding her economy. She cited the heavy debt burden of the Philippines and the extreme economic deprivation of some sectors of her population, a situation similar to what Japan underwent right after World War II.

Mrs Villadolid quoted Abe as telling the President: "We would like to convey our determination to support the economic development program of your country. And we are ready to despatch a special mission to discuss details of this program anytime." Abe also told the President, in answer to her request, that the Philippines is entitled to participate in Japan's "quick disbursing loans."

The Japanese foreign minister said that the Aquino government will have the $97-million loan as soon as it can identify four projects for which they are assigned. This is part of the 13-loan [as published] package from Japan embracing 11 projects of which seven had been approved by the Marcos administration. Abe also informed the President that his government is amenable to giving more flexible loan conditions to the Philippines as he informed the ASEAN foreign ministerial meeting that just ended. Villadolid said the meeting ended with Abe expressing his hope that the President's visit to Japan will materialize later this year.

Information Minister Teodoro Locsin Jr. said, through Mrs Villadolid, that the President and Shultz talked about economic assistance. No details were disclosed. Shultz earlier signed an agreement with Vice President and Foreign Minister Salvador H. Laurel. The President expressed the hope that other funds which the U.S. Government is trying to extend to the Philippines would come in the form of budgetary support. Locsin, who alone attended for the government the Aquino-Shultz meeting, described it as very informal, saying: "It was marked by great conviviality and warmth."

Shultz reiterated his government's invitation to the President to visit the United States and that the vast majority of the American people were very much interested in what the Aquino government was doing and would welcome her in the United States. The President said: "I would like to give the invitation serious thoughts but that I plan to visit an Asean state first."

More than 250 demonstrators protesting the visit waited for Shultz outside Malacanang Palace for two hours but left peacefully when police told them they couldn't stay, half an hour before the American official's party arrived.

"Down with imperialism, military bases are a curse," the demonstrators changed in Tagalog as they marched away. They carried signs saying, "Shultz go Home" and "No to U.S. Imperialism."

LAUREL: NO NOTICE FROM U.S. ON NUCLEAR WEAPONS

HK271127 Hong Kong AFP in English 1120 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 27 (AFP) -- The United States has not informed the new Philippine Government if any nuclear weapons are stored at its military bases here, Philippine Vice President Salvador Laurel said Friday. "The Aquino government has not been informed of the presence of nuclear weapons based in the Philippines," he told a news conference after being asked if any such information had been given to the four-month-old government of President Corazon Aquino.

It was the first statement made by a senior Philippine Government official on the question of nuclear weapons at Clark Air Base and Subic Bay Naval Base near Manila, the two largest U.S. bases overseas.

The United States has a firm policy worldwide to neither confirm nor deny the presence of nuclear weapons at any of its bases or on military craft, but under a 1983 agreement with Manila, it is pledged to inform the host government if any nuclear weapons are brought into Clark or Subic. "I have not been notified," said Mr. Laurel, who is also foreign minister, as he sat on a dais with U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz and other participants after two days of talks between foreign ministers of non-communist Southeast Asian countries and their chief developed allies.

Anti-bases groups here, including nationalists brought into the government by Mrs Aquino, maintain that Clark and Subic serve as storage centers and transit points for nuclear weapons. The bases are covered by a lease that can be terminated after 1991 by either side on one year's notice. Mrs Aquino has said that she would respect the agreement until 1991 but would keep her options after then open.

LAUREL, SHULTZ SIGN SUPPORT FUND ACCORD

HK261557 Manila MANILA BULLETIN in English 26 Jun 86 p 15

[Text] The United States will make available to the Philippines this years a total of $607.435 million in economic and military assistance, including the $200 million in Economic Support Fund [ESF] the agreement of which was signed yesterday by Vice President Salvador Laurel and U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz.

The commitment of some $504.8 million in economic assistance and $102.635 million in military assistance was made by the party of Shultz who met yesterday afternoon with top government officials led by Finance Minister Jaime V. Ongpin, Jose Concepcion Jr. and Central Bank Deputy Governor Gabriel Singson.

Aside from the $200 million in ESF, the other forms of economic assistance that was committed by the U.S. include the following:

-- $100 million in supplemental grant in ESF which is unrelated to the Philippine-U.S. military bases agreement. An American Embassy paper said this grant is to be appropriated by the U.S. Congress. While the U.S. considers the ESF as grant or aid, the Aquino government has said it should be treated as payment for the use of U.S. military bases in the country.
-- $123 million in unexpended loans that will be converted into grants to help the government reduce its debt service payments;
-- $18 million in American foreign aid that will be used to undertake programs to various government agencies like agriculture and potable water projects;
-- $35 million in concessional loans that will finance wheat importations of flour millers from the U.S.;
-- $10 million in grants for use in the importation of food commodities for use in targetted feeding programs of the Catholic Relief Service and another agency;
-- $18.8 million in grants for the importation of wheat and non-fat dry milk to be sold to flour millers and dairy companies in the country.

The military assistance package to be provided to the government consists of $52.635 million for the purchase of military equipment and spare parts, an amount which has already been appropriated by the U.S. Congress for U.S. fiscal year 1986.

The Reagan administration, according to the U.S. Embassy paper, has requested for an additional $50 million as non-reimbursable financing which was provided under the military assistance program. The request, it was learned, is now being considered by the U.S. Congress.

LAUREL REVIEWS RESULTS OF VISIT TO PRC

HK261601 Manila MANILA BULLETIN in English 26 Jun 86 pp 1, 13

[By Olaf Giron]

[Text] China has pledged to renew the 20-million credit line previously extended to the Philippines to help the new government finance imports of essential Chinese commodities, Vice President and Foreign Minister Salvador H. Laurel said yesterday. Premier Zhao Ziyang and Minister for External Economic Relations and Trade Zheng Tuobin also gave assurance to provide another 20-million trade facility Laurel added. The details of the commercial credits will be worked out by the Central Bank and the Bank of China.

In addition to this assistance, an agreement has been reached on a pricing formula to enable China to supply the Philippines with the remaining balance for 1986 of 430,000 metric tons of crude oil on a deferred-payment basis, Laurel said. The value of this oil importation is estimated at $25.4 million.

In a report to President Aquino on his recent China trip, Laurel said he also met with Chairman Deng Xiaoping and discussed the three "most serious issues" in Philippine-Chinese bilateral relations. The issues concern the Chinese policy on the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP), the question of the Kalayaan Islands which the Chinese call Nanxia Islands, and the Taiwan question.

In raising the question of relations between China's Communist Party and the CPP, Laurel said some cabinet members had aired apprehensions about the implications of their ties. He expressed the hope that the so-called "fraternal greetings" extended by the Chinese Communist Party to other communist parties outside of China would not embolden the Philippine communists.

Deng admitted, he said, that for a period of time the Chinese Communist Party gave support to communist parties in other countries to carry out revolution. However, since the end of the Cultural Revolution, policy changes have taken place. Deng made it clear that China's policy is non-interference in the internal affairs of other countries, Laurel said.

On the Philippine trade deficit with China amounting to $200 million in 1985, Laurel said he was assured by Zhao and Zheng Tuobin that China will take measures to reduce the gap. Stressing that it was China's policy to maintain a balance of trade with their trading partners, the two officials cited the Chinese trade mission to Manila for the purpose of concluding "as many contracts as possible." The 28-man buying mission signed contracts of the purchase of 30,000 metric tons of fertilizer valued at $5 million and 10,000 metric tons of copper concentrates worth about $3 million. China also responded favorably to his suggestion of counter-trading with the Philippines, Laurel said.

FURTHER ON MITRA, DIOKNO NAMED TO TALKS

[Text] Formal cease-fire negotiations between the government and the Communist Party and the New People's Army are expected to start shortly. This was learned yesterday as President Aquino announced the appointment of Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra and Human Rights Commission Chairman Jose Diokno as government emissaries in the cease-fire talks. Mrs Aquino also expressed hope that talks with the communist rebels would be fruitful. FEBC correspondent Al Dovar has more details:

[Begin Dovar recording] President Corazon Aquino today disclosed that Former Senator Jose Diokno and Agricultural Minister Ramon Mitra have been named government negotiators in the peace talks with communist rebels. In a news conference at Malacanang, the president gave not fixed date when the two government negotiators would sit with their communist counterparts. She said the communist side has more than one representative to the talks, but has decided to make known only Satur Ocampo.

According to the president, the media can come to Diokno and Mitra at the proper time for any information on what they have accomplished. She denied reports that the military had been left out in the initial preparations for the peace talks. She said that defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Chief of Staff General Fidel Ramos have been privy with the talks from the beginning. She also denied that the security situation has worsened since she took office, claiming that in her recent meeting with Gen Ramos, she was assured that there have been less killing in the country under her rule. [end recording]

In announcing the appointment of Mitra and Diokno as government cease-fire talks emissaries, President Aquino also assured that she will not appoint any communists in a coalition government. The inclusion of the rebels in a coalition government was one of the reported demands of the communist party and the NPA.

[Begin Aquino recording] ...and I have said all along even during the campaign, my main aim is to, first of all, to avoid any more loss of lives and to exert all efforts in order to achieve peace. [end recording]

MARCOS SUPPORTERS TO ASK U.S. TO HALT AID

HK261155 Hong Kong AFP in English 1133 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 26 (AFP) -- Supporters of deposed president Ferdinand Marcos said Thursday they would ask the U.S. Government to suspend aid to the government of Corazon Aquino "because it is illegitimate." "We will ask the United States to reject the request of aid from the Aquino government because it is illegitimate," said Oliver Lozano, a spokesman for pro-Marcos groups which have been mounting anti-government street protests.

He told AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE they would ask for the suspension of aid and help in the restoration of a "constitutional" government through swearing in Arturo Tolentino, Mr Marcos' running mate in the February election, as acting president. His group is delivering a petition to the U.S. Embassy Friday together with a videotape of pro-Marcos demonstrators being dispersed by police in a recent rally. He said the videotape would show the "human rights violations committed by Cory's (Aquino's) regime." Two people suffered gunshot wounds and 20 others were injured when the demonstrators clashed with government troops trying to break up the rally. Mr Lozano said they would not ask the U.S. Government for funds.

Earlier, the Marcos loyalists said they would petition Washington through visiting U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz "for assistance in their fight against the growing communist menace in the Philippines." The banned Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) has been waging a rural-based guerrilla campaign through its New People's Army (NPA) for the past 17 years.

Marcos supporters are blaming the Aquino Government for being the major cause of the communist New People's Army insurgency, which gradually grew after Mr Marcos declared martial law in 1972. "She (Mrs Aquino) is playing footsie with the communists," Mr Lozano said.

MARCOS LOYALISTS PLAN RALLY AT RIZAL PARK

[By Fil Viduya]

[Text] Despite threats of outright arrest by the Capcom [Capital Regional Command] should they stage rallies without permit, Marcos loyalists said yesterday they would stage a rally at Rizal Park's Quirino Grandstand on Sunday. The decision to hold their regular Sunday rally in Manila was announced over a loyalists' program on radio station DZME. Invited to the rally are replaced local government officials, dismissed government employees, students protesting the arbitrary increase of tuition fees and anti-communists.

Loyalist sources said they had already obtained a permit from acting Mayor Lopez for this Sunday's rally. Anne Ferrer, a print model-turned Marcos loyalist, said during the "Kapihan ng mga loyalista Tuesday that she got the permit after being given the run-around by Lopez and his subordinates.

She also quoted Lopez as saying, "Bakit hindi sa tondo kayo magrally. Pa-class-class pa kayo.." [why don't you hold the rally in Tondo? You are pretending to have class.] Lopez also allegedly told Ferrer the permit would be the last to be granted to the loyalists.

Ferrer also said there was no boxing match held last Sunday, an alibi given by Lopez in refusing to give a rally permit to the loyalists. The supposed boxing tournament was only held Tuesday, Ferrer said.

Some quarters said Lopez' refusal to issue permit for loyalists to stage their rally in Rizal Park last Sunday was a factor in the bloody dispersal in front of Camp Aguinaldo on EDSA [Epifano de los Santos Avenue] which resulted in injuries to scores of people, seven of them by gun bullets. The EDSA rallyist swelled to several thousdands last Sunday after people from Rizal Park had joined them battled law enforces with stones and bottles when two of their leaders were arrested by the police. Lawyer Oliver Lozano, spokesman for the Freedom Fighters of the Philippines, has urged the creation of a committee to investigate human rights violations by the police against peaceful rallyists.

Meanwhile, a loyalist marshall who was allegedly truncheoned on the forehead during the violent dispersal at Ayala bridge last June 8 was buried yesterday. The victim, Mario S. Lacabra, 30, of 619 Payapa St., Mandaluyong, became a comatose at the Philippine general Hospital until he succumbed on June 23.

He was the third fatal victim of the June 8 dispersal tagged by the loyalists as the "Malacanang massacre." Also killed in that incident were Rolando Maglaque, 26, a fresh engineering graduate from Mapua Institute, and Virgilio Velasco, 37, a Nueva Ecija farmer. The duo were found floating with multiple gunshot wounds in an estero at Quiapo.

Former MP Gonzalo "lito" Puyat Li yesterday deplored reports attributed to former Mp Rafael Recto last Tuesday that "Lito Atienza, general manager of the National Housing Authority, and I have something to do with the bloody dispersal of loyalists demonstrating in front of Camp Aguinaldo last Sunday."

ANTICOMMUNIST GROUPS TO PETITION U.S. FOR AID

HK261151 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in Tagalog 1100 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Two national organizations said to consist of 2.5 million members reported that they would send a petition to the United States through Secretary of State George Shultz, seeking aid in their struggle against the growing communist threat in the Philippines. The Freedom Fighters of the Philippines and the Loyalists for Constitutional Democracy, or LCD, [pro-Marcos groups] said there is urgent need for the petition due to the rapidly growing threat of communist abetted under the oppressive and vindictive Aquino regime.

LAUREL DECLARES ASEAN DIALOGUE 'FRUITFUL'

OW271217 Tokyo KYODO in English 1106 GMT 27 Jun 86

[By Antonio Kamiya]

[Text] Manila, June 27 KYODO -- The foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) ended two days of talks here with their dialogue partners from the industrialized world with the host Philippines declaring the meeting a complete success.

"I believe that we have achieved our objective of having a frank and fruitful dialogue with our partners," Philippine Vice President and Foreign Minister Salvador Laurel declared at a press conference.

The press conference, held at the end of a series of talks between ASEAN and its dialogue partners, however, turned into a running debate over nuclear weapons stemming from New Zealand's refusal to allow U.S. nuclear-armed or nuclear-powered ships to enter its ports.

New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange and U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz, both here to attend the dialogue, faced a spate of questions over the nuclear impasse, with ASEAN ministers drawn into the fray. "Our position is that nuclear weapons are not supposed to be deployed at the (American) military bases in the Philippines," Laurel said.

On ASEAN's contacts with its industrial partners, Laurel said the talks have enabled ASEAN foreign ministers to air their views, ranging from trade protectionism and the perennial Kampuchean issue to drug abuse and international terrorism.

Japan's Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe contributed to the discussions by outlining the basic Japanese foreign policy to the region -- a stand which Laurel said has given ASEAN better understanding of Japan's regional policy. The speech, the content of which is being touted in Japan as the "Abe Doctrine," pledged stepped up economic aid to the region and a continuous dialogue along with a commitment that Japan will not become a military power. The Abe speech "marked no major departure of Japan's foreign policy but it sharpened the focus of Japan's policy vis-a-vis ASEAN," Laurel said.

Shultz also defended the outcome of the ASEAN conference, saying that discussions have "raised people's consciousness" over a variety of issues, notably trade protectionism. Trade protectionism is a threat to the standard of living, potentially destabilizing the strategic balance in the region, Shultz said.

It was, however, the nuclear dispute that drew the sharpest comments from Shultz and New Zealand Prime Minister Lange, who was seated next to the American secretary of state. Shultz, who had a separate meeting with Lange earlier in the day, said the New Zealand nonnuclear policy has removed "one of the essences" of ANZUS, the trilateral security treaty among the U.S., Australia and New Zealand.

Shultz said the United States and New Zealand are no longer military allies, but sought to deny that the nuclear dispute would spill over into wider bilateral relations with New Zealand.

"The allies are still friends," he said. Lange, who attended the ASEAN conference in his capacity as foreign minister, defended his government's nonnuclear policy, arguing that the presence of nuclear weapons in New Zealand would invite a nuclear attack.

The enlarged ASEAN meeting -- which brings together the foreign ministers from the United States, Japan, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the representatives of the European Community -- is an established feature of the annual ASEAN foreign ministerial meeting. ASEAN groups Malaysia, Thailand, the Philippines, Indonesia, Singapore, and Brunei.

LAUREL REASSURES ASEAN ON NUCLEAR WEAPONS

HK300818 Manila THE NEWS HERALD in English 28 Jun 86 pp 1, 6

[Text] Vice President and Foreign Minister Salvador H. Laurel last night assured the Association of Southeast Asian Nations that there are no nuclear weapons in the two United States military bases in the Philippines.

Laurel, chairman of the ninth ASEAN ministerial meeting, was responding to a query at a postministerial press conference at the Philippine Plaza Hotel, on the possibility that missiles with nuclear warheads are stored at the Subic naval and Clark airbase. "We have Filipino base commanders in these two U.S. facilities and they have guaranteed that there are no nuclear weapons stored there," Laurel said.

Laurel recalled how the then opposition had tried to coax former President Marcos to make a categorical denial or confirmation of the presence of a nuclear arsenal in the two U.S. military facilities. It was only when the new government took over that there was a more convincing guaranty that the U.S. has no nuclear armaments in the two bases. The basis of Laurel's confidence is the bilateral agreement between the two governments that no such weapons be kept in the two bases without prior knowledge of the Philippines.

At any rate, Laurel said, the new government will respect the bases agreement up to 1991, its expiry date, after which the matter is open to negotiation. Sources said the ASEAN partners of the Philippines have been making discreet inquiries about the presence of nuclear warheads in the two military installations.

Earlier, on the eve of the conclusion of the ASEAN post-ministerial dialog, U.S. State Secretary George Shultz tried to rally an ASEAN wary of a nuclear showdown between the U.S. and the Soviet Union behind the U.S. decision to terminate the disarmament talks because of Russian bad faith. At the same time, Shultz warned U.S. allies not to follow the example of New Zealand which has refused to have U.S. nuclear-powered vessels call at its ports.

Such non-cooperation has caused the U.S. to withdraw the security guaranty of ANZUS (Australia-New Zealand and U.S. nuclear defense pact) from New Zealand. The ASEAN had earlier served notice to work for a nuclear-free zone for Southeast Asia in accordance with its vow to conclude a future treaty of peace, freedom and neutrality in the region.

But ASEAN's decision has been made awkward by the presence of foreign military installations in the Philippines, Malaysia and Singapore.

ASEAN leaders pronounced the recently concluded ministerial conference a success, citing the presence of dialog partners from U.S., Canada, Japan, Australia, New Zealand and the European Community as proofs of its success.

Shultz reiterated the pledge of the Reagan administration to fight protectionist legislation in the U.S. Congress adding that the White House will eventually prevail. He assailed protectionist legislation as a threat to standards of living and political freedom as he said that the determination of ASEAN to combat such protectionism was a consciousness of a sense of mutual need and cooperation.

FOREIGN MINISTERS URGE RETENTION OF U.S. BASES

HK292342 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2300 GMT 29 Jun 86

Foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations are lobbying for the retention of the U.S. bases in the Philippines. They have let it be known to the Philippine Government during the recent ASEAN ministerial meeting in Manila that it is necessary for the Philippines to keep the bases to maintain the regional balance of power in Asia and the Pacific.

The ASEAN position was disclosed by official sources, although there was no official announcement at the recent ASEAN meeting. The ASEAN ministers were reported to hold the position that the very essence of the zone of peace, freedom, and neutrality in the region is not possible without the U.S. military presence in the bases in the Philippines.

SITTHI-SCHULTZ DISCUSS FARM ACT, TEXTILES

BK270739 Bangkok Television Service in Thai 1300 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] According to dispatch from Khun Narumon in Manila, received here about an hour ago, Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila held talks with U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz about the Farm Act. The U.S. side said it would try to prevent the Farm Act from having any impact on Thailand. However, everything must be done in accordance with the legal procedure and rice prices will be determined by the world market.

The Thai foreign minister told the U.S. side that the two countries have been engaged in price-cutting competition. During the past 5 months Thailand's rice exports increased by 33 percent by the country has lost a third of its favored rice customers who refused to buy 2.5 billion baht worth of rice from Thailand for fear that rice prices would further decline.

The foreign minister also discussed with George Shultz about the arms depot the details of which he said cannot be publicized.

Regarding the textile trade, the U.S. side suggested that Thailand's exports should not exceed the allocated quota, otherwise, President Reagan's veto will not be effective. Meanwhile, ASEAN countries will jointly discuss the U.S. Jenkins bill. If they can act in concert, their bargaining power will weigh more in the U.S. Congress as they are also planning to take some action in GATT.

U.S. URGED TO DRAW LESSON FROM WAR 'DEFEAT'

SK281208 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0338 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Unattributed talk: "The U.S. Imperialists Should Act Discreetly After Drawing a Lesson From Their Ignominious History of Defeat in War."]

[Text] Thirty-six years have passed since the U.S. imperialists provoked a war of aggression against us. The 3-year war waged by the U.S. imperialist aggressors have forced on our people indescribable disasters and grave difficulties.

Dreaming a pipe dream of nipping in the bud our young Republic, which at that time was barely 2 years old, and of establishing the entire Korean peninsula as their sphere of influence, the U.S. imperialists poured many troops into the Korean fronts, a combination of troops from 15 satellite countries and the puppet South Korean army, that totaled 2 million, and modern killing means.

From the day they began their brigandish armed invasion, the U.S. imperialists submerged the entire fatherland into a sea of fire with indiscriminate bombings and artillery shellings in a bid to wipe out the Republic at one stroke. Cities and villages were scorched and leveled, and a great number of people were sacrificed.

In violation of international laws, the U.S. imperialists brutally massacred our people by even using chemical and biological weapons. The arduous war that lasted for 3 years was a fierce confrontation between democratic and reactionary forces, as well as a grave struggle to determine our people's fate -- whether they would survive or perish.

Upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's call to the effect that all strength should be pooled for a victory in the war, our heroic People's Army and people rose as one in the just fatherland liberation war of expelling the U.S. imperialists' brigandish armed invasion in order to defend the freedom, independence, and sovereign rights of the fatherland.

Our people had to pay dearly for victory in the grave war against the U.S. imperialists, the archvillain of world imperialislm. The U.S. imperialist aggressors unleashing a brutal armed offensive, failed to bring to their knees our People's Army and people, who had risen in a just cause.

Under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our heroic People's Army and people, uniting rock-firm around the party, forced the U.S. imperialist aggressors to suffer bitter defeat by displaying mass heroism while overcoming all sorts of difficulties and tribulations, and finally achieved a bright victory through struggle.

By achieving great victory in the fatherland liberation war, our heroic People's Army and people honorably defended the freedom, independence, and sovereignty of the fatherland and firmly defended the Eastern guardpost of world peace after foiling the U.S. imperialists' maneuvers for a war of aggression

The brilliant victory in the fatherland liberation war was a great victory for the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's chuche-oriented military ideology and outstanding strategy. By achieving a victory in the fatherland liberation war, our people have not only humbled the arrogant U.S. imperialists' pride, but have also shattered the myth of their invincibility, and opened a new era of growth for national liberation struggle and anti-U.S. and anti-imperialist struggle on a global scale.

A long time of 33 years has passed since the day the gunfire of war was silenced in Korea. History has advanced further and many serious changes have taken place in the international arena since that time. However, the U.S. imperialists' aggressive ambitions and the dangerous situation of war prevailing on the Korean peninsula have remained unchanged.

Aggression and war are the inherent nature and the immutable disposition of the U.S. imperialists. The U.S. imperialists have persistently pursued a policy of indefinite occupation of South Korea and a policy of war against our people, while ignoring the Military Armistic Agreement signed in anticipation of a withdrawal of all foreign troops from South Korea.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Because of the ceaseless provoking maneuvers by the U.S. imperialists and the fascist military elements in South Korea, the situation in our country remains tense at all times and the danger of war igniting at any time constantly exists in our country.

The U.S. imperialist aggressors, who are excited in their dream of conquering Asia, are now attaching particular significance to the Korean peninsula. Declaring the Korean peninsula as a central area in carrying our their Asian policy, as well as a flashpoint for their policy of strength, the U.S. imperialist aggressors have massed a large number of armed forces and war equipment in South Korea.

The U.S. imperialists are now keeping some 45,000 U.S. troops at combat readiness and more or less 1 million puppet army troops in South Korea. The U.S. imperialist aggressors, who have chosen South Korea as a beachhead for their offensive strategy towards the Far East, have deployed some 1,000 nuclear weapons and delivery systems, including most barbarous weapons of mass destruction such as neutron bombs and nuclear backpacks.

South Korea has now been turned into a U.S. nuclear forward base and a dangerous source of thermonuclear war and is among the world's most densely deployed areas of nuclear weapons per square mile.

In recent years, the U.S. imperialist aggressors have reorganized the units of the U.S. troops and the puppet army in a way that suits an offensive strategy designed for an invasion of the North and have deployed 80 to 90 percent of these units in forward combat zones, [chontu chidae] close to the Military Demarcation Line.

In addition, the U.S. imperialist aggressors are now waiting for an invasion opportunity, having organized a special warfare commando unit of 180,000 strong, capable of mounting an operation against the northern half of the Republic.

All facts clearly demonstrate how dangerous a stage the U.S. imperialists' invasion preparations against our Republic have reached.

While frequently conducting adventurous military exercises of various kinds, including the "Team Spirit" joint military exercise, the U.S. imperialists are now ceaselessly leading the situation to the brink of war. Not a single day goes by peacefully in Korea in the air, on the ground, and at sea because of the war exercises frenziedly conducted by the U.S. imperialists and the puppet Chon Tu-hwan clique.

The "Team Spirit" joint military exercise conducted annually with the mobilization of a large number of troops and massive war means by the U.S. imperialists and the puppet Chon Tu-hwan clique, a product of U.S. nuclear strategy, is the most dangerous war exercise against us.

What constitutes the key to U.S. nuclear strategy is the preemptive nuclear strike strategy. In terms of its content, nature, dimensional breadth, intensity, and simulated war methods, the "Team Spirit" joint military exercise staged by the U.S. imperialists with the mobilization of a large number of armed forces and equipment is, from start to finish, a nuclear attack exercise of the largest scale whose aim is to mount a preemptive strike against our Republic.

The bellicose U.S. imperialist sectors are now chasing after a chimera of counquering our Republic through an attack in the shortest period of time by reactivating the already mapped out short-term blitzkrieg strategy for a real war in case of an emergency. The provocative nature and danger of the "Team Spirit" joint military exercise conducted annually by the U.S. imperialists and the puppet Chon Tu-hwan clique are growing stronger.

In a bid to justify their maneuvers to provoke a new war on the Korean peninsula, the U.S. imperialist aggressors are prattling about the threat of southward invasion. However, the stark reality shows that the threat of southward invasion does not exist.

We have stated several times that we have no intention of invading the South. What really exists is not the threat of southward invasion, but the threat of northward invasion.

Because of the maneuvers of the U.S. imperialist aggressors to fabricate a tripartite military alliance system among the United States, Japan, and South Korea, the danger of war is increasing on the Korean peninsula with each passing day. The tripartite military alliance system is part of the U.S. imperialists' Asian and world strategy. It is an aggressive anticommunist military bloc whose aim is to bring the people in Asia, the Korean people in particular, to their knees by force. Realizing the integration of a system of military operations through the strengthening of military collusion among the United States, Japan, and South Korea is one of the most important factors for the completion of the tripartite military alliance system.

In response to the tripartite military alliance, the U.S. imperialists have finalized the division of combat among the United States, Japan, and South Korea. In addition, they have not only set plans for operations based on this, but they have also frequently conducted joint military exercises and joint exercises [kongdong kunsahullyon] against us.

The "Team Spirit" joint military exercise conducted annually with the Japanese mainland as a base for launch, logisitical, and supply operations is in fact a test war as well as a preliminary war conducted against us within the framework of the tripartite military alliance system among the United States, Japan, and South Korea.

Because of the U.S. imperialists' uninterrupted maneuvers to provoke a new war, the situation on the Korean peninsula has become extremely heated. The situation in Korea today bears resemblance to the time 36 years ago when the U.S. imperialist aggressors instigated the puppet Syngman Rhee clique to ignite a war of aggression.

The bellicose U.S. sectors have continuously strained the situation by flying in succession into South Korea and by repeatedly hatching war plots with the puppet Chon Tu-hwan ring.

However, the development of the situation shows that everything cannot be made to come out as the U.S. imperialists wish. The U.S. imperialist aggressors are rejected or beaten in virtually every corner of the world where they have a foothold. Even in South Korea, the U.S. imperialists' policy of occupation and their maneuvers for the provocation of a new war have encountered strong resistance.

The South Korean youths, students, and people are tenaciously staging an anti-U.S., antiwar, and antinuclear struggle, while vigorously shouting such slogans as "U.S. troops, withdraw," "Down with the U.S. imperialists who are scheming to perpetuate the division," "Remove nuclear bases," "Replace the Military Armistice Agreement with a peace agreement," "Dismantle the U.S.-South Korean Combined Forces Command," and "We are doggedly opposed to such joint military exercises as 'Team Spirit.'"

The flames of the anti-U.S., antiwar, and antinuclear struggle are sweeping the whole of South Korea and the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule is being shaken at its roots.

The U.S. imperialist aggressors should draw a serious lesson from the tragic defeat they suffered in the past 3-year Korean war instead of regarding it as merely a bygone affairs, and should withdraw from South Korea without delay, taking along all of their troops of aggression and nuclear weapons

CUBAN MINISTER OF EDUCATION BACKS COHOSTED OLYMPICS

SK270600 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0447 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 27 (KCNA) -- Jose Ramon Fernandez, alternate member of the Politburo, C.C., the Communist Party of Cuba and vice-president of the Council of Ministers and minister of Education, declared at a press conference in the Dominican Republic on June 24 that Cuba would participate in the 1988 Olympic Games only when they are co-hosted by the North and South of Korea. He was attending the opening ceremony of the Central American and Caribbean Regional Games.

He told the reporters that "No one should participate in games sponsored by those maneuvering to freeze the division of the Korean people".

He said: We will not take part in the 24th Olympic Games, if they are not co-hosted by the North and South of Korea. Many other countries share this view with Cuba.

Stressing that the 1988 Olympics should be prevented from becoming games flouting the earnest desire of the Korean people for reunification, he said: We know only one Korea.

SEOUL POLLUTION CLAIMED TOO EXTREME FOR OLYMPICS

SK282242 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1502 GMT 28 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 28 (KCNA) -- Seoul is a polluted city which always threatens the lives of people and a contaminated area where even ordinary domestic sports games cannot be held properly, much less international games.

The South Korean paper CHUNGANG ILBO said that it is important to appoint the stadiums properly if such international games as Olympics are to be held, but it is a pressing task at present to clear cities of polluted air.

Pollution has become most serious in Seoul. According to data made public by a South Korean institute, air pollution in the Central, Chongro, West Gate and Yongdungpo districts of Seoul and in the area along the river Han doubles or quadruples the internationally recognized tolerance limit and pollution by sulphurous acid gas trebled or quadrupled the limit in recent two years. In particular, pollution by lead and cadmium which does serious harm to the health of people and causes total paralysis is more than ten times that in Tokyo.

That is why the sky over Seoul is always hazy, trees on streets are withering and people suffering from respiratory, skin and other diseases.

The contraction of respiratory diseases among Seoul citizens is more than double that in other areas. It is owing to serious air pollution that people in the residential quarters are kept in "saunas", all windows closed even in the hot summer of July and August.

The South Korean paper CHOSON ILBO reported that foreign residents in Seoul say 98 percent of service water is contaminated and foreigners visiting Seoul are advised not to drink city water.

According to opinion poll conducted by South Korean "Institute of Economic Development", more than 90 percent of foreigners in Seoul say the air pollution of the city has surpassed the "line of danger" and they dislike to go out to the streets or to take food restaurants and grocery stores because most of it is contaminated.

SOUTH'S DEPLOYMENT OF F-16 FIGHTERS ASSAILED

SK290303 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2150 GMT 28 Jun 86

[NODONG SINMUN 29 June commentary: "Security That Ignores Peace"]

[Text] Recently, we have repeatedly put forward important proposals for a peaceful settlement of the Korean question.

On 23 June, the government of the republic issued a statement containing a peace proposal to create a nuclear-free peace zone on the Korean peninsula which stated that it was willing conduct any form of negotiations concerning this.

The KPA Supreme Command proposed holding talks among those who hold real power in the military in the North and South to eradicate the danger of war hovering over the Korean peninsula.

Because they are practical peace-loving proposals with the potential to dissolve the state of acute confrontation, ease tension between the North and South, and contribute to the cause of peace in Korea, Asia, and the world, our new proposals have aroused active support and sympathy among all of the Korean people at home and aborad and people throughout the world.

However, in South Korea a grave situation of deliberately aggravating tension is being developed which ignores our peace proposals.

According to news reports, on 27 June the puppets held a christening ceremony following the introduction of modern F-16 fighters at a South Korean Air Force base. At the ceremony, after christening them "Pilsung Poramae," traitor Chon Tu-hwan babbled that strengthening a security posture is an aboslutely unavoidable premise and a first priority task. The puppet also babbled that South Korea now has air combat capabilities superior to the North and they key to guaranteeing a sure victory in the initial stage of a war with the introducton of the F-16 fighters which boast high performance and might.

This is an open challenge to us and a bid to check our peace proposal from having any impact. The Chon Tu-hwan ring's calling for a sure victory in relations with us and its giving such names even to fighters amount to openly declaring its intentions to follow the path of confrontation and war rather than pursuing dialogue and improved relations with us.

In fact, the security they are talking about is another name for war. In light of this, the Chon Tu-hwan ring's referring to security as a basic priority has laid bare its wicked intentions to provoke a war in the end. There is no need to further explain that the ring needs to have superior combat capabilities only to provoke war and to subdue us by force.

The puppet Chon-Tu-hwan, who is going through a serious crisis facing his rule in the face of the people's enormous anti-U.S. and antifascist advancement, is now trying to find a way out by providing a war of northward invasion together with the U.S. imperialists.

Practically speaking, traitor Chon-Tu-hwan is now more enthused about turning South Korea into a nuclear forward base and provoding a new war in response to the aggressive demands of his U.S. masters than at any previous time.

Not only have the puppets increased military forces on a large scale and deployed them in forward areas close to the military Demarcation Line, they also keep them in a launching posture to mount a war of northward invasion at any given time.

Noise of war exercises aimed at invading the northern half of the Republic are also conducted frequently. The puppets have further strained the situation in our country by continuing daily war exercises even after the "Team Spirit-86" joint military exercise, the largest nuclear war exercise ever conducted, which they launched together with the U.S. imperialists early this year.

Even after the delivery of our letter proposing talks among military authorities, the Chon Tu-hwan ring conducted a large-scale joint mobile exercise by mobilizing the puppet army troops of all military services.

The puppets now force military training even on elementary school children and drive them out to areas along the Han River for river-crossing operations.

If the puppets have even a modicum of an aspiration for peace, how can they introduce new weapons under the pretext of security, be enthused about war exercises, and babble that sure victory and security is a basic priority, while taking no heed of our important peaceful proposal?

Almost daily, the puppets do such silly things as babble about southward invasion or infiltration by somebody. Who on the Korean peninsula is dreaming about invasion and who is threatened with an invasion?

A few days ago, traitor Chon Tu-hwan encouraged residents to confrontation by openly babbling about 4 kinds of war -- military, ideological, economic, and diplomatic -- while the people in the North and South aspire for peace. The could not act this way unless they are dreaming about a war rather than hoping to prevent it and relax tension. By adopting a negative approach toward our peace proposal and by running amok with their military buildup and war maneuvers, the South Korean puppets have revealed that they have not a modicum of concern for peace and the relaxation of tension on the Korean peninsula.

Also, they have admitted themselves that the threat of northward invasion, not the threat of southward invasion, is a reality on the Korean peninsula by not accepting our peace proposal. The dark clouds of war are coming to the North from the South. Whatever black propaganda traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who pulls a wagon of nuclear war by obeying the United States, may spread, he will convince no one. If the Chon Tu-hwan ring choses a path of anticommunist confrontation, of exacerbating tension, and of war, running counter to the trends of the times, all that awaits the ring will be an ignominious demise.

Removing the African countries' serious economic crisis accords with the interests of the progressive people around the world who love justice and peace.

Your excellency President Abdou Diouf proposed the convocation of a special session of the U.N. General Assembly in connection with the economic crisis in Africa. And at this special session which was held in last May your excellency worked hard to solve Africa's economic problems in conformity with the aspirations of the African peoples and the need of the actual situation. Kim Il-song at Traore Banquet

SK262316 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1500 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 26 (KCNA) -- Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea and president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, arranged a grand banquet on June 26 in honour of Moussa Traore, general secretary of the Malian People's Democratic Union and president of the Republic of Mali, on an official visit to Korea and made a speech.

Saying that President Moussa Traore is the old acquaintance and an intimate friend of the Korean people, President Kim Il-song goes on: Your current visit to our country will contribute to developing the fine relations of friendship and cooperation between our two peoples to a higher stage, and to strengthening the unity and solidarity of the Non-Aligned Movement.

[Words indistinct] developing countries, including African countries which have embarked on the road of creating a new life, are facing an urgent task of doing away with the economic backwardness and poverty left over by imperialist colonial rule and achieving economic self-support.

Economic self-support is the material basis for a country's independence and sovereignty and is the only way to national prosperity.

The struggle of the African peoples for economic self-reliance is encountering many obstacles and difficulties because of the imperialists' obstructions. Social problems such as economic backwardness and diseases in African countries are the evil aftermaths of imperialist colonial rule and the product of the crafty neo-colonial policy. Nevertheless, misusing their difficulties, the imperialists and colonialists are putting political pressure on them, bringing economic disorder and overtly continuing aggression, interference, sabotage and subversive actions.

The recent barbarous bombing against Libya on the part of the U.S. imperialists and the provocative military attacks by the South African racists against the frontline countries have clearly shown how persistently and arrogantly the imperialists and colonialists are attempting so as to prevent their colonial ruling system from crumbling and block the independent development of the African countries. [sentence as received]

We sternly condemn the imperialists and South African racialists for their criminal acts of aggression and intervention against the African peoples and support in every way their just struggle for the complete liberation and unity of Africa.

The Korean and Malian peoples are comrades-in-arms who are advancing in the same ranks of the Non-Aligned Movement. It is the common duty of our two peoples to fight for the strengthening and development of this movement. Joining their efforts with all the peoples of the non-aligned countries, our two peoples must work hard to strengthen the unity and solidarity of the Non-Aligned Movement, effect South-South cooperation on the principle of collective self-reliance, establish a new international economic order and to solve other urgent problems facing this movement successfully.

The Malian people have courageously advanced along the road which they themselves chose, in order to build a new, independent Mali.

Under the leadership of your excellency President Moussa Traore and full of confidence in their victory, the Malian people are now working hard to implement the decisions of the second regular congress of the Malian People's Democratic Union and, in particular, are concentrating their efforts on agricultural production to attain self-sufficiency in food.

We highly appreciate the just struggle of the Malian people and are convinced that your people will unfailingly build a new prosperous Mali by their own efforts.

The government and people of the Republic of Mali which are invariably pursuing an anti-imperialist and non-aligned foreign policy, recognized the Democratic People's Republic of Korea as the only legitimate government of the Korean people. They have continually developed state relations with our republic and are making every [passage indistinct] international sphere to support our people's cause of national reunification. We always remember this and are grateful for it.

Our people are proud to have such close friends as the Malian people in Africa. In the future, too, as in the past, we shall value our friendship with you and make everything possible to extend and develop the cooperative relations between our two countries.

COMPLETION OF NAMPO BARRAGE CELEBRATED

Kim Il-song at Ceremony

SK241532 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1513 GMT 24 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 24 (KCNA) -- A grand ceremony for the completion of the Nampo barrage was held on June 24 in the presence of the great leader President Kim Il-song.

The barrage has made its gigantic appearance on an 8-kilometre section of the rough West sea, demonstrating the majestic sight of Korea of Chuche, according to a far-reaching plan of grand nature-remaking unfolded by the Workers' Party of Korea. It is a great edifice of the Workers' Party age built on our own design and with our own technique, materials and strength.

The man-made sea of fresh water which has taken shape at the estuary of the river Taedong with the completion of the Nampo barrage will supply sufficient life-giving water to the vast arrable land of the west coast and to the tideland-turned paddies of several hundred thousand hectares to be reclaimed and solve more satisfactorily the problem of industrial water on the Taedong river banks. A long canal and a large ring-shape railway line have come into being to further develop the nation's transportation, improve the people's living and add beauty to the scenery of the country.

Standing in rows at the ceremony site were the People's Army soldiers and constructors who have successfully built the barrage of eternal value, one of the biggest in the world, in a short period of five years, by displaying mass heroism and self-sacrificing spirit, as well as tens of thousands of people.

At 10 a.m. President Kim Il-song arrived at the Nampo barrage while the band struck up the welcome music. That moment stormy cheers of "Long live the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song!" burst forth.

Heroic soldier-builders who had accomplished feats in the construction of the Nampo barrage presented him with bouquets of flowers imbued with the deepest respect and reverence of the entire constructors and made him a report about the victorious completion of the barrage.

Present there were Comrade O Chin-u, member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee and minister of People's Armed Forces, Comrades Kang Song-san, Pak Song-chol and Yim Chun-chu, members of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee, and other senior officials of the party and the government and visiting groups of the General Association of Korean Residents in Japan (Chongnyon) staying in the homeland.

Invited to the ceremony were Abdou Diouf, president of the Republic of Senegal and chairman of the Organization of African Unity, and his entourage, his highness Samdech Norodom Sihanouk and his entourage, the delegation of the United National Independence Party of Zambia headed by Secretary General of the Party Alexander Grey Zulu, guests from other countries and foreign diplomatic envoys in Pyongyang.

President Kim Il-song cut the red tape hung across the entrance of the Nampo barrage, proclaiming the completion of the barrage. He, accompanied by the party and the government cadres and foreign guests, went round the monuments and set-ups of the barrage and enjoyed a bird-eye's view of the barrage from the observatory.

At that moment the first train carrying constructors ran on the track laid on the grand dam cutting eight kilometres across the sea and large cargo ships of several dozen thousand-ton class passed through the locks.

Cheers of hurrah rocked the skies and earth and a salvo of thousands of guns was fired.

Constructors aboard the train and ships expressed ardent feelings of reverence for President Kim Il-song, sending enthusiastic cheers. President Kim Il-song acknowledged the cheers time and again.

He expressed deep satisfaction over the successful construction of the modern Nampo barrage, a great edifice of eternal value, in a short period by the People's Army soldiers and constructors. He highly appreciated their noble exploits in creating the asset of eternal significance for the prosperity and happiness of the nation and displaying the party's authority and the honor of the country by successfully completing the Nampo barrage construction with their indomitable fighting spirit.

President Kim Il-song gave programmatic teachings which will serve as a guideline in properly operating and using the barrage and carrying on more energetically grand nature-remaking for the development and prosperity of the country.

WPK Commends Workers

SK251146 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1024 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 25 (KCNA) -- The Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea warmly congratulated the soldiers of the Korean People's Army and all constructors who wonderfully built the grand and splendid Nampo barrage by displaying mass heroism under the party's leadership. The congratulatory letter notes that the KPA soldiers who had turned out to the construction of the barrage in response to the call of the party and the leader worked miracles rare in the world by completing in five years the difficult and vast project of building a gigantic dam with three locks and 36 sluices in the rough sea of eight kilometers.

It says: The completion of the Nampo barrage is a great victory of our party's policy of afforestation and water-conservancy and another proud success achieved by our people in the endeavours to remake nature as demanded by the chuche idea, which started from the Potong river improvement project after the liberation. With the construction of the Nampo barrage, it has become possible to completely solve the problem of irrigation water on the west coast area including the problem of water supply to hundreds of thousands of hectares of tideland-turned soil, the key to the realization of our party's plan to start communism from food, and the industrial and drinking water problem and prevent any drought and flood damage on the Taedong river banks. The depth of water of Taedong and Chaeryong rivers has increased and a railway and a motorway have been laid on the dam of the barrage to open a new prospect in the development of transport and add beauty to the riverside landscape.

The past five years of Nampo barrage construction were a continuation of battles without gun reports in which charge battles and death-defying battles were fought against manifold difficulties, and were days when the noble traits and heroic stamina of our People's Army boundlessly loyal to the party's leadership and strong in organization and combat power were forcefully demonstrated.

In the course of the construction of the Nampo barrage a great many technicians, inventors and scientists have grown and about 100 heroes, tens of thousands of recipients of state orders and medals and unassuming people of distinguished services have been produced.

The constructors of the Nampo barrage powerfully demonstrated the inexhaustible creative ability of our people wisely led by the party and the great potentiality of the independent national economy of our country by successfully completing in a short time the grand construction project of world level on our own design and with our own technique, equipment, materials and strength.

The Central Committee of the Workers' Party of Korea highly appreciates the noble exploits of the People's Army soldiers and the constructors in creating an asset of eternal value for the prosperity and happiness of the nation, defending the party's authority and displaying the honor of the country, by successfully completing the construction of the vast and great Nampo barrage with their ardent loyalty to the party and the leader and indomitable fighting spirit.

Defending the country is the main task of the People's Army. Not forgetting the duty of a revolutionary army, you must increase the combat capabilities of the units in keeping with the demand of the tense situation aggravated by the evermore serious new war provocation moves of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique and thereby make full preparations to firmly defend the security of the country and the gains of revolution from any aggression of the enemy.

The message expresses the firm belief that the KPA soldiers and constructors who performed feats in the Nampo barrage construction will successfully carry out their revolutionary tasks by making continued innovation and continued advance, upholding the party's leadership in the future, too.

KIM IL-SONG GIVES GUIDANCE TO TAEAN MACHINE COMPLEX

SK251228 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1052 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 25 (KCNA) -- The great leader President Kim Il-song gave on-the-spot guidance to the Taean Heavy Machine Complex.

He was accompanied by Yon Kyong-muk, member of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee and first vice-premier of the Administration Council, Pak Nam-ki, member, and secretary, of the WPK Central Committee, and officials concerned.

President Kim Il-song went round various production processes of the complex, acquainting himself with the production conditions, and gave programmatic instructions which would serve as guidelines in increasing the production of the ordered equipment.

He expressed deep satisfaction with the fact that the entire party members and working people of the Taean Heavy Machine Complex are effecting new innovations in the production of the ordered equipment in hearty response to the call of the party, and extended thanks to them.

We have been able to build successfully by our own efforts vast construction projects including the Nampo barrage because we have such powerful machine industry bases as the Taean Heavy Machine Complex, he said.

Noting that the Taean Heavy Machine Complex is building by itself on its own designs and with its own technique and equipment and materials 125,000 KVA generators, turbines and other generating equipment to be installed at the Taechon power station, he said: We have every right to be proud of this.

As many minor power stations are under construction in different parts of the country along with large-scale power stations, he said, the Taean Heavy Machine Complex should increase the production of various kinds of generating equipment.

In order to increase the production of electricity, it is important to raise the efficiency of turbines at the existing power stations, he noted. He said the Taean Heavy Machine Complex should build more of highly efficient blades of hydraulic turbines and send them to the Hochongang, Changjingang and other hydropower stations.

In order to hasten the construction of the Taechon power station and minor power stations which is progressing apace, he said, it is important for the Taean Heavy Machine Complex to produce and supply the generating equipment within the set time.

Noting that the Taean Heavy Machine complex is playing a very important part in the development of the national economy in our country, he said the existing equipment should be operated at full capacity to keep production going at a high rate and fully meet an increasing demand for the ordered equipment.

DJP CONSIDERING MIXED FORM OF GOVERNMENT

[Text] The equivocal attitude of the ruling camp on the form of government to be adopted in a new Constitution has emerged as a new point at issue between the ruling and opposition parties. The slow moves of the Democratic Justice Party are expected to delay the operation of the Special Constitutional Amendment Committee of the National Assembly, whose establishment was resolved in a plenary session Tuesday.

The main opposition New Korea Democratic Party demanded yesterday that the DJP announce its draft amendment to the basic law as soon as possible so that the committee can go into substantial debate expeditiously.

Without baring its own idea on the form of the government, the DJP has only decided "to oppose the presidential government system based on the direct election of the president through popular vote." Under the firm policy to reject the presidential government system through direct election of the president, the party is said to be considering a "compromised form of the presidential government system and the parliamentary cabinet system."

Party sources explained that a possible solution may feature the election of the president by the National Assembly to be newly formed. The study on the power structure is under way at the party's own special committee on the Consitution, which was inaugurated two months ago.

Earlier, some party leaders have indicated their preference of the parliamentary cabinet system. But, the formula is losing popularity among party members who are in doubt that it will match the political culture of the Republic, which has had a tradition of leadership of powerful presidents.

The NDP holds fast to the direct presidential election formula, and the KNP formally proposed Thursday the same government system.

The DJP will kick off a full-fledge publicity activity about the merits of the compromised form and the shortcomings of direct presidential election as well through public hearings to be held from July 5 in 10 major cities across the nation. In the public hearings, the party will concentrate on "helping the people favoring the direct election system to understand the evils of the system," the sources said.

However, the party, according to a leading officer, will accelerate the work of drafting an amendment to "help party lawmakers make effective publicity of why the DJP opposes the direct election formula." He observed that the draft amendment could be bared toward the end of next month instead of the middle of August as was originally-planned.

Each public hearing of the DJP will be participated in by some 200 "regional leaders" and party lawmakers assigned to the special committee on the Constitution. Following the public hearings, the party will hold the annual camp gathering of party members at Mt. Togyu in Chollapukto. Party leaders hope that the basic frame of the party's draft amendment can be presented to the party members at the rally.

Meanwhile, top party leaders, including chairman No Tae-u, visited Chongwadae yesterday afternoon to brief the President on the overall political situation highlighting the constitutional revision.

NKDP URGES DJP TO REVEAL AMENDMENT PANEL IDEAS

SK280053 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 28 Jun 86 p 1

[Text] New Korea Democratic Party president Yi Min-u said yesterday that he will withhold the list of delegates of his party to the just-born special house panel for constitutional revision until the ruling Democratic Justice Party bares its own ideas on amendment.

The leader of the main opposition party also noted that his party will watch the ruling camp on how it fulfills its promise that it will make "sincere efforts" to release those who were arrested for various political protest actions.

Meeting the press at his office in the NDP headquarters, Yi maintained, "If the DJP did not finalize its own draft for the revision, it should reveal, at least, the outlines concerning the power structure, economic order and basic rights of the people."

"The spirit of the (May 29) meeting of the ruling and the opposition party leaders should be observed faithfully in a clemency step for the fighters for democracy, which could be taken on Constitution Day, July 17," he said.

His remarks implied that the special parliamentary committee will not be able to get down to business if government measures on the detainees prove unsatisifactory.

With regard to the DJP's decision to kick off a nationwide publicity campaign against the direct presidential election system, Yi said, "If the DJP criticize others' ideas, while concealing its own, it is not conducive to untying the tangled political situation."

He urged the ruling camp to bare its own ideas on constitutional amendment and let the people make a judgement on the drafts, submitted by the rival parties. The opposition party maintained that a president-led government based on a direct popular vote should be reintroduced in a new Constitution.

He added, "Our party is refraining from taking to the streets for an outdoor publicity campaign, but we will counter the DJP more resolutely if the DJP continues its nonsensical publicity."

OPPOSITION BROCHURE ARGUES FOR DIRECT ELECTION

[Text] The main opposition New Korea Democratic Party asserted yesterday that a change of government is possible only through a direct presidential election system. It also maintained that a dictatorship will not come into existence if there are proper checks and balances among the administration, the legislature and the judiciary.

The NDP made the assertions in a publicity brochure on the merits and demerits of various governments types. The booklet was published to publicize the necessity to reintroduce direct popular vote for president in the next Constitution and refute the criticism against the system by the ruling Democratic Justice Party.

The opposition party said that the direct election of the president will make it possible to change the government in a peaceful way. "It is the fervent desire of the people, who want to redeem their right for a direct choice of the government, which they lost in 1972," the brochure said.

It added that the shortcomings of the direct presidential election system can be easily ameliorated "from our experiences accumulated through the implementation of the system."

It went on, "If the separation of governmental power is well guaranteed, dictatorship and an extended stay in power can be prevented."

As to the DJP's allegation that the direct presidential election system had only brought about emotional confrontation of regions, the NDP argued, "In the 1970s, the phenomena took place because then presidential candidates happened to come from those provinces, in competition."

U.S. AMBASSADOR DENIES INFLUENCING CONSTITUTION

[Text] U.S. Ambassador to Korea Richard Walker yesterday dismissed the rumors that Washington had "hidden intentions" to influence the process of constitutional discussion in Korea.

Speaking on "The Influence of the American Constitution" in a seminar sponsored by the U.S. Cultural Center in Taegu marking the bicentennial of the American Constitution, Walker said, "we do not favor any particular form of democratic government."

He said that he was astonished to hear that he, as a U.S. ambassador, has "this or that opinion on the Korean Constitution."

"I even hear that I favor this or that amendment, or this or that form of government for Korea. Before this gathering of scholars and colleagues, let me disavow all those rumors. The United States supports continued progress toward democracy in Korea.

"But we do not favor any particular form of democratic government. To do so would improperly arrogate the right of the Korean people to determine their own form of government," he said.

He told the seminar, which was attended by scholars and officials from Taegu, Seoul, Kwangju, Mokpo, Chonju and Pusan, that constitutions, and a democratic form of government do not solve every problem and that "constitutions come from the spirit of a people."

EDITORIAL DENOUNCES ANTI-AMERICAN SENTIMENT

SK290138 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 29 Jun 86 p 4

[Editorial: "Anti-U.S. Sentiment"]

[Text] Three decades is surely a long period during which phenomenal changes can take place. This is especially true of South Korea which has amazingly reshaped itself in all aspects since the devastating destruction of the three-year Korean War that broke out in 1950. Thus, our country is in a state of transition.

Yet, unchanged is the state of tension that grips the DMZ dividing South and North Korea -- a telling vestige of the cold war that was to blame for the fratricidal war on the Korean peninsula.

Unchanged is the intention of the North Korean Communists to communize the whole peninsula, despite their failure to do so after triggering the Korean War.

Echoing just as persuasive and driving as ever is the anti-Communist rhetoric of our Korean War veterans who fought to defend our freedom -- and, in a sense, our survival itself -- from the Communist invaders.

This is the harsh reality which exists on the peninsula. We are faced with the dual challenge of having to enter a stage of sophisticated industrialization while coping with the threats from the north.

Such being our unique case, we cannot but be concerned about the demagogic attempts by radical student activists, though extremely small in number, to propagate their leftist ideologies that serve the interests of no one but the Communists in the north.

As Minister of Culture and Information Yi Won-hong said at a meeting of the American Chamber of Commerce last week, our people were shocked and distressed by the manifestation of anti-Americanism by the radical fringe. Their anti-Americanism is nothing more than xenophobic chauvinism arising from a total lack of historic perspective and a complete ignorance of the realities facing the nation. It was the northern Commuists' invasion of the south that led the United States to send its troops here to help repel the invaders. Likewise, it has been Pyongyang's incessant aggressive threats that have made the continued American military presence necessary.

Fortunately, as Minister Yi observed, anti-Americanism in this Republic is far from being a widespread public sentiment. We are sure that the healthiest of our society and the anti-Communist and security awareness of our people will never allow anachronistic radicalism to prevail.

This Repubiic is now confronted with unprecedented challenges, inherent in the course of transition, that require use to be ever more wise and make ever greater efforts. Maintaining stability is without doubt a precondition to carrying out the tasks at hand, which include fostering democracy while promoting our economic buildup and security readiness.

All of us must look to the greater cause of our country, setting aside all partisan interests. The last thing we want to see is the sort of false democracy that is being proposed by radical students and political activists who resort to demagoguery and violence in the name of democratization. In a democratic society, everyone is entitled to express his or her view. But by no means should this mean allowing even anachronistic radicalism endagering our national survival and viability to go unchecked.

POSITIVE RESPONSE REPORTED TO IOC PROPOSAL

SK300729 Seoul YONHAP in English 0720 GMT 30 Jun 86

[Text] Seoul, June 30 (YONHAP) -- South Korea has responded positively to International Olympic Committee President Juan Antonio Samaranch's proposal that some events of the 1988 Seoul Olympics be held in North Korea, a sports source here said Monday.

Samaranch gave Seoul and Pyongyang a June 30 deadline to reply to the proposal, which he made at a meeting between South and North Korean sports officials in Lausanne, Switz., on June 11.

In a last-ditch effort to save the upcoming Summer Olympiad from a North Korean boycott, the IOC leader reportedly suggested to the sports officials that cycling, table tennis, soccer and archery be staged in North Korea.

Kim Chong-ha, president of the (South) Korean Olympic Committee, mailed a reply to Samaranch on Monday. The contents of the letter were not revealed, however. The source said that Kim responded affirmatively to the proposal.

The IOC awarded the 1988 Games to Seoul five years ago. In two previous inter-Korean sports talks held in the Swiss city, North Korea insisted that the games be split between Seoul and Pyongyang, while South Korea pledged to abide by the IOC charter, which stipulates that only one city be given the right to host the Olympic Games.

CANADIAN TEXTILE TALKS END WITHOUT AGREEMENT

SK271345 Seoul YONHAP in English 1243 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Seoul, June 27 (YONHAP) -- A two-day meeting between South Korea and Canada aimed at extending their quota pact ended here Friday without any agreement.

Canada demanded that Korea freeze its textile exports to Canada at the 1986 quota levels for five years from 1987, a request that Korea rejected, a source at the Trade and Industry ministry said.

Canadian officials also proposed a system, under which a rapid increase in exports be prevented, and a further restruction on non-multifiber arrangement items, the source said.

The current textile quota is scheduled to expire at the end of this year.

Both sides will resume their negotiation later at a date to be fixed later, the source said.

The Canadian delegation, headed by H.R. Wilson, director general of the External Affairs department's Special Trade Relations Bureau, expressed a concern over the pace of increase in foreign textile exports to Canada between 1981 and 1985.

The Korean side was led by Pak Un-so, director general of the Trade and Industry ministry's Trade Promotion Bureau.

Seventy-three percent of the 299 million U.S. dollars worth of textile goods that Korea shipped to Canada last year were subject to the quota system imposed under the bilateral agreement.

RADIO EDITORIAL MARKS KPRP FOUNDING DAY

BK271042 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 2300 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Station editorial: "The KPRP Is the Sole Leader of the Cambodian Revolutionary Cause"]

[Text] With feelings full of pride at the all-round great victories we have won so far in national defense and reconstruction efforts under the leadership of the party the cadres, party members, army, and people of Cambodia as a whole most enthusiastically celebrate the 35th anniversary of the founding of the KPRP. This year, we mark the 35th anniversary of our party in a situation in which the world's proletarian parties and peoples are scoring brilliant success in their congresses, especially the brilliant successes, of the 27th CPSU Congress and of other parties of fraternal socialist countries. This constitutes an encouragement for revolutionary forces in the world, giving them greater experiences and more powerful strength on the national liberation path leading toward prosperous socialism.

In particular, the marking of the 35th founding anniversary of the KPRP is taking place at a time when the bonds of alliance among the Vietnamese, Cambodian, and Lao parties and countries are being strengthened more than ever as they have become an outpost for socialism in Southeast Asia and a determining factor for peace and stability in the region.

Thirty-five years ago, the KPRP -- then known as the Khmer People's Revolutionary Party -- was founded, taking origin from the Indochinese Communist Party set up by President Ho Chi Minh, the first revolutionary militant who brought the beacon of Marxism-Leninism and the October Revolution to the Indochinese peninsula. Right from its founding, the Khmer People's Revolutionary Party took charge of the campaign to whip up the revolutionary movement, waging an arduous and complex struggle against the French colonislists, Japanese militarists, feudalists, U.S. imperialists, and their lackeys. Thanks to their courage, daring to make all kinds of sacrifice in the cause of their nation and fatherland, and always treasuring the tradition of solidarity with the Vietnamese and Lao party members and armies, in particular closely cooperating with the Vietnamese party and volunteer army, the Cambodian cadres, party members, army, and people vanquished the colonialists and imperialists and brought independence to the Cambodian nation on 17 April 1975.

However, the antinational, unpopular Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan reactionaries -- the subservient lackeys of the Beijing expansionist-hegemonists -- betrayed Marxism-Leninism, usurped the supreme leading right in the party, sowed the reactionary ideals of Maoism, abandoned the working-class position, regarded friends as foes, and betrayed the time-honored traditional bonds of solidarity between the Cambodian and Vietnamese parties and peoples, wantonly violating the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Vietnam. Transforming the party into an instrument for the massacre of the people, they conducted purges of and crackdowns on almost all authentic party members and cadres. For 3 years 8 months and 20 days they brutally and savagely massacred more than 3 million innocent people and sank the Cambodian fatherland into a deep abyss of death.

However, in this gloom, the storm-like courage and indignation of the revolutionary cadres, true party members, and people who survived the massacre cooperated with the Vietnamese volunteer army and rose up to crush the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime, ushering the truly radiant light of the era of independence, freedom, and self-determination of the whole Cambodian people of 7 January 1979.

On this basis, the remaining Cambodian communists got together and resolutely rebuilt the party to carry on the tradition of the Khmer People's Revolutionary Party, the successor of the Indochinese Communist Party. They also restored the close strategic alliance of the fraternal Cambodian, Vietnamese, and Lao parties.

Since the Liberation Day of 7 January 1979, the KPRP has become the supreme leading organ and has continued to hold loft the banner of pure patriotism and enlightened proletarian internationalist solidarity, inciting the whole party, people, and armed forces into actively participating in all revolutionary activities to gradually advance the Cambodian fatherland. The whole Cambodian people have wholeheartedly pinned their faith and confidence in the correct and talented leadership of the party and placed firm hopes on the brilliantly victorious line of the Cambodian revolution which is growing and consolidating with each passing day. Over the past more than 7 years, especially under the beacon of the fourth and fifth party congress resolutions, together with the great forces of the cadres and party members, the affection and trust of the people, and the assistance of the CPV and other fraternal socialist parties, the KPRP has grown step by step and has developed in all fields -- political, ideological, and organizational. Moreover, the party has played the role of the general staff enabling the Cambodian revolution to score important successes in the past, especially the successes in the military field during the 1984-85 dry season when the support bases of the Pol Pot-Son Sann-Sihanouk bandits along the Cambodian-Thai border were destroyed.

On the 35th founding anniversary of the KPRP, cadres, party members, armymen, and the people of Cambodia throughout the country are extremely elated and would like to express deepest gratitude to the fraternal Vietnamese party, army, and people for giving them a timely assistance at the cost of much flesh and blood in the cause of the Cambodian revolution.

During the past more than 7 years, the Cambodian revolution has been riding the crest of its position of strength and victory while the enemies have been experiencing a state of serious defeat, advancing inexorably toward total collapse. However, the enemies have not given up their poisonous designs in their undeclared war to oppose and overthrow us. Therefore, it is imperative that party members and cadres clearly grasp the objective fact and truth of the land in order to correctly and thoroughly evaluate the work implementation in the past and to set more realistic targets for the future in the cause of accelerating the Cambodian ship toward the shore of true happiness along the line of staunch socialism.

In order to achieve the above-mentioned sacred task, party members, cadres, and mass organizations must continue to further strengthen and consolidate the party politically, ideologically, and organizationally, further broadening the correct leadership of the party. The KPRP is the sole leader of the Cambodian revolutionary cause and our party is the authentic Marxist-Leninist party, the vanguard of the working class and people, existing and working in the interest of the entire Cambodian working people, always expanding the people's right to mastery, and promoting national and international solidarity. Party committees at all levels must powerfully promote the work of enlisting new party members and, through that, must teach and educate them about the sense of responsibility, the spirit of self-reliance, and genuine respect and love for the people, setting examples in labor campaigns and in study about internal and international solidarity and about simple, clean, and thrifty ethics and life-style.

Moreover, the party committees, state institutions, and mass organizations must conform with the prevailing conditions in their respective sectors and localities in order to transform the party line into concrete principles and measures to actively defend the correct views of the party and create resolute will to fight against the enemy so as to lead and direct all revolutionary activities toward victory in the cause of national defense and reconstruction. All party members, cadres, armymen, and people must continue to hold aloft the banner of national and international solidarity, especially solidarity with our Vietnamese friends, in order to successfully implement the resolutions of the fifth party congress, the firm foundation for our advance.

Immediately, all must seek to understand and implement with the greatest results circular No. 24 of the party Central Committee Secretariat dealing with criticism and self-criticism in order to enhance the great force of the revolution. It is imperative to vigorously accelerate the revolutionary movement of the masses, continue to implement effectively circular No. 16 and circular No. 22 of the party Central Committee Secretariat, and concentrate on and vigorously accelerate the work of attacking the enemy, winning back the misled person, purchasing rice, increasing production during the rainy season, recruiting soldiers, and sending manpower to carry out work at the border.

USSR TO PROPOSE PACKAGE OF 60 SCHOLARSHIPS

[By Sinfa Tunsarawut]

[Text] The Soviet Union will propose a package of 60 scholarships for Thai students to study next year after the Thai Government has turned down its offer for this year. A visiting Soviet team has also proposed an exchange of students with a famous state university. Yuriy Makarov, first secretry of the Soviet Embassy told THE NATION that he will hand the scholarship offer to the Foreign Ministry in December or next January so that Thai officials would have time to screen students.

Makarov, who is the cultural attache, said his embassy needs the information about the prospective students from Thai officials by May before the Soviet academic year begins on the first of September. He said he proposed 60 scholarships to the Foreign Ministry late last year but no Thai students has so far applied for visa to study in the Soviet Union.

Soviet Ambassador Valentine Kasatkin was told that the Thai Government would not accept the scholarship offer for 1986 when he was at the Foreign Ministry in late April, he said. A Foreign Ministry official said Thai authorities have many things to consider regarding the Soviet scholarships and more time is needed to map out how to deal with the scholarships. The official said the Soviet Embassy offered the list of the 60 scholarships since late last year and the National Security Council (NSC) has taken part in handling the matter.

NSC Secretary General Prasong Sunsiri said in early February that the Soviet Embassy did not follow the government's procedures in extending their scholarships and said he did not know the embassy had already handed the offer to the Foreign Ministry.

The Thai Government announced on November 27, 1985 a set of policy measures to regulate the extension of scholarships offered by the Soviet Union and other socialist countries to Thai students, in an apparent move to safeguard national security. The measures require donor countries to channel the scholarships and fellowships through the Foreign Ministry while the Department of Technical and Economic Cooperation (DTEC) is responsible for recruiting the recipients. The government stated the beneficiaries must be post-graduates in pure science studies.

A DTEC Official said the department was not officially informed by the Foreign Ministry about the 1986 Soviet scholarships and no announcement was made on application of the scholarships. Thai students might not have been aware of the government's refusal of the 1986 offer and some are still trying to apply for the scholarships.

Meanwhile, Victor Skopenko, rector of the Kiev State University and member of the Supreme Soviet of the Ukranian state, told THE NATION in an interview that he has offered to exchange Soviet students with those of Thammasat University (TU). He said it is beneficial for Thai students who study Russian to have a chance to live in the Soviet Union for a short period and vice versa. The Soviet Union is prepared to provide the entire financial assistance for Thai students during their stay he said.

Skopenko with other two Soviet journalists are here as guests of the Press Association of Thailand. They arrived last Moinday and visited Thammasat University [TU] on Wednesday. He said universities in Moscow and Leningrad have Thai programme for Soviet students.

Asst Prof Dr Wibunphong Phunprasit who was present when Skopenko met with TU's Vice Rector Prof Suthi Natwarathat said TU did not immediately accept or reject the Soviet proposal. He said the Soviets were told that TU is a state university and it has to seek consultation on the matter with the government. Dr Wibunphong said due to its budgetary constraints, TU could not afford to pay the cost to have Soviet students in the university. The Soviets did not give any response. He said the Soviets were energetic to have academic exchange with Thai universities. "If it is purely academic, it will be beneficial for both sides," he commented.

SIAM RAT REPORTS ON DAILY LIFE IN PHNOM PENH

BK290531 Bangkok SIAM RAT in Thai 1-7 Jun 86 (weekend edition) p 3

[Chaiwat Yonpiam article: "A Short Moment in Phnom Penh"]

[Text] The sound of modern music blared from a dilapidated market in Phnom Penh as the musicians moved in time to the rhythm with constant applause and cheers from the audience. Behind the band, a musician wiped sweat from his face and smiled joyfully before telling curious Western visitors through an interpreter that the Cambodian people endured difficulties and hardships a long time ago, so they must now find some time to entertain themselves as much as they can. The reason, he said, is to make them forget their cruel sufferings -- past, present, and future!

The music and dancing stopped at 2100 sharp in compliance with the government-imposed curfew, which is the only thing that reminds everyone that Cambodia is still divided. Despite the ongoing guerrilla war and vestiges of the Khmer Rouge government's incompetence a decade ago, visitors believe that Phnom Penh is still a beautiful city with some freedom and even more vivacity than the capitals of the other two Indochinese communist countries.

Phnom Penh was almost completely deserted after the Khmer Rouge toppled the America-supported government of President Lon Nol in 1975. The Phnom Penh government estimates the present population of the Cambodian capital at over 700,000, including over 200,000 who came from the countryside and resettled without official permission. However, cars are still run on the major streets in Phnom Penh, whereas those in Hanoi are jammed with bicycles. Vientiane streets are nearly empty, with few bicycles or people.

Besides vehicles belonging to the government and international relief agencies, luxury sedans such as old model Mercedez Benzes can be seen in Phnom Penh today. These cars were imported by previous noncommunist governments, and most of them were left to rust during the reign of the Khmer Rouge.

All kinds of good ranging from medicine and ointment to motorcycles can be openly purchased in Phnom Penh's central market. Nearly all these goods were smuggled into the country from Thailand and passed through many hands on the long trip to the market. It is apparent that the government has done its best for Phnom Penh's people by turning a deaf ear and blind eye. Meanwhile, the currency exchange business is conducted clandestinely. The value of the U.S. dollar on the black market is four times the official rate.

Free trade has induced Vietnamese immigrants, mostly from Ho Chi Minh City -- formerly Saigon -- which has been placed under strict discipline to come to the Cambodian capital to earn a living.

Old boats crawling back and forth along the Tonle Sap and Mekong Rivers transport passengers and goods such as rice from Battambang, fish from Tonle Sap Lake, and rubber sheets from Komphong Thom into the capital. It is said that the Phnom Penh government has been unwillingly allowing the private sector to practice free trade to prevent the country's shaky economy from falling apart.

French croissants and crepes are still available in Phnom Penh markets. French restuarants remain open and welcome not only diplomats and officials of relief agencies but also the increasing Cambodian patronage. The locally brewed whiskey and Vietnamese beer are available at very low prices. But anyone who wants a can of Coca Cola, the symbol of American civilization, to quench his thirst will have to pay 200 riel, almost a month's income for an ordinary Cambodian worker.

A few movie houses showing socialist type romance films from the Soviet Union are packed with moviegoers. A more popular and less expensive entertainment is the "small movie house" or video film show organized during a social function such as a traditional wedding celebration to collect admission fees from viewers. The scenery along the rivers in Phnom Penh is as beautiful as ever. However some roads are filthy with garbage, trash, and stagnant water. Netherlands and British organizations are planning to help clean the roads and drainage system. Sources in medical relief agencies have said that the lack of hygiene frequently leads to the outbreak of epidemics in the city. But the Phnom Penh government places defense and political indoctrination at the top of its priority list, far above public health.

The Phnom Penh government has never paid any attention to religion. The Buddhist temples once closed by the Khmer Rouge have now reopened, and monks perform religious rites for believers. There is less religious activity than in the past, however. Education is being further developed and expanded. Despite the shortage of qualified teachers, the Phnom Penh government boasts that as many as 1.8 million children attend school throughout the country.

PRACHAKON THAI PARTY LEADER SUPPORTS PREM

BK200210 Bangkok THE NATION in English 20 June 86 pp 1, 2

[Text] Samak Sunthorawet, leader of Prachakon Thai Party, said yesterday he will support Gen Prem Tinsulanon to resume the premiership after the July 27 election.

Samak also believes that this party could win up to 40 seats in the upcoming election -- 20 in the capital and the rest in the provinces. "I pin much of my hope on the outlying provinces because I can shuttle back and forth during the election campaigns," he said.

In an interview with THE NATION on Wednesday, the Prachakon Thai leader said he is against the suggestion that M.R. Khukrit Pramot should head the new post-election government. Samak said he was also confident that the three-candidate ticket that he leads will score a sweeping victory in Dusit (Constituency One) because the base of party supporters in the zone was still solid. "Our chance is greater given the fact that we have many rivals who will compete against one another thereby weakening their respective potential support," he said.

Referring to the battle in Phra Khanong, Samak said the Democrats made a mistake by replacing acting Science, Technology and Energy Minister Lek Nana with former Deputy Industry Minister Chaloemphan Siwikon on their ticket led by Democrat leader-Phichai Rattakun. The Democrats, he said, swept all the three seats in the constituency in the last election partly because of Lek's popularity among the Muslim voters, he said.

"I am confident that one of our candidates will get elected in the constituency," he added. Dwelling upon post-election scenarios, Samak foresees a wide-ranging division of House seats among a variety of political parties and the low probability that a single political party will control the majority seats or a party leader will be agreed upon as the head of the post-election government.

He said the next government head must still have strong ties with the military and be acceptable to many sides concerned. He said the most suitable figure to head the government would be Gen Prem Tinsulanon and his party will throw its support behind him. "We must admit that the government has made considerable achievements and the prime minister has tried his best to overcome national problems," he said.

Referring to the stand taken by many political parties that they support only elected MPs as candidates for the premiership, Samak said the statements were to spite Gen Prem. "Why don't they urge Supreme Commander Gen Athit Kamlang-ek to run in the election?", he retorted.

Touching upon M.R. Khukrit's chance, Samak said that he did not believe that the veteran politician would make a comeback into the political arena because of his state of health. "Those who have speculated that M.R. Khukrit will return to politics are not well-informed. I am 100 per cent confident that he has washed his hands of politics, once and for all. The days have gone that he will be physically fit enough to play politics otherwise he would have maintained his top post in the Social Action Party (SAP). Buntheng Thongsawat (the leader of the anti-Prem United Democratic Party -- UDP) is also too old and should have retired from politics, he added.

PEOPLE'S PARTY LEADER COMMENTS ON MILITARY, PREM

BK210942 Bangkok NAEO NA in Thai 19 Jun 86 p 3

[Excerpts] Colonel Dr Phatthana Phayakkhanithi, deputy leader of the People's Party, told NEAO NA in an exclusive interview on Wednesday that he was not worried about having to run in the general election in Bangkok's military-dominated Constituency 1 because he understands soldiers and believes that he will be able to draw votes in the area.

He said: "I know that General Chawalit Yongchaiyut's policy to improve the army is good and our party fully supports it," adding that his party supports the improvement of social welfare programs for soldiers as well as pay increase for them."

The People's Party, he said, is ready to support General Prem Tinsulanon for prime minister if the situation warrants it. The determination, however, must made through democratic procedure. That is, the leader of the party that wins a majority of the seats in the house must form a government. If that individual cannot form a government, General Prem can reassume the premiership with the consent of all the parties in the coalition.

PRC SPIES SECRETLY OPERATING ON NORTHERN BORDER

OW281933 Hanoi VNA in English 1449 GMT 28 Jun 86

[Text] Hanoi VNA June 86 -- Chinese spies secretly operating along vietnam's northern border usually come in the guise of traders on commodities.

One of them, after being captured by Vietnamese Border Police confessed that he had received these instructions from his superiors: "If unfortunately you fall into the hands of the Vietnamese you must plead innocence with a really moving voice. If these works, so much the better, if not, you should offer them your wares and try to break loose before thinking out what to do next".

Ping Xiang, a town in the Chinese province of Guangdong, is 60 km from the border of the Vietnam province of Lang Son. In the past it used to be the first station of friendship to receive guests from Vietnam. Today, it houses the so-called "Committee for Research on Vietnam". This committee has several "sections."

The "economic section" specializes in economic affairs. It looks after such things as supplying money and commodities to operate "open-air markets" near the border with the aim of coaxing people from Vietnamese border areas to come and buy Chinese goods at low prices.

The "agitation section" is actually a local psychological warfare machine to propagate China's "open-door" policy.

The "border customs section" is essentially a spy network to entertain Chinese agents coming from Vietnam. It gives orders and instructions to these agents before their return to Vietnam.

The "intelligence section" is the main body of this spying and sabotage centre with the obvious aim of "bleeding" Vietnam through the "war of commodities" along with the land-grabbing war which has been going on over the past seven years.

BK290939 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 0500 GMT 29 Jun 86

[Text] On 26 June 1986, the Council of Ministers chairman issued a directive on the implementation of the Political Bureau's draft resolution and the Council of Ministers' decision, ensuring the autonomy in production and business for primary economic units.

The Council of Ministers has issued nine temporary regulations on planning, technical material supply, labor and wages, financial autonomy, socialist business system and management of state bank, prices, consumption of products and services, production of export goods and export and import, and the signing and implementation of economic contracts.

These temporary regulations will become effective 1 July 1986. All previous regulations conflicting with these temporary ones will be rescinded. These temporary regulations will be gradually published in NHAN DAN daily.

The Council of Ministers directive specified: To create conditions for all sectors, echelons, and primary economic units to thoroughly understand and implement the Political Bureau's draft resolution and the Council of Ministers' decisions on ensuring the autonomy in production and business for primary economic units, the following tasks should be done:

-- Expeditiously issue directives and circulars to provide guidances for uniformly implementing all systems and policies in accordance with the Political Bureau's draft resolution and the Council of Ministers' decisions;

-- Exercise good leadership over the implementation, including leadership over targeted pilot projects to derive experiences for broad and effective application;

NHDAN DAN ON NEED TO COMPLY WITH LAW

BK171509 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 16 Jun 86

[NHAN DAN 17 June editorial: "Live and Work in Accordance with the Constitution and Law"]

[Text] Our regime's mechanism is one of leadership by the party, mastery by the people, and management by the state. State management means administering state affairs in accordance with the law to oppose bureaucratic centralism on the one hand and inflexibly maintain the legal system, enhance discipline, and resolutely struggle against all unorganized and undisciplined phenomena and violations of state law on the other hand. Live and work in accordance with the Constitution and law is an order of life and a pressing need of the people. Inflamed with patriotism and a love for socialism, most of our people are working diligently, fighting gallantly, leading a simple life, and exerting all-out efforts for the construction and defense of the socialist fatherland.

Meanwhile, a number of persons are seeking to break the law in the field of economic and market management and violate socialist property and the life, property, honor, and dignity of our people. Speculators, smugglers, illegal businessmen, economic saboteurs, and other criminals are intensifying their activities and soliciting a number of small merchants and private traders to disrupt the market and prices, thus adversely affecting production and the distribution and circulation of goods and undermining social order and safety.

These persons have raised an insolate challenge to social opinion and state law by leading a luxurious life and unconscientiously enriching and enjoying themselves on the backs of honest laborers. Although most of our cadres, party members, state workers, and civil servants are of high quality, a large number of them have degenerated; become degraded and debauched; or committed such crimes as exploitation, theft, corruption, oppression of the masses, and violation of socialist property and state law.

Our law and people will not allow these criminals and degenerate and degraded elements to continue their criminal acts. We must resolutely stay their hands and unsparingly punish them so as to improve and work toward stabilizing the socioeconomic situation; successfully carrying out socialist transformation and building socialism; and firmly ensuring political security, national defense, and social order and safety. This is a pressing need to determine who will triumph over whom in the struggle between the two Oaths and the struggle between ourselves and the enemy during the transition period to socialism, especially in the first stage of this period.

It is necessary to bring to trial all cases involving criminal acts so as to prevent resolutely and promptly all economic and social offenses. Intensifying the socialist legal system is a pressing need to increase the management efficiency of the state and ensure the right to collective mastery of the laboring people.

All legal organs must successfully mobilize the combined strength of the state and the law duly to punish criminals and lawbreakers. These organs have the full functions and powers to administer the law. It is necessary to ensure close coordination and adequate preparation so that criminals can be tried immediately in accordance with their offenses and the law.

While performing their duty, state legal organs at all levels must act strictly according to the law, abide only by the law, and be held legally responsible for their actions. Violations of state discipline that do not warrant criminal prosecution must be resolutely and promptly dealt with through the application of appropriate administrative measures by the correct authorities as prescribed by law. It is necessary to try criminal cases publicly in strict accordance with the law and, at the same time, ensure that sentences already handed down are promptly executed to develop their effect of preventing and deterring violations of the law, instill the spirit of respecting and implementing the law among cadres and the people, and encourage the masses to participate in the struggle against negative phenomena in society and crimes.

The rulings on cases involving serious violations of discipline with harmful repercussions on the masses must be made public. The publicity given to court cases and administrative settlements will further testify to the strength of our state administration and enhance the people's trust in the party and state and in social justice.

State law must be perfected and strictly and justly observed. The law must be applied uniformly to guarantee the state's centralized and unified management. The Constitution -- our state's fundamental law -- clearly states that all citizens are equal before the law. As party organizations operate within the framework of the Constitution and the law, the party requires that strict and just measures be meted out against units and individuals that violate party policies and state law to strengthen discipline and order throughout the party and in the state machinery. Resolute efforts must be made to deal severely with any individual, irrespective of his social standing, and any organ, irrespective of its level, for violations of state law. The party and state do not allow any person or any unit to place himself or itself above or outside the law and to claim for himself or itself the privilege of disregarding or acting contrary to the law.

Legal organs have full functions and authority to execute the law. Party committee echelons at all levels must strengthen leadership over the legal organs to enable them to fulfill the functions, authority, and responsibilities entrusted to them. Nevertheless, they must avoid taking over specific adjudicatory processes of these organs and let them correctly apply the law and assume responsibility before the law for their actions.

Every party member must abide by the law like any other citizen. If they break the law, all party cadres and members must be dealt with in accordance with the law. Regarding party discipline, party committee echelons will examine and decide on the membership status of party members who violate party discipline.

Promptly organizing court trials of criminal cases to deter socioeconomic crimes is a very urgent task designed to contribute to stabilizing the socioeconomic situation and restoring socialist order and state discipline. All party committee echelons and party organizations at the grass-roots level and mass organizations should carry out political and ideological education work satisfactorily; explain the law to the people; and initiate a mass movement to compete in carrying out productive labor, renovating management, practicing thrift, resolutely combatting negative phenomena in society, and developing a profound will to live in accordance with the Constitution and the law.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST U.S., EC PROTECTIONISM PROPOSED

BK270912 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0430 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Australia and Thailand are to lead a campaign against the protectionist policies of the United States and the European Community. Australia's foreign affairs minister, Mr Hayden, says the campaign will involve at least 10 other countries that export agricultural products without subsidy. He says the representatives of these countries will meet in Bangkok and Canberra over the next 2 months to discuss ways of tackling the crisis in world's commodity trading caused by the dumping of subsidized farm goods.

Mr Hayden announced the initiative at a meeting in Manila involving his counterparts from the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, United States, the European Community, Japan, New Zealand, and Canada.

INDONESIA ASKED TO LIFT BAN ON NEWSMEN

BK280919 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 28 Jun 86

[Text] Australia has asked Indonesia to end the ban on Australian journalists entering the country. The request was made during talks in Manila between Australia's foreign affairs minister, Mr Hayden, and his Indonesian counterpart, Dr Mokhtar. Speaking after the talks, Mr Hayden said it was in the mutual interest of both countries for the ban to be lifted. He said Dr Mokhtar had displayed interest in this view. The ban on Australian journalists entering Indonesia was imposed after an article appeared in a Sydney newspaper recently outlining business affaairs of the family and friends of President Suharto.

The article resulted in a major diplomatic row between the two countries. Mr Hayden said he and Dr Mokhtar had discussed the row and there was a general recognition that relations were back to normal and working quite well. He said the sign of the return-to-normal relations was the resumption of talks between Australia and Indonesia on the proposed joint development of oil and mineral deposits in the Timor Sea. The two countries had not been able to agree on an international boundary in the area.

HAWKE CALLS ON COMMUNITY TO RESTORE ECONOMY

BK110901 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 11 Jun 86

[Text] The prime minister, Mr Hawke, has called on all sections of the Australian community to help restore the country's economic health.

Today's statement by Mr Hawke calls for further wage restraint from trade unions, a greater effort by business to keep prices and executive salaries down, exhorts Australians to buy Australian goods, and proposes community work schemes for the unemployed in return for umemployment benefits.

The prime minister's address to the nation was prompted by worsening balance of trade figures and the prospect of a large budget deficit. In his statement -- which is shortly to be broadcast nationally -- Mr Hawke says the government is aiming to trim at least $1,000 million from the August budget deficit. However, he confirms that the government's promised cuts to income tax will be implemented this year. Mr. Hawke says he wants a leaner, more efficient public service.

He says the government wants the unions to agress to a 2-year period to phase in a national superannuation scheme and to open negotiations cn another period of wage discounting at the national wage case next year. The prime minister had also emphasized the importance of a prices and incomes accord negotiated with the trade unions and business. Mr Hawke did not spell out in detail his proposal that the unemployed perform community work in return for benefits. He said merely that the unemployed themselves had overwhelmingly supported the concept and that his government would be liaising with the states, welfare organizations, local governments, and the union movement to give jobless people the opportunity to perform community work.

The federal opposition leader, Mr Howard, said tonight that the prime minister's address had failed to show leadership and failed to provide any specifics. Mr Howard described the speech as a massive letdown. The proposal for the young unemployed to do community work for the dole was, in Mr Howard's words, a damp squib because it was not to be compulsory. The prime minister, he said, had not gone far enough on wage restraint while his offering on government expenditure was derisory and lacking in detail.

LANGE CRITICIZES U.S. ON NUCLEAR ISSUE

[Text] The New Zealand prime minister, Mr Lange, has accused the United States of having no real interest in negotiating a settlement of the dispute over Wellington's antinuclear policies.

Mr Lange, who is now visiting Bangkok, said Washington had refused to engage in negotiation or cnsultation to resolve the dispute. He said the United States had declined to show New Zealand the same flexibility inside the ANZUS defense alliance as it showed its partners in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The dispute, which has sourced relations between Washington and Wellington, centered on New Zealand's refusal to allow visits by nuclear-armed or nuclear-powered warships and America's insistence that it will stick to its policy of neither confirming or denying the presence of nuclear warheads.

Last Friday, the New Zealand prime minister had talks in Manila with the American secretary of state, Mr Shultz, who said later: We part company as friends, but we party company.

VISITS ALLOWED TO JAILED FRENCH AGENTS

HK241316 Hong Kong AFP in English 1310 GMT 24 Jun 86

[Text] Wellington, June 24 (AFP) -- French Rugby Federation President Albert Ferrasse and French Rugby team captain Daniel Dubroca have been given approval by the New Zealand Secretary for Justice to visit the two French agents held in New Zealand jails.

Justice Minister Geoffrey Palmer announced late Tuesday that Secretary for Justice David Oughton had agreed to a request for the two men and the team doctor to visit Major Alain Mafart and Captain Dominique Prieur during the team's New Zealand visit.

Marfart and Prieur are both serving 10 year jail sentences for manslaughter for their roles in the sinking of the Greenpeace vessell Rainbow Warrior. Mr. Palmer said the secretary for justice can approve visits for prison inmates whose "work and conduct are satisfactory." The visits are to be arranged in consultation with the superintendents of the two prisons where the pair are held. Prieur is serving her sentence at Christchurch Women's Prison and Mafart is confined to the Paremoremo Maximum Security Prison near Auckland.

Mr Palmer said the French consul in Christchurch, who had requested the visits, had "given an undertaking that the visitors will make no declaration or public statements after their visits."

The French rugby team fly to Christchurch Wednesday to prepare for their test match against the New Zealand all blacks in the city Saturday. It is expected that Mr Ferrasse and Mr Dubroca will visit Prieur in the next two days. Since the French touring team leave Sunday, there is speculation the rugby player and federation president may not see Mafart before they depart.

NDF NAMES ZUMEL SECOND NEGOTIATOR IN TALKS

OW280525 Tokyo KYODO in English 0502 GMT 28 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 28 KYODO -- The left-wing underground umbrella group the National Democratic Front (NDF) has named a former newsman as its second negotiator in cease-fire talks with the government of Philippine President Corazon Aquino, the MANILA CHRONICLE newspaper reported Saturday. NDF spokesman Antonio Zumel, a former president of the Philippine National Press Club and one-time news editor of the national circulation MANILA BULLETIN, joins another former newsman and political detainee, Satur Ocampo, as one of the group's representatives on the negotiating panel.

Zumel was named the second representative of the NDF a day after Aquino named Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra and Jose Diokno, chairman of the Presidential Committee [as received] on Human Rights, as the government's representatives in the talks that could lead to an end to the 17-year hostitlity. Mitra and Diokno, both former senators who were jailed by deposed President Ferdinand Marcos when he imposed martial law in 1972, are "acceptable" to the NDF, Ocampo said.

The NDF groups the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) and its military arm, the 16,500-strong New People's Army (NPA) with other outlawed workers, peasants, youth and religious groups. It should be recognized by the Aquino government as the "plenipotentiary representative of all democratic forces engaged in armed struggle," the rebel panel said.

Ocampo and Zumel, who were interviewed by CHRONICLE editor Amando Doronila in an undisclosed place, stressed that a cease-fire would not mean the surrender of one side to the other and ruled out military participation in the negotiations. "Whether the revolution wins militarily or a political settlement comes about, we do not see our people laying down arms," Zumel said. "Our people must defend themselves against reaction."

Ocampo said the military posed a major obstacle to a cordial atmosphere for the talks. He added that the NDF is "not stating bottom lines or preconditions," clarifying a published report quoting Zumel as saying that bottom-line demands for a cease-fire were the dismantling of civilian militias and private armies or political warlords and the withdrawal of troops from guerrilla territories. "What we want is the atmosphere for cordial talks. The substantive issues will have to come later," Ocampo said. He said the military can get involved in the talks when the disposition of armed forces is discussed.

Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, who has expressed misgivings about the talks, said Friday that the military will not be involved in the cease-fire negotiation so as to give "freedom of discussion" between the government and NDF, adding that this is a "political effort" of the government. "It is better that we remove all kinds of possible emotions in the discussions of issues with he CPP-NPA-NDF so that the assessment of the issues would be done with the highest possible objectivity," said Enrile, who led a civilian-backed military revolt that ended the 20-year rule of Marcos and installed Aquino last February.

Ocampo said that as soon as the government recognizes the NDF as the sole representative of the guerrilla forces, other details prior to the formal talks, such as security for negotiators, freedom of movement and access to the press and venue, can be resolved.

Military To Stay in Background

HK280152 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2300 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile yesterday [27 June] said the military will stay in the background during the ceasefire negotiations so that there will be freedom between the government and the communist movement. However, the noninvolvement of the military in the forthcoming dialogue is without prejudice to its participation on a consultative basis.

Even as the government-communist ceasure talks neared, communist rebels continued their attacks and at least 12 people have been killed in incidents involving communist insurgents and secessionist Muslims in recent days. The military said eight civilians were killed in Cagayan Province when communist guerrillas ambushed a bus.

SISON URGES 'SAFETY GUARANTEE' FOR REBELS

HK300438 Hong Kong AFP in English 0406 GMT 30 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 30 (AFP) -- The Philippine Government must guarantee the safety of communist rebels if they are to emerge from the underground to contest elections, former Communist Party chief Jose Maria Sison said here Monday. Mr. Sison, founder and former chairman of the banned Communist Party of the Philippines(CPP), also repeated his proposal that communists be included in a government coalition and their guerrillas integrated into a new national army. "The Communist Party would be courting disaster if it would come to the open without guarantees of security," he told a forum here.

He said the "ruling classes" might "create incidents and provocations which would allow the armed forces to wipe out" the party, which would join elections "only with guarantees that it is not vulnerable to being crushed." Legislative and local government polls are expected in early 1987 after voters ratify a new constitution late this year.

Mr. Sison, freed by President Corazon Aquino along with 500 other political prisoners after February's centrist revolt here, stressed that he was speaking for himself, but is believed to maintain links with rebel leaders.

Mrs. Aquino has repeatedly ruled out a coaltion with the communists. She has named two top aides as negotiators in ceasefire talks aimed at a political solution of the insurgency, vowing to unleash the military if the rebels reject her peace efforts. The CPP's estimated 16,000-strong New People's Army (NPA) is at the forefront of a 17-year-old insurgency that grew rapidly during the last years of rule by strongman Ferdinand Marcos, who fled to Hawaii after the revolt.

Mr. Sison, a former English professor, said he was not planning to run for office and would go back to teaching despite his key role in the current formation of an open leftist political party called Party of the People. He expressed confidence in the future of the CPP-NPA, which has admitted it blundered when it boycotted February's presidential election. Poll frauds sparked the revolt that swept opposition bet Mrs. Aquino to the presidency.

Mr. Sison claimed that 20 per cent of the national population of 55 million were living in areas controlled by CPP-NPA, but a political science professor at the forum pointed out that the figure, cited by U.S. defense officials, referred to number of small rural villages, not the population. He said the CPP-NPA was "laying the groundwork for the forthcoming revolutionary government that will eventually have its seat in Manila."

Mr. Sison and Mrs. Aquino will be "desperate" and bring the left into her government, which has "substantially restored civil liberties," but has not "been able to even only lay the ground for the solution of basic problems." "The Communist Party can play a very positive role together with the Aquino government in facing up to the basic problems," he added.

MINDANAO CPP LISTS DEMANDS FOR REJOINING SOCIETY

HK300822 Manila THE NEW PHILIPPINES DAILY EXPRESS in English 27 Jun 86 pp 1, 7

[By Fred Sajot]

[Text] Pagadian City -- Some 6,000 followers and sympathizers of the Communist Party of the Philippines/New People's Army in Mindanao are ready to rejoin society if the Aquino government grants their demands. This was revealed here Thursday by Jose Tecson, provincial president of the Committee on Human Rights and Reconciliation to Major Gen. Jose P. Magno, Southern Command chief.

Tecson told Magno that the former's group has already established contact with the CPP/NPA hierarchy in Mindanao led by Rollie Kintanar, alias Commander Jorlan. He said the meeting took place June 12-15 at Mt. Malindag, a common boundary of Zamboanga del Sur, Misamis Occidental and Zamboanga del Norte. Fr. Jerry Jimenez, executive vice president of the Zamboanga del Sur-based human rights organization, Fr. Henry Benel, parish priest of Tangub City, and Sister Paredes of Josefina, Zamboanga del Sur met with Kintanar and other NPA commanders including Marlboro, Apollo, Rudy, Eddie Along, Randell, Crispy and Atan.

The demands of the rebels are:

-- Disarming of all CHDF [Civilian Home Defense Forces] and local cultist groups.

-- Dismantling of private armies.

-- Establishment of a coalition government.

-- Removal of the U.S. bases in the Philippines.

-- Full implementation of the land reform law.

-- Justice for victims of military abuses.

Magno stressed that the military position for the retention of the U.S. bases in the country is non-negotiable. Magno, who was here to attend a peace and reconciliation hearing sponsored by the committee on human rights and reconciliation, said he welcomes dialogue rather than armed confrontation.

CEBU CP SPOKESMEN ON SLOWDOWN OF ARMED ACTIONS

BK250855 Manila PNA in English 0327 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Text] Cebu City, June 25 (PNA) -- The communist movement in Central Philippines has adopted a deliberate slowdown in its armed operations in deference to the peace talks going on in Manila. The rebels had owned some big killings in Cebu, but denied participation in the abduction of missing priest Rudy Romano and the gunslaying of radio commentator Vicente Villordon two years ago.

The move was disclosed by four rebel representatives -- one each from the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) and the New People's Army (NPA) and two from the National Democratic Front (NOF) provincial committee -- during a meeting with two local reporters in an isolated house in this city about 600 km south of Manila. The meeting, the first ever made by the underground movement with Cebu media representatives, was reported by the newspaper SUN STAR.

Reporters Eileen Mangunbat and Edralyn Benedicto said they were contacted by a third party and was picked up in downtown Cebu City Monday for a meeting with rebel leaders. They said the four rebels gave their names as Rafael Flores, NDF Cebu preparatory committee spokesman, Ador Sales, NDF media liaison; Tomas Magtanggol, CPP provincial party committee spokesman; and Ka Roger, NPA spokesman.

The newspaper said the rebels decided to open up with media to maximize the democratic pace enjoyed under the Aquino administration and to clarify current issues involving the movement.

CEBU CP LEADER NOTES INFLUENCE IN CON-COM

HK271014 Hong Kong AFP In English 0955 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Cebu, Philippines, June 27 (AFP) -- Outlawed Philippine Communists are involved in the drafting of a new constitution through legal front groups who attend hearings held by the constitutional panel, a rebel leader said here. Urbano Cruz, who described himself as a ranking leader of the Communist Party of the Philippies (CPP) in the central islands, told AGENCE FRNACE-PRESSE in a dawn meeting Friday the CPP was closely monitoring the process as it would "define the legal arena which we have to work in."

He also reiterated that there was "still no official declaration" of a ceasefire between the government of President Corazon Aquino and the CPP's armed wing, the New People's Army (NPA), and that reports of piecemeal ceasefire agreements at regional level "should be ignored." The government has initiated ceasefire talks with the communists to try to end a 17-year-old insurgency now being waged by some 16,500 NPA guerrillas.

The banned CPP was airing its views on constitutional issues by calling on legally-allowed groups with which it had influence to take part in the constultations and public hearings of the constitutional panel, Mr Cruz said. A 48-member panel appointed by Mrs Aquino has been conducting public hearings aspart of its work to draft a new constitution within three months. Mr Cruz did not identify the groups being used by the CPP to influence its work, but added: "Whether you like it or not, the CPP has an influence" in the commission.

Former CPP chairman Jose Maria Sison has said in a newspaper article that some 13 members of the panel were progressives who supported the interests of "the masses."

The underground movement wants assurances on Philippine independence, non-alignment, institutionalization of democratic progress and the elimination of "the legal basis for foreign intervention," Mr Urbano said. The communists accuse the United States of intervening in the affairs of the Philippines, a former U.S. colony, mainly due to the presence of two large military bases in the Philippines.

On NPA-Armed Forces Unity

MINDORO OCCIDENTAL REBEL LEADER READY FOR TALKS

BK250845 Manila PNA in English 0815 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Text] San Jose, Mindoro Occidental, June 25 (PNA) -- Communist rebels operating in the island provinces of Mindoro Occidental about 250 km south of Manila have expressed their willingness to surrender to the government as soon as the amnesty guidelines are set. In a dialogue with PNA in a forested area in Magsaysay, Mindoro Occidental, rebel commander Rex Aguila of the Anak Pawis, expressed his eagerness to come into terms with the government.

Specifically, Aquila said he would surrender to President Aquino through her brother-in-law Butz Aquino once the amnesty is set. The rebel commander said he wants to see the sincerity of the government in fulfilling its promise of intensive land reform while the ceasefire is in effect.

Aquila also said he wants the recall of the 30,000-peso prize of his capture dead or alive. The prize should be cancelled since this will endanger his life when he returns to the fold of the law, Aquila said, adding that he would continue fighting with his 500 followers if the prize is still on.

MILITARY REPORTS ON NPA SURRENDERS, RAIDS CITED

HK250304 Manila THE NEW PHILIPPINES DAILY EXPRESS in English 24 Jun 86 p 11

[By A.F. Soriano]

[Text] Twenty New People's Army members surrendered, three others were captured, while 150-man armed groups conducted raids in separate incidents in Iloilo, Sorsogon, Kalinga-Apayao and Batangas, belated reports reaching the military said yesterday.

The surrender, the report said, took place last June 19 at barangay Panuran, Lambunao, an NPA-infested area 25 kilometers from Iloilo City. Military authorities said this was so far one of the biggest batch of surrenderees in Panay Island.

The surrenderees, the military said, are active regulars of the CPP [Communist Party of the Philippines] -NPA Panay Island regional party committee. They gave up to elements of the PC/INP [Philippine Constabulary/Integrated National Police] 322 PC company under a certain C2C Sibayan and took their oath of allegiance to the republic before lawyer Protacio Roncesvalles, officer-in-charge of Lambunao town.

The presence of NPAS in the Batangas-Cavite boundaries was confirmed with the capture of three suspected NPA's in Nasugbu, Batangas. Seized from the suspects were three firearms and ammunition.

In another report, military authorities said 100 heavily armed NPA's under Commander Mely raided the Palanas PC detachment at Hacienda Pineda, Palanas, Pilar, Sorsogon Unday. Luis Larce, Civilian Home Defense Force [CHDF] member, was wounded in the 45-minute gunbattle. The report said government forces were forced to withdraw as a result of the superior firepower of the rebels, who were armed with grenade launchers, a light machine gun and high-powered M-16 rifles.

The rebels burned a copra house, a bodega and a tractor and took a sack of rice, food items, uniforms and clothing of PC and CHDF personnel plus P2,600 in cash and other valuables. Reinforcing troops recovered three unexploded handgrenades, ammunitions for an M-79 grenade launcher which failed to explode, molotov cocktails and improvised stretchers made of bamboo.

In Kalinga-Apayao, about 50 heavily armed rebels on board a logging truck raided the houses of Luna town vice mayor Baldemero Lactan and INP patrolman Edwin Aganon and the rural bank of Luna, all located in barangay San Isidro.

CENTRAL LUZON INSURGENTS SEIZE WEAPONS

HK260542 Manila THE NEWS HERALD in English 25 Jun 86 p 11

[By Ben Gamos]

[Text] Camp Olivas -- Insurgents in Central Luzon has strengthened their firepower capability through "agaw-arms [arms grabbing]" operations. Since the February revolution when the military slowed down its anti-insurgency drive when he unofficial ceasefire was enforced the insurgents have taken some 24 firearms from military, para-military and other units in various places in Central Luzon.

The biggest hauls were effected in Baranggay Pinaod, San Ildefonso Bulacan; Candaba, Pampanga, Baranggay Carmencita, Floridablanca, Pampanga and in Bataan.

In Baranggay Pinaod, the insurgents took six Armalite rifles, including the radio communication set of a Philippine Army detachment there; five Armalite rifles were each taken from militiamen in Baranggay Lanang, Candaba, and Carmencita, Floridablanca, Pampanga, two M-16, a .45 caliber pistol, two shotguns and two .38 caliber revolvers in Bataan.

Col. Vicente Garcia, deputy commander for security operations of the Regional Unified Command and concurrently commander of Task Force Samat in Bataan, said these "agaw-armas" operations of the insurgents supports apprehension in some military circles that the insurgents would never yield their firearms and abandon their cause. Garcia said the insurgents have found a lucrative means of livelihood in their present life and he denoted [as published] whether they would ever abandon it now.

He said that with firearms the insurgents could collect what he calls "progressive taxation" among the countryside folks, and in some places, even in urban areas. Garcia said that in places under the influence of insurgents, all households are required to pay a weekly tax ranging from P1 and above per family, depending on the income of the inhabitants.

In Aurora Province the military also had disclosed that landowners and businessmen pay a monthly tong, the amount based on the size and produce of the property and extent of business. Garcia said in most cases, the "tax collections" go to the pockets of the leaders and only a small amount is spent for some miscellaneous needs. "With this lucrative income derived through terroristic methods, it will not be easy for the insurgents to abandon their operations pursued under the guise of a revolutionary struggle," Garcia declared.

ENRILE SAYS COMMUNISTS INFILTRATING UNIONS

HK261539 Manila THE NEW PHILIPPINES DAILY EXPRESS in English 26 Jun 86 pp 1, 7

[Text] Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile said yesterday the communist movement is exploiting legitimate grievances of labor against capitalist through a sustained infiltration of labor union ranks and other allied organizations to attain their objectives. Enrile made this disclosure before the Personnel Management Association [PMAP] of the Philippines at the Manila Hotel. PMAP is an organization of about 800 private firms employing more than a million workers.

The defense minister said the insurgents, like the PMAP, are also engaged in their own kind of "personnel management" by cultivating close relations with workers. He said the Communist Party of the Philippines [CPP] has an entire organization, called the Trade Union Bureau which is under the National Commission for Mass Movements of the CPP, which is doing such work.

Enrile said the Trade Union Bureau operates alongside with two other organs, namely the Youth Bureau and the Peasant Bureau. He said the three bureaus are all considered as the main levers of the underground movement with the Trade Union Bureau acting as the vanguard because it is the one in most "proximate conflict with the capitalist sector."

"The exploitation of this conflict -- for admittedly, there is an inherent conflict between labor and capital within our economic system -- is considered the most important element in the success of a Marxist revolution," Enrile said. Enrile said he is ready to identify labor fronts or organizations suspected to have links with the local as well as the international communist movement but he said he will release such information to legitimate management groups on a confidential basis only.

The military, Enrile said, has for the past years, been sharing with the private business firms intelligence information pinpointing subversive front groups and personalities in the labor sector through the fielding of briefing officers who go from one firm to another, explaining the extent of the insurgency situation to members of the industrial community. Top-level discussions with industrial executives are also being done to explain the ramifications and relationships of the problem to institutional programs, like agricultural development, Enrile said.

Comparably, the defense chief said, the business community is now better equipped, morally and psychologically, to contribute a meaningful share in combatting insurgency than 10 years ago.

At the same time, he asked the labor sector not to misinterpret the strong position of the Defense Ministry against leftist infiltration as one "that views the militancy of working men with suspicion of disfavor."

Labor Minister Comments

HK300820 Manila THE NEW PHILIPPINES DAILY EXPRESS in English 27 Jun 86 p 2

[Text] Labor Minister Augusto Sanchez yesterday denied any knowledge of the reported communist infiltration of labor unions in the country, saying "my problem is labor and employment so I have nothing to do with subversion or rebellion." Sanchez was reacting to Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile's accusation before a group of personnel managers Wednesday that local labor unions have been infiltrated by subversive elements under the wings of the Communist Party of the Philippines.

Sanchez said Enrile's revelation was no longer unusual since other quarters like the Trade Union Congress of the Philippines has also issued the same warning. Sanchez said his work has to do with all Filipinos, regardless of their beliefs and that news of communist infiltration of labor ranks did not bother him.

"It is the job of the Defense Ministry to look into this problem if there are indeed signs of subversion in the labor movement. As of now, I don't see any indication of such because what I know is labor has just been asserting its rights." Sanchez said some people have misinterpreted workers' militancy as a sign that the work people are turning communists.

MNLF Rejects Butz Aquino

[By Roy S. De Guzman]

[Text] The Moro National Liberation Front has rejected suggestions that Agapito "Butz" Aquino act as the government's emissary on the proposed peace negotiations. This was revealed by Eliseo Mercado, a Mindanao-based Roman Catholic priest who is reportedly "in constant touch" with the South secessionists. Mercado warned, however, that should the government fail to "immediately" undertake peace talks with the faction-ridden MNLF, the tense situation in the South "could further worsen and ultimately lead to a nationwide armed campaign for (Moro) independence."

At the height of the last electoral campaign, Agapito Aquino had met with Nur Misuari, MNLF founding chairman, to convince the secessionist leader to form an alliance with Ms Corazon Aquino, then running for president. According to Mercado, however, Agapito Aquino's acknowledgement of Misuari's leadership in the secessionist movement had only served to alienate the President's brother-in-law from the other MNLF factions.

Organized by Misuari in the early 1970's, the MNLF is now split into three main camps. Aside from Misuari's, there is the Moro Islamic Liberation Front -- Muslim fundamentalist groups headed by Hashim Salamat. A third -- the so-called MNLF Reformists -- has for its chairman Dimas Pundato, a former aide of Misuari's. "The people of Mindanao, especially the MNLF are waiting and restless," said Mercado, a militant prelate based in the rebeldominated province of Cotabato.

Mercado said he [had] just come from an audience with the President where he told her about the need for immediate peace talks in the South. He said the President promised to appoint soon an emissary who would lead negotiations with leaders of the MNLF. Aquino, Mercado said, is insistent that the warring factions of the MNLF first unite so that the emissary can talk to the "true representative" of the Midanao rebels.

Mercado urged the government to heed the demands of the different MNLF groups and the Mindanao people for a separate government. "The establishment of an autonomous region should be seen by the government as a peaceful solution that will be doing justice to Muslims and giving peace to the island of Mindanao," he said.

MILF CHIEF OF STAFF CAPTURED IN MINDANAO

HK300811 Manila THE MANILA TIMES in English 27 Jun 86 p 2

[Text] Troops captured Tuesday the highest ranking separatist leader in Central Mindanao along with his seven bodyguards in Marawi City, a senior military officer said yesterday. AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] Deputy Chief Brig. Gen. Eduardo Ermita identified the leader as Hadji Murad, chief of staff of the underground Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF). Murad is the right hand man of MILF Chairman Hashim Salamat.

Murad was captured by a 15-man PC [Philippine Constabulary] patrol led by a certain Lt. Roldan at 4 p.m. in Marawi City. The Muslim leader was on board an owner-type jeep when intercepted by the PC patrol.

Murad and his companions were on their way to contact MILF commanders in Central Mindanao prior to his scheduled talk with Brig. Gen. Rodrigo Gutang, commander of the RUC [Regional Unified Command]-12, in Cotabato City.

Gutang blamed Murad for not informing the military beforehand that he was passing by to contact his commanders for the impending negotiations for a ceasefire with the government in Central Mindanao. In the spirit of reconciliation, Gutang released Murad and his seven bodyguards to Cotabato Officer-in-Charge Zacarias Candao. Ermita said Murad's group yielded two .45 cal. pistols, and a radio transceiver.

ANTINUCLEAR GROUP DEMONSTRATES AT SUBIC BASE

[Text] About 100 antinuclear protesters yesterday demonstrated in front of the Subic Naval Base, releasing hundreds of balloons and setting afloat in a river bottles with messages warning of nuclear fall-out. Members of the Nuclear-Free Philippines Coalition came from Manila for the demonstration as part of the observation of the disease weekend proclaimed by antinuclear organizations around the world.

The protest came a day after U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz announced in Manila that the United States was moving toward the end of its military alliance with New Zealand because of that country's policy of not allowing visits by U.S. ships that might have nuclear weapons abroad.

In a brief speech during the rally, the coalition secretary general (Elmo Monapat) told the crowd he believes the base stores nuclear weapons. The American Government has a policy of not confirming or denying such allegations.

CABINET DISCUSSES BATAAN NUCLEAR PLANT ISSUE

HK300916 Hong Kong AFP in English 0903 GMT 30 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 30 (AFP) -- The Philippines will either go to court or negotiate to free itself of obligations from its first nuclear power plant which it has chosen not to operate, a government spokesman said Monday. "What we did today was to affirm the vitality of the decision not to operate the plant," presidential spokesman Rene Saguisag told reporters here after he emerged from a two-hour-long cabinet meeting.

Mr. Saguisag, who has been appointed to head a panel to study the government's options on the 2.1-billion-dollar nuclear plant, said Manila will "go into negotiation or litigation" to resolve the issue. The previous administration of Ferdinand Marcos had contracted the U.S. firm Westinghouse to build the 620-megawatt plant in Bataan Province west of the capital. The construction was financed by loans from foreign banks including the U.S. Export-Import Bank. The new government of President Corazon Aquino wants the contract cancelled after deciding not to operate the plant on the grounds that it was unsafe and overpriced.

Mrs. Aquino's other spokesman, Alice Villadolid, told a new conference Mr. Saguisag's panel submitted to the Cabinet Monday its recommendations on how to resolve the nuclear plant issue.

She said the study recommended that the government accept free technical and legal aid from international agencies in resolving the issue, and to create a committee to prepare Manila's future actions on the controversy.

CON-COM RECEIVES PROPOSALS ON FOREIGN BASES

Ople Urges Ban

HK240325 Manila THE NEW PHILIPPINES DAILY EXPRESS in English 23 Jun 86 pp 1, 3

[Text] Former labor minister Blas F. Ople, leader of an opposition bloc in the Constutional Commission [Con-Com], said yesterday he would present this week a draft resolution calling for an end to the military bases pact in 1991 "but without foreclosing negotiations, if desired by one or both governments." Ople said the resolution's "bottom line" is that the Philippines may no longer host foreign military bases after twenty years from the date of the ratification of the new consitution.

He said such advance notice "will permit the Filipino people to strengthen their own defense capability against external aggression, whether alone or in conjunction with individual partners in ASEAN." This time span will also be required, he said, to transform the country into an NIC (newly industrialized country). He noted that "the battlefield is an extension of a country's industrial capability."

The country should also offset, through economic growth, livelihood opportunities that will be wiped out, especially in central Luzon, including some 60,000 jobs in direct employment and several hundred thousand other jobs indirectly dependent on the bases. Ople said his draft resolution offers "a more rational, realistic, attainable and constructive alternative" to another pending resolution which would abolish foreign military bases upon the approval of the new Constitution.

On why the Philippines should terminate the bases agreement when it would still be open to negotiations, Ople said the agreement provides for one-year notice of termination and the Philippine Government should avail of this "to demonstrate that if necessary, we are prepared to go it alone unless the United States is willing to rectify all unequal treaties and agreements and to support our industrialization through improved access to the U.S. market and massive technology transfers." Ople said the expiration of the bases agreement in 1991 gives the Philippine Government "a real bargaining clout with the United States which it never had since 1898." He added: "It is a strategic responsibility of the Constitutional Commission to conserve and protect this bargaining power, which will redress the weakness and failures of the past."

In serving notice of termination, especially through a transitory provision of the constitution, the U.S. policy-makers will know that the Philippines "can go it alone," Ople said. Ople said "a hard bargaining stance for the Philippines will help our own friends in the United States who feel the U.S. must now make up for all the years of benign neglect of Philippine economic development." He said the inequitous factor in Philippine-American relations becomes "truly conspicuous" when we compare the quid pro quo granted other U.S. allies that host their overseas military facilities or offer security links such as Japan, Korea, Israel, Egypt, West Germany, Spain, Turkey, Greece, "or even tiny Honduras."

Ople said the forthcoming debates in the Constitutional Commission on the bases issue, already assured enrichment through the public hearings going on all over the country, "will most likely force the Aquino government to declare its own policies and intentions towards the bases." "President Aqunio has so far limited her statements to respecting the agreement and keeping her options open until 1991 but the time for decision is now, when a Constitution is being written at her own initiative," Ople said.

100-Year Extension Proposed

[Excerpt] Manila, June 26 (AFP) -- A member of a panel drafting a new Philippine Constitution has proposed that Washington be allowed access to two key military bases in the country for another 100 years, the commission secretariat said Thursday. Manila'a military bases agreement with Washington, which ends in 1991, should be preserved "far into the future and beyond the reach of divergent interests to subvert," commission member Gregorio Tingson said in a resolution.

Mr. Tingson, an evangelist, said Clark Air Base and Subic Naval Base "should be regarded as part of the country's national defense" and U.S. access to them should be extended for another 100 years, the commission secretariat quoted the resolution as saying. Commission spokesman told AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE the proposal was presented during a plenary session of the 48-man constitutional panel Wednesday and referred immediately to the general provisions committee. The controversial resolution is expected to meet stiff opposition from a nationalist bloc in the commission, which want to enshrine Philippine neutrality in the new charter, political observers here said.

SANCHEZ CALLS BASES LABOR AGREEMENT 'INEQUITOUS'

HK300504 Quezon City NEW DAY in English 30 Jun 86 p 10

[Text] The Ministry of Labor and Employment will renegotiate the terms and conditions of the labor agreement covering the U.S. military bases. Labor Minister Augusto Sanchez said the 1968 Bases Labor Agreement (BLA) was inequitous. Filipino workers in American military installations are paid less than their counterparts abroad and the BLA provisions are lopsidedly in favor of the Americans. He cited the provision wherein the agreement between the U.S. and Philippine negotiators will still be subject to review and change by U.S. officials in Washington, D.C. There are currently 22,000 workers in two major U.S. bases (Subic Naval Base and Clark Air Force Base) and six other military installations. Sanchez said a three-man Philippine panel, headed by Deputy Labor Minister for Labor Relations Pablito Sanidad, is expected to meet the American panel early next month. The two other members of the panel will be appointed by Sanidad (who is still in Geneva and is expected to arrive in the country by next week).

The creation of the panel followed observations made recently by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Armed Forces Chief of Staff General Fidel Ramos [that] the low level of wages at the U.S. military installations was behind the spate of strikes this year. Both officials observed that inferior salaries increase the security problems at the bases. Wages of base workers are based on annual surveys made solely by the Americans. The Federation of Filipino Civilian Employes Association, the recognized union in the bases, meanwhile, is supporting the convening of the joint labor committee to thresh out labor problems in the bases which include the recent dismissal of 42 Filipino civilian employes at Subic.

GRAVES VISITS AGREEMENT WITH USSR ANNOUNCED

OW010345 Tokyo KYODO in English 0337 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 1 KYODO -- Japan and the Soviet Union reached agreement Tuesday on reciprocal visits without visa requirements to ancestral graves in each other's country, Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe said Tuesday. Abe told a news conference that the agreement was reached purely from a humanitarian viewpoint and did not infringe on the "judicial positions" of both countries, alluding to Japan's long-standing claim to four Soviet-controlled islands off Hokkaido.

The two countries will exchange notes on reciprocal visits with only identification cards in Tokyo and Moscow "tomorrow at the earliest," the foreign minister said. Abe announced the agreement after a meeting with new Soviet Ambassador Nikolay Solovyev in which they discussed the pending issue and the envoy handed the foreign minister a letter from Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone. Abe told reporters that Gorbachev in his letter to Nakasone hinted at a visit to Japan, which would be the first by the Soviet Communist Party general secretary, "in the not distant future."

Asked to elaborate on a possible Gorbachev trip to Tokyo, the foreign minister said the Gorbachev letter expressed the Soviet leader's "strong intention" to come to Japan. Once the two countries work out details such as the sites to be visited, the Japanese former islanders can visit their ancestral graves on the Soviet-controlled so-called "northern territories" and on the Soviet mainland in August, after an 11-year break, Abe added.

Former islanders from Japan visited three of the four islands -- Habomai, Shikotan and Kunashiri -- and several other areas in the Soviet Union between 1964 and 1975, bearing only identity cards specially issued by the Japanese government. But as East-West tensions grew and the Soviet stance against Japan hardened, Japanese Foreign Ministry officials said, the Soviets told Japan in 1976 that Japanese wanting to visit the disputed islands would need visas, leading to the suspension of such visits.

A break in the impasse came in May when Gorbachev, in a meeting with Abe in Moscow, proposed reciprocal visits by Japanese and Soviets to ancestoral graves in each other's country without visa requirements. Japanese officials said the graves of Soviet killed in the Russo-Japanese War of 1904-1905 are located in Nagasaki and several other cities, including Tokyo and Kobe.

Abe said the agreement was important in that it signaled Soviet readiness to promote relations with Japan and resulted from a warning of East-West relations. If the agreement goes into effect and visits to ancestoral graves on the islands resume as planned, it will also mark one of Abe's final achievements as foreign minister in the Nakasone cabinet. A Foreign Minister official charged with Soviet affairs said one of the major considerations for Japan was the centuries-old Japanese tradition to of paying homage to ancestors during the annual "bon" festivals in the summer.

'LAST-DITCH' EFFORTS ON U.S. MICROCHIPS TALKS

[Text] Tokyo, June 30 KYODO -- Japan and the United States are making last-ditch efforts to negotiate a settlement in their year-old bilateral trade talks on semiconductors ahead of the deadline of 5:00 a.m. Tuesday (Japan time), an official of the Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI) said Monday. Masashi Yamamoto, deputy director of MITI's Machinery and Information Industries Bureau, said the two countries' negotiators ended the latest round of talks in Washington at 0:30 a.m. Monday (Japan time), promising to reopen the negotiations soon if either side wants to make contact with the other after studying each other's "final" demands. "There is a wide gap between two countries over several core issues. The situation is extraordinary. Both sides are far from finalizing a kind of joint statement," Yamamoto said.

U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter and MITI head Michio Watanabe reached a framework agreement on May 28 to ensure U.S. firms get "adequate" access to the Japanese market and monitor prices of Japanese-made microchips in the U.S. market. In exchange for the Japanese concessions, the U.S. Commerce Department was requested to suspend investigations into alleged dumping of Japanese-made two microchips -- including erasable programmable read-only memory (EPROM) chips -- in the American market, according to MITI sources. But the two countries are at odds on whether the monitoring system should cover memory chips assembled by Japanese firms' subsidiaries in third countries and shipped to the U.S., the sources said.

U.S. Suspends Investigation

OW010105 Tokyo KYODO in English 0100 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 1 KYODO -- The U.S. government has withdrawn a threat to institute antidumping investigations against some Japanese microchips that was to have begun Monday (U.S. time), as negotiations from both countries continue protracted talks on a comprehensive agreement. The U.S. side said, however, that the investigations would proceed unless an agreement was reached, according to a senior official of the Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI) Tuesday.

"The two countries failed to finalize a joint settlement" in talks in Washington, said the official, "but they will continue negotiations thereafter to conclude a final agreement." The U.S. concession, he said, applies only to erasable programmable read-only memory (eprom) chips.

Teams of negotiators have been making last-ditch efforts to work out details of a comprehensive agreement, the principles of which were decided between U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeuter and MITI Minister Michio Watanabe May 28. The U.S. had set a June 30 deadline for final agreement makers signed a temporary agreement on suspension of U.S. antidumping investigations into Japanese exports of EPROM chips, MITI official said.

CURRENT SURPLUS WITH U.S. REMAINS HIGH

OW301201 Tokyo KYODO in English 1041 GMT 30 Jun 86

[Text] Tokyo, June 30 KYODO -- Japan's current account surplus with the United States accounted for almost 85 percent of its overall surplus in calendar 1985, a Finance Ministry spokesman said Monday. The statement came as the Finance Ministry reported that Japan's balance of payments on current account -- the balance of trade in goods and services -- with the U.S. in calendar 1985 was in surplus by 41.73 billion dollars, up from 35.02 billion dollars in calendar 1984. Japan posted an overall current account surplus of 49.12 billion dollars in calendar 1985.

Japan also remained as an important supplier of money to the U.S. in calendar 1985, as the outflow of long-term capital from Japan exceeded inflow by 33.16 billion dollars against 14.81 billion dollars last year. In contrast, Japan had a current account deficit of 12.35 billion dollars with developing countries which supply raw material and other primary goods to Japan. The figure was larger than the 11.23 billion dollars the previous year.

Japan's current account surplus with the 10-nation European Community (EC) totaled 7.99 billion dollars against 6.88 billion dollars. With the communist bloc, Japan continued to export more than import, scoring a current account surplus of 9.47 billion dollars compared with 3.95 billion dollars in calendar 1984. The rise was attributed to a surge in trade with China.

MINDAN INVITES PRO-DPRK GROUP TO ASIAN GAMES

[Text] Tokyo, June 27 KYODO -- Representatives of the Korean Residents Union in Japan (Mindan) Friday called on their North Korean counterparts here and suggested that they attend the September Seoul Asian Games with them.

In making the suggestion -- the first of its kind -- to the General Association of Korean Residents in Japan (Chongryun), a Tokyo-based pro-Pyongyang organization, the Mindan officials said they would see to it that Chongryun people who attend the games are accorded the maximum safety and convenience when flying between Pyongyang and Seoul. The Chongryun officials promised an early reply.

According to Mindan, since 40,000 Chongryun people have paid visits to their family burial plots in South Korea over the past 10 years by getting special visas, those wishing to attend the games could enter the country the same way.

TV ROUNDTABLE DISCUSSION OF KPA PROPOSAL

SK280050 Pyongyang Television Service in Korean 1140 GMT 21 Jun 86

[Panel discussion program entitled "A New Initiative To Ease Tension," with KPA Major General Yi Nung-hun; Chon Kum-chol, secretary general of the CPRF Central Committee; Yu Ho-chun, secretary general of the DFRF Central Committee; KAP Major General Kim Se-kwan; and KPA Senior Colonel Kim Tok-hyon]

[Text] [Unidentified moderator] We are here to talk about the KPA Supreme Command's peace proposal, which is now receiving great reaction at home and abroad.

[Yi Nung-hun] As has been reported, what constitutes the central content of the peace proposal advanced by the KPA Supreme Command is to hold talks of military authorities between the DPRK minister of the People's Armed Forces, the commander-in-chief of the United Nations Forces stationed in South Korea, and South Korean defense minister -- those who hold real power in the military of the North and South -- to ease the tense situation and to bring an end to the state of military confrontation in our country.

In this connection, the KPA Supreme Command has taken the step of sending a letter containing specific proposals to each side. Accordingly, our country's minister of the People's Armed Forces has sent each side a letter containing issues to be discussed in the talks, ranging from such working-level matters as the date to start the talks and the site of the talks, to matters concerning preliminary contacts.

[Yu Ho-chun] The KPA Supreme Command's new proposal for peace talks is a very important proposal put forward to ease tension in our country. On many occasions our party and the government of the Republic have stated that our people do not want war and have put forward proposals for peacefully reunifying our country by all means. We have proposed that the talks of the military authorities discuss the issue of halting military exercises and military build up, the issue of reducing troops and armaments, and the issue of observing the Korean Military Armistice Agreement as stipulated by the demands of the original text. This shows once again what great interest the government of our Republic is paying to the relaxation of tension in the country, to the elimination of the danger of war, to peace in our country and, going one step further, to peace in the world, as well as what sincere efforts we are making toward this end.

[Kim Si-kwan] In fact, bringing an end to the acute tension in our country and preventing the danger of war is the most pressing problem. It also is the most pressing issue with regard to the world's political situation.

However, as you know, the situation on the Korean peninsula is now continuously being exacerbated to the point where it is so precarious that a war could break out at any time. The United States and the persons in authority in South Korea have deployed a large number of their armed forces in the forward areas along the demarcation line [pungeyson]. Not only have they increased their mobility, but they have also beefed up nuclear combat capabilities and their commando forces on a large scale. In addition, the United States and the persons in authority in South Korea have ceaselessly shipped into and deployed in South Korea new types of offensive military equipment, including nuclear weapons, and are now maneuvering to send mobile U.S. armed forces from the continental United States and the Pacific region to the Korean front at any given moment. On the other hand, the United States and the persons in authority in South Korea are continuously staging adventurous military exercises targeted against us, deliberately leading the situation to the brink of war.

[Kim Tok-hyon] Just as you said, such military movements developing in South Korea show that the danger of war in Korea is not so much a question of tomorrow as it is a realistic question for today. If a war breaks out in Korea, it would be an all-out war, a three-dimensional war having no distinction between the front and the rear. It is also common knowledge that such a war will escalate into a nuclear war. It is also widely known that if this happens, the war will spread across the boundaries of Korea into a global war.

This being the case, our proposal for holding the talks between military authorities is, I believe, an expression of our efforts to be faithful to the national duty we bear before the Korean people and to be faithful to the cause of peace in Asia and the world.

[Chon Kum-chol] The peace proposal advanced just now is, I believe, a very important proposal for resuming and advancing the North-South dialogue, which is now in a state of suspension. What does summing up of the North-South dialogue show? Simply put, it shows that it is impossible to make any kind of dialogue successful without eliminating the state of military confrontation.

[Unidentified speaker] Experience shows this.

[Chon Kim-chol] As you may know, the Red Cross organizations of the North and South came to have contacts as a result of the delivery of our flood relief to the South Korean flood victims in the fall of 1984, which were followed by the economic talks. Also last year preliminary contacts had been arranged for the North-South parliamentary talks, followed by the mutual visits by the art troupes and home-visiting groups.

In the course of such events, aspirations for reunificiation have surged forward among all our fellow countrymen in the North and South, along with expectations and hope for dialogue. However, the North-South dialogue, having been finally arranged after much haggling, came to a halt as a result of the war maneuvers and military provocations by the United States and the persons in authority in South Korea.

[Yi Hung-hun] As we know very well, the shooting incident in Panmunjom committed in November 1984 by the United States and the South Korean side, the following year's "Team Spirit-85" joint military exercise, and this year's "Team Spirit-86" and the ensuing various types of military exercises that are being held are the important elements that caused such a dialogue to go bankrupt. Such examples can be imagined by the few facts mentioned just now.

[Moderator] They are the major elements that caused the dialogue to halt, that is.

[Yi Nung-hun] That is correct. All kinds of military exercises such as "Team Spirit," "Ttansbol," and "Pangpae" have been staged, and the danger of war has increased. Under these circumstances, how can dialogue be held? Under these circumstances, distrust and animosity cannot be dispelled and progress cannot be made in dialogue and in settling the question of reunification. This time we have proposed the holding of talks between military authorities to seek practical measures for the prevention of the danger of war, for the alleviation of tension in our country, and for practically preserving peace in our country. One of the most important objectives of this proposal is to create a favorable atmosphere for North-South dialogue.

[Chon Kum-chol] That is logically true. For dialogue, hidden daggers must be thrown away. Otherwise, dialogue will only intensify confrontation.

[Moderator] Yes. Indeed, the peace initiative which the KPA Supreme Command has put forth this time is, I think, of great significance in preventing the danger of war on the Korean peninsula, in creating an atmosphere for dialogue and negotiations, and in opening a new aspect for the peaceful reunification of our country. We all regard the peace proposal put forth this time as one of great significance in making the situation of our country peaceful. I think we can say that this peace proposal once again shows the peace-loving stand of our party and the government of the Republic. In this respect, since the beginning of the division of our country, this is the first time in history that a proposal for talks between military authorities in the North and South has been put forth.

[Chon Kum-chol] Yes. From the beginning, to eliminate the danger of war on the Korean peninsula and to basically settle the question of preserving peace, a peace agreement should be concluded between us and the United States and a declaration of nonaggression should be adopted between us and South Korea.

[Moderator] Yes. That is precisely a basic guarantee for solid peace.

[Chon Kum-chol] True. However, as you know, under the circumstances in which the United States and the South Korean authorities have not responded to our proposal for tripartite talks, it is unable to settle the basic question concerning peace on the Korean peninsula at once. In addition, as you know, despite the existence of the Armistice Commission, the contents of the armistice agreement are not properly respected. Moreover, even the firing incident in the JSA [Joint Security Area] in Panmunjom was not properly handled. Thus, it is unbelievable that this commission will fully settle the question of peace in our country. At the same time, we also proposed the holding of North-South parliamentary talks even before the holding of tripartite talks for the alleviation of tension. However, as you know, no substantial progress has been made in this, either. Thus, tripartite talks have not been realized, parliamentary talks have not been realized, and kthe function of the Armistice Commission is not being properly performed.

Under these circumstances, is there any other way to alleviate tension? It is precisely to hold talks between the military authorities in the North and South and to take military measures, as we have proposed this time. However, in holding talks, we do not intend to settle all basic questions concerning peace on the Korean peninsula. We only intend to prevent the danger of war and eliminate the state of military tension. So to speak, we intend to settle the most urgent question first. Thus, we can say that the peace initiative we have put forth this time is, at present, the most realistic way to settle questions.

However, this time, too, despite the fact we have proposed sitting face to face, the U.S. State Department and the persons in authority in South Korea, since the proposal was announced, have taken issue with the proposal, saying that it is a propaganda-oriented proposal, and not a constructive overture. This is viewed as a very rash attitude. Whether this proposal is a propaganda-oriented one or a constructive one can be clarified only by sitting face to face at the place of dialogue. Continuing to sit in a distant place and saying this and that are, I think, not a sincere attitude. Availing myself of this opportunity, I would like advise the U.S. authorities and the South Korean authorities to ponder this more deeply.

[Yi Nung-hun] You ae absolutely right. The peace proposal which the KPA Supreme Command has put forth this time is a fair and most just one, acceptable to anyone because of its sincerity and generosity. In putting forth this proposal now, we have not insisted on acceptance of our demands. As we all know, with regard to the question to be discussed at the talks, in addition to the questions which we have put forth, we have expressed our willingness to discuss questions put forth by the opposite side if they help the alleviation of tension on the Korean peninsula. Thus, we have expressed our most flexible and generous stand. Therefore, if the United States and the South Korean side truly desire the alleviation of tension in our country and are interested in dialogue and reunification, they must accept the proposal we have put forth this time.

[Chon Kum-chol] You are right. Historically, the United States and the South Korean authorities have accepted none of our repeated proposals for peace and the alleviation of tension, not to mention our proposal for the reunification of the fatherland. Instead, under the facade of the threat of southward invasion, they have continued to aggravate the situation in our country. However, as we have put forth the new proposal this time for holding talks between military authorities in the North and South for taking military measures, they are unable to continue to talk about the thread-bare excuse of the threat of southward invasion; this will not work anymore.

[Moderator] You are absolutely right. It can be said that they now have no excuse whatsoever.

[Chon Kum-chol] Meanwhile, as you know, in South Korea at present the youths, students, and people are strongly demanding the U.S. liquidation of nuclear weapons and U.S. troop withdrawal. What does this mean? This means that, in our country, the danger of war is not from the North but is produced by the U.S. imperialists' occupation of South Korea and their policy of war.

[Yi Nung-hun] That is absolutely correct. The peace initiative which the KPA Supreme Command has put forth this time has, it can be said, clearly showed through practical example that our party and the government of the republic desire not war but peace, and are making all sincere efforts for peace.

[Kim Si-kwan] True. Settling questions in a peaceful way through dialogue and negotiation is the unchanging stand and policy of our party and the government of the republic.

[Chon Kum-chol] You are right. As in the past, our party and the government of the republic will continue to make sincere efforts to settle the question of peace and the reunification of the country through dialogue and negotiation, and will make all sincere efforts to realize the talks between the military authorities in the North and South in accordance with the KPA Supreme Command's peace initiative.

[Moderator] I believe you will win even greater success in your work to successfully implement the KPA Supreme Command's new peace initiative and to achieve the peaceful reunification of our country. We will now end our roundtable talk here. Thank you.

[All participants] Thank you.

SO YUN-SOK, KPA OFFICER ADDRESS PYONGYANG RALLY

SK262300 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0857 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Excerpts] [Female announcer] We will now carry live coverage of the Pyongyang municipal mass rally marking the day of the 25 June anti-U.S. imperialist struggle.

[Male announcer] I am reporting from Kim Il-song Square. In a short while, here in Kim Il-song Square, the Pyongyang municipal mass rally marking the day of the 25 June anti-U.S. imperialist struggle will begin.

The vast area of the plaza is packed with the working people of various strata of the city and youths and students who have gathered in the plaza with seething enmity against the U.S. imperialist aggressors and their stooges, the Chon Tu-hwan puppet rascals, who turned our fatherland into a sea of flames and imposed indescribable agonies and disasters on our people 36 years ago and who are still running amok in trying to plunge this soil into the sea of flames of a new nuclear war.

Hung among the masses are slogans reading "Let us overthrow the U.S. imperialist aggressors, the implacable enemy of the Korean people!", "Let us overthrow the fascist Chon Tu-hwan military clique!", "The U.S. imperialist aggressors, withdraw from South Korea at once!", "Let us smash the Chon Tu-hwan military clique!", "Let us repel the U.S. imperialists and achieve the reunification of the fatherland!", Let us frustrate and thwart the schemes for the U.S.-Japan-South Korean puppet clique triangular military alliance and achieve the reunification of the fatherland!", and "Let us firmly defend and thoroughly implement the three principles of the fatherland's reunification and accelerate independent and peaceful reunification!"

Hung on the walls of the tall, multi-storied buildings around the plaza, where hundreds of red banners are fluttering, and among the masses in the plaza are slogans reading "Let us bring about great new revolutionary gains on all fronts of socialist construction by upholding the leadership of the party!", "We actively support and encourage the anti-U.S. and antifascist struggle of the South Korean youths, students, and people!", "Let us achieve the historic cause of the fatherland's reunification by the concentrated efforts of the whole nation!", and "Let us smash the U.S. imperialists' war maneuers and defend world peace and security!"

At the same time, at various places in the plaza are large posters depicting the firm determination of our people to strengthen the revolutionary base of the northern half of the Republic like a rock, and to achieve the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland without fail.

This battle will be waged by following the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the glorious party center, by holding aloft the banner of the three revolutions -- ideological, technological, and cultural -- and by vigorously accelerating socialist construction with the speed of Chollima.

On the front stage are seated functionaries of the party and power organs and the administrative and economic organizations; functionaries of the public organizations and the areas of science, education, culture and the arts, health, and publication; functionaries of the news media organizations; and KPA general grade officers and company and field grade officers. Also seated there are the members of the various Chongnyon groups now on visits to the socialist fatherland, the members of many foreign delegations now on visits to our country, diplomatic representatives of foreign countries in our country, staff members of the foreign embassies, foreign visitors, foreign reporters, and foreign students.

Comrades Pak Song-chol, Kim Yong-nam, Kim Hwan, O Kuk-yol, and So Yun-sok, members of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee; Comrades Kye Ung-tae, Chong Chun-ki, and Kang Hui-won, alternate members of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee; Chon Mun-sop, chairman of the State Inspection Commission; Chong Sin-hyok, chairman of the Chondoist Chongu Party; Kim Tae-sop, vice chairman of the Korean Social Democratic Party; responsible functionaries of the public organizations and publication and news media organizations; heores and labor heroes of the Republic; and representatives of various strata were seated in the seats at the front of the stage.

[Unidentified speaker] We will now begin the Pyongyang municipal mass rally marking the day of the 25 June anti-U.S. imperialist struggle. [Playing of the DPRK national anthem]

[Unidentified speaker] Comrade So Yun-sok, member of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee, responsible secretary of the Pyongyang municipal Party committee, and chairman of the People's Committee of Pyongyang City, will now speak. [applause]

Comrades: Today, under the grave circumstances in which the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique are intensifying, more than ever before, the anti-republic commotions and new provocation maneuvers, we are holding the Pyongyang municipal mass rally marking the day of the 25 June anti-U.S. imperialist struggle.

On 25 June 36 years ago, the U.S. imperialist aggressors, the implacable enemy of the Korean people, by instigating the puppet clique, provoked the criminal war of aggression to eliminate our young republic in its infancy and bring the whole of Korea under their control in order to realize their wild ambition to conquer the world.

The Korean war ignited by the U.S. imperialists was the most shameless and brigandish war of aggression ever seen in the history of international warfare, and was the most bestial war of slaughter.

To swallow our republic whole, the U.S. imperialists hurled into the Korean war vast troops numbering some 2 million' the large portion of their Army, Navy, and Air Force armed with modern equipment; and the troops of the 15 countries that followed them and the South Korean puppet troops. At the same time, they hurled into the war more than $20 billion in military expenditures and some 73 million tons of war materiel. By dropping some 448,000 tons of bombs, the U.S. imperialist aggressors turned the urban and rural areas of the nortern half into ashes and committed the atrocities of indiscriminately killing peaceful residents by using even germ warfare and chemical weapons. [shouting of slogans]

In this, the city of Pyongyang alone, they dropped some 408,700 bombs, more than one bomb per citizen, and literally turned the whole city into a ravaged area without a single house or a single tree. Indeed, the disasters that the U.S. imperialist beasts imposed on our people were indescribable, and the wounds of our fatherland were indescribably miserable. However, in this war, the ones who suffered the bitterness of defeat were the U.S. imperialists, and the ones who won victory were our Korean people who fought for the just cause.

Under the outstanding and tested leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the ever-victorious iron-willed commander and great military strategist, our people and the People's Army united firmly and fully displayed their incomparable gallantry and mass heroism. By so doing, they smashed the upturned noses of the U.S. imperialists, who were bragging of being the most powerful in the world, and thereby honorably defended the freedom and independence of the fatherland. [applause]

The historic victory that our people won in the fatherland liberation war fully showed that the people of a small country can defeat the powerful imperialist enemy if they fight by uniting under the wise leadership of a great leader.

For the first time in history, our people inflicted a shameful defeat on the U.S. imperialist aggressors. By so doing, they gave great encouragement and confidence in victory to the oppressed peoples and peace-loving peoples of the world and opened a new global era for new upsurges in the anti-imperialist and anti-U.S. struggle, thus making the current of independence flow even more torrentially. [applause]

Comrades, more than 30 years have passed since the U.S. imperialists knelt before the Korean people and suffered shameful defeat. However, the U.S. imperialists are still continuing the occupation of South Korea and imposing the fate of colonial slavery on our compatriots in the South, while running amok in trying to ignite the kindling of a new war of aggression -- a nuclear war -- in Korea.

In particular, the U.S. imperialists' maneuvers of aggression and war are reaching an even more reckless stage.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Today, the Korean peninsula is a place where the greatest danger of war exists in the world.

To realize its aggressive strategy in Asia, the United States is accelerating the U.S.-Japan-South Korea triangular military alliance. It has turned South Korea into a huge nuclear armory and is frequently staging large-scale war exercises in order to perfect preparations for a nuclear war in South Korea. Because of this, a very dangerous situation in which a nuclear war can break out at any moment is being created in our country.

Proceeding from the significance of the military and strategic position which South Korea assumes in the realization of U.S. strategy in Asia, the imperialists, who cannot live even a day without aggression and war, openly declared that the Korean peninsula is the front line of U.S. strategy and a vital operational area. They are now becoming even more feverish in seeking the expansion of an armaments and military buildup.

The U.S. warmongers are ceaselessly introducing newly developed nuclear weapons and chemical weapons into South Korea, where some 1,000 nuclear weapons of various kinds and nuclear delivery means have already been deployed.

By so doing, they are turning South Korea into the greatest nuclear armory in the Far East packed with tactical nuclear weapons, strategic nuclear weapons, ground nuclear weapons, sea and air nuclear weapons, and all kinds of nuclear warheads and nuclear delivery means.

In addition, on the pretext of the modernization of the South Korean puppet army, during the past 5 years alone, the U.S. imperialists have turned over ultramodern lethal weapons and operational equipment worth $1 billion to the puppets. At the same time, during the period of 1985 through 1989, they are planning to turn over more ultramodern fighters, missiles, all kinds of radar systems, and chemical weapons to them.

The U.S. warmongers have set forth the so-called "quick war, quick conclusion" plan to invade the northern half of our Republic and the socialist countries of Asia. At the same time, they have carried out the forward deployment of moe than 80 to 90 percent of the U.S. aggression forces and the puppet armed forces in the combat areas close to the Military Demarcation Line, while drastically enhancing their maneuverability. They are strengthening nuclear combat capabilities and drastically increasing commando forces.

On the nonsensical pretext of the threat of southward invasion and armed provocation, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets are drastically beefing up the forces of aggression in South Korea while more frequently staging military exercises to provoke a nuclear war.

The "Team Spirit-86" joint military exercise staged from February through April fully showed how recklessly the U.S. imperialists are running amok in perfecting their offensive operational capabilities to invade the northern half of the Republic and in trying to implement plans for a nuclear war.

The U.S. imperialists and the South Korea puppets have declared that they will continue this "Team Spirit" joing military exercise, and are staging various large-scale military exercises every day, postulating a northward invasion.

In our country, as the schemes for a U.S.-Japan-South Korea triangular military alliance are reaching an implementing stage and as the plot to bring the Japanese Self-Defense Forces into the Korean front in time of an emergency is being actively hatched, the danger of a nuclear war is reaching an even more grave stage.

Because of the reckless war policy sought by the U.S. imperialists and their stooges, today on the Korean peninsula tension is being heightened with each passing day and the danger of a nuclear war is growing. As a result, a grave situation in which any accidental incident on the tense Military Demarcation Line can ignite a war is being created.

In an attempt to force a criminal war policy on the South Korean people, the U.S. imperialists have maintained the most wicked military and fascist rule and have instigated the South Korean puppets to seek not reconciliation and unity but enmity and confrontation.

The military and fascist dictatorial system in South Korea is the product of the U.S. imperialist colonial rule and war policy, and is thoroughly assuming an antinational nature and an unprecedentedly outrageous, barbarous, and wicked nature.

Because of the maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and their stooges for aggression, war, fascism, and division, the South Korean people's national sovereignty and democratic freedom and rights have been trampled under mercilessly, and the cause of peace and the peaceful reunification of our country has faced a much more grave obstacle.

On behalf of this meeting and with surging national indignation, I bitterly denounce the U.S. imperialists, the arch-enemy, and the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique, their stooges, for inflicting immeasurable disasters and misfortunes on our people in the 3-year-long war and for clinging to maneuvers for confrontation, fascism, and division in South Korea while frantically running amok to impose the disasters of nuclear and chemical wars on our people today. [Shouts]

In order to eliminate the danger of war on the Korean peninsula and to expedite the country's peaceful reunification, we should ease tension for the time being. Without ending the state of tension that has intensified with the passage of time, we cannot take measures for resuming the suspended North-South dialogue, nor can we resolve the question of improving relations between the North and South and open a new phase to achieve a way to prevent the approaching danger of war on the Korean peninsula at present and a shortcut toward opening a new phase to achieve peace and peaceful reunification.

Proceeding from the stand of easing acute tension on the Korean peninsula and for ending the state of confrontation, the KPA Supreme Command recently advanced a new and important proposal for holding talks by persons in military authority among the DPRK minister of the People's Armed Forces, the commander of the Combined Forces Command in South Korea, and the South Korean defense minister, and has taken measures for sending letters containing concrete proposals in this regard to the opposite sides, respectively.

Our new proposal for holding talks among persons in military authority is a just proposal reflecting the consistent and peace-loving stand of the WPK and the government of the republic towards taking all possible measures for preventing the danger of war at hand and for easing tension, even though the basic question of immediately guaranteeing peace cannot be resolve. It is a most rational proposal designed to provide the atmosphere of peace and peaceful reunification by resuming the presently suspended North-South dialogue.

Our new peace proposal for holding the talks among persons in military authority reflects the unanimous desire of the Korean people for easing tension on the Korean peninsula and our sincere and peace-loving efforts to find a way to resolve questions outside the MAC under the circumstances where it has failed to assume its proper role. Because of this, no sooner had the peace proposal of the KPA Supreme Command been advanced than the governments, social circles, and public opinion in various countries of the world, including the socialist countries, positively supported and welcomed this proposal.

The United States and the South Korean side should not ignore this stark reality. If they truly desire dialogue and peace, they should carefully deal with our rational proposal for holding talks among persons in military authority and should accept this proposal.

However, while scurrying around various placed at home and abroad without really showing sincerity toward our new and important peace proposal, the United States and the South Korean authorities have taken an unjust stand opposing the alleviation of tension and toward avoiding dialogue.

We are astonished by the refusal of the United States and the South Korean ruling bunch to accept the proposal for holding talks by persons in military authority after boycotting our proposal for holding tripartite talks to realize the alleviation of tension and to achieve peace and after assuming a stand toward actually avoiding parliamentary talks last year. We will never approve their stand toward negating dialogue and peace.

We once again strongly demand that the United States and the South Korean authorities abandon their erroneous attitude of blindly opposing our peace proposal without sitting face to face with us and carefully deal with the peace proposal of the KPA Supreme Command.

In order to eliminate the source of war on the Korean peninsula and to guarantee durable peace there, U.S. forces should withdraw from South Korea in accordance with the decision of the UN General Assembly, and the country's independent and peaceful reunification should be achieved. The occupation of South Korea by U.S. forces is a basic obstacle to peace and the peaceful reunification of the Korean peninsula and is the cause of tension and war. The U.S. forces occupying South Korea should be withdrawn unconditionally and immediately along with their nuclear weapons. The U.S. domination of an interference in the internal affairs of Korea should end at the earliest possible date.

We heartily support and welcome the 24 June statement of the government of the republic calling for the establishment of a nuclear-free peace zone on the Korean peninsula and demand that all the rational proposals contained in this statement be implemented without delay.

The United States should draw a lesson from the disgraceful and miserable defeat that it suffered in the Korean war, should not seek an adventurous war any longer, and should return home before being banished from South Korea by the people's struggle. [shouts]

Making South Korean society independent and democratizing it is a prerequisite for achieving the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification. The courageous anti-U.S. and antifascist struggle of the South Korean students and people in the face of intensified fascist tyranny is a just and patriotic struggle to regain the usurped dignity and sovereignty of the people and to achieve democracy and the country's peaceful reunification. [applause]

As members of a homogeneous people, we extend support and encouragement out of warm love for our fellow countrymen, to the workers, peasants, students, intellectuals, religious figures, and democrats in South Korea, who are unyieldingly struggling to make South Korea independent, to democratize it, and to achieve the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification.

We will never tolerate the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique's antinational act of violating human rights -- the act of unjustly suppressing the students and people by linking them with us under the pretext of the nonexistent threat of southward invasion and by crowning them with the cap of tolerating communists. We demand that this act stop without delay.

Availing ourselves of this opportunity, we expect that the governments, political parties, and organizations of all the countries of the world; international agencies; and the peace-loving people of the world will continuously and vigorously support and encourage our new peace proposal for alleviating tension and the struggle of the Korean people to achieve the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification. At the same time, we firmly believe that they will extend much more powerful solidarity with the anti-U.S. and antifascist struggle of the South Korean people and students. [applause]

Today all the people of the northern half of the Republic are assigned the weighty but honorable task of much more vigorously accelerating socialist construction by smashing the maneuvers of the U.S. imperialist aggressors to provoke a new war and of expediting the historic cause of achieving the fatherland's reunification.

Upholding the militant task set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his New Year's message and at the 11th plenary session of the sixth party Central Committee, all workers should bring about a new, greater upsurge and innovations on all fronts of socialist construction by much more vigorously carrying out the three revolutions -- ideological, technological, and cultural. [applause]

All workers and officers and men of the People's Army should assume a vigilant posture for mobilization to meet the requirements of the current situation, should firmly defend the socialist fatherland and the revolutionary gains, and should be fully prepared to defeat and repel the enemy at a stroke if it recklessly provokes us. There will always be victories and glory on the future path of our people who, holding the great leader in high esteem, are following the wise leadership of the party. [applause]

Let us all firmly unite around the party Central Committee led by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and advance much more vigorously to achieve the fatherland's independent and peaceful reunification and to complete the chuche revolutionary cause. [shouts and applause]

The next speaker will be Comrade Chong Chol, KPA security officer of the MAC, who was felled by the bullets of the U.S. imperialist beasts during the Panmunjom shooting incident perpetrated by the U.S. imperialist aggressors, and who returned to the guardpost. [applause]

I am a KPA sentry who was felled by the bullets of the U.S. imperialist enemy during the Panmunjom shooting incident, which enraged our people so much 22 years ago.

The U.S. imperialist murderer villians attempted to make me fall for good, shooting hundreds of bullets at me, but because I could not die without taking revenge on the sworn enemy U.S. imperialist aggressors a hundred and thousand-fold, I overcame death and stood in the sentry post again. [applause]

Still flowing together in my heart is the blood of comrades (Hong Song-mun Kyi Chong-chun), and (Kim Chong-chol), my comrades-in-arms who were ruthlessly murdered by the devilish U.S. murderers, and I still hear their loud cry at the last moment when they fell, urging a struggle at the cost of our lives for the great leader and the party center.

On the morning of 23 November 1984, we were on duty for the security of Panmunjom, full of resolve to defend the (?frontline) of the fatherland in a dependable manner. On that day, the U.S. imperialist aggressor forces dragged [Mr Hanby] who was observing the meeting site of Panmunjom [?abruptly] across the (?central) demarcation line.

We immediately rushed to protect his personal security. This was a proper act of a security guard, who is responsible for the order and (?security) of the Joint Security Area. Despite this, the U.S. imperialist aggressor troops, in wanton violation of the Korean Armistice Agreement, shot at the security guards at random with M-16 automatic rifles, machine guns, and launchers [as heard]. Because of their savage attack, our valuable Comrades-in-arms, including Comrade (Hong Song-mun), were killed. [chanting of slogan]

This barbarous murder committed by the U.S. imperialists and their stooges was an intentional provocation maneuver to aggravate tension in our country and to frustrate the North-South dialogue. Nevertheless, the U.S. imperialist aggressor troops shamelessly attempted to shift the blame for the incident onto us, like a thief turning on the victim. The U.S. imperialist aggressor troops, reversing truth and falsehood, raved that we invaded the South, while they provoked the Korean war 36 years ago, and maneuvered wickedly to shift the blame onto us for the (?18) August Panmunjom incident.

As a victim who personally witnessed and experienced the U.S. imperialist aggressors' bestial barbarity, I accuse them loudly to the entire world. The U.S. imperialist aggressors are bloodthirsty beasts, violators of the Korean Armistice Agreement, and the heinous disturbers of peace. [chanting of slogans]

Comrades: Although a paradise has been built and happiness is in bloom, do not think that everything is accomplished easily. At this moment the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique, deploying 80 to 90 percent of their aggressive armed forces along the 600-ri Military Demarcation Line, are continuously waging provocations for northward invasion. Taking the statistics exposed at the MAC meetings held in Panmunjom, the armed provocations committed by the U.S. imperialist aggressors for some 30 years after the war numbered (?several) hundred cases, and the violations of the armistice agreement numbered some 438,000 instances. This is clear proof that the U.S. imperialists' provocation maneuvers have continued every day.

As a sentry belonging to the MAC in Panmunjom, the most critical point in North-South confrontation, I will not lay down the gun of revolution until I deal a hard blow of retaliation to the aggressors and traitors. The U.S. imperialists, the aggressors and occupiers, should not act recklessly. The U.S. imperialists should squarely observe the will of our Korean people and KPA soldiers, who are determined to be one worth a hundred, and immediately withdraw from South Korea, taking along their aggressive forces and nuclear weapons which they have illegally brought into South Korea. If they do not withdraw of their own accord, they will be burned to death for good in the blaze of the South Korean people's powerful anti-U.S. struggle for independence.

Our sentries of one worth a hundred, as they have done up to now, will uphold the outstanding military ideology and leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the ever-victorious iron-willed brave general, will defend all the sentry posts of the fatherland like fortresses, and will defend the socialist fatherland in a dependable manner. [chanting of slogans]

PARIS PAPER VIEWS BALANCE OF TIES TO USSR, PRC

PM241427 Paris LE MONDE in French 21 Jun 86 p 4

[Patrice De Beer disptach: "North Korea Between Beijing and Moscow" -- first two paragraphs are editorial introduction]

[Text] On Wednesday 18 June South Korea rejected a North Korean proposal for high-level tripartite military negotiations. The South Korean defense minister made it known that this proposal did not strike him as "worthy of attention" and portrayed it as "a hackneyed propaganda maneuver aimed at avoiding responsibility for the breakdown in North-South dialogue."

Pyongyang proposed on Tuesday the opening of negotiations between the commander of the American forces in South Korea and the defense ministers from the South and the North to halt military maneuvers, reduce arms, and achieve more stringent respect for the armistice agreement.

Beijing -- The North Koreans have taken a step forward following their sudden decision to break off preliminary talks with the South last spring to protest against the joint American-South Korean maneuvers ("Team Spirit") on and around the peninsula.

The fact that Seoul has rejected the new offer does not alter the fact that the North's gesture was welcomed by Beijing. It is a "constructive proposal for reducing tension," XINHUA writes, and this stance is particularly important because Beijing criticizes Marshal Kim Il-song for both his inflexible attitude to the South and his rapprochement with the Soviet Union.

Last fall a Chinese leadership member went so far as to say that Pyongyang was "not yet" the "fourth obstacle" (in the political dispute) between China and the USSR....North Korea, one of the most closed countries in the workd, criticizes China for the pressures exerted in favor of an "open" political and economic policy similar to the one implemented by Deng Xiaoping, its fruitful (unofficial) commercial relations with Seoul, and its good relations with the American "enemy."

A visit to North Korea shows the extent to which relations, which are apparently excellent, have deteriorated in recent years. Since the early eighties the room in the big Pyongyang museum devoted to Chinese aid has been locked and is opened only to Chinese visitors. In the Panmunjom museum there is no indication, either, that millions of Chinese "volunteers" took part in the war alongside the North. These are symbolic "details."

Without going into detail about Pyongyang's relations with Beijing and Moscow, an official spokesman expressed the view that his country is "surrounded" by the big powers: the USSR, China, Japan, and the United States. "We have close relations with the USSR and China," he said. "This is very important, but we can give priority to either."

"Of course," the spokesman continued, "there are differences of opinion on various problems but, on the whole, we agree." "Our relations with these two countries not mathematical...."But fundamentally "nothing has changed," he said.

[De Beer] Surely the number and quality of delegations making exchange visits to Moscow and Pyongyang has been higher recently than with Beijing?

[Answer] "Things cannot be balanced from day to day." However, "Korea is not in the Soviet camp."

A well-placed observer in Pyongyang had a different tune. According to him North Korea has recently moved much closer to the USSR, apparently on the initiatiave of Marshal Kim Il-song's son and appointed successor. Moscow offers more sophisticated weapons, whereas Beijing's main concern is to reduce tension on the peninsula. A sign of this rapprochement with the Kremlin or of the latter's pressures on Pyongyang can be found in the treatment given to Prince Sihanouk: Although the North Koreans still recognize his regime, probably because of his personal ties with the "Great Leader," they keep him out of the way, isolated in his residence and ignored by the media.

However, according to other diplomats, this change in North Korean diplomacy is less pro-Soviet than it seems: It is more a matter of loosening excessively close ties with an egotistical China which has lost its revolutionary virtue and generosity and moving toward a Kremlin which is prepared to make many concessions to establish closer ties.

KIM YONG-SAM DISCUSSES CONSTITUTION REVISION

SK010114 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 1 Jul 86 p 5

[By Kim Sung-pok]

[Text] The politics in Korea stands at a crossroad. Rival parties have agreed to rewrite the Constitution, but they are still poles apart about a new government structure.

Kim Yong-sam, who has been a helmsman for the nation's political opposition for the past decade, spoke of the direction of the constitutional revision and his views on other major issues in an interview with THE KOREA TIMES yesterday.

In the hour-long conversation at his private office, the National Affairs Research Institute, in Mugyo-dong, he said emphatically that the direct presidential election system is a "national consensus" from which the NDP cannot back off.

He asserted that President Chon Tu-hwan would not try to run for another term in the next election under a new Constitution, when his term in office expires in 1988. Kim considers Democratic Justice Party chairman No Tae-u as Chon's successor.

He made it clear that he will meet No to discuss political affairs but suggested that he meet the other opposition leader Kim Tae-chung first.

Despite all the recent developments including the formation of a special House panel for the amendment, the opposition party will continue its petition campaign to gather signatures for constitutional reforms, he said.

He stressed that he is no longer coveteous of becoming a president. His only ambition is to become a person who contributes to the "democratization" of the nation. The following are the excerpts of questions and answers.

Q: What's the prospect of the just-born special parliamentary committee for constitutional amendment?

A: There are many mountains and rivers to climb and cross before the special body. But the beginning is half. The creation of the ad hoc panel itself is an inception of a great work.

Q: How many "political prisoners" should be freed before the panel gets down to business?

A: It is difficult to specify the number, but the government should release them "boldly" in the spirit of reconciliation. Of course, we do not designate a certain person for release.

Q: Are you confident of making the direct presidential voting formula adoptable in the new basic law?

A: We pushed the system as campaign promise (in the Feb. 12, 1985 elections) and the majority of the people supported it. I think the system represents national consensus. The DJP should accept the people's opinion in a humble manner. If the DJP plays tricks in amending the Constitution to remain in power, it would be making a serious mistake.

Q: Do you think it is possible to write a new Constitution in an agreement between the rival parties?

A: I think it is possible. As I've often said, the DJP should prepare itself to stand in the opposition camp. If the DJP has such a resolve, I think it is not impossible to reach an accord.

Q: You make it sound as if the revision of the supreme law has to be made in such a way to give a victory to the NDP.

A: If I do sound so, it is because the NDP has fortunately put forth the direct popular vote which is desired by the majority of the people. I heard that the DJP kicked off a publicity campaign against the system. It is a very foolish thing and I think it is impossible (to change the public opinion).

Q: Will the NDP start a publicity drive to counter the DJP's?

A: Of course we will. But it is too sultry now. We're considering when we should start it. I think that to hold 'reporting sessions' at local chapters across the nation is a very good method.

Q: Do you mean the NDP will resume the outdoor struggle? Will it not affect the mood of compromise?

(At this point, Kim joked, "I should not say everything to The Korea Times." Then he was all smiles and resumed his talks after a brief pause.)

A: I think that the NDP should harmonize dialogue with struggle. We should neither give up dialogue nor struggle. As you know, the NDP has started the signature-garnering campaign, demanding a constitutional revision. This will continue until the amendment is completed.

Q: What do you have to say about Prime Minister No Sin-yong's remarks at a House interpellation session that President Chon will have the same duty and right as a common citizen after his term expires in 1988? (Kim seemed not to follow the question immediately.) Premier No said so in reply to an opposition lawmaker's question as to the eligibility of President Chon for another term of presidency under a new Constitution.

A: President Chon said there is lots of time before he will leave his office in 1988. If he takes the office again, can the people understand? I think it is right for him to quit resolutely. It will be glorious for the sake of the nation and for himself.

Q: Do you have any intention to meet DJP chairman No if there is a proposal?

A: No, I don't. I suspect that the government plots to create a rift between Mr. Kim Tae-chung and myself. But I think it is good for No to meet Mr. Kim Tae-chung first and me afterwards. (After several seconds, he added, "I've never received an official proposal from him.")

Q: Do you consider chairman No as the successor to President Chon?

A: Yes, I do. At this moment, I think it is right to think so. Because the successor will not be made overnight....But I don't mean that he will necessarily be the next power-holder.

Q: Do you really have no selfish desire to take the supreme power as you have repeatedly declared?

A: I wish that what I have said would be accepted sincerely. My only desire is to make a great contribution to the democratization of our nation.

Q: NDP president Yi Min-u has also said that he had no selfish idea...

A: Let's not say now about who will become the opposition candidate for presidency. The problem at this moment is whether democracy will be achieved or not.

Q: What do you think about the growing anti-American sentiment among students?

A: I think that the anti-American movement should not take place, but the DJP has to analyze humbly why such sentiment came into existence. It stemmed from the frustration of students whom the current regime oppressed too much. The students believe that the United States supports the dictatorial rule of this nation.

The Philippines was a country where anti-Americanism was highest among Asian nations. But I heard from a person who has just returned from a visit to that country that it has dwindled and almost dissipated after democracy was restored. I know the students also criticize the NDP. But I think that they do so because they have affection for the NDP. So, the NDP should turn its ears to them.

Q: There is a criticism that the opposition leaders try to rely on foreign influence, especially that the United States, in their efforts to achieve democracy.

A: I never asked the United States, neither officially nor privately, to help us achieve democracy here. If one believes that America brings democracy, it is a great misconcept.

NO MASS RELEASE OF 'POLITICAL DETAINEES' PLANNED

SK010125 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 1 Jul 86 p 8

[Text] Minister of Justice Kim Song-ki said yesterday that the government is not considering the release of the "political detainees" on package basis on the forthcoming occasions of the Constitution Day on July 17 or the National Liberation Day on Aug. 15.

He said the release of those detained for political reasons is a matter to be decided upon "on individual basis."

In an interview with the Seoul Sinmun, a vernacular daily, Kim said, "The government is prepared to exercise utmost leniency for them in accordance with the spirit of 'grand compromise' between rival political parties."

However, it is inconceivable to release a great number of detainees without considering proper legal procedures, Kim said.

HENG SAMRIN SPEAKS AT KPRP ANNIVERSARY MEETING

BK290738 Phnom Penh SPK in English 0501 GMT 29 Jun 86

[Text] Phnom Penh SPK June 28 -- Following are the excerpts of the commemorative speech delivered at the Phnom Penh meeting this morning to honour the party's 35th founding anniversary by General Secretary Heng Samrin:

"...It was exactly 35 years ago that the resolution of the 2nd Congress of the Indochinese Communist Party (ICP) held in February, 1951, was implemented. The ICP's committee in charge of Kampuchea convened a session and decided to form a party in Kampuchea called the Khmer People's Revolutionary Party. This session was considered as the first congress. [no closing quotation mark as received]

We are always proud to recall that our party was originated from the Indochinese Communist Party, founded and forged by President Ho Chi Minh, which has left a fine tradition for our three brotherly parties: the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea, the Communist Party of Vietnam and the Lao People's Revolutionary Party. That is the tradition of being absolutely loyal to Marxism-Leninism, loyal to the homeland and the people, loyal to the proletarian internationalism and to the alliance of the three countries in Indochina.

History over the past 35 years, fraught with many difficulties and trials for our party, has clearly shown that: The victories and glory of our people in the two wars of resistance against the French colonialists and U.S. imperialists have been closely associated with the preservation and promotion of that tradition by our party. When the Pol Pot reactionaries usurped the party's leadership and betrayed that tradition, the catastrophe of horrible genocide came and prevailed over our entire nation. After the historic victory of January 7, 1979, with the wholehearted and sincere support from the Communist Party of Vietnam, our party has been rebuilt in conformity with the fine tradition of the Indochinese Communist Party. Since then, our country has been quickly resurrected. The Kampuchean revolution has gained successive victories and been in a stronger position than ever.

From the victories and glory of the Kampuchean revolution as well as from the dreadful holocaust brought to our people by the Pol Pot clique, we can draw great lessons for the party building.

1 -- First of all, cadres and party members must have a sentimental link with the working class and labourers and have knowledge of Marxist-Leninist theory. Profiting from the situation that our party had been founded in the difficult condition of the struggle against the French colonialists and had not been able to educate its members in Marxism-Leninism, the Pol Pot traitors introduced Maoism into the party life. While in power, they annihilated the Kampuchean working class -- the class basis of a Marxist-Leninist party. Since then they turned our party into a reactionary "Angkar" (organization)...

2 -- The admission of new members must be based on the criteria stipulated in the party statute. Party members should be conscious of the working class position and voluntarily struggle under the party's banner of national independence and socialism, genuine patriotism and international solidarity.

3 -- The party committee at all levels must be restructured so as to ensure the party's leadership. Each party committee must be a center of solidarity and a bright example in actions for its entire party organization.

4 -- Importance must be attached to the consolidation and the development of all party cells so as to make the party deeply rooted in the masses.

5 -- To firmly maintain the principle of democratic centralization, to constantly enhance the party unity, in its will, its organizations and its actions.

6 -- To constantly promote the spirit of criticism and self-criticism which are considered the law of development for the party.

Over the past seven years we have recorded many brilliant successes. We have defeated the enemy's schemes of subversion, thus firmly defending the national independence and revolutionary gains. We have gradually restored economy step by step, stabilized the people's life and have built a new culture. We have also built our own revolutionary forces first of all rebuilding our party into a decisive factor for the victory of the Kampuchean revolution.

That is the victory of national unity and international solidarity, first of all the solidarity between Kampuchea and Vietnam and the solidarity among Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos.

On this solemn anniversary, on behalf of our party and state, we would like to commend our revolutionary and [as received] forces upon their courageous struggle to defend the motherland and people.

We highly commend the workers, peasants, intellectuals, youth, women, people of all ethnic and religious groups upon their contributions to the victory of our revolution.

We highly praise the Vietnamese volunteer army and experts, the experts from the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries, who have been working shoulder to shoulder with our compatriots and combatants in the struggle for national independence and happiness of the Kampuchean people.

We express gratitude to all combatants who, during the last 35 years, sacrificed their lives for the prosperity of our homeland and nation. Also, we are determined to follow their bright examples...

We are very proud of the strategic alliance among the three Indochinese countries which have constituted an outpost of socialism in Southeast Asia and a decisive factor for the trend toward peace, stability and cooperation in the region.

On this solemn occasion, on behalf of the party, the state, and people, we would like to sincerely thank the parties, the states, and peoples of Vietnam and Laos, of the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries as well as all our friends, who have actively supported our revolutionary cause.

The goal of our strategic tasks is to firmly defend the national independence and build the Kampuchean motherland step by step through the period of transition towards socialism, that is the bright future of the Kampuchean homeland. That is the happiness of the Kampuchean workers and people. How treacherous all their schemes are the Beijing hegemonists and expansionists, the U.S. imperialists, the reactionaries in the Thai ruling circles and all kinds of Khmer reactionaries can never be able to divert us from those tasks.... PRACHEACHON MARKS KPRP FOUNDING ANNIVERSARY [Text] Phnom Penh SPK June 27 -- The entire party, the entire Army and people of Kampuchea are greatly delighted at and proud of all their successes in the past years in implementing the resolution of Fifth Congress of the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea [PRPK] which has constituted a new turning point in Kampuchea's political life, economic and cultural development as well," says biweekly PRACHEACHON (PEOPLE) in an editorial, marking the 35th P.R.P.K. anniversary (June 28).

PRACHEACHON, the party paper, continues: "Thirty-five years ago on June 18, 1951 the Khmer People's Revolutionary Party, the forerunner of the current People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea, was founded to carry forward the glorious tradition of the Indochinese Communist Party with Ho Chi Minh as the first founder.

"In its 35 years of revolutionary activities, the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea, in close cooperation with the Communist Party of Vietnam and the Lao People's Revolutionary Party has led the Kampuchean people through many difficulties and trials in the struggle against the French colonialists, the U.S. imperialists, then the genocidal regime of Pol Pot, Ieng Sary and Khieu Samphan, lackeys of the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists, for national independence, freedom and well-being of our peoples.

"Since the overthrow of the genocidal regime of Pol Pot on January 7, 1979, the P.R.P.K., loyal to Marxism-Leninism, has gradually developed in all domains, ensuring its leading role of the Kampuchean revolution."

The paper further notes: "Over the past years, the Kampuchean revolution has seen many great changes and all-sided developments with its foreign policy of peace, friendship and cooperation. The international prestige of the People's Republic of Kampuchea has constantly risen.

"All the great successes have proved correct the party's political line in enhancing the firm solidarity and unity between the Kampuchean Army and people around the party.

"These have also shown the growing special solidarity, militant alliance and multiform cooperation between the parties, the states and peoples of Kampuchea and Vietnam as well as among the three Indochinese countries. These successes have also stemmed from the assistance and support of all countries in the socialist community, with the Soviet Union as the mainstay, and of the progressive mankind in the world."

The paper goes on: "However, the Kampuchean revolution is still facing difficulties. The Beijing expansionists and hegemonists, colluding with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces in the region, have clung to their hostile policy towards Kampuchea and the other two countries in Indochina. They have stubbornly used the corpse of the genocidal Pol Pot regime as an instrument to oppose the Kampuchean revolution. But realities in the past seven years have shown clearly that no enemy can check the advance of the Kampuchea revolution.

"Uniting under the glorious banner of the party, the entire Kampuchean people and Army are determined to do their best to fulfill all tasks set by the P.R.P.K's fifth congress. They are well that the Kampuchean revolution will certainly be crowned with the final victory," the paper concludes.

1986-1990 COOPERATION PLAN SIGNED WITH USSR

BK270643 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0000 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Text] Laos and the Soviet Union expressed unanimous support for the principle of developing and deepening cultural and scientific cooperation, as stated in the 1986-90 cooperation plan in these fields signed between the two countries in Vientiane on 23 June.

The cooperation plan, which was signed at the Foreign Affairs Ministry yesterday [as heard] by Deputy Foreign Affairs Minister Soulivong Phasitthidet and USSR Ambassador Vladimir Sobchenko, pointed out that the two sides will continue implementing the contents of the agreement on cultural and scientific cooperation signed between the Governments of the two countries on 22 April 1976, which stipulates that between 1986 and 1990 and two sides will continue developing, strengthening, and deepening their mutual cooperation and relations in the scientific, educational, cultural, and artistic fields as well as in the mass media and other fields on the basis of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism. In each field from 1986 to 1990, the two signatories will cooperate in training technical cadres and exchanging delegations to draw lessons from each other aimed at raising the efficiency and quality of cooperation.

STATUS OF PROBLEM OF THREE LAO VILLAGES NOTED

BK270418 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0530 GMT 26 Jun 86

["Talk": "What is the Current Status of the Problem of the Three Lao Villages?"]

[Text] Dear listeners, it is apparent that the ultrarightist reactionaries in the Thai ruling circles do not want anyone to talk about the current sitution in the three Lao villages of Ban Mai, Ban Kang, and Ban Savang in Paklai District, Sayaboury Province. This is because, on the one hand, the subject will cause great embarassment and pain for them both at home and in the international arena and, on the other hand, will expose to the world and the Thai people themselves the cruelty and barbarity of the followers of the pan-Thaiist doctrine in committing heinous crimes against the Lao and Thai peoples. Due to this fact, the ultrarightist reactionaries in the Thai ruling circles have tried to use sugar-coated expressions filled with the treacherous tactics of a hypocrite whenever they have to talk about the issue -- as can be seen in the Thai Foreign Ministry's recent 4-point statement carried by the Bangkok press. This time around, as in the past 2 years, the ultrarightist reactionaries in the Thai ruling circles have invariably claimed that the problem of three villages has already been resolved. Every time the Lao people, especially those in Sayaboury Province, hear such statements from the ultrarightist reactionaries in the Thai ruling circles, they become more indignent at the selfish nature and deception of the Thai ultrarightist reactionaries.

Everyone is well aware of the current reality at the three Lao villages of Ban Mai, Ban Kang, and Ban Savang in Paklai District of Sayaboury Province, especially the foreign correspondents who recently attended the ceremony marking the 2d anniversary of the use of a large number of regular forces by the Thai ultrarightist reactionaries to attack and occupy Lao territory in these villages.

Since Thailand was elected a temporary member of the UN Security Council, the situation in the three Lao villages in Paklai District has not changed. Thai soldiers have continued to occupy various heights in the vicinity of the three villages and have constantly coordinated with other Thai Armed Forces stationed along the Lao-Thai border to launch a new wave of aggression against Lao territory. At the same time, the Thai side still continues to obstruct and prohibit those Lao citizens they have herded to Thailand from returning to their native land, and refuses to pay compensation to local residents for damage caused by the Thai Armed Forces. More serious still the Thai side continues to pay no heed to the Lao side's proposal aimed at normalizing the relations between the Thai and Lao peoples as soon as possible in the interests of the two peoples, peace, and stability in this region.

The Thai side remains adamant in unilaterally claiming that the problem of the three villages has been resolved. One wonders how the Thai people in particular, and the world people in general, can understand the aim of the Thai side in making such a claim.

MESSAGE TO UN ON THAI 'FALSE ACCUSATIONS'

BK250205 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0000 GMT 25 Jun 86

[Text] As everyone knows, the Thai side recently alleged that Lao soldiers sneaked into Thai territory to kill refugees at Ban Huai Pong village, Chiang Kham District, Phayao Province. Subsequently, the Thai side reported the incident to the United Nations. To rebuke the groundless allegation made by the Thai side against Laos, Kingthong Vongsai, Lao UN permanent representative, recently sent a message to UN Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar. The message reads:

With reference to the note handed to you on 18 June 1986 by the Thai permanent UN representative, making false accusations and slanders against the LPDR, I have the honor to present this statement to you:

1. The unbelievable fabrication was created by Thai authorities to divert the attention of the Thai people from the prevailing political crisis in Thailand.

2. The LPDR has never provoked or sent troops across the border into the territory of the Kingdom of Thailand.

3. On the contrary, on several occasions, Thai authorities have since the establishment of the LPDR committed armed provocations along the Mekong River which is the border between Thailand and Laos. Moreover, the Thai authorities have also carried out criminal acts to subvert and sabotage Laos by sending commandos and spies into Lao territory. More serious still, everyone must remember that on 6 June 1984, the Thai Armed Forces stubbornly invaded and captured three Lao villages in Sayaboury Province in the northwest of our country.

4. The groundless allegation and fabrication made by the Thai authorities with regard to this incident was aimed at creating a groundless rationale as a pretext to creating tension along the Lao-Thai border.

5. Is it possible and thinkable that while Laos has reiterated to the Thai side its correct and constructive proposal to hold negotiations between the two countries aimed at resolving the remaining problems in relations between the two sides and problem relating to peace, stability, and cooperation in this region, it would have carried out such a hostile act?

6. The LPDR Government absolutely denies the groundless allegations and slanderous charge made by the Thai authorities against Laos. At the same time, it calls on the Government of the Kingdom of Thailand, which is a temporary member of the UN Security Council, to strictly respect the independence, sovereignty, and territorial integrity of Laos. Instead of making fabrications to oppose Laos, the Government of the Kingdom of Thailand should give a positive response to the correct, constructive, and reasonable proposal reiterated by the Lao Government in the 6 June 1986 statement of the LPDR Foreign Affairs Ministry. The policy of thief crying stop thief is no longer effective when the international community is now able to clearly distinguish who are the aggressors and who are the victims of aggression.

The LPDR Government warns the Thai side that Thailand is solely responsible for all the possible consequences arising from their actions.

VIENTIANE REPORTS RIOTING IN THAILAND'S PHUKET

BK241542 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 1200 GMT 24 Jun 86

[Text] According to Thai radio and television reports, on 23 June 50,000 people of various strata in Phuket, a town on an island in southern Thailand, demonstrated to protest the opening of a chemical plant in this town. The protesters marched along roads carrying placards opposing the capitalists who own the plant. They also demanded that the Thai administration take action to prevent the opening of the plant. Some angry demonstrators set fire to many parts of the plant and moved in to break the windows of a luxury hotel where the demonstrators believed Thai Industry Minister Chirayu Itsarangkun Na Ayutthaya was staying. They set fire to the first three stories of the 7-floor hotel. The Bangkok Bank branch in Phuket, which extended large loans for the construction of the plant, was also a target of the protesters.

The Thai people's protest made the industry minister's trip to Phuket to settle the problem a failure and forced him to flee. It was also reported that the local administration mobilized hundreds of policemen who suppressed the demonstrators with various kinds of equipment and arrested about 200 people. Not fearing the suppression however, the demonstrators countered the police with sticks and stones.

Faced with such a situation, the Thai Government found it necessary to announce a state of emergency in the town on the evening of 23 June and mobilized large forces to check the local people's demonstration. The Thai administration's action has made the situation in Phuket town tense.

As everyone knows, the tantalum plant is scheduled to start production in the next few months. This plant was designed to produce tantalum from tin ore and chemicals. This tantalum is used in the manufacture of weapons and space equipment and may cause radioactivity affecting the environment and human lives, thus damaging the tourist industry on this island. This is why the people in Phuket Province have actively opposed the plan to produce tantalum. They have sent petitions, signed by as many as 80,000 people, on many occasions calling on the Thai Government to cancel the construction of the plant.

With high indignation, on 23 June the people of Phuket found it necessary to resort to violence by setting ablaze many parts of the plant. The Thai people's struggle in Phuket is just because it is to protect the environment and their own lives. This just struggle will continue despite the state of emergency declared by the Thai Government.

FURTHER REPORTAGE ON INCIDENT IN PHUKET

Government Issues Statement

BK291550 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 1300 GMT 29 Jun 86

["Statement" from the Prime Minister's Office; dated 29 Jun]

[Text] In connection with the unrest in Phuket Province, the government announced a state of emergency in Phuket on 23 June, 1986; to improve public understanding, the government would like to explain the facts and its handling of the issue:

The people of Phuket have expressed publicly that they do not want the tantalum plant in Phuket Province because it will affect tourism. Regarding this, the prime minister has ordered the Industry Ministry to consider carefully the granting of an operating license for the plant and take into account the feelings of the people of Phuket and the effect on the society, the industry minister has handled the issue in line with this instruction. The investigations by the authorities show clearly that there are two groups opposing the tantalum plant -- a group of people from Phuket who have sincerely and peacefully opposed the project, and another group which would take advantage of the situation for their own political and business interests.

The latter group incited the people and created misunderstanding among the people of Phuket until the incident was out of control and damage had been done to private and public property. These people are instigators and initiators. As a result, the government has ordered police authorities to arrest these people as soon as possible, if there is firm evidence linking them to the unrest, so that they can be prosecuted in line with the judicial process. However, the government has instructed the police authorities to handle the matter carefully and judiciously so that the majority of the Phuket people who opposed the plant peacefully will not be affected.

The government would like to reaffirm that it will continue to uphold the instructions of the prime minister -- not to do anything that will affect the good feelings among the Phuket people and to follow the policy of establishing Phuket as a tourist resort. As for the private sector losses, the government will render appropriate assistance in order to help relieve their difficulties as much as possible.

The public is hereby informed.

[Signed] The Prime Minister's Office.

Dated 29 June, 1986

Governor Transferred

BK290129 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 29 Jun 86 pp 1, 3

[Text] Phuket Governor Sanong Rotphothong has been ordered transferred out of the province to assume an inactive post as inspector-general attached to the Interior Ministry. He claims he has been made a scapegoat in the affair and wonders why others have not shared the blame for the rioting and destruction. He will be replaced tomorrow by Inspector General Kat Rakmani.

Governor Sanong received the transfer order, signed by Permanent Secretary Phisan Munlasatsathon on Friday, but kept it to himself until it was announced on Radio Thailand last night. A well-informed source told the BANGKOK POST that Mr Sanong did not immediately announce the order because he wanted to prepare a farewell letter to be distributed to the Phuket people yesterday.

Mr Sanong has been criticised for his role in organising a public hearing on the tantalum plant controversy and for failing to take security precautions to cope with the riot. The governor was with Industry Minister Chirayu Itsarangkun na Ayutthaya reportedly to ensure the latter's safety when mobs set fire to the tantalum plant and the Phuket Merlin Hotel. His quick transfer is likely to ease widespread discontent in Phuket and quicken the lifting of the state of emergency imposed on Monday night.

Fourth Army Region commander Lt-Gen Wanchai Chitchamnong flew to Bangkok yesterday for an urgent meeting with authorities at the Central Intelligence Bureau to discuss lifting the emergency measure tomorrow, according to reports.

In an exclusive interview with a special correspondent of the BANGKOK POST in Phuket after the announcement of his transfer via Radio Thailand, Mr Sanong said that he felt neither regret nor happiness about the transfer. "But my true feeling is hurt," he admitted. "What are we fighting against? (I'm) like a boxer who is engaged in a fight, but suddenly the trainer throws in the towel. I don't know what to do."

Maintaining his composure, but obviously hurt, the governor added: "Speaking about Thai bureaucracy, sometimes (I) feel pain in the heart. The system...(is full of) favouritism and vested interests." He warned: "...if (we) do not take into regard national interest, one day (we) will be sorry." The governor also complained that the transfer order came to him suddenly and he did not know why all the blame had been put on him. "It does not matter if I am tranferred. I am not sorry as I did my best within my power and responsibility," he said. Mr Sanong said that he will follow orders.

He said that in the past he had never asked his superiors for a post where he could make financial gains. "Sanong Rodphothong does not do this," he said. When he was informed that he would be the governor of Phuket, Mr Sanong said that he and his friends had wondered whether he was being set up because the province is known for having influential and powerful persons with vested interests. He said that a transfer would be good for him as it would give him time to do more reading.

Referring to Monday's incident, Mr Sanong said that if he had brought Mr Chirayu to the Community Hall and the minister was attacked or killed, the result would be the same. "The blame would fall on me," he said, adding that the only way he could escape blame in such a situation was to be killed. He also said that even God would be at a loss as to how to stop an angry mob.

Mr Sanong also claimed that he was made a scapegoat in the controversial tantalum incident. He said several other people were in charge of the situation that day and he failed to understand why he should get all the blame. In addition, the governor accused his assistant, Wichit Sarakun, of being "very irresponsible" for staying as home instead of monitoring the situation as ordered. Mr Sanong said he told Mr Wichit to remain at the Community Hall where Minister Chirayu was to meet with representatives of the anti-tantalum plant protesters.

Instead, said the governor, Mr Wichit went to the provicial hall and later went home on hearing that the Phuket Merlin Hotel was burning. "I consider him a very irresponsible official," said Mr Sanong. He added that the people of Phuket have been successful in their fight against the potential poison from the tantalum plant.

Plant Not To Be Rebuilt

BK010133 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 1 Jul 86 p 3

[Text] The tantalum plant in Phuket will not be rebuilt and construction of a new plan is unlikely under this government, Industry Minister Chirayu Itsarangkun na Ayutthaya said yesterday. The decision was reached yesterday by the government-appointed ad hoc committee during its first meeting chaired by Mr Chirayu. The minister said the team was gathering information from experts in various fields to determine the problems a tantalum plant could pose.

While the study was being carried out, he said, the government did not have to make a decision on whether the plant should be rebuilt. The team, said Mr Chirayu, wanted to reach a conclusion free of influence from any interest group. The conclusion would be used by the next administration in considering whether a tantalum plant could be established in Thailand.

The minister yesterday met informally with members of the American Chamber of Commerce at the house of Chamber President David Lyman to explain about last Monday's incident in Phuket and the repercussions on foreign investment. An informed source said that Mr Chirayu reiterated the government's policy to welcome foreign investment and assured government support for foreign investors.

[Excerpt] Phuket -- Police yesterday arrested a member of New Force Party and his younger brother and charged them with instigating the riot on June 23 when residents of this southern island resort protested against the factory of Thailand Tantalum Industry Corp Ltd.

Meanwhile, the government announced yesterday that it would provide as much assistance as possible to those affected by the violence. It also said stern actions would be taken against those found to have been responsible for the damaged properties which include a firstclass hotel.

Rewut Chinaphon, who is a candidate in the general election of July 27, was held with his younger brother Ronachai, 26. The house of their father was searched for evidence. Police slapped multiple charges against them, ranging from instigating people to destroying properties, arson, riot and violence.

TV Newsman Transferred

[Text] Channel 9 News Division chief Somwang Sukying has been transferred because of Monday [23 June] night's news coverage of the riot in Phuket. Mr Somwang will exchange positions with Channel Inspection Division chief Chitnarong Kunnakritsadathikan. PM's Officer Minister Pol Lt Chan Manutham ordered the director of the Mass Communications Organisation of Thailand [MCOT] Pramuth Sutabut to make the transfer yesterday.

A Government House report said Pol Lt Chan, who is the MCOT chairman, was displeased with the coverage which included an emotional interview with the owner of the extensively-damaged Phuket Merlin Hotel. The minister thought the interview had damaged the government's reputation.

The hotel owner criticised both the police for their failure to stop the mob from attacking the premises and local firemen for their slow response when the hotel was set ablaze. Another report said the government felt the coverage was "too bold". The TV station, it said, was told to show only "positive" news or interviews with government officials.

Editorials View Unrest

BK261504 [Editorial Report] Four Thai-language Bangkok dailies -- MATICHON, SIAM RAT, NAEO NA, and THAI RAT -- on 25 and 26 June published editorials commenting on the riot which took place in Phuket Province on 23 June.

MATICHON'S 1000-word page 6 editorial for 25 June, entitled: "Anarchy in Phuket Over the Tantalum Feud," says that the riot in Phuket Province on 23 June was triggered by mobs who chose to use violence to demonstrate their opposition to the planned opening of the multibillion baht tantalum plant on their famous resort island. The mounting resentment of the local people has been apparent since 1 May.

MATICHON says that although the Industry Ministry tried to explain to the people that the tantalum plant was equipped with modern and effective equipment to prevent any possible pollution and that the factory had nothing to do with any radioactive element, it seemed that the people simply refused to listen.

The editorial says: "It is an indisputable fact that part of the reaction against the project derived from the conflict between the capitalist owners of the tantalum plant and influential local groups who have been dealing with Singapore capitalists and maintaining close ties with some political parties. The sincere demonstrations staged by the Phuket people were exploited by these people for political purposes and financial reward from the rackets engaging in the smuggling of tin slag to Singapore."

The editorial continues: The riot was a sad tragedy because the lawless mobs destroyed property of the private sector. "Worse still, the political parties which added more fuel into the flame of the conflict were those in the coalition government of General Prem Tinsulanon." Such parties will only lead the people "to fall into the abyss of calamities" if they win the general election and form a government.

General Prem Tinsulanon, in his capacity as the prime minister, must be held fully responsible for all good or bad events in the country. If he is "unable to deal with the riot properly he will not sit in the prime minister's chair comfortably, if he manages to retain the premiership."

SIAM RAT'S 700-word page 8 editorial for 25 June, entitled" "Beware of Tantalum-2" asks why the people in Phuket Province did not show reaction against the tantalum plant from the very beginning when the first pile was driven into the ground. It notes: "The Phuket people might be satisfied that they will have no tantalum palnt in their area. But the Thai people in the whole country are not very happy with the future of foreign investment here."

The editorial says: "The government must provide a clear explanation on the Phuket riot for the general public. How it happened and interference by the third parties in the incident must be clarified. We believe that there must be third parties involved in the mishap. We appeal to the Thai people to learn from the Phuket incident that mob rule always brings about calamity wherever it is applied." "We do not want to see a 'tantalum-2' incident in any part of Thailand, and we do not want to see someone smile behind our back when something of such a nature occurs."

NAEO NA's 800-word page 4 editorial for 25 June, entitled: "The Phuket Riot," says the disturbance in Phuket has forced the government to declare a state of emergency. The violence broke out because the "majority of the people in Phuket Province oppose the opening of the tantalum plant because they believe the plant would cause pollution detrimental to the tourist industry which is the major source income of the people."

"The official investigation indicates that rioters were hired from nearby provinces. They were not natives of Phuket Province. It is believed that the disturbance was politically motivated and was an attempt to topple General Prem Tinsulanon's government." The editorial atributes the chaos to the government's indecisiveness and urges the government to improve the efficency of its intelligence system.

NAEO NA's 800-word page 4 editorial for 26 June, entitled: "Who Can Solve the Problem?", notes that although General Prem's government has had some successes in solving economic problems, there are many more things that he must do to ensure that he can remain popular in the country. "However, the riot in Phuket has already damaged the credibility of General Prem and his government down to the zero level." Vandalism against private property of the people during the riot has convinced "law-abiding citizens that this government is unable to guarantee the safety of their lives and property." "This kind of situation is very dangerous to government's stability because if such a feeling spreads further, the people will not accept the government, and that means the beginning of change from the grass-root level."

THAI RAT's 900-word page 3 editorial for 26 June, entitled: "Why Did the Riot Take Place in Phuket?", notes: Psychologically speaking, when a huge number of people gather at one place, it seems that they can easily be provoked. They tend to be more emotional than rational. The mobs started the riot in Phuket Province because they were angry with the industry minister who failed to meet the demonstrators as arranged earlier.

Touching on the burning of the tantalum plant by rioters, the editorial notes: "The plant is located in Phuket because the area produces the best-quality tin slag in the world. Phuket tin slag contains more tantalum. And opening of the tantalum factory will affect the enormous interests of the people who export tin slag."

The editorial says: The riot in Phuket province could also be the work of people who "want to discredit the government, in particular the prime minister, who is reportedly expected to be appointed as the prime minister of the next government. Furthermore, Phuket is a famous resort town and some countries might want to destroy it."

MINISTER ALLEGES MONEY DUMPING IN SOUTH

[Excerpt] Education Minister Chuan Likphai has urged the National Security Council to investigate alleged massive money dumping by "foreign businessmen" to back certain candidates in the South.

Mr Chuan, campaign manager for the Democrat Party in the southern region, claimed that one candidate alone has spent 10 million baht to win support during the early stages of the campaign. "We (the Democrats) have come to a theory that these candidates may have received financial support from foreign investors in the South in exchange for helping protect their business interests when elected to the Parliament," Mr Chuan said.

He said the candidates, whose identities he declined to reveal, were politicians who were not in a position to spend much money at the polls. Money dumping was prevalent in every province in the South and the problem had worried the Democrat Party, Mr Chuan said.

The Education minister made his charges at a youth meeting at Government House during which NSC chief Sqn-Ldr Prasong Sunsiri was invited to speak on national security matter. Mr Chuan was seen handing Sqn-Ldr Prasong a piece of paper on which he wrote the names of the suspected foreign businessmen. The NSC chief declined to reveal the identities of the businessmen, saying he would find out if the allegation was true.

Prasong Receives List

[Text] National Security Council's [NSC] Secretary General, Sqn Ldr Prasong Sunsiri this morning said that he received from Education Minister Chuan Likphai a list of concerned politicians of a certain political party receiving money from a foreign country. He said that the name of the political party and the list of the concerned politicians were with him. He said that if the names were revealed at the moment, it would affect several people.

Education Minister Chuan last week urged the NSC to investigate alleged massive money dumping by "foreign businessmen" to back certain candidates in the South. Minister Chuan also said that one candidate alone in the South had spent 10 million baht to win support during the early stages of the campaign.

Sqn Ldr Prasong also denied the news report that he would propose a law to cover foreign investors in Thailand. In the past, we have only encouraged them to make investments, he said. The investment also includes that from socialist countries, especially mainland China. He said, however, that investment from socialist countries would be considered on an individual basis.

TROOPS SEIZE CPM CAMP ON MALAYSIAN BORDER

BK200134 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 20 Jun 86 p 6

[Text] Betong -- Troops seized a key Communist Party of Malaya camp yesterday following air strikes and an artillery bombardment. The camp, of the CPM Second Zone's First Company, was overrun by a combined force led by Cpt Chaowalek Tansuk yesterday afternoon.

Deputy task force commander Col Chuphan Trachu said the camp came under artillery fire and was strafed and rocketed by warplanes before the infantry moved in. There were no casualties because the guerrillas had made their escape from the camp, which is about one kilometre from the border and nine from the town.

Commanded by Lee Yuan, the camp was believed to have been set up about ten years ago on a 2.500-foot hilltop. Col Chauphan said the camp, equipped with running water and electricity, comprised a hall to accommodate about 80 people, a 20-unit permanent sleeping quarters, a basketball field, a tunnel, a 300-metre trench and bunkers.

The commander said the camp was littered with booby traps, and 40 were defused yesterday. He said CPM secretary-general Chang Chung-ming was thought to have fled the assault on the camp.

Aims of Draft Law on Marriage

OW291215 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Excerpts] Dear friends: Following is an introduction to the report on the draft law on marriage and family presented by Comrade Nguyen Thi Dinh at the 11th session of the 7th National Assembly.

The law on marriage and family, promulgated in 1959 and now in force, has contributed to emancipating women and achieving equal rights between men and women in family and society.

At present, the situation in our country has basically changed; our advanced society requires more concrete and complete regulations on socialist marital and family relationships. The promulgation of the new law on marriage and family is an objective necessity for accelerating socialist construction across the country.

On 25 October 1982, the Council of Ministers issued a decision on setting up the marriage and family law drafting committee. The new law on marriage and family ensures the continuity and development of the 1959 law on marriage and family. It builds and consolidates the socialist marital and family system, and shapes new socialist men and a socialist pattern of marital and family relationships, while getting rid of vestiges of the lingering feudal marital and family system, outmoded customs, and the influence of bourgeois ideology in marriage and family life.

The new marriage and family law is built on these principles: voluntary, progressive marriage between a single husband and a single wife; equality between husband and wife; protection of the rights of parents and children; and protection of mothers and infants. Following are some points on marriage and parent-child relationships in the draft law.

Marriage: Concerning marriageble age, there are opinions suggesting an increase to 20 for women, and 22 for men, or 22 for women and 25 for men, with a view to curbing population growth.

The draft law still maintains the marriageable age of 18 for women and 20 for men, as specified in the 1959 marriage and family law, which has been in force for 27 years and has customarily been observed by our people.

Investigations and surveys on marriage and family show that there still exist many cases of marriage below the legally specified age in rural areas. particularly in mountainous regions.

In fixing the minimum marriageable age, we should examine many aspects, with attention paid to ethnic customs. Increasing the marriageable law is not a fundamental issue for checking population growth. It may lead to complicated developments.

Regarding marraige, the draft law also specifies two new issues:

1. Annulment of illegal marriages.

Marriages in violation of marriage conditions specified in the marriage and family law shall be annulled by the people's court -- article No 9. This regulation is meant to ensure correct observance of the marriage and family law and to strengthen the socialist legal system;

2. Specifications in chapter 9 on marriages between Vietnamese citizens and foreigners are aimed at meeting the requirements of the situation stemming from growing international relations.

Parent-child relationships: In the present situation, parent-child relationships should be specified in a concrete and detailed manner, in order to meet the requirements of protecting, caring for, and educating children. The draft law contains 3 chapters and 21 articles for this purpose.

NHAN DAN ON BASIC ECONOMIC UNITS' AUTONOMY

BK301554 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 29 Jun 86

[30 June NHAN DAN editorial: "Exercise in Autonomy of Basic Economic Units To Accelerate Production and Business"]

[Text] The Council of Ministers recently issued an important directive promulgating nine temporary regulations aimed at implementing the Political Bureau's draft resolution on ensuring autonomy in production and business for basic economic units.

These regulations specify the autonomy of basic economic units in the fields of planning, technical materials supply, labor and wages, financial and banking affairs, consumption of products and services, export-oriented production and export and import activities, and the signing and implementation of economic contracts.

These temporary regulations are another in setting down into law and making concrete the main contents of the Political Bureau's draft resolution. They are also regarded as the mainstay of our state's new management mechanism for basic economic units in the current state on the basis of thoroughly understanding the resolutions of the party Central Committee's 8th and 10th plenums and other Political Bureau resolutions.

The new management mechanism is taking shape from previous experience in the economic management of our country and developing our strengths and achievements while overcoming shortcomings and deficiencies, discarding regulations that are no longer suitable and vary with these draft resolutions of the party and creating favorable conditions for basic economic units to achieve autonomy positively in both production and business.

The new regulations will contribute to eliminating the system of bureaucratic centralism, red tape, and state subsidies and promote strict enforcement of the principles of democratic centralism, economic accounting, and socialist business as well as the use of planning as a center piece in the management of basic economic units.

The shaping us and application of the new management mechanism requires uniform, rapid, and practical change among various sectors and echelons of the national economic sector. It is necessary have a quite good and uniform system of paperwork for economic management. Specific attention must be paid to intensifying guidance for controlling, supervising, reviewing, and rounding off work implementation.

It is now important for various sectors and echelons to issue directives and circulars quickly providing guidance in the uniform implementation of various systems and policies in accordance with the Political Bureau's draft resolution and with the Council of Ministers' various new decisions, including the many circulars guiding various interministries, ministries in charge of specific sectors, and provincial and city people's committees on the stipulations on planning, cost accounting, auditing, and statistical systems for various national economic sectors. It is necessary to reread papers on management that have been promulgated so far to discard things that are no longer applicable and to introduce a new system of paperwork suitable to the new management mechanism.

It is necessary to introduce, amend or revise regulations on state-run industrial enterprise, [trade] unions of state enterprises, enterprise councils, enterprise directors, senior enterprise accountants, handicraft and small-industry cooperatives, and the laboring people's collective mastery: to determine a unified accounting and statistical system for the entire country; and to take a look at the labor and trade union laws.

The implementation of new regulations on the autonomy of basic economic units requires that we pay great attention to providing guidance for targeted pilot projects and that we experimentarily carry out and reach appropriate conclusions on the application of the new management mechanism before the Political Bureau issues an official resolution.

Discarding the centralized, bureaucratic, red-tape, and subsidy-based management system, building a new management mechanism, and ensuring autonomy in production and business for basic economic units are difficult and complex revolutionary tasks that we must carry out urgently but steadily while drawning on experience to make constant improvements and oppose subjectivism, hastiness, and simplism.

Renovating the management system and guaranteeing autonomy in production and business for basic economic units must be aimed at tackling the existing urgent problems of boosting production; increasing output, quality, and effeciency; intensifying market management; reestablishing order in circulation and distribution; struggling to stabilize commodity prices; quickly balancing the budget; stabilizing the socioeconomic situation and the people's lives; and ensuring successful fulfillment of the 1986 state plan.

Intensifying party work; renovating the organization of cadres; improving the managerial capability and efficiency of the state apparatus from the central down to the grass-roots levels; upholding a sense of organizational discipline; and developing the collective mastery of the laboring people, of trade union organizations, and of other mass organizations are necessary and aimed at contributing to ensuring autonomy in production and business for basic economic units.

HO CHI MINH CITY FAVORS FAMILY-BASED PRODUCTION

BK241211 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1430 GMT 22 Jun 86

[Text] The decision of the Ho Chi Minh City people's committee to stimulate individual and family handicrafts and artisan industry production and other family-based secondary trades has been welcomed and supported by the city people.

In the past 5 months or more, nearly 1,000 households have been registered for such production. Most of these households possess professional skills and equipment or capital and raw materials coming from relatives abroad. Although large numbers of people have all the conditions for organizing production, they are still worried about some specific problems in the course of doing business this way.

Pursuant to the party Central Committee's sixth, seventh, and eighth plenum resolutions and the draft resolution of the Political Bureau, the Ho Chi Minh City people's committee recently issued guidance for households engaged in individual and family handicrafts and artisan industry production and in other family-based secondary trades.

According to the guidance, households with technical skills are given priority to produce certain goods the great demand for which the state-run production sector has not fully met. Households that use domestic materials and valuable materials that can be imported are also given priority to produce.

It is forbidden to produce and deal in commodities under state monopoly control such as wine, cigarettes, metal, medicines, beer, and so on. No more new installations of trades the production capacity of which is now excessive in the city, will be allowed to develop.

Production households that do not have sufficient conditions for ensuring the quality of their products, that refuse state management control, or that lack measures to secure industrial sanitation and thus pollute the residential area will not be allowed to operate nor renew their licenses.

DISTRICT BUILDING COMMITTEE MEETS ON DEVELOPMENT

BK290540 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 28 Jun 86

[Text] The Joint Party-Government Committee for District Building recently held a seminar in Vung Liem District, Cuu Long Province, to exchange experiences on industrial construction and development at the district level in the Nam Bo provinces and cities.

After hearing a recapitulative report pointing out the results obtained from industrial construction and development at the district level and in those areas where activities are still limited, representatives from a number of districts reported on the initial results of and experiences in building districts agro-industrial structures.

Almost all of the participating districts asserted the need to promote strong industrial development in districts to exploit their fullest potential in land and manpower, to build their material-technical bases; to raise the value of their agricultural, fishery, and forestry production volumes; to increase the quantity and quality of their export and consumer goods; to promote their industrial development; and to create conditions for increasing their sources of income and for improving the rural laboring people's lives, thereby creating an on-site logistic capability to serve national defense and to build impregnable district military fortresses for the defense of the socialist fatherland.

HAWKE CONDEMNS U.S. DECISION TO UP WHEAT SUBSIDY

BK010924 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] The prime minister, Mr Hawke, has condemned the American decision to increase government subsidies to help U.S. farmers sell more wheat abroad. Mr Hawke also attacked the policies of the European Community which allowed subsidized quotas to be dumped on world markets. He said both were ruining their own economic prospects.

Australian wheat farmers appear likely to suffer a further decline in income because of the U.S. decision. A Radio Australia correspondent in Washington, Jim Middelton, says the United States decision brought an immediate and gloomy response from Australia's primary industry minister, Mr Kerin, who is in Washington for talks with top American agricultural officials.

[Begin recording] [Middleton] The American agriculture secretary, Mr Richard Lyng, announced that for next year's wheat harvest the government subsidy will be increased by 12 cents to $2.10 a bushel. It is the highest level in 10 years. The move will have the effect of further depressing the international price of wheat and reducing the income of farmers in countries like Australia without such subsidy program. At a news conference in Washington, Mr Kerin told reporters that Australia did not have the financial resources to retaliate with subsidies of its own.

[Kerin] We cannot afford it because to match it would be something in the order of $5 billion, that is [word indistinct] United States, and of course it will be quite illusory.

The big problem is that the additional markets are not out there, and the problem Australia faces and Canada faces and Argentina faces with wheat is that we have no choice but to follow the market down until we cannot physically produce any more. [end recording]

That was primary industry minister, Mr Kerin. Earlier, the chairman of the Australian Wheat Board, Mr Clinton Condon, dismissed American claims that recent sales of cheap American wheat were part of a campaign to remain competitive with subsidized exports from the European Community. He said the sales were depressing world prices.

[Begin Condon Recording] What we have been trying to do up to this stage is to make sure that the American Administration and the Europeans know exactly what harm they are doing to the world grain market with their export subsidies. Now the Americans are saying that they will continue these subsidies while the Europeans do, and I believe that they have been trying to get the Europeans to discuss grain trade in the next round of GATT negotiations. But any results from that would be a number of years off. [end recording]

Last week Mr Condon made a strong attack on the United States because of its sale of 50,000 tons of subsidized wheat to Sri Lanka. Australia is Sri Lanka's main supplier of wheat.

TRADING PARTNERS PROMISE OVER $250 MILLION AID

HK271249 Hong Kong AFP in English 1229 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 27 (AFP) -- The Philippines picked up aid totalling more than 250 million dollars during meetings here this week of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and key trading partners in the developed world. U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz Wednesday signed over 200 million dollars in grant money to the Philippines. He described it as part of a 5.5-million-dollar [as received] aid package to give the four-month-old government of President Corazon Aquino "breathing room" to "bring about economic growth and renewed business confidence."

On Friday, European Economic Commissioner (EEC) Claude Cheysson announced that the EEC would be making available some 40-50 million dollars in grant aid almost immediately. Some 15 million dollars would be available for rural projects such as artesian wells, and this could be delivered in a matter of weeks, Mr. Cheysson told reporters. The remainder would be made available over the next few months and would include three to four million dollars in food aid, while the rest would be used to fund new projects and some proposals suspended during the government of ousted President Ferdinand Marcos. This money was in addition to aid package offered by individual EEC members.

British Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Timothy Renton told AQENCE FRANCE-PRESSE Friday that a 300,000-dollar overseas development aid fund had been set up since the new government took over for consultants to come to the Philippines and help in fields such as agriculture and timber technology. The fund has been announced previously, but no figures had been revealed, Mr. Renton said. Mr. Renton also handed over to a Manila University Friday equipment for its engineering department worth some 37,500 dollars on behalf of the British Council.

Canadian Foreign Minister Joe Clark also told a press conference Thursday that he would be announcing new aid during a trip to the provinces next week, but refused to give figures, saying, "I wouldn't like to scoop myself."

ASEAN groups Brunei, Indoensia, Malaysia, the Philipines, Sinapore and Thailand. ASEAN key developed trading partners attending talks in Manila were Australia, Canada, Japan, the EEC, New Zealand and the United States.

BUSINESS DAY VIEWS SHULTZ VISIT U.S. AID

HK300930 Quezon City BUSISNESS DAY in English 26 Jun 86 p 28

[By Abrino Aydinin and Marites Danguilan-Vitug]

[Text] The United States Government is seen to be wringing maximum political propaganda, while delivering nothing out of the economic assistance it encouraged the Aquino government to believe is forthcoming. U.S. State Secretary George Shultz and Vice-President and Foreign Minister Salvador H. Laurel signed yesterday a new agreement on the $200-million previously appropriated compensation for the American use of military bases in the Philippines. This, however, hardly covers up for the aid that is not materializing in any significant amount.

The $200 million is presumably the undisbursed balance of the $265-million portion already appropriated out of a $475-million grant called Economic Support Fund (ESF) committed by U.S. President Ronald Reagan's administration to the ousted government of Ferdinand Marcos. Aside from the ESF, the Reagan administration also committed funds for military purposes divided into a grant of $125 million under the U.S. military assistance program and $300 million of credit for U.S. foreign military sales. The total of $900-million of this bases related financing has to be appropriated by the U.S. Congress over a five-year period which started in 1985.

The whole point of the new management is that the U.S. has undertaken to speed up the disbursement of the appropriated ESF financing. This, Shultz said during the signing ceremony at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, is an "exceptional" measure meant as a gesture of support to the Aquino government.

Shultz gave no hint of any progress made in an international fund-raising campaign for the Philippines to be led by the U.S. Government which the state secretary announced in Washington with fanfare. In fact nothing more has been said in Washington about this plan since then.

The visit of Shultz to Manila is evidently part of a process to develop a "close working relationship" with President Corazon C. Aquino and her key government officials, some of whom have displayed and anti-U.S. stance. Shultz had profuse praises for Mrs Aquino and her government. Displaying a tone and mood similar to that of his speech before the Foreign Policy Association in New York June 4, he told the press yesterday: "I feel very good about the future of the Philippines...There has been additional progress in solving the problems."

Apparently, though, American foreign investors, despite his declaration that he is "bullish" about the Philippines and his assurances of a promising future here, do not share his view. Members of the private sector recently invited to the U.S. who met with ranking American officials and businessmen go the impression that American business is not ready to invest in the Philippines. "They always asked the bottomline question: Is President Aquino up to the job?" A leading corporate figure told BUSINESS DAY. An economic who was part of the study group said: "They want to see progress first before they put in their money. Just like the IMF (International Monetary Fund), they seek prior action...

Lorenzo Tanada thinks the U.S. is dangling aid, purposely delaying its grant to the Philippine Government, pending the outcome of the Constitutional Commission. He sees a parallelism between the present situation and the post-war era wherein the U.S. uses reparations money to get the Philippine Government to agree to party rights agreeements with the Americans.

Shultz predictably put in a good word about the bases: "The bases are a good thing...They provide economic activity...security in the region." He also said they are content with the current stance of President Aquino about respecting the agreement up to 1991 and keeping her options open.

On his meeting with the Association of Southeast Asian foreign ministers, Shultz said he came to discuss "old ideas." The concept of a zone of peace, freedom and neutrality (ZOPFAN), a long-standing proposal in the ASEAN, has not been discussed extensively. "In the meantime, we have to live with the proposition that the Soviets agree to reduce levels of nuclear arms to the point when they are eliminated," he said.

An impediment to the realization of a ZOPFAN is the presence of the American bases in the country. Indonesian Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja, when asked about this issue, told BUSINESS DAY: "We (in the ASEAN) don't discuss this until it is decided upon by the Philippine Government. We'll cross the bridge when we ge there."

AQUINO TO APPEAL TO U.S. BUSINESSMEN DURING TRIP

HK300840 Manila THE MANILA TIMES in English 27 Jun 86 pp 1, 6

[Text] President Aquino yesterday said the main aim of her forthcoming visit to the United States is to appeal to American businessmen to help in the economic recovery of the Philippines. Mrs Aquino said "there are only a few more details to be worked out" before she would announce the schedule of her U.S. trip. "I could probably announce it next week," she said.

The President said she accepted the invitation of the American Government to visit the U.S. "to take advantage of the popular support" she now enjoys among the American people. She revealed that her government is preparing some form of "incentives" for American businessmen who would respond to her call for more foreign investments in the country. But Mrs Aquino stressed that before proceeding to the U.S., she would first visit an Asian [as published] country as she had earlier promised.

U.S. President Ronald Reagan had originally asked Mrs Aquino to visit the U.S. in November this year. But her visit would be made probably mid-September because of the forthcoming legislative elections in the U.S. She said she accepted an invitation to address members of the American Senate and Congress. Because of this, she said, it is necessary to go to the U.S. before November, the election month.

The Chief Executive also revealed that foreign and local businessmen had started investing in the country. She was informed by the Development Bank of the Philippines [DBP] that more than P500 million worth of non-performing assets of the government had been bought by the private sector. The DBP also told the President that 20 percent of these new investments came from foreign businessmen. She also revealed that Malaysia had expressed the desire to import sugar from the Philippines.

MALAYSIA'S RITHAUDDEEN HOLDS TALKS WITH AQUINO

[By Zainoor Sulaiman]

[Text] Manila, June 26 (OANA-BERNAMA) -- President Corazon Aquino Thursday said she looks forward to meeting Malaysian Prime Minister Dr Mahathir Mohamed to further build up closer bilateral co-operation. Aquino hoped to be able to meet Dr Mahathir before the third ASEAN summit due here in July, next year, according to Malaysian Foreign Minister Tengku Ahmad Rithauddeen who called on the new Philippine leader at her office in Malacanang Thursday.

During the meeting President Aquino reiterated her desire to visit ASEAN countries first before going to other countries. She has also a standing invitation to visit the United States but said that she had not firmed up her plans on her overseas visits.

Tengku Rithauddeen said during the discussions they emphasised on the need for closer relations between the two neighboring countries. Tengku Rithauddeen said he expressed Malaysia's desire to further promote bilateral trade and asked about the possibility of importing sugar from the Philippines. He also brought up issues related to industrial complementation where the two countries could complement each other like in the production of automotive spare parts.

Despite a slowdown in Philippine import activities last year, its imports from Malaysia increased to U.S. $543.5 million last year making Malaysia the number three largest trading partner after the United States and Japan. Malaysia's imports from the Philippines during the period came to U.S. $173.8 million.

[Text] The Malaysian Government yesterday expressed its desire to expand trade with the Philippines. In a meeting with the president, Malaysian Foreign Minister Tengku Ahmad Rithauddeen said that his country needs 530,000 metric tons of sugar a year, now supplied by Australia and Fiji. He said that his government wishes to enhance cooperation within the ASEAN, of which both the Philippines and Malaysia are members. However, he refused to comment on the Sabah issue.

LAUREL, LEE KUAN YEW TALKS 'VERY FRANK'

HK301042 Hong Kong AFP in English 1049 GMT 30 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 30 (AFP) -- Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew Monday told Philippine Foreign Minister Salvador Laurel that countertrade between their countries was worth trying and commended Manila's efforts to attract foreign investment, Mr Lauel said here. Mr Laurel told reporters that they also discussed the two strategic U.S. military bases in the Philippines and the communist insurgency that the four-month-old government of President Corazon Aquino is trying to end through talks with rebel leaders.

Mr Lee, the first head of state of the six-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) to visit Manila since a popular revolt overthrew Ferdinand Marcos in February, met with Mr Laurel for more than an hour at the Foreign Ministry. Singapore is expected to be the first foreign country to be visited by Mrs Aquino since she came to power. Mr. Lee's press secretary, James Fu, told reporters the Singapore leader will probably give Mrs. Aquino a formal invitation to visit Singapore at their meeting Tuesday.

On countertrade, which Mr Laurel urged Singapore, Thailand, Indonesia, Malaysia and Brunei to initiate during a ASEAN ministerial conference here last week, Mr Lee "said it's something worth trying," Mr Laurel said. "He analyzed it, he gave me his very frank views on countertrade, and looked at the overall view, without prejudgment," said Mr Laurel, who is also the Philippine vice president. Singapore Foreign Minister Suppiah Dhanabalan had expressed reservations here last week about the feasibility of countertrade within ASEAN.

Mr Laurel said his meeting with Mr Lee was characterized by "a very frank exchange of views." Asked about the U.S. bases in the country, Mr Laurel said they talked about it "in passing, very briefly." "We discussed the security situation in Southeast Asia," he said.

Mr. Laurel said he gave the Singapore premier the "overview" on the communist insurgency. Mr. Lee did not express concern but merely listened to him, he said.

He said the Singapore premier told him it was important for foreign investments to come into the Philippines, whose economy has suffered a continuous decline in the past two years. Pressed for details, Mr. Laurel said: "He just said we're in the right direction, stability is essential for investment."

Asked if Mr. Lee offered his views to attract foreign investment, Mr. Laurel said: "Yes. We had a very frank exchange and his thoughts were based on a lot of experience." The minister did not elaborate.

Earlier Monday, presidential spokeswoman Alice Villadolid told reporters that "economic matters will be discussed, among them Filipino workers in Singapore," in Mrs. Aquino's meeting with Mr. Lee Tuesday. Press reports here have said some 20,000 Filipinos working in Singapore were in danger of losing their jobs due to a new state policy to reduce the number of foreign workers there.

Mr. Lee is also scheduled to meet Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Armed Forces chief General Fidel Ramos.

Mr. Lee has not spoken to reporters since his arrival but is scheduled to hold a press conference before he leaves Manila Thursday to complete a tour that earlier took him to South Korea and Taiwan.

AQUINO STRESSES DESIRE FOR HONEST GOVERNMENT

HK231534 Hong Kong AFP in English 1530 GMT 23 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 23 (AFP) -- Philippine President Corazon Aquino Monday pledged to make sure her government stays honest even "if I have to fire everyone to do it." Mrs Aquino told an anniversary gathering of the government think-tank Development Academy of the Philippines (DAP) that the nearly bloodless uprising by Filipinos which swept her to power last February had restored democracy. "By democracy, they meant more than the right to periodically elect crooks and suffer their tenure until the next election, but the right to have honest government," the chief executive said.

She asked the DAP to devote its attention to public policy, "empowerment of the people", good government, and public management.

"We need to study in a systematic way the problem of graft and corruption that has been the way of government in the Philippines." she said, adding that she has looked into rumors of graft and corruption resurfacing in government.

However, she said these "appear to have been prompted less by well-grounded suspicion as by the burning desire of the informant to replace" officials her government had installed into office. "This government, is, if nothing else, honest; and I'm going to make sure it stays that way if I have to fire everyone to do it," Mrs Aquino said.

NPA COMPANY AMBUSHES ARMY CONVOY, KILLS 8

HK011047 Hong Kong AFP in English 1026 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] Gumaca, Philippines, July 1 (AFP) -- Communist guerrillas overwhelmed an army convoy near here, killing at least eight soldiers as the government and rebel leaders prepared for ceasefire talks, eyewitnesses said Tuesday. The ambush occurred Monday on a highway outside this coastal town some 150 kilometers (93 miles) southeast of Manila, three Manila-based photographers who witnessed the ambush by the New People's Army (NPA) said.

"We have not received a ceasefire order from above," the rebels' commander told the photographers shortly before the 35-minute attack by the 82-strong NPA company began. "If they want a ceasefire they should not enter our red zone," the commander told the photographers, who went to the scene Sunday after learning of the planned ambush. A red zone is an area where communist rebels enjoy strong support from the local population and often roam freely.

The photographers counted at least eight bodies on the road after the ambush, and said the guerrillas burned two of the three jeeps carrying the soldiers and recovered a dozen automatic refles and a grenade launcher. They said the rebels suffered no casualties and returned to a forest bivouac near to the ambush site.

Military and Defense Ministry spokesman in Manila could not immediately confirm or deny the Gumaca ambush on Tuesday. Staff members at a hospital in the town, however, confirmed that eight army troopers were killed, and two of the four injured soldiers were in serious condition.

A government negotiator in the ceasefire talks, Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra, told reporters in Manila on Monday that the date and site of the talks would be set this week.

The NPA, which has an estimated strength of 16,000 nationwide, is the armed force of the banned Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP). The rebels are at the forefront of a 17-year-old insurgency President Corazon Aquino is striving to solve four months after she took over from Ferdinand Marcos on the back of a popular revolt. The NPA has said it will limit attacks to "abusive" military units during the talks and will largely take a defensive position.

DATE, VENUE OF CEASE-FIRE TALKS UNDER DISCUSSION

[Text] Manila, June 30 (AFP) -- Government and communist representatives are to set the date and venue of ceasefire talks this week, Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra said here Monday. Mr Mitra and human rights lawyer Jose Diokno have been appointed by President Corazon Aquino to hold peace talks with the communist underground in a bid to seek a political solution to the 17-year-old insurgency. "We're talking to the people, whom I assume are authorized by them to fix the date and the place where we should meet," Mr. Mitra told reporters, adding that these were set to be finalized later this week.

The National Democratic Front (NDF), a coalition led by the banned Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) and its 16,500-strong New People's Army (NPA), has named former newsmen Satur Ocampo and Antonio Zumel as its representatives to the talks. Both are said to be high-ranking leaders of the underground movement.

Mr. Mitra said he was in touch with Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Armed Forces chief General Fidel Ramos "on some of the measures which we should take in order to provide safe conduct to the representatives who will come here." He added: "I imagine that they will also make arrangements of safe conduct for us in case it becomes necessary for us to go and see them where they are."

Meanwhile, the state-run PHILIPPINE NEWS AGENCY (PNA) reported heavy fighting Monday between government troops and a 100-man Moslem separatist guerrilla group on a southern Philippine island. A Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF) insurgent was killed as government troops attacked a rebel formation at a village on Olutanga Island, some 800 kilometers (480 miles) south of Manila, PNA said. The troops captured 45 foxholes held by the MNLF, PNA said, quoting regional military chief Brigadier General Lorenzo Rapanan. Military spokesmen here could not immediately confirm the report.

CPP 'FIRMING UP' TWO-PHASE PEACE PROPOSAL

OW301341 Tokyo KYODO in English 1259 GMT 30 Jun 86

[Text] Manila, June 30 KYODO -- The Communist Party of the Philippines is firming up a "two-phase" peace proposal leading to a coalition government to be presented in ceasefire talks, the BUSINESS DAY newspaper reported Monday. Suspected Communist Party Chairman Jose Maria Sison on the same day said that the political and economic crisis in the Philippines will force the government of President Corazon Aquino to allow revolutionaries to participate in a coalition government.

The first phase of the peace proposal requires the adoption of "political measures" for a "standstill" in armed clashes between government troops and the New Peoples Army (NPA) guerrllas "unless provoked." It includes a demand to pull out military detachments and checkpoints from within or near guerrilla territories. The second phase, which covers the ceasefire negotiations proper, will "work out the basic agreement within the framework of a transitional, democratic coalition government," including the eventual integration of the NPA into a reorganized and reoriented Philippine armed forces.

Sison, who was released from nearly 10 years of detention by Aquino shortly after she took power in February, told a breakfast forum in Manila Tuesday that a "new coalition government is possible." He said that the present government is already a coalition of forces that toppled Ferdinand Marcos and included Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, who led a civilian-backed military revolt which ended 20 years of Marcos rule. "I suppose the ruling system would continue to die, the political and economic crises continue to worsen and a point shall be reached that the Aquino government will be desperate enough to see that revolutionary forces can take part in a new coalition government," he said.

The underground umbrella organization National Democratic Front (NDF) has named two former journalists, Satur Ocampo and Antonio Zumel, as its official negotiators opposite Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra and human rights lawyer Jose Diokno, who were named members of the government panel in the ceasefire talks. "Such a proposal for a coalition government may doom the outcome of official truce talks, which have yet to take place," BUSINESS DAY commented. Another newspaper quoted Ocampo last Saturday as saying that the NDF did not have any bottomline demands or preconditions and all it wants is an "atmosphere for cordial talks."

Quoting from a 10-page draft document prepared by the Communist Party Central Committee, the BUSINESS DAY reported that the NPA will confine its attacks on "unreformed (military) officers and men, local warlords, Marcos loyalists, unruly police and civilian home defense (militia) units." The revolutionary forces will keep its guerrilla units in villages and remote towns under its control.

The document contained demands to be presented to the Aquino government, including the trial and punishment of officials who committed murder and torture, the release or political prisoners still in jail and the suspension of further U.S. military assistance. Among the Communist Party goals in "a negotiated political settlement" are the abrogation of all military treaties with the U.S. and other foreign countries, the implementation of land reform, and the complete recovery of ill-gotten wealth of government officials and their families and associates in the previous regime.

GOOD GOVERNMENT COMMISSION GRANTED WIDER POWERS

HK280154 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2300 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] President Aquino has granted the Presidential Commission on Good Government [PCGG] blanket authority in exercising ownership rights and voting privileges over sequestered corporation shares. PCGG Commissioner Ramon Diaz said the blanket authority was given by the president in a memorandum issued on June 26 as an annex to Executive Order Nos 1, 2, and 14. These executive orders created the commission and delineated its powers and immunities on the recovery of ill-gotten wealth.

PCGG chairman, former Senator Jovito Salonga, met with a group of volunteer lawyers who will be tasked with drafting of ethics in government service to improve the ethical standards in government by all public officials. The former senator also said that the commission is tasked with three very important functions, namely the recovery of ill-gotten wealth by former President Marcos and his associates, the investigation of cases of curruption assigned to the commission by President Aquino and the present government, but he stressed that the most important is the adoption of concrete measures so that abuse of government will not happen again as characterized by the past regime.

MARCOS LOYALISTS: GOVERNMENT SOFT ON COMMUNISM

HK300559 Quezon City Radyo ng Bayan in Tagalog 0400 GMT 30 Jun 86

[Text] The government is soft on communism. This was the allegation made by Marcos loyalists headed by former Members of Parliament Rafael Recto and Salvador Britannico who staged a rally at Luneta on Sunday. The loyalists also demanded the resignation of President Corazon Aquino and the ouster of Constitutional Commission President Cecilia Munoz-Palma. At the same time, they demanded the return of ousted President Marcos and the holding of local elections.

Meanwhile, Oliver Lozano, known spokesman of former President Marcos, said a bigger rally is being planned for 4 July at the EDSA [Epifano de los Santos Avenue] as a show of support for Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Armed Forces Chief of Staff General Fidel Ramos for their stand against communism.

NOTES EXCHANGED WITH USSR ON GRAVES VISITS

OW020855 Tokyo KYODO in English 0845 GMT 2 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 2 KYODO -- Japan and the Soviet Union simultaneously exchanged notes in Tokyo and Moscow Wednesday for visits to family graves by their citizens in each other's country without a visa. Under the agreement, former Japanese residents of Soviet-occupied northern islands off Hokkaido can visit their ancestoral graves there with only their ID cards, a list of their names and vouchers to be issued by Intourist, the state-run Soviet travel agency.

A Japanese foreign ministry official said representatives of both countries exchanged notes in Tokyo and Moscow. In Tokyo, a foreign ministry official and a Soviet embassy official exchanged notes to permit Soviet citizens to visit the graves of their relatives killed in the Russo-Japanese war (1904-1905).

The notes specifically stipulated agreement emphasizing that the issue of such visits does not infringe on "judicial positions" of both sides on all other issues, in reference to Japan's claim to the four islands seized and occupied by the Soviets since the closing days of World War II. The simultaneous ceremonies followed agreement on the issue reached Tuesday between foreign minister Shintaro Abe and new Soviet Ambassador Nikolay Solovyev in Tokyo. Japanese officials said that sites of visits, travel routes, itineraries and means of transportation will be determined annually.

Japanese visited their family graves on three of the disputed northern isles -- Habomai, Shikotan and Kunashiri -- and several other areas in the Soviet Union between 1964 and 1975, carrying only ID cards issued by the Japanese Government. But the Soviets demanded in 1976 that Japanese with plans to travel to their family graves in the Soviet territory should obtain visas. The demand prompted Japan to suspend visits to family graves on the northern islands.

The exchange of notes Wednesday paved the way for former Japanese residents of the northern islands to visit their family graves as early as next month, the officials said. A senior foreign ministry official said Tuesday evening that the new agreement may help lead to resumption of scientific and technological cooperation talks between the two countries this autumn after a six-year suspension.

[Text] Tokyo, July 1 KYODO -- Ishihara Sangyo Kaisha Ltd., a leading chemical company, Tuesday announced plans to build a titanium oxide plant in Singapore's Jurong Industrial Complex. Under present plans, the plant will have an annual production capacity of 36,000 tons initially and 72,000 tons eventually, Ishihara official said. Construction work will begin by the end of this year with completion scheduled for June 1989, they added.

Investment in the project is estimated at about 30 billion yen and the plant will be operated by a wholly owned subsidiary to be set up in Singapore, according to the officials. They said the project is aimed at meeting expanding global demand for titanium oxide and also at boosting the company's international competitiveness, which has been reduced by the yen's appreciation against the dollar.

NODONG SINMUN URGES ACCEPTANCE OF KPA PROPOSAL

[NODONG SINMUN 29 June article [kul]: "Fair, Just, and Reasonable Peace Proposal"]

[Text] The KPA Supreme Command's peace proposal for holding talks between military persons in authority participated in by those who hold real power in the military in the North and South is causing great reaction among the people at home and abroad because of its fair, just, and reasonable nature. Our new peace proposal for holding talks between military persons of authority is a very timely and just step in view of the urgent nature of the situation prevailing in our country as well as in view of the form of the talks and the contents of discussions.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Today, Korea is the place where the situation is the most tense and acute in the world. This is causing deep concern among the Korean people as well as among the people of the surrounding countries and the entire world.

Today, the situation on the Korean peninsula is so aggravated that it is in danger of touching off a war at any time. The state of military confrontation of the North and South between the Military Demarcation Line [MDL] is at the greatest level since the Armistice, and the distrust and military confrontation against each other as a result of this is in the most serious phase.

In recent years in South Korea, 80 to 90 percent of the puppet armed forces, as well as the U.S. Army, have been deployed in the forward area along the MDL, in accordance with the newly completed operational plan of blitzkrieg; their mobile capabilities have been drastically increased; their nuclear combat capabilities have been strengthened; and 180,000-strong commando forces have been newly organized.

Additional deployment of such modern weapons and military equipment as missiles, rocket cannons, tanks, armored vechicles, F-16 fighter-bombers, offensive helicopters, and new binary chemical wewapons is being planned, and the completion of the military personnel's combat posture is being accelerated so as to wage an operation of northward invasion at any time.

The U.S. imperialists, having deployed some 1,000 nuclear weapons of various kinds, including nuclear bombs, nuclear shells, and neutron weapons, have set up operational plans to wage a preemptive strike on our republic, and are placing their vast armed forces and equipment deployed in the U.S. mainland, Asia, and the Pacific region in readiness to be dispatched to the Korean front at any time.

Along the MDL, between which the vast armed forces of the North and South are confronting each other, an extremely tense and acute situation is prevailing in which a trivial accidental incident can touch off a war. As soon as a war breaks out, it will inevitably be turned into a nuclear war, leading the Korean peninusla into the calamity of nuclear war. This will be beneificial neither to the North nor to the South, nor will it be good for the people of the United States.

The prevailing situation demands that an epochal measure for preventing a war on the Korean peninsula by all means and for opening a road to the alleviation of tension and peace be urgently considered.

In order to prevent the danger of war under the present conditions, measures for helping alleviate tension should be considered, even if a fundamental solution to the problem of peace may be difficult; and under the present circumstances where the MAC is unable to carry out its function properly, a solution to the problem should be sought outside its periphery.

The KPA Supreme Command's new peace proposal has been made, reflecting the urgent demand of such a situation. If a face-to-face meeting is held, as we proposed, between us, the United States and South Korea, the military persons in authority who are directly responsible for the aggravation of tension on the Korean peninsula and who have the unavoidable duty of alleviating tension will be able to take many realistic and specific steps for peace on the Korean peninsula. Therefore, holding talks between the military persons in authority is the most fair and reasonable way to realize the alleviation of tension in military fields.

In connection with the contents of the talks to be discussed, we proposed that such problems as calling off military exercises and arms buildup, which are the direct causes of the aggravation of tension and the danger of war, reducing troops and armaments, and observing the Korean Armistic Agreement as required by its original clauses be discussed and solved, and made it clear that the problems raised by the U.S. and South Korean side can also be discussed if they serve to alleviate tension on the Korean peninsula.

As for the place of the talks, we noted that Panmunjom would be an appropriate place and that other places could also be chosen to the convenience of both sides.

Truly, our proposal for talks between the military persons in authority is not a unilateral one seeking only the interests of our northern half of the republic but it is the most fair, just, reasonable, and realistic proposal taking into account the interests and demands of the U.S. and South Korean side and sufficiently taking into consideration their position.

If the talks between military persons in authority are realized, the U.S. and the South Korean side who will sit face-to-face with us will feel no inconvenience at all, nor will they feel uncomfortable [singyongul ssulkotto opssul kosida].

There is no reason whatsoever that our fair and just proposal for talks between the military persons in authority, promoted by the serious desire to prevent the danger of war which is approaching and to alleviate tension, cannot be accepted by the U.S. and South Korean authorities. This is particularly so under circumstances in which the United States and the South Korean ruling ring have continued mentioning the alleviation of tension and peace whenever they have a chance to do so.

The attitude taken by the U.S. and South Korean persons in authority toward our new peace proposal will be a standard and measure determining whether they really want the alleviation of tension, dialogue, peace, and reunification in Korea. Nevertheless, the United States and the South Korean ruling ring are again displaying a negative reaction, saying in a distorted manner that our peace proposal is not constructive and that it is propaganda-oriented.

This realistically proves once again that the threat of southward invasion which the United States and the South Korean puppets are raving about is a complete fabrication and falsity, that the alleviation of tension and peace which they mention are empty talk, and that they are only interested in further aggravating tension on the Korean peninsula which is in danger of explosion.

If they really desired peace and alleviation of tension, they would not turn away from our peace proposal for taking steps to alleviate tension in military fields. Also, as to whether or not our proposal is propaganda, the parties concerned will know if this is so if they sit together and discuss it. Engaging in illogical idle talk, without sitting together and discussing the problems, is not a proper thing to do nor is it a position for solving problems.

If the U.S. and South Korean persons in authority really want alleviation of tension and peace, they should not continue following the road of aggravating tension, just sitting and babbling about a nonexistent threat of southward invasion, but should affirmatively respond to our peace proposal and go in the direction of solving the problem in practical terms. If the United States and the South Korean ruling ring continue to follow the road of aggravating tension and war, turning away from our peace proposal, they will further expose their nature as bellicose elements and destroyers of peace and will not be able to escape the curse and condemnation of our people and the world's peace-loving people.

FOREIGN SOURCES CITED ON SUPPORT OF KPA PROPOSAL

PRAVDA 29 Jun Article

SK011036 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1028 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] Moscow June 29 (KCNA) -- The Soviet paper PRAVDA June 29 carried an article on the peaceful proposal of the Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army under the headline "For Stability on the Peninsula." Recalling the proposal of the KPA Supreme Command to have talks of military authorities, the paper denounces the United States and the South Korean authorities for refusing DPRK's peaceful proposal on unreasonable excuses.

Explaining the reason why the Pentagon brasshats categorically refused a plan for the withdrawal of nuclear weapons and U.S. troops from South Korea, the paper says: Under this situation the DPRK's stand responsible for the destiny of the peoples in the Asian region was made all the clearer. The Soviet working people express invariable solidarity with the Korean people during the month of solidarity with the Korean people in their struggle to force the foreign troops out of South Korea and peacefully reunify the country on a democratic basis, the paper emphasizes.

Algerian Official

SK020439 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0420 GMT 2 Jul 86

[Text] Pyongyang July 2 (KCNA) -- Belaid Brahim, director of a department of the Ministry of National Defence of Algeria, held that the United States and South Korean authorities must accept unconditionally the just proposal of the Supreme Command of the Korean People's Army and immediately respond to it. In his press statement issued on June 20, he said that the proposal of the Supreme Command of the KPA on holding talks between the military authorities involving the minister of People's Armed Forces of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, the commander-in-chief of the U.N. Forces in South Korea and the South Korean minister of National Defence is an important initiative of momentous significance in removing the vast-scale military confrontation between the North and the South, relaxing the tension on the Korean peninsula, eliminating the danger of war and safeguarding peace there. It is a fair and aboveboard proposal acceptable to anyone who desires peace on the Korean peninsula, he said with emphasis.

VNS ON SPECIAL CONSTITUTION COMMITTEE IN SOUTH

SK290410 (Clandestine) Voice of National Salvation in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Station commentary]

[Text] During this hour of station commentary I will discuss the end of the 130th extraordinary session of the National Assembly.

The 130th extraordinary session of the National Assembly which had continued since 5 June came to an end on 24 June after achieving nothing but a verbal tug of war between the ruling and opposition parties. Thus the just-ended 130th extraordinary session of the National Assembly has left another dirty spot in the history of the National Assembly. The just-ended extraordinary session of the National Assembly, which lasted for nearly 20 days, had been in session amid surging anti-U.S. and antidictatorial struggle of the youths, the students, and the masses of all walks of life which came on the heels of the oppositions party's campaign to collect 10 million signatures to revise the Constitution.

Against the backdrop of such a situation, the DJP hurriedly convened the so-called extraordinary session of the National Assembly, quite reluctantly, but with a definite objective to forestall the campaign for constitutional revision kicked off by some of the opposition parties, as a way to bring under control the chaotic political situation and to stamp out and obliterate at the root the anti-U.S. and antidictatorial struggle of the masses of all walks of life, which had rapidly begun to expand and surge forward in the wake of the campaign for the constitutional revision.

The question is: What was it that the DJP sought through the just-ended extraordinary session of the National Assembly. Simply put, the DJP's objective was to drag off-stage the struggle to revise the Constitution expanding among the masses of all walks of life into the hedge called the National Assembly and to drive their struggle off-stage into a complete blockade.

As you all may know, the campaign to collect 10 million signatures to revise the Constitution in a way that institutionalizes a direct presidential election system, which the NKDP launched toward the end of last February, rapidly began to spread across the country, including Seoul, Pusan, Kwangju, Masan, Taegu, and Inchon. Not only the youths and students but a broad range of the masses of all walks of life, including off-stage personages and religious personages, have joined in the campaign to collect signatures for constitutional revision.

This was a great blow to the Chon Tu-hwan group which was scheming to cling to the indirect presidential election system in a bid to prolong its stay in power. Under such circumstances, the Chon Tu-hwan group held a so-called meeting of leaders of three major partioes by inviting presidents of the opposition parties, whom the group had hitherto regarded as enemies, to come to Chongwadae and there tried to placate them by saying that it was willing to have the Constitution revised before the current presidential term expires should the ruling and opposition parties reach an agreement on revising the Constitution in the National Assembly.

The just-ended parliamentary session should, therefore, be termed, as a matter of course, a political farce plotted by imposters, the Chon Tu-hwan group which had no choice but to come up with such a stop-gap measure.

Another objective that the DJP kept in mind during the just-ended extraordinary session of the National Assembly was to water down the struggle of the masses of all walks of life and to paper over public opinion by conjuring up an atmosphere of imminent change with an eye-catching program called a policy reflecting public opinion moving toward constitutional revision. This is well expressed in the fact that as soon as the extraordinary session of the National Assembly came to an end the DJP coterie was overjoyed with the formation of a special parliamentary committee to revise the Constitution which they described as a result of their efforts to achieve a great compromise and an agreement between the ruling and opposition parties during the just-ended extraordinary parliamentary session.

The special parliamentary committee to revise the Constitution will only end up fattening the DJP belly. Is it not clear, even to the young pupils of elementary school, that the DJP, which has a majority in the National Assembly, will certainly railroad its own version of a bill for the constitutional revision through the legislature? This is, in effect nothing but a political trick designed to quietly replace the public demand for constitutional revision with discussions within the framework of the National Assembly. This is a method to idle away time through the so-called special parliamentary committee, a pro-government institution, affecting an attitude of studying the constitutional revision, and to try to achieve the DJP coterie's ambitions for prolonging their stay in power while further consolidating the foundations for dictatorial rule.

Our people call for an abolition of the Constitution, not its revision, and for establishing a democratic constitution based on the public consensus.

It is therefore no accident that youths and students across the country, including Seoul and Kwangju, are now staging a struggle, shouting such slogans as "Let us smash the special parliamentary committee for the revision of the Constitution and convene a parliamentary session for the constitutional revision" and Let us smash the U.S. plot for the federation of conservatives and the special parliamentary committee which deceptively schemes to revise the Constitution."

Although the Chon Tu-hwan and DJP coteries are trying to deceive our people and to achieve their ambitions for prolonging their stay in power with the rainbow-like veil called the special parliamentary committee to revise the Constitution, they will never be able to realize their objective.

Our people will never allow themselves to be taken in by the crafty and deceptive trick of the Chon Tu-hwan ring. Instead, they will struggle more vigorously to abolish the current Constitution and to have a democratic Constitution.

'PUPPET' NATIONAL ASSEMBLY 'RIGS' AMENDMENT PANEL

SK282248 Pyongyang KCNA in English 1457 GMT 28 Jun 86

[Text] Pyongyang June 28 (KCNA) -- The extraordinary session of the South Korean puppet National Assembly passed a "Resolution on forming an ad hoc committee for constitutional amendment" along with a series of evil laws including a "Bill on amendment to the law on organising the homeland Defence Reserve Forces," according to a report.

The course of rigging up the "Resolution on forming an ad hoc committee for constitutional amendment" showed that the "extraordinary National Assembly session" played the role of a servant in "legalizing" and backing the treacherous crimes of the Chon Tu-hwan group.

These days the 10 million signature collecting campaign for amendment to the fascist "constitution" has gained momentum in South Korea, combined with the anti-U.S., anti-"government" struggle of students and people of all walks of life.

Much upset at this, the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique held a "dialogue" with opposition party presidents some time ago, withdrew its previous "assertion for constitutional amendment in 1989" and let "Democratic Justice Party" repeatedly propose to discuss the issue of constitutional amendment within the "National Assembly".

In this way, the puppet clique brought this matter before the "extraordinary National Assembly session" and fabricated the "Resolution on forming an ad hoc committee for constitutional amendment".

In craftily scheming to make it appear as if it were interested in constitutional amendment while talking about "discussion of the issue of amendment" in the "national assembly" the Chon Tu-hwan group seeks to all intents and purposes to take the edge off the struggle of the people for constitutional amendment.

U.S. ECONOMIC DEMANDS ON SOUTH TERMED 'DESPOTIC'

SK290548 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 1149 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Commentary by station commentator Kim Kyong-pok: "Tyranny of a Colonial Ruler Who Seeks Plundering]

[Text] Participants of the so-called economic consultative meeting held a few days ago between the United States and the South Korean puppets reportedly issued a 14-point press release on trade and economic issues.

During this conference, the participants reportedly agreed to settle such longstanding issues concerning Section 301 of the U.S. Trade Act as property patents, copyrights, trademarks, and opening up South Korean markets at an early date and to prepare a document containing the agreement.

It is also reported that the U.S. side pressed the puppets to broaden the scope of the investment liberalization policy and to further improve the investment climate.

Simply put, this is nothing but an expression of the ruler's tyranny and despotism in considering South Korea as only a hereditary estate and further strengthening his colonial rule and plundering in South Korea.

It was last September when the U.S. imperialists began to apply to South Korea Section 301 of the U.S. Trade Act, a brigandish trade law which includes such issues as intellectual property and opening up South Korean markets. The plot to further strengthen domination and plunder the South Korean economy was given concrete shape during Reagan's junket to South Korea in November of 1983 in particular and again during traitor Chon Tu-hwan's junket to the United States in April of last year.

The U.S. imperialists, who have been more enthusiastic over expanding armaments in recent years, are now trying to bring under control the ever-deteriorating economic and financial crisis by strengthening the plunder of such colonies as South Korea.

Motivated by this desire, the U.S. imperialists threatened to restrict the import of such goods as textiles and footwear, which account for a great portion of South Korea's export to the United States, unless the South Korean puppets further open up their markets. Also, last October the U.S. imperialists forcibly demanded that the South Korean puppets protect their own intellectual properties, including patent rights, trademarks, and copyrights. During the following month of the same year, in November, they had a bill to restrict the import of textile and garment items passed in the U.S. Senate's plenary session.

As you may know, South Korea has only land, water, and labor that it can claim as its own. It has a subordinate economy which relies on someone else's technology, raw materials, and materials. Therefore, all goods produced in South Korea are in fact someone else's goods that carry South Korean trademarks.

Under such circumstances, if the law to protect intellectual property that is being forced on South Korea by the U.S. imperialists is put into force, South Korea will not be able to produce or sell a significant amount of goods copied from U.S. goods, while at the same time it will have to pay a huge amount of royalty money should it borrow U.S. know-how or copy U.S. goods in accordance with patent rights, trademarks rights, and copyrights.

If South Korea takes measures to protect intellectual properties as demanded forcibly by the United States, it will incur a loss of over $1 billion as a whole, that is, more than $180 million each year, to protect copyrights. South Korea's chemical industry, light industry, and genetics industry that produce goods based on U.S. technology will all go bankrupt.

As for U.S. pressure on South Korea to open up its market to U.S. goods, it means to say that South Korea should open its markets so that the U.S. Imperialists can sell their surplus goods in South Korea as they please while building a high protectionist wall to South Korean goods.

In response to the U.S. imperialist demand that South Korea open up its markets, the puppet Chon tu-hwan clique already liberalized anew the import of 235 items last July and then pledged to raise the rate of import liberalization from 87.7 percent to 91.6 percent by the second half of 1986. This is something that can be done only by flunkeyist slaves who are depending solely on the U.S. masters to survive.

Because the U.S. imperialists have such a flunkeyist group as the traitor Chon Tu-hwan clique in South Korea, they have been able to settle issues of protecting intellectual property, opening South Korean markets, and liberalizing investment and issues strengthening colonial domination and plundering as they wish in the just-ended meeting.

Where the U.S. imperialists have demonstrated their tyranny through the just-ended economic consultative meeting, the puppets have laid bare their subservient nature as running dogs serving their U.S. masters for all to see.

It is therefore natural for South Korean youths' students, and people of all walks of life to continue to stage anti-U.S. struggle without letting up, shouting such slogans as "U.S. capital that strangles the Nation should withdraw" and "Overthrow the subordinate regime."

The South Korean youths, students, and people who know very well through experience and today's reality that the U.S. imperialists are none other than ignominious aggressors and plunderers will continue their struggle against the U.S. imperialists' colonial domination and plundering more vigorously than ever.

U.S. AMBASSADOR'S COMMENTS VIEWED AS 'OUTRAGEOUS'

SK301005 (Clandestine) Voice of National Salvation in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 29 Jun 86

[Station commentary]

[Text] How are you, everyone? In this hour, I will speak about the arrogant and provocative remarks which Walker, U.S. ambassador in South Korea, made on 27 June.

At a time when the mass struggle continues to denounce the Chon Tu-hwan military dictatorship and the United States, which instigates it, and to demand the overthrow of the dictatorship and the withdrawal of U.S. troops, an American is once again making intolerable remarks, arousing our people's indignation. The remarks are the ones which Walker, U.S. ambassador in South Korea, made on 27 June.

On that day, at a seminar held in Taegu on the occasion of the so-called bicentennial of the establishment of the Constitution of the United States of America, he delivered a keynote speech entitled: "The Influence Exercised by the U.S. Constitution." In this speech, he implicitly said that the United States does not support any specific form of government in South Korea. At the same time, as he were delivering an order, he said that a constitution, once established, should be maintained forever. These remarks are indeed provocative ones which are endlessly arrogant and outrageous.

It can be said that even a child knows that the specific form of government he mentioned is a democratic government ardently desired by our masses, and that the established constitution, which he said should be maintained forever, is the heinous current constitution which is called the second Yusin constitution. At the same time, it can also be said that these remarks made by Walker at an official gathering are the reflection of the opinion of the White House, and the direction of policy and the principle of action which the U.S. Government has set forth for the Chon Tu-hwan group.

In a nutshell, the remarks Walker made are an outrageous order to continue to suppress our masses' demand for the establishment of a democratic constitution with physical force. At the same time, his remarks are a conspiratorial order for realizing the schemes to reorganize the power structure through the National Assembly, and are a delineation of the direction to maintain the current dictatorial constitution. Thus, it can be said that Walker's remarks have once again disclosed the master-servant relations between the U.S. and South Korean Governments.

At present, the United States is desperately trying to prevent the development of a Philippine situation in South Korea, maintain the fascist colonial dictatorship, and hold on to this soil as a permanent bridgehead to invade the continent.

Freightened by the anti-U.S. and antidictatorial struggle of the South Korean masses, which had intensified and expanded after the Philippine situation, the United States hurriedly sent such high-ranking officials as the secretary of Defense and the secretary of State to Seoul one after the other and preached that South Korea was not the same as the Philippines, shamelessly praising the so-called achievements of the Chon Tu-hwan group in seeking democracy. This was precisely for the purpose of realizing the objectives mentioned above.

At the same time, in a meeting with the representatives of the three South Korean political parties during his visit to Seoul, Shultz uttered the nonsensical, anticommunist propaganda that everything can be lost under the circumstances in which the threat of the North exists, no matter how strongly democracy may be demanded. Thus, he preached the uselessness of democracy. This was also for the purpose of realizing the objectives mentioned above. The remarks the U.S. ambassador made this time are also ones for the same purpose.

Defending the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan group and supporting the fascist dictatorship are an intolerable challenge to our masses who are struggling to overthrow the current fascist military regime and to achieve independence, democracy, and reunification.

Through the remarks Walker made this time, the U.S. imperialists have once again disclosed their true color as the enemy of the South Korean masses, not as their friends and protectors.

Our masses will never lower the anti-U.S. and antifascist banner for independence and democracy but will continue to struggle unyieldingly until they repel the United States from this soil and bury the Chon Tu-hwan group.

Comrade So Yun-sok spoke at the meeting. He said that in the name of the Pyongyang WPK Committee and the entire party membership and workers of Pyongyang, he warmly welcomes the visit to our country by the UNIPZ delegation headed by Secretary General Comrade Alexander Grey Zulu, a long and true friend of the Korean people.

He noted that although Korea and Zambia are separated by a long distance of waters and land, they have long formed inseparable ties of firm friendship and have actively supported and cooperated with each other because of the commonness of the plight of the peoples of the two countries in the past in which they were oppressed and mistreated and because of the commonness of today's anti-imperialist struggle for independence.

He continued: The historic meetings between the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and President Kenneth David Kaunda, the outstanding leader of the Zambian people, in Pyongyang in April 1980 and in April 1982 were epochal events which developed the friendly and cooperative relations between our two parties and the peoples of our two countries.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has met with Secretary General Comrade Alexander Grey Zulu and many other Zambian comrades and had important conversations, which are a guideline for further promoting Korean-Zambian friendship, which was provided and fostered by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the respected President Comrade Kenneth David Kaunda. We are convinced that the friendly and cooperative relations between our two parties and two countries will be further strengthened and developed in conformity with the overall interests and aspirations of the peoples of the two countries, based on the ideals of independence, friendship, and peace, and in conformity with the overall interests of the Nonaligned Movement.

He said that our party and people, who are highly valuing the friendship and unity with the Zambian people, have been watching, with feelings of firm solidarity, all the events taking place in Zambia, and continued: In the historical trend in which the world's people are following the road of independence, the UNIPZ and the Zambian people, under the correct leadership of the respected president, His Excellency Kenneth David Kaunda, are today vigorously waging a struggle to build a new prosperous society, exercising their sacred right to determine the course of political, economic, social, and cultural development, and their right to control their national resources and to develop and utilize them in their own interests.

Today, the UNIPZ is firmly consolidating its ranks in terms of organization and ideology and is further strengthening its party leadership in all fields -- political, economic, and cultural. In particular, the UNIPZ has put forward an accurate line and policy to build a self-reliant base for the national economy, which is the material basis of the country's political independence, and is actively evoking the popular masses' creative zeal to carry them out. Therefore, in Zambia today, the old heritage of imperial and colonial rule has been removed, a great success is being attained in agriculture, the construction of national industry, and the development of education and culture, and the social and economic position of the Zambian people is undergoing a fundamental change.

Today, the UNIPZ and the Zambian people are actively struggling, in the field of foreign relations, to oppose the imperialists' policy of aggression and war, to strengthen and develop the unity and cooperation with the nonaligned counties, and to realize the complete liberation and decolonialization of southern Africa. Our party and people warmly congratulate the UNIPZ and the Zambian people on all their victories and successes in the struggle to build a new independent and prosperous Zambia, and truly rejoice over the fact that the international position and role of the Republic of Zambia are being enhanced daily.

He exposed and denounced the South African racist clique for perpetrating a savage air raid and armed attack some time ago, with U.S. backing, on many frontline countries such as Zambia, Angola, Zimbabwe, and Botswana, and said that its haughty aggressive maneuvers are meeting with surging indignation of the world's people.

He stressed that our party and the government of the Republic strongly denounce the provocative air raid and armed attack of the South African racists against Zambia and other southern African frontline countries as a violent infringement upon these countries' sovereignty and territorial security and a last-ditch attempt to obliterate the cause of the complete liberation of Africa.

He noted that President Comrade Kenneth David Kaunda issued a military mobilization order some time ago to heighten vigilance against the Pretorian racist clique's reckless aggressive maneuvers and in order for all the Zambian people to defeat the aggressors at any time when they wage aggression, and said that such a step is a most just self-defensive step to defend and protect the country and nation from an enemy attack.

He said that no matter what aggressive maneuvers they may employ, the imperialists and the South African racists will never be able to curb the firm will of the Zambian people and the peoples of other southern African frontline countries to defend their national independence and to bring about the complete liberation of southern Africa. He stressed that our party and our people, as they did in the past, will continue to render active support and assistance to the just struggle of Zambia and other frontline countries for sovereignty and territorial security and the revolutionary struggle of the South African people and Namibian people for national self-determination and the independence of the country.

He said that because of the reckless arms buildup and war preparation maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets, the Korean peninsula today is one of the areas where the danger of nuclear war is the greatest in the world and that eliminating the danger of war and ensuring peace on the Korean peninsula is an urgent problem awaiting a solution in world politics. He stressed the fact that in order to cope with the prevailing situation, the KPA Supreme Command has recently proposed that talks between the military persons in authority be held between the minister of the People's Armed Forces of the DPRK and the commander in chief of the United Nations Forces in South Korea and the South Korean minister of national defense, and said that our proposal is receiving the consistent support and welcome of not only the entire Korean people but also of all the peace-loving people of the world desiring peace in Korea.

He noted that the WPK and the Korean people will wage a vigorous struggle in firm unity with the support and assistance of the Zambian people and all other progressive people of the world to check and frustrate the two Koreas plot of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets and to achieve the cause of the independent and peaceful reunification of the country.

He stressed that we will cooperate closely with the UNIPZ and the Zambian people in the future as well, as we did in the past, and wage a vigorous struggle to build a new independent Asia and Africa free from imperialism, colonialism, exploitation, and oppression.

KIM YONG-SAM PROPOSES MEETING OF TOP LEADERS

SK010840 Seoul YONHAP in English 0820 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] Seoul, July 1 (YONHAP) -- Kim Yong-sam, a prominent opposition leader, Tuesday proposed a meeting of Korea's top five political leaders, including President Chon Tu-hwan and himself, to pave the way for the peaceful democratization of the country through constitutional revision.

He suggested that the meeting also be attended by Kim Tae-chung, a leading dissident and co-chairman of the Council for the Promotion of Democracy (CPD), Yi Min-u, president of the leading opposition New Korea Democratic Party, and No Tae-u, chairman of the ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP).

In a speech he delivered at the Seoul Foreign Correspondents' Club, Kim Yong-sam, who serves concurrently as the NKDP's standing adviser, said it would be impossible to bring about constitutional revision by agreement in an atmosphere where the prospect for democratization is dim.

"A new constitution adopted in the absence of national consensus will not only lack broadly-based support; it will also give birth to a defective regime burdened with questionable legitimacy," he said.

Kim demanded that the opening of debate for constitutional revision be marked by "a tangible signpost that the past oppression and dictatorship is now behind us and a new era of democracy and reconciliation is upon us."

He urged the government leaders to "cut clear of the politics of retaliation by releasing political prisoners, decreeing amnesty and restoring civil rights for all democratic personalities and discontinuing arrests and surveillance of dissidents' and to join in 'the great prelude to national reconciliation.'"

Kim said that the opposition is "patiently" demanding the release of "political prisoners" and the restoration of civil rights for democratic personalities.

He warned, however, that the opposition will have no choice but to repudiate the present government and suspend the dialogue and negotiations if it is convinced that the intention behind the government's constitutional revision is not for democratization.

"The present regime must understand: we are not on our knees begging for democracy; we are waiting for it to come out for democracy," Kim said.

He added that fruitful dialogue conducive to compromise is possible only when both sides are genuinely committed to the goal of democracy.

Kim went on to say that "there would be no point in talking about constitutional revision for democratization while imprisonment, arrest and surveillance of dissidents continue: it would only bring disillusionment with democratization through constitutional revision."

"If we should fail to amend the constitution by agreement, and consequently fail to democratize our country peacefully, the crisis of legitimacy of the present regime would be aggravated," he said.

In the speech titled "Let Us Open the Door for National Reconciliation," Kim said all responsible political leaders, regardless of whether or not they belong to the government or opposition camp, have the common responsibility to seize the present moment as an opportunity to create a new era.

NKDP ADOPTS 4-POINT RESOLUTION ON REVISION

SK010751 Seoul YONHAP in English 0736 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] Seoul, July 1 (YONHAP) -- South Korea's main opposition New Korea Democratic Party (NKDP) Tuesday adopted a four-point resolution calling for the creation of an atmosphere conducive to constitutional revision.

In an executive council meeting, the NKDP confirmed Monday's decision to submit a list of delegates to the special committee for constitution revision in the National Assembly as soon as possible, an NKDP official said.

The NKDP has threatened to withhold its list of delegates to the ad hoc panel until the ruling camp shows sincerity about the amendment by releasing a large number of detainees who had called for constitutional reform.

In the resolution, the opposition party urged the ruling Democratic Justice Party (DJP) not to delay the creation of an atmosphere favorable to democratic revision of the constitution, the official said.

The resolution contends that the ruling camp should take proper measures to bring about the early release of those detained for their involvement in the struggle for democratization and constitutional revision.

The resolution also requested that authorities lift their search order for those wanted by police in connection with their campaign for democratization.

It pointed out that the ruling camp's affirmative response to the NKDP's demand will be the most reliable evidence for the DJP to prove its willingness and determination to amend the constitution.

In the resolution, the NKDP reaffirmed that the presidential system reflects the national consensus and the people's long-cherished desire, which was verified in the Feb. 12 general elections.

The opposition party committed itself to launching a campaign for the direct presidential election system, as well as a petition drive for constitution revision across the country.

In addition, the NKDP demanded that the DJP unveil its draft for revision immediately in order to run the special constitution committee in a normal way.

DJP OFFICIAL ON PARTY TIMETABLE, MEETING WITH NKDP

SK020034 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 2 Jul 86 p 1

[Text] The ruling Democratic Justice Party will complete its draft for constitutional amendment by the end of August so as to present it to the National Assembly in September, a senior party official said yesterday.

Rep. Chong Su-tok, secretary general, told reporters that the party would decide on the type of power structure for a new Constitution by Aug. 15.

It was the first time a ranking party official revealed the party's timetable for the formulation of its own draft for the amendment.

The main opposition New Korea Democratic Party has demanded that the DJP bare its own idea of the new basic law, particularly the form of government over which the rival parties are sharply pitted against each other.

He said that the DJP's draft will be made on the basis of public opinion shown at its public hearings to be held in major cities beginning in Taejon on Saturday.

However, he made it clear that the DJP's draft will not adopt a direct presidential election. The primary reason is that "neither side will accept the results of the election," he said.

Since the DJP has agreed to rewrite the Constitution, it has been desperate to convince the people of the ill effects of a direct election of the president.

The NDP maintains that the new Constitution should have the direct presidential election formula.

The DJP's final draft of the amendment will be made through debates among its lawmakers in a caucus, according to him.

As to a proposal by Kim Yong-sam for a "five-way meeting," he promptly spurned it, saying that "it will not be conducive to the settlement of problems."

"This is not a time to consider such a meeting and it will only further complicate problems," he claimed.

Recalling that the NDP has claimed that only constitutional amendment will save the current situation, he said, "Now is the time for us to seek mutually acceptable terms for the amendment."

"We should not seek a political show like the holding of such a meeting," he argued.

The proposed meeting's participants are President Chon Tu-hwan, DJP chairman No Tae-u, NDP president Yi Min-u, Kim Tae-chung and Kim Yong-sam.

KNP CONFIRMS DIRECT PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION STAND

SK020045 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 2 Jul 86 p 1

[Text] The minor opposition Korea National Party confirmed a final version of its own constitutional amendment in an Executive Council meeting yesterday.

The KNP's recently drafted amendment calls for, among other things, direct popular election of future presidents. The party said it would present the revision bill to the National Assembly as soon as the special Constitution Revision Committee at the National Assembly begins operation.

CHON-LEE KUAN YEW SUMMIT TALKS REPORTED

SK260748 Seoul YONHAP in English 0629 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Seoul, June 26 (YONHAP) -- South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan and Singaporean Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew agreed Thursday to strengthen cooperation between their two countries to promote peace and stability on the Korean peninsula, presidential spokesman Chong Ku-ho said Thursday.

In summit talks here on Thursday morning, Chon briefed Lee on current military and political developments in northeast Asia and expressed the hope that the political situation on the peninsula will stabilize in the next few years through internatonal cooperation, the spokesman said.

The Korean president pointed out that the Soviet Union's policy of military expansion in east Asia threatens the strategic balance between Washington and Moscow. The security of southeast Asia is closely linked to that of northeast Asia, he added.

In response, Lee, expressed deep concern about the situation and said that free world nations should hold a cautious view of the Soviet military buildup in the Camranh Bay base in Vietnam, according to Chong.

The Singaporean leader praised the efforts of the South Korean Government on behalf of peace on the reaffirmed his support for Seoul's formula for the peaceful reunification of the divided country though direct dialogue between South and North Korea in international diplomatic forums.

The two leaders also discussed ways to promote bilateral economic cooperation and rising protectionist sentiment, Chong said.

They expressed satisfaction over the establishment of closer economic cooperation between Seoul and Singapore in the fields of trade, construction, aviation, banking and personnel exchanges, despite the global business recession of the early 1980s.

Chon and Lee agreed that their two nations should further develop their friendly cooperative relations.

The two leaders pointed out that the mounting global protectionism constitutes a great obstacle to world economic growth and that the abolishment of trade restriction is essential to sustained economic growth among developing countries.

Lee reaffirmed that Singapore will participate in the 1986 Asiad and 1988 Olympiad, both scheduled for Seoul.

The Singaporean prime minister also expressed the hope that the success of the two international sports events will contribute to prosperity and peace in East Asia.

Lee, accompanied by his wife and a 16-member entourage, reciprocates a trip that Chon made to Singapore in July 1981. The prime minister made his first official visit to Korea in October 1979.

'PRUDENCE' URGED IN U.S. ECONOMIC CONSULTATIONS

SK010341 [Editorial Report] THE CHUANGANG ILBO in Korean, an independent daily published in Seoul, on 24 June carries on page 2 a 500-word editorial entitled "Discussion of the Pending Economic Issues Between Korea and the United States" concerning the 5th ROK-U.S. Economic Consultative Meeting in Seoul.

Calling for the "prudent and wise attitude of the government" toward the meeting because various pending economic issues concerning trade between the two countries are attracting the "extraordinary attention" of the people, the paper stresses that the meeting participants should not attempt to "hastily resolve" all of the pending problems in one lump, including opening markets and protecting intellectual ownership noting that such issues would exert "decisively serious" influence over our economy.

Recalling the experience of past negotiations between Korea and the United States and noting the basic principles were not followed between the two countries, the paper states that despite the market opening rate now having reached 91 percent, a level of advanced nations, the United States has consistently forced their own interests upon the ROK.

The paper also notes that protecting so-called intellectual ownership and negotiations related to the Article 30, which is designed to force open financial and services markets, are considered "unreasonable" negotiations, rather that normal consultations.

Asserting that such an "all-out offensive" by the U.S. side is a strategy intended to settle individual issues in one lump, the paper calls on the Korean side to not be dragged into the U.S. strategy, and stresses that negotiations should be carried out according to the ROK's own schedule with regard to textiles, in which the quota freeze is considered a main issue, basically run counter to the spirit of the reciprocal agreement and stresses that such demands by the U.S. side should not be accepted.

The paper concludes that since issues relating to the protection of copyrights and patents will exert extensive influence over domestic research and development, technological innovations, and the people's welfare, such issues should not be "hastily" dealt with.

THE CHOSON ILBO in Korea, an independent daily newspaper published in Seoul, on 25 June carries on page 2 a 700-word editorial entitled "They Excessively Make Haste With the Opening of Markets" in connection with the recent ROK-U.S. Economic Consultative Meeting in Seoul.

Stating that the United States is "too hastily" forcing the ROK to liberalize imports, protect intellectual ownership, and open insurance and financial markets, the daily notes that the ROK-U.S. economic meeting in Seoul gives the impression that the United States is attempting to "hastily" realize the opening of ROK markets and the protection of its intellectual ownership while the ROK side is "simply following" the U.S. side.

In conclusion, the editorial calls for "prudence" in dealing with issues concerning the opening of insurance and financial markets, as well as protecting patents and copyrights. The editorial concludes that the ROK should ponder whether it has reached the point of fully opening markets and completely protecting intellectual properties.

PROCOMMUNIST LETTERS FOUND IN HIGH SCHOOLS

SK270055 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 27 Jun 86 p 8

[Text] Police, teachers and parents in Seoul are exerting a multipronged effort to minimize adverse effects from college student activists' ongoing campaign to mail "ideology letters" to middle and high school students.

Police have intensified watches in and around secondary school campuses to check college students sneaking onto campuses to distribute the "black" letter or to try to indoctrinate innocent students with "dangerous" ideas.

More than 1,000 letters, tainted with contents agitating violent antigovernment struggles or sympathizing with north Korea, have been discovered at several high school campuses for the past few days, police said.

They included 289 letters which were found to have been distributed at three Seoul high schools on yesterday alone. The three schools included Taeil High School in Chongnung in northern Seoul.

Two days earlier, a package of 94 similar letters were discovered on the campus of Sorabol High School in northeastern Seoul.

One phrase of the letters read, "Minjung's (literally meaning the masses) burning aspiration for revolution heralds their victory in their struggle against the American imperialists and the military dictatorship."

The unprecendented letter-mailing campaign is regarded as the newest mode of college student radicals' antigovernment activities.

The high schools presumed that the "black" letters were distributed by some college students who must have sneaked onto the campuses by posing as alumni.

Some college students were revealed to have invited students of their almamater high schools to their campus on the pretext of showing them around the school facilities and instead conducted secret "ideology" education sessions.

Alerted by the letter-mailing campaign, some middle and high schools in Seoul reportedly provided special anticommunism education for their students to prevent them from being disillusioned by such letters.

The schools are installed "impure mail-collecting boxes" at places across the campuses and asked students to drop any strange letters or other printed materials into the boxes, if they come across them on the campuses.

Some schools were learned to have mailed letters to parents to inform them of the letters and their dangerous contents and possible harmful effects on innocent, young students.

Police reportedly plan to arrest those involved in the production and distribution of the letters for violation of the National Security Law.

A police source said that many phrases of the letters so far discovered obviously praised or symphathized with north Korea and its causes.

Police are already seeking the key members of Yonsei University's student council for their suspected leading role in writing of such letters.

Many citizens expressed concerns over the black-letter mailing campaign for its potentially harmful effects.

Min Pok-sik, 58, principal of Kyongbok High School, was quoted as saying, "It is distressing that they (college student activists) are trying to indoctrinate the innocent, young students with such radical ideas."

Meanwhile, Yonsei University's faculty members conducted an in-house search on the campuses, discovered over 400 "ideology" letters and burnt them.

SYMPOSIUM PARTICIPANTS CALL FOR NUCLEAR ARMS BAN

OW191309 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in Russian 1343 GMT 18 Jun 86

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 18 Jun (MONTSAME) -- The participants of the scientific-theoretical symposium "For the liquidation of arms of mass destruction and the elimination of the threat of nuclear war", organized within the framework of the International Peace Year, have issued a statement.

The full text of this document follows.

We, the participants of the symposium, dedicated to the International Peace Year and held under the banner of "For the liquidation of arms of mass destruction and the elimination of the threat of nuclear war", are expressing deep concern in regard to the worsening international situation caused by the aggressive policies and adventurous actions of the United States and its close NATO allies, who continue on their course of nuclear and other arms race and preparation for the so-called "Star Wars."

We, as representatives of scientists, teachers, doctors, jurists, and other circles of working intelligentsia of socialist Mongolia, are quite certain that we can prevent mankind's backsliding toward the nuclear abyss and ensure universal security only by radical measures of universal and, above all, nuclear disarmament and by preventing the militarization of space. The Mongolian people, like all progressive forces of our planet, fully support the historically significant program put forward by the Soviet Union for the liquidation, in the next 15 years, of nuclear, chemical, and other arms of mass destruction, followed by a ban on the creation, testing, and deployment of offensive space arms and the utilization of space exclusively for peaceful purposes.

We are certain that a universal and total ban on nuclear tests will undoubtedly be the first and most important step in curbing the nuclear arms race and achieving nuclear disarmament. In this regard, we highly evaluate the continuation of the unilateral moratorium on all nuclear explosions, which should bring about a favorable situation and provide a unique chance to achieve a universally acceptable agreement on this question.

We warmly welcome the results of the recent meeting of the Warsaw Pact's Political Consultative Committee and its announcement proposing a broad plan to defuse the tension in Europe by reducing armed forces and conventional arms, which fully concurs with the vital interests of the people of Europe and the whole world and serves as a further expression of the tireless efforts of the socialist countries to create an all-embracing system of international security.

The Mongolian people express justifiable concern over the existence and worsening of hot spots and tensions on the Asian continent, the growth of the U.S. military and nuclear presence in Asia and in the Pacific region, and the activation there of military and reactionary forces. In the present unstable situation, it is becoming progressively more urgent to ensure all-Asian security through collective efforts and by acting on the proposals of various peace-loving countries, including the MPR, aimed at concluding a convention of mutual nonaggression and nonuse of force among the countries of the Asian and Pacific region.

The participants of the symposium reaffirm the consistent support of the Mongolian people for UN activities in strengthening international peace and universal security, and express their determination to assist the world community in the cause of [passage indistinct] was of the Soviet people against Hitler's fascism, we once again turn to the historical lessons of World War II, to the sacred memory of 50 million wasted lives, and call on all the people of good will not to waste time, but to pool their efforts and purposefully and actively struggle for preventing a new war which, in the present nuclear space era, would turn into a catastrophically fatal one for all mankind and civilization. It is the unified and joint actions of all peace-loving forces that are capable of curbing the actions of the warmongers.

We will continue to broaden and develop our cooperation and joint actions with all the peoples, all nationalities, and all international organizations and movements, and with all people of good will, who speak out for the liquidation of arms of mass destruction and the elimination of the threat of nuclear war.

Ulaanbaatar, 18 June 1986.

BCP POLITIAL REPORT CONTINUES ON PAST 'ERRORS'

BK221332 (Clandestine) Voice of the People of Burma in Burmese 1200 GMT 22 Jun 86

["Continuation of the Political Report on the Burma Communist Party Central Committee Presented to the Third National Party Congress"]

[Text] Every party cadre had to review the whole general line laid down by the Revolutionary Politburo, and any person who was opposed to any of the points concerning ideology, politics, organization, and style of work mentioned in the documents was either charged as committing a revisionist error or labeled as a revisionist. The move was aimed at violently dismissing persons who differed in outlook or in work style. It amounted to the abolishment of inner-party democracy, the persecution and elimination of people with different opinions, and the infringement upon and the destruction of the principles of democratic centralism.

Theoretically, as well as in a practical sense, that line was wrong because it was not party construction on the basis of Marxism-Leninism-Mao Zedong Thought but the destruction of the party. In practice also, the Central Committee from the top down to the township committees, which were within their reach, were abolished. The party Central Committee and party committees at different levels were replaced with the Tripartite United Front -- the Revolutionary Cadres, the Revolutionary Combatants, and the Revolutionary Masses, Youths, and Women -- by the Revolutionary Politburo. This was sectarianism (?put into practice).

Continuation of Report

BK300800 (Clandestine) Voice of the People of Burma in Burmese 1200 GMT 29 Jun 86

["Continuation of the Political Report of the Burma Communist Party Central Committee Presented to the Third National Party Congress"]

[Text] The errors committed under that line had very far-reaching negative effects, and ideologically, politically, and organizationally, in the style of work as well as in other aspects both the party and the revolution suffered severe setbacks. Revolutionary base areas in the Lower Burma Division, the Delta Division, and the Upper River Areas Division were all destroyed. There were bad repercussions within the party masses, the party work forces, and the people. The party became a great source of fear; no one dared speak out, offer suggestions, or deal with the party. Darkness hung over the whole party and no one dared to do party work properly.

For the most part, policies laid down and pursued at that time by the party center regarding the questions of the military, land, ethnic minorities, and the united front were wrong. We must, however, give credit where credit is due. The party center was correct in assessing the armed struggle as the primary form of struggle, in exposing the three principal enemies [imperialism, fedual-landlordism, and bureaucrat capitalism], in initiating the agrarian revolution, and in deciding to form an alliance with the ethnic minorities.

The party center, in laying down and working on its party contruction, military, and land policies, was manifesting its left extremism, while it was reflecting the right tendency in dealing with the united front and the ethnic minorities. The errors committed at that time, however, were primarily left extremist errors.

The root causes of the errors of that line were:

1. The metaphysical method of thinking based on subjectivism, one-sideness, and superficiality and under which reality was divorced from fantasy, and theory was separated from practice.

2. A petty-bourgeois individualistic style of thinking.

3. Left dogmatism in politics.

4. Sectarianism in organizational work. The party turned bureaucratic and was divorced from the majority of the people; people who differed in outlook were coerced; inner-party democracy was curtailed; and this eventually led to the abolition of the party itself.

5. Petty-bourgeois ultraism. Ultraistic thinking and work were reflected within the party.

PRINCE RANNARIT INTERVIEWED ON CGDK FOUNDING

BK230802 (Clandestine) Voice of Khmer in Cambodian 0500 GMT 22 Jun 86

[Interview with Prince Rannarit, representative of Samdech Norodom Sihanouk to Cambodia and Asia and commander in chief of the Sihanoukist National Army, by station correspondent; place and date not given -- recorded]

[Text] [Correspondent] As correspondent of the Voice of the Khmer radio, I would like to humbly salute Your Highness Norodom Rannarit, personal representative of Samdech Norodom Sihanouk to Cambodia and Asia and commander in chief of the Sihanoukist National Army [ANS].

First of all, I would like to ask Your Highness why the two noncommunist Cambodian patriotic factions -- namely, the FUNCINPEC and the KPNL -- agreed to form a coalition government with the DK faction.

[Rannarit] First, I would like to thank you, representative of the Voice of the Khmer radio, for interviewing me here and allowing me the opportunity to explain to or inform the public about our struggle situation. As for your question, let me tell you that since communist Vietnam invaded our Cambodian fatherland in 1979, the noncommunist Cambodian leaders -- namely Samdech Norodom Sihanouk, always regarded as father by all Cambodians and His Excellency Son Sann -- have always resolutely intended to counterattack the Vietnamese communist aggressors in order to liberate the nation. In order to be able to wage such a national liberation struggle, we deem it necessary to ask countries cherishing justice and loving the Cambodian people to provide our resistance movement with material support.

Unfortunately, such countries as the United States, which is the flag bearer of the free world, and others up to 1982 refused to give the noncommunist patriotic movement any assistance. For this reason, Samdech Norodom Sihanouk and His Excellency Son Sann were told in 1982 by many friendly countries, in particular one country that was most likely to give military aid to our resistance movement -- namely the PRC -- that should the samdech and His Excellency Son Sann want means for their Sihanoukist, noncommunist patriotic forces to conduct the struggle against the Vietnamese aggressors for national liberation, they must agree to form a coalition government with another faction, namely the Khmer Rouge, a coalition officially known as the DK faction. In short, we have joined them because we must. If we believe in the need for all Cambodians to unite against the Vietnamese aggressors to liberate our beloved fatherland and regard this as being more important than any principle, we must all understand and accept the fact that we have to rally all Cambodians from all political tendencies and ideologies, united to create a great strength and provide for the Cambodian resistance movement, and all Cambodians in general, the means and possibilities to conduct the national liberation struggle.

[Correspondent] Thank you, Your Highness. In your capacity as personal representative of Samdech Norodom Sihanouk and commander in chief of the ANS, can you tell us more about the current military situation in Cambodia?

[Rannarit] First, let us talk of the war situation in the 1985-86 dry [as heard] season only. As you know, the Vietnamese communist aggressor forces successfully attacked all bases on the patriotic fighters along the border. Now we are late in the rainy season and what military gains have the Vietnamese aggressors made? Foreign observers and journalists who are well known for their integrity admitted that during this past dry season, the Vietnamese troops could not conduct their sweeps against the patriots. The Vietnamese were unable to concentrate their forces for any attack against our patriotic forces.

Second, Vietnam has several plans: A plan to seal off the border; a plan to prevent our countrymen in the interior from giving support to the patriotic fighters, particularly to the nationalist forces; a plan to fence off major districts, provinces, and cities to prevent the patriots from operating freely inside and the inhabitants from going out to make contact with or provide assistance and support for the patriots. These Vietnamese plans have completely failed. For example, the ANS has been able to field more than 7,000 men into the interior. For the first time, our combatants can live in the interior where they carry out their mission. Moreover, all of our combatants have enjoyed the full support of our fraternal people who are also waging a struggle for national liberation inside the country.

Third, you already know that Vietnam is making a great effort to build Mr Heng Samrin's forces into a viable army. However, so far, not only have Mr Heng Samrin's forces failed to become a strong army, but they have even attacked the Vietnamese aggressors, for there are brothers in this army who first thought that the Vietnamese came to save Cambodia from Mr Pol Pot but, then after 7-8 years of Vietnamese presence they have found out that more and more Vietnamese nationals are being settled in Cambodia and that the Vietnamese are tightening their control on the Cambodians, robbing Cambodia of its fish, rice, and timber, which they ship back to Vietnam. Moreover, the Vietnamese have put firm controls on the forces of Mr Heng Samrin. In short, these people have found that the Vietnamese have not come here to help them, but to grab their land and enslave the Cambodians. For this reason, throughout the country more and more patriotic brothers in the army of Mr Heng Samrin are being stirred up. Not only are they becoming restive, but they are also mutinying against the Vietnamese. Very recently, at Samraong, Cambodian patriots in the ranks of the Heng Samrin army attacked the Vietnamese aggressors.

Fourth, maybe you already know, but I would like to further inform our compatriots who listen to the Voice of the Khmer that on the international front, except for a small group of Soviet satellites and Vietnamese friends, not a single country on earth has recognized the government of Mr Heng Samrin. On the contrary, our tripartite coalition government has been supported by 114 countries at the last UN General Assembly. These countries support our struggle against Vietnam.

In short, on the battlefield, the Vietnamese aggressors have suffered total defeat, and particularly this year both Vietnam and the Soviet Union have also suffered big setbacks in the international arena. In other words, we can say that all observers, after taking note of the situation, have admitted that this is a first, that this 8th year is the first time that Vietnam and its aggressor troops have found themselves in a more difficult situation than ever before.

[Correspondent] Thank you, Your Highness.

3 INJURED IN 27 JUN SRV MORTAR ATTACK

BK280141 Bangkok THE NATION in English 28 Jun 86 p 1

[Text] Trat -- Two border patrol police [BPP] troops and a Thai girl were wounded yesterday when more than 20 Vietnamese mortar shells landed on a border village in Muang District here.

A strategic bridge linking the provincial seat and Khlong Yai District was also blown up by a Vietnamese sabotage team earlier in the morning.

Field sources said about 15 Vietnamese soldiers sneaked across the border into Ban Son Village at about 3 am and bombed a bridge on Trat-Khlong Yai national highway between km 41 and 42. The bridge, called Khlong Khwang, was partly damaged.

Vietnamese gunners based in Kampuchea fired more than 20 mortar shells into the Thai village of Ban Tha Sen about 40 km from the provincial seat, later at about 9:30 am. The mortar bombardment followed a skirmish between Khmer Rouge guerrillas and Vietnamese troops on Banthat mountain range which straddles the Thai-Khmer frontier.

Six 82-mm mortar shells landed near a BPP position while about 20 others exploded at the foot of the mountain on the Thai side, wounding two BPP troops and a Thai girl.

The wounded were indentified as Sergeant Witthaya Wonghathaen, 40, Sergeant Lap Nonglek, 42, and Benchamat Nonglek, 16. All of them were admitted to Thrat Hospital for treatment.

Military sources said fighting between Khmer Rouge guerrillas and Vietnamese soldiers escalated last week. They also said a Navy L-19 plane strafed Vietnamese intruders in Kao Lan Village of Khlong Yai District on June 21. The Vietnamese, they said, fired SAM-7 surface-to-air rocket at the Thai aircraft but they missed it.

Marines managed to push the intruders back into Kampuchea later in the day.

13,000 NEW VIETNAMESE TROOPS REPORTEDLY IN CAMBODIA

BK270118 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 27 Jun 86 p 4

[Text] About 13,000 fresh Vietnamese toops were moved into Kampuchea in May and this month in rotation with the forces which were pulled back, National Security Council Secretary-General Prasong Sunsiri said yesterday. Sqn-Ldr Prasong said that 3,500 Vietnamese soldiers were sent into Kampuchea from Southern Vietnam in May and another 9,500 troops were quietly poured in while Hanoi was staging a publicity campaign about its annual troop pullout. The troops were sent to Odder Mean Chey, Siem Reap, Koh Kong and Kampuchean interior to replace those who were withdrawn. "The much-publicised troop pullout is a lie. In fact, the same number of troops were sent into Kampuchea which means that there is no troop withdrawal at all," he said.

The MSC chief said Khmer resistance forces were now capable of advancing from defensive stage in guerrilla warfare to the second stage of confrontation with the Vietnamese troops.

The resistance have extended their influence over many rural areas inside Kampuchea and have infiltrated into Batambang, Pursat, Phnom Penh, Mekong River and around the Angkor Wat.

Hanoi tries to counter the resistance and infiltration with ground forces and air power, but with little success. Should the Vietnamese pull out of Kampuchea, the Heng Samrin regime will immediately collapse, he said. Vietnam has replaced its troops facing Thai-Kampuchean border with Heng Samrin troops to give an impression that the latter are capable of handling the situation.

On the subject of Russian scholarships to Thai students, Sqn-Ldr Prasong said the government treated scholarships granted by all foreign governments in the same fashion and under the same regulations. The Soviet Union tends not to follow regulations, he said, and the NSC has already informed the Thai Foreign Ministry that it will not be able to complete deliberation of Russian scholarships this year because it is not a matter of urgency. The NSC rejected the granting of scholarships because the students would have to spend 1-2 years studying Marxism and may not be able to pass the examination. But he said he had no objection to post-graduate scholarships.

OFFICIALS DISCUSS CAMBODIA WITH AD HOC COMMITTEE

BK010241 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 1 Jul 86 p 3

[Text] Massambri Sarre, chairman of the International Conference on Kampuchea ad hoc committee, yesterday discussed the Kampuchean conflict with top Thai officials. Mr Sarre met Deputy Foreign Minister Arun Phanuphong and National Security Council chief Prasong Sunsiri.

Sqn-Ldr Prasong said that Mr Sarre was told that the Thai Government was trying to find a political solution to the conflict and that Vietnam has changed neither its strategy nor objectives. Mr Sarre was also told that Vietnam had rejected the Khmers' "reasonable" eight-point proposal and that Hanoi's K-5 plan had failed. The latter involves destroying the bases of the Khmer resistance and sealing the border with booby traps while attempting to destroy resistance forces within Kampuchea.

Sqn-Ldr Prasong said that Vietnam is undergoing economic problems, a change of leadership and suffers from corruption. He said that the Soviet Union could solve the problem by ending military support and persuading Hanoi to end its occupation of Kampuchea. Instead the Soviet Union is trying to portray itself as a country that wants to solve the issue while it continues to support Vietnam with arms, he added.

Mr Sarre assured Sqn-Ldr Prasong that he would continue to try and find a solution to the issue.

Meanwhile Indonesian Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja said yesterday that efforts to resolve the Kampuchean conflict will not be affected if Son Sann resigns as premier of the resistance coalition fighting Vietnamese forces. He was commenting on reports that Son Sann had threatened to resign his post in the three-party coalition, which the United Nations recognises as the legitimate government of Kampuchea. "If he resigns, somebody will succeed him," Dr Mochtar said in Jakarta. He also said Son Sann's faction, the Khmer People's National Liberation Front, will stay in the coalition even if Son Sann resigns.

Son Sann was reported to have offered his resignation to coalition President Norodom Sihanouk in a letter sent to the prince in Pyongyang, North Korea, on June 18 from Paris. Son Sann was reported to have told Sihanouk that he would resign "if there was to be no improvement in the situation within the resistance faction."

REPORTAGE ON 27 JUL GENERAL ELECTIONS

Wanphen on Military Factions

BK200209 Bangkok BANGKOK POST in English 20 Jun 86 p 3

[Text] Puangchon Chao Thai Party leader Maj-Gen Rawi Wanphen yesterday denied involvement with any military faction and said the Armed Forces must be impartial in the general election.

The former Internal Security Operations Command Officer, however, defended the military role in politics in historv, saying that military-led coups were needed in the past to wrest power from certain interest groups. Maj-Gen Randi did not believe that military political involvement had forestalled the development of democracy nor had military-led coups been detrimental to democracy. The military, he said, is part of the government and if political parties want true democracy, they must look upon the military establishment as an essential element in promoting democratic principles. Rejecting the notion that the military is "untouchable" because of its overwhelming political influence, he said coups will be a thing of the past if the democratic atmosphere is preserved.

Speaking at a seminar at Thammasat University, Maj-Gen Rawi defended his party for fielding women candidates from Suphan Buri in Bangkok. The party has become the target of press criticism for sending candidates who are not politically active and have no chance of winning.

Maj-Gen Rawi, who is running in Yasothon, said his party tried to meet the requirement that parties must field at least half of the seats, or 174 candidates. He said two days before the poll registration closed, his party had only 70 candidates and was plagued with financial problems.

The party received financial support from sources he refused to reveal shortly before the registration was closed. Therefore, he had to recruit anybody to apply as candidates for the party to qualify in the election. Many Bangkok natives were willing to apply as candidates but demanded money, which the party did not have, so the women were brought from Bang Pla Ma District of Suphan Buri.

Another speaker, Chumphon Chat Thai MP for Suphan Buri, said his party will push for an electoral change by returning the electoral system to one-man-one-vote system. The system divides all provinces except Bangkok into one constituency in which the winning party takes all the seats in that province-wide constituency. Mr Chumphon said his party had completed the draft amendment and will press for test in Bangkok before it applies to provinces. Chat Thai, he said, also favours elections for provincial governors. On paddy prices, he said his party will not seek to bring back the price guarantee scheme but has otherways of keeping prices high.

Democrats Divided Over Prem

[Text] A split within the Democratic Party over who should be the next prime minister widened yesterday with a member criticising support openly thrown behind Gen Prem Tinsulanon, saying that this had made the party's Bangkok candidates uneasy. Khanin Bunsuwan's comment came amid reports that some Democrat candidates in the South have said Gen Prem will be the next prime minister, an attempt to woo southerners' support in the election.

Government spokesman and Democrat Party candidate for Songkhla Trairong Suwannakhiri said on Thursday that Gen Prem was the most suitable person to become the next prime minister.

Education Minister Chuan Likphai who is a Democrat candidate in Trang Province said relations between the party's southern members and Gen Prem were of a personal nature but that he believed people in the South wanted Gen Prem to become the new premier.

Mr Khanin who is contesting Bangkok Constituency 2 for the party said advertising personal ties between Gen Prem and some candidates was unfair to the party as a whole. The bond between Gen Prem and the Democrat Party was through Parliament. Such ties no longer existed because the House has been dissolved. He added that in the last two weeks Gen Prem's popularity in Bangkok had been declining. "Some people have even said that they won't vote for the Democrats if the party supports Gen Prem in the next government," Mr Khanin said. "Most Bangkok residents I have spoken to say they would prefer an elected prime minister. I will back Democrat Party leader Phichai Rattakun to become prime minister if the party wins the majority of seats in the House in the election," he said. Mr Phichai was the most suitable person to become prime minister because of his knowledge of the country's economic problems and foreign affairs, he added.

Mr Khanin said the Democrats stood a good chance of allying themselves with the Chat Thai Party in forming the next coalition. Either the progressive or the Ruam Thai parties could also join in a coalition if the Democrat and Chat Thai parties did not have a majority in the House, he said. The Democrats are unlikely to join the Social Action Party in forming the next government because there is little of the party left following mass defections by members.

Democrat Leader Denies Rift

[Text] There was no rift among the Democrats about the choice of the next prime minister, party secretary-general Wira Musikaphong said yesterday. Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon has not yet become the choice of the Democrats as the prime minister after the election, Wira said. "The party has not yet decided whether to invite him (Gen Prem) as the premier, even though we (the Democrats) form a coalition government," the acting Deputy Interior Minister said.

Wira, in an interview yesterday in Phattalung, said that there was no rift among the Democrats about the choice of the next prime minister. Democrat candidates used different campaign tactics in wooing support from the public, he said.

The Democrats in the South said directly or indirectly that they prefer Gen Prem as the next premier while candidates in Bangkok and other provinces insisted to have party leader Phichai Rattakun as head of the next government. Democrat candidates in the South reportedly accompanied Prime Minister Prem on his trip in the region.

Government Speaker Trairong Suwannkhir who contests in Songkhla said Gen Prem is the most suitable person to head the next government.

Deputy Education Minister Samphan Thongsamak, who contests in Nakhon Si Thammarat, told the people that Gen Prem is likely to be the next premier.

Democrat candidates in Bangkok, however, were reported to be unhappy about the southern candidate's statements when they, including leader Phichai Rattakun, insisted that the position should belong to a party leader.

Wira said that it is a principle that a party leader should become the prime minister if it commands absolute majority in the House of Representatives. He added that he believed that its southern candidates made the statement only on condition that no single party wins absolute majority in the House. On part of the Democrats as a whole, Wira admitted that the party might not win the majority command.

COMMUNIST INSURGENT CHIEF SHOT DEAD IN SOUTH

[Text] Trang -- A communist insurgent chief in this southern province was shot dead yesterday afternoon during a clash with patrol rangers, a military report said. The report said the brief clash took place at the Hua Thanon-Laliennai Road area in Palian District. The insurgent chief was identified as Wira Phengleng.

Meanwhile, Interior Minister Sitthi Chirarot said this morning that it was the duty of government officials and the military to suppress communist insurgency. Gen Sitthi was speaking in comment on a report from Patthalung that a band of communist insurgents attacked a police resting camp in Kuankhanun District on Saturday morning and took machineguns and nearly 1,000 rounds of ammunition.

REPORTAGE OF OPENING OF U.S.-VIETNAM MIA TALKS

Delegation to Arrive 1 Jul

BK301518 Hong Kong AFP in English 1443 GMT 30 Jun 86

[Excerpt] Hanoi, June 30 (AFP) -- A U.S. delegation is to arrive here Tuesday [1 July] to resume stalled talks with Vietnam over U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action (MIA) from the Vietnam War, officials said. The U.S. team will be headed by Richard Childress who is in charge of Asian affairs in the U.S National Security Council. Vietnamese officials have said little on the visit, which marks a resumption in the delicate talks after a three month gap imposed by Hanoi officially to protest the U.S. raid on Libya.

Talks Open

BK011144 Hong Kong AFP in English 1127 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] Hanoi, July 1 (AFP) -- The United States and Vietnam resumed talks Tuesday on the issue of American servicemen listed as missing in action (MIA) in the Vietnam war. U.S. delegation chief Richard Childress said that a first, 90-minute session had been very positive, but he declined to give any details of what was discussed. A high-ranking Vietnamese official said only that the talks had focused on the missing.

On his arrival in Hanoi earlier in the day, Mr. Childress, who is Asian Affairs advisor to the U.S. National Security Council, said he would make no statement before the end of the talks. He said the talks were too serious for comment.

The Vietnamese official said Hanoi hoped its two-year plan for searching for MIA's could be implemented with U.S. cooperation. Washington has so far refused to formally endorse the plan, although Deputy Secretary of State Richard Armitage said on an earlier visit to Hanoi that the United States was prepared to help Vietnam achieve its unilateral plan in two years.

Vietnamese sources indicated that the U.S. refusal to give move official backing to the plan was largely to blame for the slowdown in efforts to find MIA remains in the past three months. Hanoi, which holds that its plan should be adopted bilaterally, indicated in April that searches might well achieve no results unless Washington had a more constructive attitude.

In Manila, a ranking U.S official said Saturday that Mr. Childress' visit to Hanoi was intended to make U.S. participation in the search more official as well as to speed up the process. A total of 1,792 U.S. servicemen are still listed as missing in action on the Pentagon's records. The ranking U.S. official also said Mr. Childress would be discussing the issue of legal departures of Vietnamese refugees to the United States. The rate of departures slowed notably in recent months as a result of a Hanoi-Washington conflict over selection of candidates for departure. A top Vietnamese official refused to confirm whether the issue would be discussed, although he said the talks remained open.

The U.S. delegation is to have a new round of talks Wednesday before leaving Hanoi.

Further on Talks

BK020834 Hong Kong AFP in English 0820 GMT 2 Jul 86

[Text] Hanoi, July 2 (AFP) -- The United States Tuesday gave formal backing to a Vietnamese plan to search for U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action (MIA) since the Vietnam war, U.S. officials said here. The official endorsement came in a letter handed over to Vietnam by a U.S. delegation which arrived here Tuesday for talks on the MIA issue. The head of the delegation, Richard Childress, said after meeting Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach that the letter was in response to Vietnam's plan to search for MIA's over a two year period. He said the letter had been signed by Richard Armitage, an assistant U.S. defense secretary.

Mr Childress, who has responsibility for Asian affairs in the U.S. National Security Council, said that the letter headlined "formally our understanding and our commitment," to Hanoi's plan. He said that the United States was committted "to a list of many cooperative actions" with Vietnam, but added that it was still a "unilateral" plan. Mr Childress said that there had been a "misunderstanding" between the two sides over the MIA's issue in recent months. But he described talks here Tuesday and Wednesday with Vietnamese officials as "very productive and businesslike." "We are reassured that the Vietnamese commitment to resolve the issue in the context of their two year plan and the concentrated efforts they pledged is still intact and ongoing," he said.

The U.S. delegation was to leave Hanoi later Wednesday.

AIMS OF DRAFT LAW ON MARRIAGE, FAMILIY DISCUSSED

OW011331 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Dear friends: Following is an introduction to the report on the draft law on marriage and family presented by Comrade Nguyen Thi Dinh at the 11th session of the 7th National Assembly.

The law on marriage and family, promulgated in 1959 and now in force, has contributed to emancipating women and achieving equal rights between men and women in family and society.

At present, the situation in our country has basically changed; our advanced society requires more concrete and complete regulations on socialist marital and family relationships. The promulgation of the new law on marriage and family is an objective necessity for accelerating socialist construction across the country.

On 25 October 1982, the Council of Ministers issued a decision on setting up the marriage and family law drafting committee. The new law on marriage and family ensures the continuity and development of the 1959 law on marriage and family. It builds and consolidates the socialist marital and family system, and shapes new socialist men and a socialist pattern of marital and family relationships, while getting rid of vestiges of the lingering feudal marital and family system, outmoded customs, and the influence of bourgeois ideology in marriage and family life.

The new marriage and family law is built on these principles: voluntary, progressive marriage between a single husband and a single wife; equality between husband and wife; protection of the rights of parents and children; and protection of mothers and infants. Following are some points on marriage and parent-child relationships in the draft law.

Marriage: Concerning marriageable age, there are opinions suggesting an increase to 20 for women and 22 for men, and 22 for women and 25 for men, with a view to curbing population growth. The draft law still maintains the marriageable age of 18 for women and 20 for men, as specified in the 1959 marriage and family law, which has been in force for 27 years and has customarily been observed by our people.

Investigations and surveys on marriage and family show that there still exist many cases of marriage below the legally specified age in rural areas, particularly in mountainous regions.

In fixing the minimum marriageable age, we should examine many aspects, with attention paid to ethnic customs. Increasing the marriage age is not a fundamental measure for checking population growth. It may lead to complicated developments.

Regarding the properties of husbands and wives, the draft law specifies:

The common property of a husband and wife include the property created by the husband or wife, the income earned from their occupations, other joint income acquired by the husband and wife during their married life, and the property presented as gift to the husband and wife or inherited by both — Article No 14.

Regarding the property acquired by a husband or wife before marriage or presented as gift or inherited separately during their married life, the owner of this property may or may not incorporate it in their common property as husband and wife -- Article No 16.

This specification is consistent with social development and the people's thinking. A husband or wife can keep his or her private property or incorporate it in their common property.

Regarding marriage, the draft law also specifies two new issues:

1. Annulment of illegal marriages.

Marriages in violation of marriage conditions specified in the marriage and family law shall be annulled by the people's court -- Article No 9. This regulation is meant to ensure correct observance of the marriage and family law and to strengthen the socialist legal system.

2. Specifications in Chapter 9 on marriages between Vietnamese citizens and foreigners are aimed at meeting the requirements of the situation stemming from growing international relations.

Parent-child relationships: In the present situation, parent-child relationships should be specified in a concrete and detailed manner, in order to meet the requirements of protecting, caring for, and educating children. The draft law contains 3 chapters and 21 articles for this purpose.

Chapters four, five, and six specifically and fully define the rights and obligations of parents toward their children, including the right to rear them, the right to educate them, the right to represent their minor children before the law in order to protect their interests, the right to manage the private property of their minor children, the obligation to compensate for damage caused by a minor child's offense against the law. The parents' rights are also their obligations toward their children.

Regarding adoption, the draft law transforms Article No 24 of the 1959 law on marriage and family into a six-article chapter. It clearly specifies that the objective of adoption is to build a sentimental link between foster parent and adopted child which resembles that in a parent-child relationship and to ensure that the adopted child is properly reared, cared for, and educated -- Article No 34.

The draft law specifies the age level of foster parents of an adopted child under 16 years old and the age difference between foster parents and an adopted child, which must be 20 years upward. In adopting adolescents from 9 years upward, who are aware of their adoption, their consent must be obtained.

The draft law specifies: Grandparents have the obligation to rear and educate grandchildren who have become orphans.

Grandchildren have the obligation to support grandparents who have lost their children. Brothers and sisters who have lost their children or parents have the obligation to support each other — Article No 27.

This specification is consistent with the Vietnamese family's tradition of relatives helping and loving each other, and of showing concern for orphans and for elderly people who have lost their children.

Inheriting the mission of the laws on marriage and family adopted since the 1945 August Revolution, especially the 1959 law on marriage and family and the law of 14 November 1979 on the protection, care, and education of children, the draft law specifies in a concrete and relatively complete way the socialist relationships of marriage and family in our country and develops these laws to suit the new situation.

A number of policies are thoroughly explained and reflected in the specifications of the draft law, including the nationalities policy and the policy on protection of mothers and children.

In conclusion, Comrade Nguyen Thi Dinh said: If approved by the National Assembly and implemented, the draft law on marriage and family will continue the role played by the 1959 law on marriage and family and contribute to emancipating women and achieving equality between both sexes. Implementation of the new law on marriage and family will contribute to building democratic, harmonious, and happy families and promoting the cause of building socialism and defending the fatherland throughout the country.

NHAN DAN CALLS FOR SUPPORT OF AGRICULTURE

BK231412 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 22 Jun 86

[NHAN DAN 23 June editorial: "Support Agricultural Production"]

[Text] Thoroughly understanding the spirit of the party Central Committee's 10th plenum, our people are doing their utmost to concentrate on accelerating production in all domains, considering the development of agricultural production the primary battlefront.

Our most important duty is to struggle to accelerate agricultural production, resolve the problem of food for the entire society, and maintain a proper reserve of grain. We also have to secure good percentages of agricultural commodities, grain, food products, raw materials for industry, and the increasingly numerous and good quality exports while building a new socialist countryside.

Peasants alone in agriculture cannot advance to achieve those objectives. There must necessarily be the cooperation and assistance of workers in industry and other sectors. All industrial secorts, the sectors of communications and transportation, distribution and circulation and service, all policies and material facilities, and all guidances and operation control measures must serve wholeheartedly the fulfillment of requirements of the agricultural battlefront.

Peasants and the agricultural economy need many consumer goods, materials of all sorts, machinery, tools, draft force, electricity, coal, fertilizer, and water.

Localities, especially midland and mountainous provinces are in bad need of land and improved tools to expand production and process manioc, sweet potato, corn, and legumes. Delta provinces, especially the southern ones, need more cement, bricks, tiles, and steel to build drying ground, warhouses, and bridges, and to open more roads into outlying areas.

Although all sectors and echelons have exerted much effort to support agricultural production and have created great achievements in agriculture, the general situation of agricultural production is still unstable and is improving slowly. The authorities of many sectors and at many levels have not thoroughly understood nor satisfactorily implemented the policy of considering agriculture the primary battlefront. Investment in agriculture and industry to support agricultural production has not been properly made to bring about high results. While the supply of materials and capital to agriculture is still insufficient and scattered, much of the supply has been held up and reduced by several sectors and several levels.

In some localities, large amounts of materials and capital have invested in building large meeting halls, headquarters, and theatres while irrigations projects and other installations in support of agriculture are still in great demand. Fertilizer and insecticide were not sent to ricefields on schedule. In other localities, some units have even bartered fertilizer and insecticied for other materials or sold them for profits.

If we can reduce unnecessary expenses and do not buy those consumer goods considered as luxury in comparision with our people's present living standard, the minimal requirements of agriculture for fertilizer and insecticide can be met. At present, there are not enought consumer goods to serve the peasants' demands and to exchange for their agricultural products.

All the sectors of agriculture, industry, material supply, irrigation, communications and transportation, capital construction, distribution and circulation, service, and crop and animal insurance, and all the policies, material facilities, guidances, and operational control measures adopted by all sectors at all levels should wholeheartedly serve agricultural production and fulfill the requirements of the agricultural battlefront.

In the immediate future, we should concentrate on supporting the cultivation of summer-fall, 10th-month, and winter-spring crops, and on satisfactorily controlling damages by natural disasters and insects. We must resolve to fulfill and overfulfill the 1986 State Plan for agricultural production. This is a realistic revolutionary act to greet the sixth nationwide party congress.

PROGRESS REPORTED ON PLANTING OF RICE, CROPS

BK011219 Hanoi International Service in English 1000 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] By now, peasants throughout Vietnam have transplanted more than 1.2 million hectares of summer-autumn and autumn rice and put about 230,000 hectares under subsidiary and industrial crops. A hot spell has hit northern and central Vietnam since 27 June. According to weather forecasts by the General Department of Meteorology and Hydrology, this hot spell will last for several days. Efforts are being made to protect people's health, crops, and cattle herds.

DONG NAI ADOPTS MEASURES AGAINST SHORTCOMINGS

BK251012 Hanoi NHAN DAN in Vietnamese 4 Jun 86, p 3

[Text] The Dong Nai provincial party organization executive committee has motivated various echelons, sectors, and party cadres and members to give their critical opinions to the provincial party committee. There have been 112 reports from various party organization echelons and many letters from party members, contributing a total of nearly 3,000 critical opinions to the provincial party committee. Generally speaking, all the critical opinions contributed by party cadres and members to the provincial party committee are correct and presented in a spirit of party building. Basically, most of the opinions are correct. There are also some opinions that are unclear or are presented vaguely as hints.

These opinions, both collective and individual, have been faithfully condensed and forwarded to every comrade member of the provincial party committee for study. After rounding up these opinions, the provincial party organization executive committee (third tenure) has met to conduct self-criticism and criticism both collectively and among a number of key comrades.

The self-criticism statements of the provincial party committee and of the five key comrades pointed out the following strong points and shortcomings:

Qualitatively, the provincial party committee asserted: The provincial party committee's revolutionary fighting will has been fostered, as seen in its efforts to overcome difficulties in implementing objectives and norms set forth at the third congress of the provincial party organization with a high sense of responsibility. To date, the province has attained or exceeded almost all of the main socioeconomic, security, and national defense norms set forth at the congress. Its fighting will has also been reflected in its efforts to closely link party building with district building and the strengthening of district echelons, and to develop the positive role of districts in reorganizing production, distribution, and circulation, building material-technical bases, and organizing the people's lives in districts. Through these efforts, it has improved the quality of basic party organizations and of party members and has developed a fighting spirit for building the internal ranks from the rank and file upward in order to arrive at a ruling over cases of misconduct and to take disciplinary actions against errant party members. The number of party cadres and members under the provincial party committee's jurisdiction being judged and punished was reportedly twice as many as that in the preceding congress.

The provincial party organization executive committee affirmed that the revolutionary fighting will and the sense of responsibility of the majority of provincial party committee members and party cadres and members continues to be firmly maintained and developed. The results of party building work has been fully reflected in a most profound manner by the fact that the entire party organization has guided and organized successfully the implementation of socioeconomic tasks set forth at the third congress of the provincial party organization.

However, the provincial party committee sternly criticized certain comrades in the provincial party committee and a number of party cadres and members, including comrades in positions of power, from the provincial down to the grass-roots levels, for having shown a decline in their fighting will and a lack of responsiblity, for having failed to implement scrupulously party resolutions and state laws, and for their degenerate way of life about which many criticial opinions have been correctly made by party cadres and members.

This group of individuals, although small in number, includes people in positions of power who partly control the sources of money and goods of the state, especially in the trade, food, export-import, and tax service sectors, and who have committed corruption and wasteful practices, accepted bribes, violated socialist property, caused heavy losses to the local economic and financial sector, misinterpreted party policies, and, more seriously, carried out distribution activities in an unfair manner, thereby having a bad impact on the people's lives and eroding the people's confidence in the party.

Let us cite some cases: In the trade sector, before 31 July 1985 a corporation distributed within its internal ranks at a low price 2,509 bags of cement, nearly 5 metric tons of iron and steel, 46,000 bricks, and 17,000 tiles. Another corporation distributed within its internal ranks 11,000 cases of beer and 94,000 packs of cigarettes that were resold at the market for a profit of 134,000 dong (new currency). The food sector distributed among its personnel 100 metric tons of rice at the price of 0.4 dong (old currency) [as published] before August 1985, when the order to index wages to cost-of-living increases was put into effect. An export united corporation bought 1,000 color television sets and then distributed them at a low price without asking for permission. Some people were said to have gotten as many as two or three sets through barter trade. A number of districts, after obtaining certain high-quality imported commodities through distribution or through barter trade, also resold them at a profit. Certain comrades, after being allocated a newly built house by the state, destroyed it to build a bigger and more beautiful one. Some comrades occupied two to three state-provided houses. Others, after being allocated house building materials, resold them and then asked for the allocation of new houses. Some people, insteda of using construction materials bought with money borrowed from the state to build houses, resold these materials for profit. Others, abusing their positions and power, bought construction materials from the state at low prices to build as many as two or three houses. Meanwhile, thousands of cadres, workers, and civil servants still do not have adequate living quarters. All this shows a serious decline in the quality and the conduct of party member. The provincial party committee sternly criticized those involved. Party cadres and members who committed these shortcomings were compelled to criticize themselves sternly before the party.

The provincial party committee's leadership policy is reflected in its system of leadership by the party, collective mastery by the laboring people, and management by the state. One of the strong points of the provincial party committee is that it has paid more attention to developing the role of various mass organizations and of the front [Fatherland Front] as well as the managerial role of the state mechanism in directing the implementation of various socioeconomic tasks. In this way, it is gradually building a collective mastery spirit and capability, developing the masses' role in participating in party building and state management, increasing the management efficiency of the state, and upholding socialist legislation. Attention has also been paid to gradually improving the provincial party committee's leadership and guidance patterns to suit the grass-root level's job and personnel requirements. Internal activities guided by democratic principles within the provincial party standing committee and within the provincial party committee itself have also shown some improvements. At every meeting, a resolution was reportedly issued to provide guidance for specific tasks.

The provincial party committee criticized its own leadership behavior, saying that the practice of holding too many meetings and issuing too many resolutions continues to exist while efforts to inspect, supervise, and guide various sectors' and echelons' work implementation are not extensive enough and lack uniformity.

Efforts to closely combine effective ideological and organizational measures have failed to produce good results. Efforts to direct public organs to institutionalize various resolutions of the provincial party committee by translating them into activity plans and legal documents are still slow. Worse still, some resolutions have not yet been institutionalized at the state level although they were promulgated several months ago.

Internal discussions over certain tasks have not been carried out in a truly democratic spirit, thereby affecting efforts to achieve a high degree of identity of views. In providing guidance for work implementation, there have been indications that each person speaks about, understands, and implements resolutions in his own way. In the internal ranks, there has been a failure to satisfactorily develop self-criticism and criticism or to promote the need to speak frankly and listen attentively to the opinions of party cadres and members, of the lower echelons, and of comrades in the provincial party committee. Many comrades still like hearing reports on strong points and achievements more than hearing reports on difficulties and shortcomings. In particular they fail to listen carefully to conflicting ideas. This has led to lower echelons reporting the situation unfaithfully, covering up shortcomings, and inflating strong points. In leadership, there is a prevailing tendency to tackle tasks in production, trade business, and even national defense security only at the conference table and in a way impractical to the situation at the grass-roots level. That is why there have been many incorrect decisions. This is part of the practice of bureaucracy and aloofness from realities and the masses.

The cadre policy is regarded as a task of great importance. Providing training for the existing contingent of cadres in order to meet current work requirements while paying attention to training a contingent of replacement cadres now constitutes a major task.

In the cadre policy, the provincial party committee has paid attention to the need to create a source of on-site cadres (this is quite different from departmentalism and localism). The sending of the children and dependents of cadres now working in Dong Nai as well as members of revolutionary families in various villages and districts for training so they will return to work in the locality is regarded as a correct policy. In its previous term of office, the provincial party committee provided political theory and professional training to 1,372 comrades -- 10 times as many as those in its preceding term of office -- and recommended promotion to the positions of deputy office chiefs and up for 245 comrades (including 16 female cadres). Many aptitude tests have been developed to recruit students for training as cadres of various sectors. Those recruited included 743 students attending various colleges, 823 students attending various centrally run technical middle schools, and 3,248 students attending provincially run technical middle schools. As for party cadres and members who were wrongly punished on false charges during the period after the first party organization congress, the provicial party committee clarified their cases, reached a clear-cut conclusion, and gave them a fair judgment in accordance with policies. A total of 256 cases have been settled. The provincial party committee has exerted efforts to tackle the housing problem for cadres, workers, and civil servants. It has also adopted positive measures to help cadres overcome difficulties in their lives.

One of the major shortcomings committed by the provincial party committee is that it has failed to correctly value its contingent of cadres, especially the contingent of cadres under its administration. That is why its policy on the use and management of these cadres is not yet truly rational. Regarding a number of scientific-technical cadres, attention has not yet been paid to creating favorable conditions for them to develop their knowledge or to provide them increasingly better services. Another shortcoming is that to date, the provincial party committee has been unable to carry out cadre planning. What it has done so far in this field is regarded as patch-up measures. This is because of its tendency to pick up work at random.

In cadre work, there remain indications of individualism, favoritism, prejudice, departmentalism, and sectorial and regional egoism as shown in recommendations for promotion of cadres in a number of public organs, units, and localities. There have also been indications of subjecting low-ranking officials to heavier disciplinary punishment than high-ranking officials. This has made party cadres and members feel that the provincial committee is unfair.

Another shortcoming of the provincial party committee is its attitude or policy toward young cadres and female cadres of ethnic minority groups. Feelings of feudalism and paternalism continue to prevail in the training and evaluation of these cadres.

The reasons for these shortcomings are numerous. The provincial party committee only pointed out the following points: the task of building the party politically, ideologically, and organizationally has not yet been given adequate attention by the provincial party organization executive committee or by various party committee echelons. Ideologically, there has been a failure to pay adequate attention to cultivating the revolutionary qualities of party cadres and members and to step up the internal struggle against negativism. Furthermore, there has been a lack of strictness in the enforcement of disciplinary measures.

The provincial party committee has failed to create a high unity of mind among its members over certain specific tasks. The principles of democratic centralism, collective leadership, and individual responsibility have not been carried out satisfactorily.

Individually, a small number of comrades in the provincial party committee and a segment of party cadres and members having positions of power have failed to set good examples and have slackened their efforts to cultivate the qualities and ethics required of them as communist party members.

The provincial party committee affirmed its strong points and sternly criticized itself before the entire party organization, Army, and people in the province for its shortcomings and the resulting consequences. It also sternly criticized itself before the party Central Committee for its wrongdoings which have injured the prestige of the party.

The provincial party organization executive committee came up with decisions on essential policies and measures aimed at redressing its shortcomings in a uniform manner. It decided to resolutely enforce these measures.

In the period ahead -- from now until the fourth congress of the provincial party organization -- the provincial party committee must neatly complete a number of specific tasks:

1. Provide close guidance for various echelons and sectors to satisfactorily carry out the self-criticism and criticism drive in accordance with instructions from the party Central Committee Secretariat; collect critical opinions before making self-criticism; round up and listen carefully to these opinions; take into account those opinions which are legitimate; feed back to party cadres and members those opinions which are not clear; and order those localities conducting the self-criticism and criticism drive perfunctorily and unscrupulously to redo it. All indications of persecution, vindictiveness and frame-up charges which may affect the self-criticism efforts of party and nonparty are strictly forbidden.

It is necessary to have various echelons and party cadres and members continue criticizing the provincial party committee more frankly and specifically and to help provincial party committee members make self-criticism and correct their shortcomings.

After self-criticism before the leadership, those comrades having shortcomings, whatever their positions, must make extensive and earnest self-criticism before their party chapters.

2. It is an urgent necessity to clear the backlog lawsuits and cases of violation of discipline to provide fair judgment. Typical cases of serious misconduct must be announced publicly through the press and radio so the entire party organization and masses can be well informed of them.

3. Regarding comrades having assets that are criticized by party cadres and members as illegitimate and cases of distribution characteristic of special privilege, the provincial party committee must resolutely investigate and arrive at a conclusion regardless of what sectors or localities may be found to be involved. It is necessary to oppose perfunctoriness and the tendency to belittle the critical opinions of party cadres and members as well as of the masses.

The provincial party committee has decided strictly to prohibit gift giving at any echelon and in any form that smacks of buying favor or bribery. It has strictly banned lavish and costly gala parties. As for goods characteristic of special privilege or internal distribution; high-class imported commodities; and important materials such as iron, steel, brick, and tile illegally distributed since July 1985 by the trade, food, import-export, and tax service sectors and by a number of districts, it is necessary to ensure that these goods are paid for in full according to market prices. If goods are bought and then resold for profit, all revenue obtained, including capital and profits, must be turned over to the state. The provincial people's committee is to be entrusted with the duty of refixing a unified price for these goods on a provincial scale without permitting each locality to fix separate prices. All the money collected in payment for these goods must be turned over to the state budget.

Comrades who have occupied many houses or abused their positions and power to build many houses using state materials and funds or to buy houses at low prices under the system of special privileges must comply with Directive No 76 of the CPV Central Committee Secretariat. The party committee echelons and the leadership of concerned branches and sectors must provide direct guidance to resolve this issue scrupulously and report to the provincial party standing committee and the provincial people's standing committee.

Related party committee echelons must rely on party cadres and members, honest nonmembers of the party, mass organizations, and grass-roots-level party organizations to inspect, supervise, and help responsible organs in implementing these tasks.

4. It is necessary to reexamine on a case-by-case basis errors in cadre work to correct them quickly without hesitation. We must actually listen attentively to the opinions of party cadres and members and distinguish right from wrong without repeating mistakes.

5. In implementing these tasks, it is necessary to have a specific plan providing satisfactory guidance for implementing socioeconomic and national defense security tasks and preparing for the party organization congresses at all levels.

TALKS HELD WITH AUSTRALIA ON OIL, SRV ON BORDER

BK270213 Jakarta ANTARA in English 0155 GMT 27 Jun 86

[Text] Jakarta, 26/6 (ANTARA/OANA) -- Indonesia and Australia Thursday in Jakarta started with a two day meeting on an offshore oil exploration project south of Timor. A meeting for dealing with the matter was already held in Jakarta about 10 years ago and the current session is the eighth.

An Australian delegate told ANTARA that the negotiations went smoothly and satisfactorily. He said both sides wishes to reach an agreement on a seabed borderline and joint development zone south of the island. When asked whether other minerals were also present in the region, he said he did not know as exploration had been discontinued ten years ago. However, he added, there were indications of the presence of aluminium there. He also hoped an agreement could have been achieved after another two or three meetings, as there were so many matters of technical nature that needed discussion.

The Australian delegation, which included staff members of the Australian Embassy in Jakarta, consisted of 11 officials led by First Assistant Secretary for Legal and Consular Affairs at the Australian Ministry of External Affairs John Brook. The 14-man Indonesian delegation was led by the director of international agreements at the Foreign Ministry, Mrs Nelly Luhulima.

In the meantime, the 8th meeting between delegations of Indonesia and the Vietnamese Socialist Republic on the continental shelf borderline between the two countries wounded up on Tuesday. The two delegations will submit a report to their respective governments in addition to a suggestion for the holding of the next session in Hanoi at a date to be mutually agreed upon.

BACKGROUND OF NEW ARMY LEADERSHIP EXAMINED

BK240436 Jakarta SINAR HARAPAN in Indonesian 16 Jun 86 pp 1, 12

[Text] The post of deputy Army chief of staff, currently held by Lieutenant General Tri Sutrisno, was transferred to Major General Edi Sudrajat this afternoon. Lt Gen Sutrisno will himself be installed as Army chief of staff on Wednesday [18 June]. This marks the complete domination of the Indonesian Army's top leadership by graduates of the Magelang Military Academy. Lt Gen Sutrisno, 51, is a 1959 graduate, while Maj Gen Sudrajat, 48, is a 1960 graduate.

Both officers were also among a group of junior officers who studied at the Army Staff and Command College in Bandung in the 1971-72 academic year. During their studies at the college, an important seminar on the spirit of 1945 independence and its preservation by young Army officers was held. The seminar, attended by Army officers of the 1945 generation and junior officers, resulted in a book entitled: "Dharma Pusaka 1945" [Inheritance of 1945 Law]. The book was later used as a guideline by the Army in developing its personnel, especially in cultivating a sense of responsible leadership among the younger generation of officers.

The seminar, held 13-18 March 1972, was attended by 75 junior officers and 75 mid-level officers from the 1945 generation and engaged them in serious discussions. President Suharto was a representative of the 1945 generation attending the seminar, but he was present as a graduate of the Army Staff and Command College. Other members of the 1945 generation who attended the seminar and presented their views were A.H. Nasution, Sumitro, Panggabean, T.B. Simatupang, and Surono.

Now, 14 years after the seminar, many of the junior officers have become high-ranking officers and assumed important posts in the Army and other military services. They include Major General Sugiarto, a former commander of the Diponegoro 4th Region Military Command, now assistant for personnel affairs to the Armed Forces Supreme Command; Major General Nana Narundana, now commander of the Wirabuana 7th Region Military Command; Major General Siswadi, commander of the Sriwijaya 2d Region Military Command; Major General Darwanto, governor of the Army Staff and College Command; and Major General Syamsudin, commander of the Infantry Center.

Another noteworthy point is that four of the six assistants to the Army chief of staff were the same junior officers who attended the 1972 seminar. They are Major General T.B. Silalahi, assistant for planning; Major General Gede Awet Sara, assistant for intelligence; Major General B.P. Makadada, assistant for territorial affairs; and Major General Z.A. Maulani, assistant for operations. Maj Gen Maulani studied at an Army Staff and Command College in Quetta, Pakistan, and on his return he was appointed an instructor at the Army Staff and Command College in Bandung. Therefore, the Army's top leadership, namely the posts of chief of staff, deputy chief of staff, and four of the six assistants, are now indeed in the hands of those junior officers who attended the historic 1972 seminar.

What is also interesting in the current Army leadership is the sense of unity in terms of esprit de corps and tribal background. In the past, the pride of belonging to certain corps or regional commands, such as Siliwangi, Diponegoro, or Brawijaya, was quite strong, but now the different corps and tribal backgrounds have instead reinforced the sense of unity in diversity, which is the slogan of the republic itself. While Army Chief of Staff Sutrisno hails from East Java and the Engineering Corps, his deputy is a Sundanese and an infantry officer, his assistants are T.B. Silalahi, a cavalry officer from Tapanuli; B.P. Makadada, also a cavalry officer from North Sumatera; and Gede Awet Sara, a Balinese from the Engineering Corps. Two other assistants are Assistant for Personnel Affairs Major General Sutopo, an infantry officer, and Assistant for Logistics Major General Sugeng Subroto, from the Artillery Corps.

Therefore, the spirit of the 1972 seminar symbolizes the awareness and determination of the Indonesian Army to carry out the regeneration process systematically. Even though the process was not initially smooth, it has achieved its targets in the last few years. An example is Chief of Staff Tri Sutrisno himself, who spent less than 2 years in various posts, including Udayana Region Military Command, Sriwijaya Region Military Command, and deputy Army chief of staff, and becomes Army chief of staff this coming Wednesday.

MAHATHIR MAKES ACCUSATIONS AGAINST FOREIGN PRESS

BK300503 Hong Kong AFP in English 0445 GMT 30 Jun 86

[Text] Kuala Lumpur, June 30 (AFP) -- Prime Minister Dr. Mahathir Mohamed has accused some countries "under Jewish influence" of using the foreign press to descredit and try to topple the Malaysian Government. Dr. Mahathir did not identify the countries involved but linked moves to topple his administration to the "strong stand" it had taken on "certain matters." The prime minister was addressing building contractors at a meeting in Kota Baru Town, 660 km (413 miles) north of here, Sunday.

He accused the foreign press of carrying "twisted reports" of his policies favouring Bumiputras -- who are mostly Moslem Malays -- in business, employment, education and other areas in an attempt to turn Malays against the government. "They know that the most effective way to topple the government is to make the Malays angry with, and distrust, the government," Dr. Mahathir said. He said that his attempts to clarify reports on what is officially called the new economic policy (NEP), a 20-year programme to promote indigeneous Malaysian participation particularly in trade and industry, was ignored by the foreign press. Instead, the foreign press had chosen to make its own analysis of the situation with the hope of weakening his government so that it could be easily manipulated, he added.

Officials said that Dr. Mahathir was referring to foreign press reports of statements he made on the NEP at an interview earlier this month over Australian television. Dr. Mahathir has said that the NEP was being "held in abeyance, more or less" because economic growth had slumped from a projected 5.6 per cent to between 1.6 and two per cent this year, adding that no economic restructuring was possible without growth.

But the prime minister said Sunday that while no restructuring of corporate equity ownership might be possible because of poor growth, Malays would continue to gain from restructuring in areas like "education, employment and other opportunities." Officials said that press reports of Dr. Mahathir's statement had ignored the fact that the NEP covered a much wider spectrum of economic activities, and not just the transfer of corporate wealth. "What is more important now is not getting more shares but to stimulate economic growth and provide employment to the jobless, particularly Bumiputra graduates," Dr. Mahathir said Sunday.

Meanwhile, a top Chinese leader said Sunday that ethnic Chinese Malaysians were growing increasingly frustrated over government policies including the NEP which had eroded business and educational opportunities and generated prejudice in the Malay-dominated civil service. Tan Koon Swan, president of the Malaysian Chinese Association (MCA), said the frustration over the erosion of Chinese rights had reached a "frightening dimension and point of explosion" where Chinese votes could swing to the opposition. The MCA, Malaysia's largest ethnic Chinese political party with some 500,000 members, is one of 13 parties in Dr. Mahathir's National Front Coalition due to seek a fresh electoral mandate over the next 12 months.

SINGAPORE

ANNOUNCEMENT MADE OF TIGHTER MILITARY TRADELINES

BK181511 Hong Kong AFP in English 1423 GMT 18 Jun 86

[Text] Singapore, June 18 (AFP) -- Singapore Wednesday announced tighter controls on imports and exports of militarily-sensitive goods to ensure they are not sold to communist countries. Regulations restricting exports of goods considered sensitive by manufacturing countries such as the United States, Japan and the NATO member states came into effect June 13, the Trade Development Board (TDB) said.

The move came after U.S. officials had told Singapore that its 1955 import certificate order was inadequate to ensure that militarily-sensitive computer software and electronic components being sold on from here did not end up in communist countries. Singapore imports more than one billion Singapore dollars (450 million U.S.) worth of goods categorised by exporting countries strategically sensitive, newspapers here have reported.

The island republic was among non-communist countries blacklisted by the pentagon as it offered "inadequate protection" to the U.S.-made militarily-sensitive advanced technology goods. The Paris-based Co-ordinating Committee for Multinational Export Controls (COCOM) -- concerned about leakage of advanced technology -- seeks special protection against exports of such classified items to destinations in the communist world.

Under the new regulations, re-exports of sensitive items will require government approval. And importers will have to tell the TDB who end-users are to be. The TDB said people who failed to abide by the regulations could be prosecuted. For a first offence, they risked fines of 10,000 Singapore dollars (4,500 U.S.) or three times the value of the goods sold and a prison sentence, it said.

DEPUTY PREMIER GOH ON WAGE RESTRAINT POLICY

BK211019 Kuala Lumpur BERNAMA in English 0859 GMT 21 Jun 86

[Text] Singapore. June 21 (BERNAMA) -- Wage restraint policy is a test for Singapore's national character as it is in line with the National Day celebrations theme this year, First Deputy Prime Minister Goh Chok Tong said Saturday. He said that if the policy is successfully implemented, then the theme is meaningful, if not, the slogan "Together Excellence for Singapore" will become just more beautiful words with no real meaning. Launching this year's National Day celebrations theme, he said that for Singapore to be less than excellent is to be swept aside by others.

This is a merciless world, with every nation wanting to push itself ahead of others and Goh added that big nations may fall behind others but they will not be swept away. He said for small nations to fall behind and struggle in the wake churned up by others is to risk being drowned so Singaporeans have to be quicker off the mark and faster in the water to keep afloat. The minister added that the biggest threat to Singapore today is for the people to allow themselves to be overwhelmed by current difficulties and forget about the fundamental values that have brought them here. He said one of these fundamental pillars is Singapore's philosophy of going for excellence in whatever they do and it is this attitude of going for zero defect that has brought Japan prosperity.

GOVERNMENT, COMMUNIST EMISSARIES HOLD MEETING

HK021151 Hong Kong AFP in English 1134 GMT 2 Jul 86

[Excerpt] Manila, July 2 (AFP) -- Government and communist emissaries met Wednesday, and Manila would be able to announce the timetable of ceasefire talks with communist insurgents in five days, an official said here. Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra, one of two government negotiators named by President Corazon Aquino to the talks, told reporters that he and Jose Diokno, a human rights lawyer, has a two-and-a-half hour meeting with two "nice-looking" communist emissaries Wednesday. He refused to name the emissaries, or where the meeting took place, but said there was a "very relaxed and cordial" atmosphere.

It was the first time that the government had announced details of a meeting with communist emissaries. "Different groups of two or three," all representing the National Democratic Front (NDF), had been regularly meeting with the government panellist, Mr Mitra said. The NDF groups the Banned Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP), its 16,500-strong armed wing the New People's Army (NPA) and half a dozen other clandestine groups.

"In five days' time", the government "can make an announcement on the timetable, agenda and the scheduled meeting" with the communist negotiators, Mr Mitra said. President Aquino has initiated the talks in a bid to end the 17-year-old rebellion which claimed the lives of nearly 1,500 Filipinos this year alone according to latest military figures. Mrs Aquino had said that her government would hold talks with the CPP "or none at all," but the underground has said that their two panellists represented the NDF coalition, not only the CPP-NPA. The NDF has named former newsmen Satur Ocampo and Antonio Zumel as its negotiators. Both are said to be ranking members of the communist underground hierarchy.

Mr Mitra said Armed Forces chief General Fidel Ramos and Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile had agreed not to put the emissaries under military surveillance so as not to jeopardize the talks. He said a guerrilla ambush Monday in which 12 soldiers died, according to military figures Wednesday, "could well be an isolated incident" that would not affect the comming dialogues.

MITRA ON TALKS; ENRILE ON CONTINUED FIGHTING

[Excertpt] Manila, July 2 KYODO -- representatives of the leftist underground coalition, the National Democratic Front (NDF), and a Philippine government official met Wednesday and discussed "guidelines" for formal talks on a possible cease-fire to end the country's 17-year armed insurgency. Agriculture Minister Ramon Mitra, who was appointed as one of the government's negotiators with the communist-led rebels, told reporters that he held a two-and-a-half hour meeting with the NDF "emissaries," a man and a woman, "somewhere in Manila." "I hope we can begin to sit down with the left a week from now," Mitra said.

Mitra explained that the government's definition of cease-fire talks in "just that" -- an agreement to be reached by both parties that "there won't be shooting and hostilities would be ended."

The NDF groups the Communist Party of the Philippines and its military arm, the New People's Army (NPA), with other outlawed workers, peasants', youth and religious organizations. It has named former journalists Satur Ocampo and Antonio Zumel as its representatives in the talks.

Asked how the talks will be conducted , Mitra replied, "it will not be conducted the way you see it in the movies" he said Diokno did not attend the Wednesday meeting, which he described as "cordial and relaxed." He disclosed, however, that he and Diokno had met "many times" earlier with "different groups of two or three, all representing the NDF-CPP-NPA." He said that Ocampo and Zumel have decided to set up their own "press office" once the formal negotiations start.

Mitra said that Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and armed forces chief Gen. Fidel Ramos have agreed to their request that the NDF's emissaries should not be shadowed by government agents.

Later in the afternoon Enrile, speaking before a women's group, expressed skepticism about the cease-fire talks and said he doubted that the NPA would lay down its arms. "That they will talk, there is no question about it," he said. "Whether the talking will result in something concrete and for the better is a big question mark. I must admit ... I am skeptical about so many things. I hope my skepticism is proven wrong."

Enrile said the Communist Party is using both an armed and a parliamentary struggle and that it may put stress on one of them "depending on the prevailing political, economic and social environment." He added that "theoretically" even a cease-fire agreement would not necessarily mean the end to armed struggle. "A cease-fire may merely signify that the option fo parlimentary struggle is placed in a higher priority for the moment, while the arms are kept and readied for action at the proper time," Enrile said.

Manila newspapers Wednesday carried stories and pictures taken by photographers who accompanied more than 80 NPA guerrillas who ambushed a three-jeep army convoy in the northern Philippines Tuesday, killing three army officers and eight soldiers. Commenting on the ambush, Enrile said the NPA will never do anything without any deliberate purpose. "Whenever the gun is fired, it is for propaganda," he aid.

VICE CHIEF OF STAFF SAYS 11 KILLED IN AMBUSH

HK020403 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2300 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] Eleven armymen, including three officers, were killed in an ambush by some 100 NPA rebels in Villa Principe in Gumaca, Quezon last Monday. The ambush was reported yesterday to AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] Vice Chief of Staff Major General Salvador Mison. The military fatalities were not immediately identified except for the three officers who were listed -- only Major Ramos of the 31st Infantry Battalion, Lieutenant Faras, and Captain Espiritu. Two other officers, Lieutenants Dulay and Reyes, were among the wounded. The soldiers, led by Maj Ramos, were aboard two jeeps and a mini-cruiser when ambushed by the rebels. Gen Mison said the ambush by the NPA is obviously planned to sabotage current efforts for peace.

Gen Mison also denied reporting heavy fighting in Mindanao. He said what is occurring particularly in Zamboanga del Sur are only skirmishes. The vice chief of staff also denied that the military has violated the regional ceasefire in Region 10 in the reported arrest of the Bangsa Moro army chief Hadji Murad in Marawi City.

Officer on NPA 'Atrocities'

HK020606 Hong Kong AFP in English 0536 GMT 2 Jul 86

[Excerpts] Manila, July 2 (AFP) -- A military official Wednesday accused communist guerillas of committing atrocities prior to peace talks with the government, saying some of the 11 soldiers killed in a clash Monday were burned by rebels. Brigadier General Restituto Padilla said a major, two lieutenants and three enlisted men were slain in an ambush by the New People's Army (NPA) Monday in Southern Luzon Island, where he is the chief military commander.

"They are charging the military with certain atrocities. The casualties of the last ambush, aside from being shot to death, gasoline was poured on them and they were set on fire," the general told reporters before the start of a scheduled nationwide conference on peace and order here. "On our side we are trying to tone down our active offensive operations in support of our commander in chief's call for reconciliation," he added.

Earlier reports from eyewitnesses in the clash site near Gumaca Town, some 150 kilometers (93 miles) south of here, put the death toll at eight. They said the rebels suffered no casualties in the 35-minute attack. A military spokesman, Hoover Domini, said Wednesday that one of the fatalities remained unidentified after being burned beyond recognition. Three photographers taken along by an 82-strong NPA ambush force had told AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE of the incident Tuesday and supplied pictures. They said the NPA men burned two of the three jeeps carrying a total of 15 soldiers, and at least two bodies were sprawled near the jeeps.

Brig. Gen. Padilla said it was possible the ambush leader, who called himself Jeando, was telling the truth when he told the photographers they had not received ceasefire orders from the NPA leadership. "That is their side. It is possible because they are taking offensive actions against the military," he said. "If they look at our police actions as offensive operations we cananot do anything about it, but our primary consideration is to protect the interests of the civilians," he added.

INSURGENCY-LINKED DEATHS PUT AT 1,485 FOR 1986

HK021001 Quezon City Radyo ng Bayan in Tagalog 0900 GMT 2 Jul 86

[Text] A top intelligence official warned that the country's peace and order situation may deteriorate if political stability is not achieved immediately. Colonel Antonio Samonte, armed forces deputy chief of staff for intelligence, also said that the national situation would worsen if the economic recovery program is not implemented as soon as possible. He issued the warning at a meeting which opened a 2-day seminar workshop on peace and order at the officers' clubhouse at Camp Aguinaldo.

Samonte said that in the first 6 months of the year, a total of 1,485 persons have died in incidents linked to the insurgency problem all over the country.

AQUINO CHANGES STAND ON NEED FOR MILITARY AID

HK011032 Manila THE NEWS HERALD in English 29 Jun 86 pp 1, 6

[Text] President Aquino has backtracked on her previous stand against seeking additional military assistance from the United States after learning that Filipino soldiers are not only underpaid but have to buy their own uniforms. "I was shocked to find out that they have to pay for their own uniforms," the President told newsmen.

She revealed that during her meeting last Wednesday with U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz, she requested increased military aid to enable the New Armed Forces of the Philippines to raise the soldiers' pay, improve their diet, provide them with adequate medical supplies and better equipment, including uniforms. The first time she met with Shultz when he visited Manila last May 9, the President told him that what the Philippines badly needed was more economic aid, not military assistance.

However, she apparently reconsidered and modified her position after her subsequent inspection trips to remote military camps in the country had opened her eyes to the reality that her soldiers belonged to the 38 million Filipinos living below the poverty line. "If there is an increase in military assistance, then perhaps they will be given better pay, specially as far as people assigned in Mindanao and other hardard areas are concerned," Mrs. Aquino said.

She said she explained to Shultz that it was "important for us to give better pay for the soldiers especially where hazard pay is concerned." Mrs. Aquino recalled that when she told Shultz that the military camplain Mindanao she visited last May "did not even have medicines available in their hospital station," the American official "appreciated my informing him about this." He said people in Washington would never know about these preferences of ours if we did not present this request," she added.
The president said Shultz was sympathetic to her request that any additional U.S. military aid be not "pinned down to specific programs." "I think in the past it was necessary for the American government to place certain restrictions on just what could be done with the military assistance because the former administration had gone into buying planes and other non-essentials," she said.

Asked whether she believed her policy of providing better equipment and improving the morale of the new armed forces was consistent with her policy of reconciliation with the communist insurgents, the president said: "I think they are mutually consistent... But more important is the fact that aside from being soldiers, they are Filipinos and they are employes of the government."

Meanwhile, the president helihopped early yesterday morning to baranggay Bigbiga, Mayantoc, Tarlac, to inspect with New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange the ongoing aforestation project in that baranggay jointly undertaken by New Zealand and the Philippines. The President planted a symbolic tree at the site.

The project is part of a broader ASEAN-New Zealand aforestation program started in 1979 to help ASEAN member countries renew their denuded forests. Under the agreement, New Zealand provides the technological knowhow while the Philippines provides the site for nursery, labor force, training of technicians and manuals for dissemination to other ASEAN Member states. Natural Resources Minister Ernesto Maceda, accompanied the President and Prime Minister Lange.

CORDILLERA AUTONOMY MOVEMENT LEADERS INTERVIEWED

HK261101 Quezon City WE FORUM in English 17-23 Jun 86 pp 5, 12

[Text] On April 7, the Lumbaya Company, a detachment of Cordillera NPA fighters, resigned from the New People's Army to form the Cordillera People's Liberation Army [CPLA]. Leading them were former SVD priest Bruno Ortega, known as the "intellectual spine" of the Cordillera secessionist movement, and ex-seminarian Mailed Molina. They and Fr Conrado Balweg were elected in a "democratically held process" as members of the CPLS's 15-man commission."

When the CORDILLERA NEWS AGENCY (CNA) conducted the following interview in a "liberated zone" last May 23, Fr Balweg was holding talks in an undisclosed area with emissaries of the Central Committee of the CPP [Communist Party of the Philippines] - NPA. CPP leaders, Balweg later told CPP [as published] were dangling an offer of reconciliation with assurances that together, they would "launch a massive and comprehensive reform movement in the CPP-NPA."

Excerpts from the interview:

CNA: The Cory government has called for a dialogue with the Cordillera People's Liberation Army. We understand that Fr Conrado Balweg sent a reply to President Aquino agreeing to such a dialogue. What is the status of the talks?

Fr Ortega: It is true that Fr Balweg sent a letter to Cory. While we would like to have a dialogue with the Aquino government, this does not mean that we will surrender. We would like to have an honest-to-goodness dialogue with the President regarding the removal of troops here in the Cordillera.

CNA: How exactly do you envision this autonomous state?

Fr Ortega: We also propose an autonomous state for the Cordillera. We perceive this autonomous state based on the bodong [peace pact]. It will have its own government -- with exeuctive, legislative and judicical functions. It will also have its own army -- hence the Cordillera People's Liberation Army.

CNA: Many people specially those in the legal left are saying that the CPLA is for secession.

Fr Ortega: The CPLA is not for secession. We are proposing a Federal Republic of the Philippines which will be composed of three autonomous states, one for the Cordillera people, one for the coalition government in the malfeudal [as published] society, and one for the people of Mindanao.

We propose that the Federal Republic of the Philippines would act as a coordinating body of the three different states. It would act as government in relation to other nations. This would mean that the federal republic will be composed of three different autonomous states with equal representation and its own standing army. Clearly, the CPLA is not for secession.

CNA: What then would be CPLA's relation to the AFP [Armed Forces of the Philippines] and the NPA?

Molina: Our relation with the Armed Forces of the Philippines will depend on Cory's recognition of the Cordillera as an autonomous state. As for the New People's Army, we will have to talk to them and forge our own unities.

CNA: Who are the enemies of the CPLA?

Molina: Whoever comes and violates the laws of our ancestors, they are our enemies. Within the tribes, whoever, violates the laws of the bodong (peace act) becomes the enemy. These include people who come in to mine or to log.

These lands are communally owned by the Cordillera people and it is natural for the Cordillera people to take up arms and fight to defend these. Furthermore, all those who try to break the communalism existing in the Cordillera are also enemies. For example, there are local bureaucracts who engage in graft and corruption. They are against the system of communalism. They too, are enemies.

It should not be forgotten that during the Spanish time, many expeditionary forces tried to enter here. They did not succeed as our ancestors kept on fighting them. The Tigguians fought them from Ilocos Sur to Abra. In Kalinga-Apayao and the Montanosa, the Spanish could not also enter because the people pushed them back with spears and shields. In Benquet, however, the Americans were able to enter. The tactic they used was education. However, they were not able to penetrate the interior of the Cordillera nor were they above to dominate the area.

Fr Ortega: We can say that the people of our Cordillera are in power and in constant struggle. We derive our power from our own indigenous system that unites us as a people. We are also in continuous struggle fighting the incursions of multinationals in our area.

CNA: Last April 25, the CPP announced the expulsion of Fr Balweg from the NPA. What can you say of the charges against him?

Fr Ortega: It is not the thinking of Fr Balweg that resulted in the CPLA's separation from the CPP/NPA. In fact, Fr Balweg was the last one to make a decision because he was insisting on an ideological struggle in confronting the problems that caused the split of the CPLA from the NPA; on the issue of expulsion, there was no accusation filed against him which should be the basis for expulsion.

CNA: Considering the present conflict, is there a chance for some kind of unity?:

Molina: Revolutionary groups who have common enemies should be allies. While they differ in some areas, each group should help each other. The NPA and the CPLA should have close unities. Previous unities achieved should be tightened.

CNA: What then would you like to communicate with the Central Committee of the CPP?

Fr Ortega: First of all, they have to recognize the history of the Cordillera people. They also have to recognize the kind of government desired by the people of the Cordillera. In so doing, they will have to recognize the army of the cordillera people.

CNA: What would you like to communicate to the Cordillera people?

Fr Ortega: We take pride in our history as a people because our ancestors resisted the intrusions of the Spaniards and the Americans. Now, we have formed the Cordillera People's Liberation Army precisely to continue the struggle which our ancestors started.

CNA: Is there anything you would like to communicate to the rest of the Filipinos?

Fr Ortega: We are seeking their support in our campaign to have the Aquino administration recognize the autonomous state of the Cordillera people.

Molina: It doesn't mean that if we establish an autonomous state here in the Cordillera, that we are not one with the rest of the Filipinos. We should join hands so we can establish a just society, where there will be no minority-majority nor oppressors and oppressed. We should work to achieve this dream.

CNA: What do you think of this call for you to come down from the mountains, lay down your arms and join the mainstream of society?

Molina: Throughout history, the Cordillera people never laid down their arms because invaders have continuously tried to encroach on our territory. It doesn't mean that because there is no war, that we in the Cordillera should lay down our arms. We should always be ready to protect our area.

Fr Ortega: Right from the start, it was just for us to take up arms. If we surrender our arms, it will mean surrendering the mountains and the rivers. To surrender our arms is not possible.

CNA: What are the prospects for peace then?

Molina: The Cordillera people are peaceloving. This can be seen through the bodong (peace pact) which bodong is elimination of war. If the government recognizes the kind of government of the Cordillera people, of course, we can achieve peace.

CEBU CITY PASSES NUCLEAR FREE ZONE RESOLUTION

HK011037 Cebu City VISAYAN HERALD in English 18 Jun 86 pp 1, 4

[Text] The Bagong Alyansang Makabayan [New Nationalist Alliance] (BAYAN-Sugbo) yesterday lauded the Cebu City Sangguniang Panglunsod [city board] for passing a resolution declaring Cebu City a nuclear-free zone and for urging other municipalities, cities and provinces to do the same. Professor Zenaida Uy, Bayan-Sugbo chairperson, said that the Sangguniang Panglunsod resolution is very relevant in the face of continued "Rambo tactics" being waged by the imperialist superpowers which only promote tension and war in various parts of the world.

The possibility of a nuclear war, or even an accident involving nuclear aircrafts and vessels, should not be underestimated by a people on whose country lie the biggest American military facilities, she emphasized.

Moreover, nuclear weapons pose a great danger to our people since these serve as magnets for possible attacks and agresssion by a third country hositle to the United States, though not necessarily to the Philippines she added. The presence of nuclear arms in our country may ultimately involve us in a war not of our own making, nor of our own choice, she further clarified.

At the same time, Uy also called on the Cebu Sangguniang Panglalawigan [Cebu Provincial Board] to pass a similar resolution. Such a significant move should be adopted by the provincial government because it wil not only benefit the present generation, but moreso, the future citizens of Cebu, she stressed.

Indeed, Bayan-Sugbo calls on the members of the Sangguniang Panglalawigan to uphold and promote the people's interests over and above those of another country, Uy concluded.

MONOSD TO STUDY PERU, MEXICO ON DEBT REPAYMENT

HK251521 Manila MANILA BULLETIN English 25 Jun 86 p 15

[Text] Economic Planning Minister Solita Monsod has urged the Monetary Board to initiate a review of the loans contracted by the deposed Marcos government as part of the present administration's desire to improve external debt management. The review, according to Monsod, is aimed at determining whether past loans have been obtained under fraudulent or questionable circumstances.

She suggested a reassessment of the terms of the loans and the viability of the projects for which the loans were used, including possible overpricing of imported equipment of which were financed by the loans. Acknowledging the sensivity of the issue of debt management, Monsod proposed that selective debt review be underaken as quietly as possible by a select group to be headed by the CB [Central Bank] within a six-month period.

Monsod, who is now in the United States, is scheduled to fly to Mexico and Peru next week to study the experiences of the two South American countries in their efforts to improve their respective positions regarding the repayment of their foreign debts to various foreign creditor countries and foreign banks. The economic planning chief had wanted her mission to Mexico and Peru kept a secret so as not to alarm the country's foreign creditors.

CONTACTS WITH IRAN VIA SATELLITE DISRUPTED

OW030417 Tokyo KYODO in English 0411 GMT 3 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 3 KYODO -- Phone and telex contacts between Japan and Iran via intelsat satellite has been suspended since 12:25 a.m. Thursday (Japan time), the Kokusai Denshin Denwa Co. (KDD) said. KDD officials said there are no reports on defects in the satellite and believe that the loss of contact may have been caused by some damage to Iranian ground station facilities because of the Iran-Iraq war. Satellite contact with Iran was also disrupted for about 10 days after an Iraqi air raid on Iran June 8.

INDUSTRIAL COOPERATION CENTER WITH EC PLANNED

OW021029 Tokyo KYODO in English 0752 GMT 2 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 2 KYODO -- Japan and the European Community (EC) will jointly establish an industrial cooperation center here in fiscal 1987 starting next April to provide European engineers and business people with training courses on Japanese-style management and the Japanese language, government officials said Wednesday.

The Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI) outlined its plan of the center at a meeting of an 18-member business group, headed by Shoichi Akazawa, president of the Japan External Trade Organization (JETRO). Japan had proposed to establish the center in response to EC requests for more information about Japanese business.

Japanese Government and EC officials and business leaders are to hold a joint meeting in Brussels in mid-September to prepare for launching the center, which aims at promoting the transfer of Japanese technology to the EC and direct EC investment in Japan.

Trainees, to be sent to the center by European firms, are urged to learn the Japanese language before taking any of the courses, including visits to factories for practical training, the officials said. The number of Europeans trainees at Japanese firms has been increasing dramatically in recent years, according to a JETRO survey covering 150 major Japanese companies which have plants in Europe. This reflects growing interest in Japanese-style management like worker participation in product quality control, the officials said.

The center, to be financed equally by the EC and Japan, also plans to provide information to help European enterprises invest in Japan. Cumulative direct investment by Japan in EC countries totaled 8.4 billion dollars at the end of last year, compared with 1 billion dollars by the EC in Japan.

More on Cooperation Center

OW021049 Tokyo KYODO in English 1036 GMT 2 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 2 KYODO -- The Ministry of International Trade and Industry Wednesday unveiled a basic plan for the proposed Japan-European Community industrial cooperation center designed to promote European investment in Japan and Japanese technology transfer to the European Common Market.

The center will be the first international cooperation promotion arena to be established in Japan.

Ministry officials said they hope to inaugurate the center by the end of fiscal 1987, which ends in March 1988, after exchanging views between Japan and the EC. They said the ministry plans to use the center for training about 40 West European trainees a year on Japanese production and quality control methods and for a firsthand training program in Japanese enterprises.

The center will provide European companies with information concerning their investment in Japan, and will also develop educational materials to help Europeans understand Japanese language by trainees, the officials said. European investment in Japan is comparatively negligible, smaller by a ratio of 7-1 than Japanese investment in the Common Market, the officials said. Japanese technology transfers to Western Europe are outpaced one to four by the flow of European technology into Japan.

Establishment of the center was proposed at a ministerial conference held by Japan and the European Community in Tokyo last November. Japan and the EC are scheduled to try to make a final adjustment of views on the plan at their joint session to be held in Brussels in September.

ABE ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY FOR LDP PRESIDENT

OW011213 Tokyo KYODO in English 1202 GMT 1 Jul 86

[Text] Sasebo, Nagasaki Pref., July 1 KYODO -- Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe Tuesday officially announced his candidacy for the Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP) presidency, for which an intra party election is to be held in Autumn. The election must take place by the time Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone's second two-year term as president of the LDP expires in October. LDP party rule bans three consecutive two-year presidential terms.

Abe's announcement is the first from among the three so-called "new leaders" -- Finance Minister Noboru Takeshita, Party Executive Board Chairman Kiichi Miyaszawa and Abe -- all of whom are gunning for the presidency. Referring to the ongoing election campaigns for the July 6 polls of both houses of the Diet, Abe described the upcoming elections as a test of the new leaders' ability to appeal to the public.

Prime Minister Nakasone has termed the elections a judgment by the public on the outcome of the three-and-half-year Nakasone administration. "We have to make our best efforts to carry term out so as not to betray the anticipation of the public," Abe pledged.

Referring to a question of how he would respond to a post-election cabinet reshuffle, perhaps by the Nakasone administration, Abe said, "It depends entirely on the outcome of the elections." Asked about is strategy for winning the LDP presidential post, Abe replied, "I'll make it concrete while conferring with the public through electioneering." Abe added that the LDP should win a stable majority in both houses of the Diet, and especially more than 270 seats in the Lower House election, a comfortable majority required to gain all the chairmanship in the 18 Lower House standing committees.

Abe's remarks are seen by political pundits as meaning that Nakasone should step down in October if the LDP fails to win a stable majority in both houses of the Diet.

PARTIES FAIL TO AGREE ON ELECTION DEBATE

OW021331 Tokyo KYODO in English 1154 GMT 2 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 2 KYODO -- There will be no public debate between the heads of the ruling and opposition parties because of differences over the form of the discussion, opposition party spokesmen said Wednesday. The ruling Liberal-Democratic Party (LDP) said in a letter to the opposition parties that it would continue to insist on a round-robin formula for the discussions, in which each party leader would have one-on-one debates with the others in turn.

The Japan Socialist Party (JSP), Komeito and the Democratic Socialist Party (DSP) had proposed a round-table discussion with all heads of parties present at the same time. The opposition parties called on the LDP to reconsider its position soon after accepting the letter later in the day, but the LDP stood by its earlier decision.

The debate was originally proposed by JSP chairman Masashi Ishibashi on June 22 in order to clarify election issues on the July 6 double polls of both houses of the Diet. Political pundits believe the LDP is virtually rejecting the debate because it believes there would be a concerted attack on Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone by the opposition leaders on the question of the anticipated introduction by the LDP of a large-scale indirect tax after the elections.

CANDIDATES SAID TO OPPOSE ANTISPYING LAW

OW021323 Tokyo KYODO in English 1114 GMT 2 Jul 86

[Text] Tokyo, July 2 KYODO -- Most candidates running in the July 6 Diet election believe there is no need for an antispying law, a group called the Citizens' Network Against the Antispying Bill said Wednesday. The group said it wrote to 239 candidates running for both the Upper and Lower Houses asking for their views on the issue and received replies from 89.

Fifty-eight of them said they oppose such a law as it would be counter to free access to information, which is an important element of a democratic system. Only nine members of the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party made replies. Seven of them said that Japan needs such a law to control spying as it is a "paradise for spying." Only one of the LDP candidates said the law could get rid of all the espionage agents in Japan.

Sixty-eight candidates said they would oppose a bill on spying if it was proposed again in the Diet. An antispying bill was proposed by the LDP in the Diet last year, but was scrapped in December. The LDP has been studying a revised antispying bill to propose to the Diet.

MORE SUPPORT REPORTED FOR KPA TALKS PROPOSAL

GFTUK, UAWPK Chairmen

SK280904 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0300 GMT 26 Jun 86

[Text] Kim Pong-chu, chairman of the GFTUK Central Committee, and Pak Su-tong, chairman of the UAWPK Central Committee, each issued a press statement on 25 June supporting the KPA Supreme Command's peace proposal for holding talks between military persons in authority.

Chairman Kim Pong-chu, in his statement, said that the proposal of our side for holding talks between the military persons in authority is an important initiative unprecedented in the history of North-South contact had dialogue, which have continued throughout the 40-year history of national division, and that he, together with the entire working class, warmly supports this.

He continued: Reflected in the proposal for holding talks between the military persons in authority is the consistent peace-loving position of our party and the government of the repbulic as well as the consistent aspirations and desire of our working class and the entire fellow countrymen. Nevertheless, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean ruling ring, while raving in words that they want dialogue and desire peace, take a position, in action, criticizing and opposing our peace proposal. This is very regrettable and surprising. Our working class is consistently expressing its vehement indignation at this.

If the U.S. imperialists and the South Korea ruling ring avoid talks for alleviation of tension and peace, where are they heading? It is apparent that they are following the road of confrontation and war. I strongly maintain that they should not follow the road of confrontation and war anymore against the aspirations and desires of our nation and the world people but that they should accept our peace proposal and come to the talks between the military persons in authority.

Chairman Pak Su-ton, in his statement, said that the entire agricultural working people also fully support and welcome the KPA Supreme Command's new peace proposal for holding talks between the military persons in authority, and continued: Our agricultural working people ardently desire that the talks between the military persons in authority will be held at an early date so that they can do their farming in a peaceful and stable atmosphere and so that a new phase will be opened for the peaceful reunification of the country.

OUr agricultural working people of the northern half of the republic, the South Korean people of all walks of life, and the overseas compatriots are expressing deep concern over the grave situation in which the dark clouds of nuclear war hang heavily over the people of the nation, and are raising anti-U.S., antiwar, and antinuclear voices for peace. The world's peace-loving people also desire that steps be taken to prevent the danger of war and alleviate tension on the Korean peninsula.

He maintained that the U.S. and South Korean persons in authority should squarely see this reality, discard the irresponsible attitude of holding a negative view toward dialogue, and affirmatively respond to our just peace proposal before it is too late [tonutki chone].

Red Cross Official

SK030232 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2200 GMT 2 Jul 86

["Talk" by Yi Chong-yul, head of the DPRK Red Cross delegation]

[Text] The new proposal put forth by the KPA Supreme Command for talks of the military authorities serves as a key to relieving the status of acute military confrontation which has reached an extreme point on the Korean peninsula. Recognizing that this new peace proposal corresponds totaly to the aspirations of all fellow countrymen and our Red Cross men who hope for relaxation of tension, dialogue, and peace, I ardently [yolyolhi] support and welcome this proposal.

Today, because of the reckless maneuvers of the United States and the South Korean authorities, the danger of war is imminent in our country. Several million fellow countrymen and brothers were cruelly sacrificed due to the war imposed by the U.S. imperialists, and the pains of numerous compatriots who were separated from each other have not been healed. All the people and the progressive people of the world are deeply concerned with the fact that the danger of a new war is approaching again on this land. The ardently wish that such a situation be settle as soon as possible. The new peace proposal put forth by the KPA Supreme Command is the most reasonable measure to make a breadthrough in the grave phase created today in our country. If this proposal is realized, the situation on the Korean peninsula will be turned to the direction of easing tension and peace. Favorable circumstances to dialogue will be created when this proposal is realized. Therefore, a bright prospect will be opened in the futhre of all the North-South talks including the Red Cross talks.

Those who truly want dialogue and peace should actively support our new proposal and respond to it. However, the United States and the South Korean side rejected [kobu] the realistic proposal we put forth to settle the situation even though they talked about dialogue and peace. This exposes that the dialogue and peace raved about by them are propaganda and lies aimed at affecting public opinion, The United States and the South Korean side should correctly realize what consequences will be brought about when they continually reject our new peace proposal, and should respond to and attend the talks of the military authorities without delay. Availing myself of this opportunity, I express my belief that all the Red Cross men and the peace-loving people of the world will extend active support and encouragement so that our new peace proposal can be realized at an early date.

[Text] Pyongyang June 27 (KCNA) -- The completion of the Nampo barrage, a grand monumental edifice of the Workers' Party era, was proclaimed on June 24.

A railway, a motorway and a sidewalk have been laid on the 8 kilometres long dam of the Nampo barrage.

The Barrage consisting of three locks for the simultaneous passage of ships from 2,000 to 50,000 to ton classes has a daily traffic capacity of millions of tons.

Built on the locks are 2 swing bridges, one of which linking locks nos. 2 and 3 is the longest of its kind in the world.

There are also a spillway with 36 sluices and an auxilliary spillway and several fish routes.

The barrage is unprecedented in its scale. It construction cost about 4,000 million dollars. It was completed in a short period of 5 years thanks to the great grit and big operation of our party to materialize the far-reaching plan of the great leader President Kim Il-song as early as possible.

Dear Comrade Kim chong-il arranged national meetings for a joint review of the designing of the barrage scores of times in the early 1980s to complete the designing and launching grand construction operations.

He formed a big construction force with soldiers of the Korean People's Army and selected skilled workers from all parts of the country and sent them to the construction site.

He also organized and dispatched the "February 17 scientists shock brigade" with competent scientists and technicians so as to successfully solve scientific and technical problems arising in the construction of the barrage.

And he established an orderly work system to supply materials and equipment and took measures to make the whole party, the whole country and the entire people give help in the construction of the barrage.

Giving working guidance to the construction site several times, he clarified the direction and ways of the projects and roused soldier-builders to new feats of labour.

He visited the construction site for the second time on April 11, 1984, and highly praised the soldiers who had finished a vast cofferdam project for walling off a sea section of 550,000 square metres in a short time and started concrete tamping for locks. He personally met innovators and encouraged them to be heroes.

In September 1985 he taught them to build the barrage to be an edifice of eternal value and indicated the ways of successfully finishing the last section of the dam.

When the construction of the barrage was going on a full scale, he saw with a deep affection for the builders to it that monuments were built to convey their feasts down through generations.

Thanks to the bold operation, tested leadership and deep affection of Comrade Kim Chong-il, the builders of the barrage have wrought a miracle unprecedented in the world history of barrage construction.

O Chin-u Delivers WPK Message

SK280416 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 1500 GMT 24 Jun 86

[Text] A splendid meeting was held in the 8 February Cultural Hall to commend the heroic KPA soldiers, construction workers, and volunteers who have performed exploits in building the Nampo lockgate, a great, monumental project in the era of the workers' party.

By upholding the call of the party and the leader, by possessing lofty pride and self-confidence in undertaking the great nature-remarking work which will display the prestige and might of Korea in the eighties, and by emulating the imcomparable gallantry, sacrificing spirit, and unyielding fighting spirit displayed by the heroic warriors on Heights 1211 and 351, the KPA soldiers and construction workers who participated in the construction of the Nampo lockgate have created the miracle of the century by successfully building the Nampo lockgate as a great and monumental creation of the era of the Workers Party in a short period.

The cultural hall was packed with KPA soldiers and construction workers, who gathered there with boundless trust and gratitude toward the great leader and our party that entrusted the KPA soldiers with the Nampo lockgate construction project, that made it possible to build a huge and magnificent structure on the 20-ri rough seas, and that gave a great credit and the honor of high recognition to them.

A portrait of the great leader of our party and people Comrade Kim Il-song was respectfully placed in the front of the hall.

Hung in the hall were the slogans reading "Long live the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song!" and "Long live the glorious WPK!"

Together with the soldiers of the People's Army and construction workers, who had participating in the meeting were Comrades O Chin-u, member of the Presidium of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee and minister of th People's Armed Forces, and O Kuk-yol, member of the Political Bureau of the WPK Central Committee and chief of staff of the KPA; KPA generals Kim Kwang-chin and Kim Pong-yul; and functionaries from the sectors concerned.

The meeting opened with the singing of the Song of General Kim Il-song.

At the meeting, Comrade O Chin-u delivered a congratulatory message from the WPK Central Committee to the KPA soldiers and all construction workers who performed heroic exploits by participating in the construction of the Nampo lockgate.

The congratulatory message reads:

To the KPA soldiers and all construction workers who have performed heroic exploits by participating in the construction of the Nampo lockgate:

The WPK Central Committee warmly congratulates the KPA soldiers and all construction workers on successfully building the magnificent and splendid Nampo lockgate by displaying mass heroism under the leadership of the party.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The construction of the Nampo lockate is a magnificent project which we proudly display to the world as another great monumental edifice built in the era of the Workers' Party, and is a worthwhile construction project designed to provide our posterity with happiness generation after generation.

On 22 May 1981, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song personally visited the scene concerned, determined the location of the construction of the lockgate, which he had planned a long time ago, and entrusted KPA soldiers with this difficult construction work. During the entire period of building the lockgate, he wisely led the struggle of construction workers.

The construction of the Nampo lockgate is abold and magnificent project unprecedented in the history of lockgate construction, and is a great nature-remaking project to change the appearance of the fatherland.

The KPA soldiers, who participated in the construction of the Nampo lockgage by upholding the call of the party and the leader, displayed the spirit of absolute and unconditional acceptance of the party's order and directions, incomparable gallantry, a sacrifical spirit, and an unyielding fighting spirit. They disposed of earth amount to some 15 million cubic meters, poured concrete amount to some 2 million cubic meters, and cut and transport some 16 million cubic meters of rock and gravel. By so doing, they have completed the difficult and hugh project of building on the 20-ri rough seas a great dam with three docks and 36 sluices in a period of only 5 years, thus creating a miracle of the century.

The construction of the Nampo lockgate is the great victory of our party's afforestation and riparian policy and another proud success attained by our people in the struggle to remodel nature in accordance with the requirement of the chuche idea -- the struggle that was launched in the work of repairing the Potong river after liberation.

With the construction of the Nampo lockgate providing momentum, we have come to prevent any damages from drought and floods along the Taedong river by completely resolving questions concerning the supply of water for irrigation, industrial, and drinking use in the west coastal area, including the question of water supply for hundreds of thousands of chongbo of tideland, which is of key significance in implementing our party's plan on the questions of feeding the people of embarking on the road of communism.

At the same time, the dept of the Taedong and Chaeryong rivers has been increased and a railway line and a highway have been built on the dam. Thus, a new vista has opened for the development of transport of the country, and it has become possible to further beautify the scenary on the river banks.

The past 5 years of Nampo lockgate construction was a continuation of combat without gunshots in which lightning and decisive battles were waged to overcome mounting difficulties. It was a period during which the noble traits and heroic spirit of our People's Army, boundlessly loyal to the leadership of the party and powerful in organizational and combat capabilities, were displayed. The KPA soldiers and construction workers who participated in the construction of the lockgate wholeheartedly upheld the far-reaching plan of our party to provide happiness for future generations, overcame the intense cold and heat and the rough waves, and removed more than 10 hills to build the dam on the rough seas. By so doing, they have turned the Taedong river, which has continued to flow for hundreds of millions of years, into a great artificial lake containing hundreds of millions of tons of water, thus creating a miracle similar to the creation of heaven and earth.

The course of building the Nampo lockgate was one of bringing about astonishing innovations in 11 sectors through the heroic struggle of the KPA soliders and construction workers, who thought in a creative manner and carried out their activities in a revolutionary manner with the spirit of matchless boldness. This course was one of opening a new phase of science and technology.

The lockgate construction workers blocked the sea area of 550,000 square meters by way of sinking large steel vessels under the 30-meter deep water. Thus, they carried out an unprecedentedly difficult project of building temporary dams to build the docks and the dam. At the same time, under extremely unfavorable conditions in which tidal waters were flowing, they successfully carried out the final blocking of the area ranging some 200 meters in a period of a few days by a new construction method of using large 7,000-ton box-type structures, a method the superiority of which had already been displayed. Thus, they have set a new record in the history of lockgate construction and hydrography.

Through various mass innovation moments carried out under the banner of self-reliance, the comrades manufactured 150-ton crane ships and much other machinery and facilities by their own efforts and poured a maximum of 21,000 cubic meters of concrete in 1 day, thus bringing about great gains all around. By so doing, the comrades have created the speed of construction of the eighties -- the new speed of the Nampo lockgate construction.

Comrades resolved all questions in our own style by firmly abiding by the principle of chuche in construction work and by highly displaying the spirit of creativeness, and accelerated construction work by making many inventions and by developing and introducing technological innovations, greatly contributing to developing the country's science and technology.

Planners, scientists, technicians, and specialists who participated in the construction of the lockgate successfully implemented the vast plan for the construction of the lockgate in a short period of time by smashing passivism, conservatism, and technological mysticism. By resolving many difficult and complicated technological and scientific questions, they firmly guaranteed chuche, modern, and scientific natures in building the lockgate.

In the entire course of building the lockgate, the beautiful tradtional custom in which the people love the army just as they love their blood kin and heartily assist it, and in which soldiers devotedly serve the people, developed. Responding to the party's call for aiding the construction of the Nampo lockgate by the entire party, the whole country, and all the people, the working class at many plants and enterprises produced and supplied machines, materials, and the very large equipment required for building the lockgate in a timely manner. KPA units at all levels, workers throughout the country, students, and overseas compatriots vigorously aided soldiers engaged in the construction of the lockgate materially and spiritually.

The construction of the Nampo lockgate was a worthwhile struggle that demonstrated the might and magnificent appearance of Korea in the 1980's and was a great school of revolution and construction, which helped people develop themselves remarkable. In the course of building the Nampo lockgate, more than 7,000 soldiers and construction workers, who were loyal and faithful to the party and the leader, came to be crowned with glory as members of the WPK; many technicians, inventors, and scientists were brought up; and tens of thousands of state-medal-winners and unheralded heroes, who performed immortal exploits for the party, the revolution, the fatherland, and the people, emerged.

In a short period of time the Nampo Lockgate construction workers successfully completed the world-famous huge construstion projuct with our own planning, technology, facilities, materials, and strength. By so doing, they have vigorously displayed the endless creativities of our people, who are under the wise leadership of the party, and the great potential of the self-reliant economy of our country. At the same time they have given confidence in victory and boundless courage to the working people of the country, who have turned out in the struggle to bring about new upsurges in the socialist economic construction. The Nampo lockgate construction has shown that any difficult task in socialist and communist construction can be successfully accomplished if the party's guidance is followed.

The labor exploits performed by the KPA soldiers and construction workers, who adorned the 1980's by performing miracles in the work of remodeling nature, and greatly contributed to developing the country's economy and improving the people's standard of living, will shine forever in the history of the struggle of our party and people, and the party and the people will never forget the exploits performed by the Nampo lockgate construction workers.

The WPK Central Committee highly appreciates the noble achievements of the KPA soldiers and construction workers for providing lasting treasures for the prosperity and happiness of our people by successfully completing the gigantic and great Nampo lockgate by displaying warm loyalty to the party and the leader and an unyielding fighting spirit, for safeguarding the authority of our party, and for making the honor of our fatherland shine.

Today, our People's Army is assigned the honorable task of continuously and vigorously aiding the struggle of the people for socialist construction while firmly defending the socialist fatherland.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: It is good for soldiers of the People's Army to take charge of the front of socialist economic construction while staging military exercises.

It is the basic duty of the People's Army to defend the fatherland. Comrades should never forget the duty of the revolutionary army and should be fully prepared to firmly safeguard the security of the fatherland and the revolutionary gains from any enemy aggression by strengthening the military capabilities of their units to meet the requirements of the strained situation in which the maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique to provoke a new war have assumed a much more wicked nature. At the same time, they should continuously make the honor of the Nampo lockgate construction workers shine by fiercely fanning the flames of the present battle for speed at construction sites for major projects.

New construction projects assigned to the army are important projects that are of epochal significance in implementing ahead of schedule our party's far-sighted plan for making the fatherland prosperous and for providing the people with a much more affluent life.

Comrades should bravely overcome difficulties on their own and display once again the heroic mettle in the implementation of new combat tasks by highly displaying the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance and arduous struggle. You, comrades, should ensure the quality of the construction at the highest level while at the same time speed up the construction by planning and supervising the organization and command over the construction through collective wisdom, by strengthening the creative cooperation with the scientists and technicians, and by strictly observing technical specifications and regulations governing construction.

Comrades, you should fully display the noble spiritual and moral manners of the revolutionary army and defend the honor of the crack units possessing combat capabilities by observing the 10 major rules to be observed in the army service and 10 items to be observed in the management of a company and by displaying the traditional laudable manners of the closeness between the upper and lower echelons and the unity between the army and the people.

The party leadership over the army is the life of the People's Army, the army of the party. Comrades, you should always think and act as dictated by the party ideology and intentions by arming yourselves with the party's revolutionary ideas, the chuche idea. You should also serve as a fortress of defending the party Central Committee led by the great Comrade Kim II-song [as heard] politically and ideologically, at the risk of our lives.

Comrades, you should firmly safeguard and defend the authority of the party and make the honor of the chuche fatherland shine furthermore by continuously displaying the endless loyalty to the party and leader which was demonstrated in the construction of the Nampo lockgate, and the spirit of absoluteness and unconditionality with regard to the party's orders and directives by having our party's great plans to build a people's paradise on this land realized.

Construction workers who had participated in the construction of Nampo lockgate should effect new miracles and renovations at every socialist construction site upholding the party's call, and the supporters should actively assist the soldiers of the People's Army who have devoted themselves to the struggle for the defense of the fatherland and socialist construction.

Indeed, the party has great confidence in, and expectations from, the soldiers of our heroic People's Army and construction workers who have always remained endlessly loyal to the party and leader in the great socialist construction struggle to make the fatherland wealthy and powerful, to make it develop, and to make the people happy.

The WPK Central Committee is firmly convinced that the soldiers of the People's Army and the construction workers who have achieved exploits in the construction of the Nampo lockgate will wonderfully live up to the party's confidence in, and expectations from, them by successfully discharging the revolutionary advancement under the party leadership.
